In the death of our dear friend and fellow Vestryman, Mr. William Lippincott, we are impressed with the feeling not only that the Parish has lost one of its oldest and most faithful members, but that we have met with a personal bereavement. Having lived far past the term of the three-score years and ten, allotted as the span of a man's life, and having been an office bearer in this Church for nearly thirty years, we his colleagues, and representing the whole congregation, wish to place upon record our testimony to his spotless life as a faithful Christian gentleman.

Mr. Lippincott was a member and pew-holder in St. Stephen's from its foundation in 1823.

The constant mention of his name upon the Minute Book of the Vestry as forming one in nearly every important committee will attest the number of his services and the appreciation by the Vestry of their value.

He was a man of few words, but of sound judgment, not fond of debate, but of positive opinions, and tenacious in carrying them out. He was of a most genial and hospitable nature, generous in all his thoughts and acts, and kind to every one. He was remarkable for the vigor of his mind and body. He had none of the garrulity or prejudices which often accompany old age, but took a lively interest in the people and things around him, and seemed to enjoy especially the society of the young. The sorrows of his life, which were many, he kept to himself and bore his trouble with Christian resignation, maintaining outwardly his customary geniality and cheerfulness.

His wise and earnest work in this Parish and its charities have been a blessing, and his life in the community has been a benediction. Having served his generation through a long life he has been gathered to his fathers, "having the testimony of a good conscience, in the communion of the Catholic Church, in the confidence of a certain faith, in the comfort of a reasonable, religious and holy hope, in favor with God, and in perfect charity with the world."

Resolved, Therefore, That this expression of our deep sense of loss be inscribed in the minutes of the Vestry, and be also printed in the Parish News, Public Ledger, The Church Standard and The Churchman.

EDWARD ROWLAND,
Secretary of the Vestry.

THE BISHOP HAS APPOINTED the usual date for his annual visitation of the Parish for Confirmation. It will be at 11 o'clock, Tuesday before Easter, March 20th.

As the Rector looks over the congregation Sunday after Sunday, he sees the faces of many men and some women who have not openly identified themselves with the Church, and who ought to do so. It is a duty which seems to him so plain and obvious that he is always perplexed to imagine why they do not recognize it. He wonders if there is anything he could possibly say, which might move them to do it. They are already so evidently on the side of Christ that he cannot see why they hesitate to acknowledge what everybody sees to be the fact. It cannot be cowardice, or even mauvaise honte which deters them. They are above that. It can only be that they fail to realize what the nature of the obligation is.

Why is it, then, that every man and woman is bound to be a member and communicant of the Church? It is not primarily in order that he may secure his individual "salvation" thereby. That may be achieved without. If one say boldly that the professed members of the visible Church will ultimately be "saved" and the non-members "lost," there are few who would believe him. One has only to look facts in the face to see that this is incredible. The real question is not one of personal gain or loss at all. It is a question of right or wrong doing.

The Church is the society which Jesus established for the betterment of the world. It has not always kept this purpose singly before its eyes. But in the main it has been and is true to its original aim. It does make its members good; and it does act for good upon the world. Jesus insisted that every man and woman who is at all in sympathy with Himself and with His purpose should make himself known to the society. He would not have clandestine followers. He did not ask that any one should blow a trumpet and proclaim to the world that he was about to become a Christian. But He ordained that anyone who wished to be on friendly terms with Him should make himself known to the Brotherhood. Such an one is in search of righteousness. Let him therefore join the society for the promotion of righteousness which is organized about the person of Jesus, that is, the Church. He is officially received into it by the sacrament of Baptism wherein the pure water betokens the spirit of purity. The venerable Father of the Household lays his hands upon his head in benediction, and in the name of the whole society recognizes him as one of us. Then he eats and drinks with the fraternity and shows his brotherliness. It is all simple to the last degree. It was meant to be simple and easy. The conditions are easy. "Do you accept the essential facts of Christianity as they are stated in the Apostles' Creed?"

"Do you promise that, by the help of God, you will endeavor to lead a sober, righteous and godly life?" These are all. Beyond these one's doctrinal opinions may be what he chooses. His personal conduct is left to his own ordering, subject only to his own voluntary promise to endeavor after righteousness. The conditions cannot be made any easier. But therefore the Master insists upon avowal. He wants to know whom he may count upon for help, and whom he may not.

To say "I am not fit: I am not good enough," is simply trifling. Any one is fit who wishes to be fit. The wish is itself the qualification. The Masters's plan is to bring this wish for goodness to a fruitful issue by setting him who so wishes in the midst of forces and influences which will produce that result. The Church is such an environment. Its sacraments and ordinances are adjusted to that purpose by Divine wisdom and by customs of human experience.

Of course, hereditary misconceptions, and common prejudices must be taken account of. But is it too much to ask that candid men and women, who already strive after goodness, and who already revere the Son of Man, will look fairly in the face the facts of their spiritual life, and be guided by the spirit of all wisdom?

The clergy of the parish will be ready to meet anyone half way, or the whole way, or to go to them concerning this matter upon the slightest intimation. There will be instructions upon the nature and obligation of church membership, and upon those things which a Christian ought to know and do, on Wednesday and Friday afternoons at 5 o'clock. There will be also a Confirmation Class for younger people in the Guild Hall on Wednesday evenings during Lent at 7.45 o'clock.

THE ANNUAL OFFERING FOR DIOCESAN MISSIONS will be placed on the Altar an Sunday morning, February 18th. This annual offering has come to be a well known and well approved institution in St. Stephen's. For the sake of those who have come to the parish within the year, we will explain the way it is done.

On Sunday morning, February 11th, the Rector will speak more in detail about Diocesan Missions. During the week which follows, every family will be waited upon by a committee of gentlemen, among whom the parish has been districted for this purpose. The committee simply calls to receive offerings of those who give. They will make no argument or appeal of any kind. The Rector will do all that publicly. Of course the committee will be courteously received by all well-bred people, whether they can see their way to contribute or not. The amount expected, according to a tacit agreement which has been in force for a number of years, is equal to $5 from each person. This is what we have done heretofore, and nobody is any poorer, while many a poor missionary and struggling handful of people are much the better off.

Of course there are many in the parish who cannot afford to give so much as the sum mentioned above, but there are many others who can, and heretofore have given far more than the amount, so as to make up for their poorer neighbors. There is no fear but that they will do so again. The whole amount gathered by the collectors will be by them placed in the alms-basins, Sunday, February 18th.

THE PROCEEDS OF THE Ladies' Sale, held in the Guild Room, in the early part of December, in aid of gentlewomen who are obliged by their own efforts to support themselves, amounted to $760.19.

LENTEN SEWING.—The committee on Lenten Sewing will be at the Guild Room, every Monday and Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, to cut out and prepare work, which will be given out on Ash-Wednesday and every Monday and Friday during Lent, after morning service. Contributions of money and goods will be gratefully received, as there is a great demand for relief this season; the committee is anxious to keep up the good work. Over 600 garments were distributed last year. Cannot the number be increased to 1000? It will depend upon the hearty co-operation of members of the congregation. Any one willing to cut out work will be welcome. If members could send word to the committee how many garments they want on Ash-Wednesday, the packages will be ready for them.

OWING TO THE GENEROUS GIFTS of very good second-hand clothing, the Missionary Box Committee were able to send three boxes of very valuable comforts during the Advent Season, valued at $175.00. They have now applications for boxes from the west, and trust that the Lenten offerings will enable them to let the Missionaries have the warm clothing they have needed all winter as soon as possible. Nearer home they are asked to help the daughters of a clegyman in getting their outfit for the school they are attending on scholarships.

THESE WINTER MONTHS are the busy season of the Garment Committee, and as the contributions have been generous, efforts have been made to have the distributions equally so; and while, numerically, a large number of garments of some kinds are on hand, yet, literally, few are on foot, for almost every applicant would welcome a pair of shoes and stockings; and flannel underclothing and outside wraps and coats have been in steady demand, so that future contributions in this line, during the coming month, would be available.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS and their friends spent a very pleasant evening, January 10th, in the Guild room. Dr. Burk, one of the members of the Peary Expedition, gave an illustrated Talk on "One Day in Greenland," which was both interesting and very enjoyable.

The King's Daughters hold their meetings in February on Wednesdays, the 7th and 21st, in the Guild room, at half past seven o'clock.

THE OBJECT OF THE BOYS' GUILD is to promote Reverence, Purity, Temperance and Sociability among its members, and during its six years existence, has very successfully maintained its reputation. A QUIET DAY FOR WOMEN, to be conducted by the Rev. W. F. Bodine, D. D., Rector of the Church of the Saviour, will be held in St. James' Church, Walnut and Twenty-second Streets, on the second Thursday in Lent, February 15th. Services, beginning with Holy Communion, at 10.30 A. M. until 1 P. M., and from 2.30 till 4.30 P. M.

Conference of Church Women in the Holy Trinity Parish House, Twentieth Street below Walnut, on Friday, February 16th, from 10.30 A. M. to 1 P. M., and from 2.30 to 4.30 P. M. Topics: "The Church's Opportunity in relation to Wage Workers." "The Responsibility of the Church towards the Foreign Elements in our City." "The Ideal American Home." "The Spirit of Work."

FOR ABOUT FIVE YEARS THE RECTOR of this parish was closely interested in the Theatre Services which were held under the management of the Rev. Mr. Johnson, at the Arch St. Theatre. There can be no doubt of the value of those services. During all that time the attendance averaged 1500 men, ninety-five per cent of whom never went inside of a Church. They were not the offscourings of creation either, but good, decent, plain, respectable men. There are a good many reasons why such people will go in crowds to hear the Gospel preached in such a public place and will not go to Church. Anyone who really cares to find out the reasons can do so without much trouble. During all those years there was not a trace of "sensationalism" in the conduct of the services. They were severely plain and simple, and the preaching was the same. Four years ago they were interrupted by the breaking down of Mr. Johnson's health. It is intended now to recommence the same work at the Walnut St. Theatre the first Sunday in February. The Rector declined to take any part in the services which have been conducted in that place during the winter under the management of the Young Men's Christian Association. He did so because he did not believe that they were managed so as to reach the kind of people who ought to be reached. A puplic service on Sunday in any place and way which takes people away from Church, who are in the habit of going there, is bad in its results, however excellent may be its intention. Such a service is only defensible in so far as it actually operates as a feeder to the Church. It is better that men should hear the Gospel of Christ from the stage of a theatre than that they should not hear it at all. But if such a service become a place where nominally Christian folk go in search of a sensation, it becomes a nuisance. It is possible so to run it, as has been proven by experiment, in such a way that it does good and not harm. But to do so requires much wisdom and much experience. There is probably no man in the United States who is so well qualified to do just this as is the Rev. Mr. Johnson.

It may be of interest to say in this connection that the Rector expects to hold a series of services upon the Sunday nights in March, in the First Regiment Armory, for the benefit of the members of the Regiment, of which he is the Chaplain.

SELECTIONS.

L'EGLISE CATHOLIQUE.

L'aurore de la grande fraternité chrétienne apparait à l'horizon. Les dénominations diverses ont accompli leur tâche; elles n'ont plus de raison d'être. Le moment est venu où chacune d'elles doit contribuer de ce qu'elle a de mieux à l'édification d'une église véritablement une, chrétienne et catholique, où le pouvoir exécutif sera exercé par les évêques, et le pouvoir électif par les fidèles; où l'imitation du Christ sera considérée comme beaucoup plus importante que l'acceptation de telle ou telle doctrine particulière, que l'observance de telle ou telle pratique rituelle. C'est ainsi seulement que l'église pourra regagner l'amour et la confiance du peuple.

A correspondent says in an exchange: "How many women will wear Aigrettes of Herons' plumes in their hats after they hear the true and shocking details of how they are obtained? These light and pretty trimmings are the ornamental plumes of the heron during the breeding season, and then only can they be obtained. Very few are yielded by each bird, and they are shot in the heronries after being driven from off the nests that contain their young. The feathers are pulled out, the birds are thrown on the ground, frequently alive, where they decay, and the young are left to perish of absolute starvation, in order that thoughtless women may have a cockade in their hats. The fashion of wearing birds' feathers is responsible for the disappearance of many song birds, and for the almost extermination of the humming-bird in the Southern States.—The Churchman.

MEN AND MONEY.

"Herein," says Mr. Ruskin, "is the test with every man, whether money is the principal object with him or not. If in midlife he could pause and say, 'Now I have enough to live upon. I will live upon it, and, having well earned it, I will also well spend it, and go out of the world poor as I came into it,' then money is not principal with him; but if, having enough to live upon in the manner befitting his character and rank, he still wants to make more, and to die rich, then money is the principal object with him, and it becomes a curse to himself and generally to those who spend it after him. For you know it must be spent some day; the only question is whether the man who makes it shall spend it or some one else, and generally it is better for the maker to spend it, for he will know best its value and use. This is the true law of life."

PREACHING WITHOUT NOTES.

A visitor at the Church of the Saviour recently remarked that he had never before heard an Episcopal clergyman speak without a manuscript. This calls up a story told by Phillips Brooks, in his "Lectures on Preaching," of a rough backwoodsman in Virginia who once heard Bishop Meade preach an extemporaneous sermon, and being somewhat unfamiliar with the ways of the Episcopal Church, he said "he liked him. He was the first one he ever saw of those petticoat fellows that could shoot without a rest."

According to Dr. Darwin and others it takes a monkey thousands of years to make a man of himself, but a man can make a monkey of himself in a minute. We lead the world.

OFFERTORIES FOR MARCH.

Second Sunday, March 11th—For Domestic Missions.
Third Sunday, March 18th—For Easter Decorations.
Fourth Sunday, Easter—For Parish Endowment Fund.
Good Friday—For the City Mission.
Wednesday mornings and Friday afternoons in Lent, } For Missionary Box Committee.

CONFIRMATION WILL BE Tuesday in Holy Week, March 20th, at 11 o'clock.

THERE WILL BE A CELEBRATION of the Holy Communion on Maunday Thursday evening, at 5 o'clock.

THERE WILL BE SERVICE, with Sermon, and Offertory for the City Mission on Good Friday, at 11 o'clock.

THE HALF-PAST TWELVE SERVICE will be omitted on Good Friday.

ON EASTER DAY THERE WILL BE a celebration of the Holy Communion, at 8 o'clock, and also at 11 o'clock.

IT IS THE LAW AS WELL AS THE CUSTOM OF THE CHURCH that every one who has been confirmed shall actually partake of the Holy Communion "at least three times a year, one of which shall be Easter Day." Of course it is a law without any penalty attached. It is a custom which any one has the power to disregard if he chooses to; but, all the same, it is a rule which ought to be as binding as any which the art of man could devise. To disregard it is to do one's self a serious injury, and is also to do a wrong to the society which he has deliberately identified himself with, and, above all, is discourteous to the Master.

AS USUAL, AT THE EASTER DAY SERVICES the members of the regular congregation will be admitted through the North Transept door. The front doors will be opened at the time of service for the admission of strangers, who will be shown at once to any seats which may then be unoccupied. It will not be possible to keep pews or seats for their regular occupants on that day after the time for beginning the service. This arrangement has been adopted by the Vestry, after careful experiment, as the only way whereby at the same time the pewholders may have their rights and the visitors may be hospitably treated. The problem is a difficult one. It is but fair that those who come regularly to church through the year, and who actually sustain it, should have the precedence on the great festivals over those who come only on occasion. At the same time the Church wishes to be as courteous as possible to any man or woman who comes even once to the house of God to worship.

A NEW HYMNAL WAS ADOPTED by the last General Convention. It had been in the hands of a Committee for several years. Having done their work of revision, they reported it, and, with some few amendments, it was adopted. It leaves out some two or three hundred of the old hymns, and inserts a still larger number of new ones. Since its adoption by the General Convention, eighteen months ago, no more of the old Hymnals have been printed. The Rector has delayed introducing it in St. Stephen's for several reasons. In the first place he was not well satisfied that upon the whole it was an improvement upon the old one. Beside that, he waited for suitable music to be published for the new hymns, many of which are of peculiar metres.

Now, however, the music has been published. It is not possible any longer to procure copies of the old Hymnal, inasmuch as they are no longer printed.

For these reasons it has been determined to introduce the new Hymnal in the Parish on the coming Palm Sunday, the Sunday before Easter. Members of the congregation who have not copies are earnestly desired to procure them against that time. They can be had at any book store, at prices from fifteen cents a copy upward. The hearty singing of the hymns by the congregation is one of the features of St. Stephen's, and one which it is hoped will long continue.

THE OFFERING ON EASTER DAY will be for the Special Endowment Fund of the Parish.

This is the only service in the year at which the offerings of the people are asked for anything connected with the sustenance of this Parish. And even on this occasion it is not really so, in so far as this present congregation is concerned. This Fund was begun, four or five years ago, for the express purpose of guranteeing that St. Stephen's Church should be able for all time to minister to the people of the city who live round about where the Church stands. So many parishes have been left stranded and helpless by the removal of the population away from them, owing to the encroachment of business, that we are determined to avoid this in the case of ours. The Church is now strong and vigorous, and is constantly giving of its money to all contemporary good works and charities. While this is the case is the time to provide for the future. The Fund now being raised will not be of any benefit to any of us; but it will be a perennial spring of beneficence to generations after we shall be gone. The Easter Offerings are only expected to be the nucleus of this Fund. It is expected that it will grow chiefly by the bequests of those who make their wills. It is hoped, and really expected, that many who now own pews, and whose names have been on the seating list for years, will provide in their wills that those pews may forever retain the same name as a Memorial. In two cases this has been already done. By Mrs. Mitchell's gift outright of the capital the Cadwalader pew is endowed. By the provision in the will of the late William Lippincott that name will be perpetuated. Several wills have been reported to the Rector, making bequests large or small to this Fund.

Of course it is always taken for granted that one's gifts on Easter Day, whatever object he may give them for, will be real and not sham or make believe gifts. It is a day, also, on which they should be for some purely religious as distinguished from philanthropic purpose. Of course, if one does not care for any such purpose, there is no reason why he should give anything at all. But in that case it is hard to see why he should be present at church when the offering is made, or why he should take the trouble to read this.

THE ADDRESSES OF THE FOLLOWING PERSONS, members of the Parish, have been mislaid in some way. The Rector would be much obliged by having them sent to him.

Mrs. Margaret Allen, Alice H. Bennett, Edw. E. Barr, Chas. Bowen, Job Roberts Linton, F. W. McDaniel, Mrs. Elizabeth Pyne, Woodland H. Robertson, George C. Rickards, Sadie E. Swank, Miss Selden, Mr. Sleator, Lizzie H. Taylor, Irvin H. Wells, Lucretia May Bailey, George G. Barclay, Mary E. Barton, A. Crawford, Miss Deming, Miss Sarah Gardner, Edward P. Henson, Marie E. Smith, Irving C. Walker, Jr.

A GENERAL MISSIONARY MEETING of the Pennsylvania Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary, will be held in Holy Trinity Church, Nineteenth and Walnut Streets, on Thursday, March 8th, at 2.30 P. M. Bishop Whitaker will preside.

Address from Bishop Talbot, The Indians.

Bishop Barker, Missions in the West.

Rev. I. T. Cole, Foreign Missions.

Rev. C. B. Wilmer, The Freedmen.

The offering will be equally divided among the four committees having charge of this work.

OWING TO THE KINDNESS of the ladies in sending Miss Rodman money, articles of clothing, etc., she has been able to relieve, during the last month, much suffering: much of which has been in families who never before asked for help, and who were most unwilling to have their need known. She wishes to thank Miss Harlan, Mrs. Beale, Miss Perot, the Misses Holman, Mrs. Clayton, Mrs. R. Eglesfeld Griffith, Mrs. Muirheid, Mrs. Thomas Blakey, Miss Laura Bell.

THE COMMITTEE ON LENTEN SEWING will meet in the Guild room on Monday and Thursday morning at 10 o'clock to cut out garments. Contributions of money or goods will be thankfully received. Owing to the great distress, the demand for help is greater this season.

Any persons willing to cut out and prepare work are invited to meet with the Committee.

THE MANAGERS OF THE Female Benevolent Society will hold a Sale on Friday morning, March 16th, from 10 to 1.30 o'clock. The household articles to be sold have been made during the winter by the poor women whom the Society has aided. These useful goods must be disposed of now. The ladies of the congregation are earnestly asked to come and buy.

THE COLD SNAPS this last month have caused many articles of clothing to disappear from the shelves belonging to the Garment Committee, but kindly contributors are sending more bundles to fill the vacant places. Among the new contributors is little Bessie Cleemann Clayton, whose interest, as well as that of some other little children, was excited by being told about the Garment Committee by Miss Rodman, and on finding out that giving two new garments a year made one a member, these little girls decided they could help the older people just as much as if they were grown-up themselves, and so their names will appear as contributing members.

At present, dresses for women and girls are much needed, and shoes and warm under-clothing are always acceptable.

THE CHILDREN'S ENTERTAINMENT in January was just too late to have printed in Parish News.

The donations have not come in as in other years, but the work of the Society has kept along, only not quite as many little ones have been invited to the entertainments. It is hoped, however, with the assistance of kind friends, that we shall be able to invite those children, who have been left out, to the Easter Entertainment.

January 31st, one hundred children were invited to the Parish House to have a good time.

What shall be done for the children is the question each month.

Money being scarce, and so much suffering amongst the poor, the desire was very great to give the children groceries; how can it be done? Not with the money in the Treasury, as that was given for another purpose.

Dr. McConnell was consulted and through him a donation of money was received, which enabled the members of the society to give out more than one hundred and fifty pounds of groceries.

Mr. Hall, the children's kind friend offered to do his part towards entertaining them. He told them a number of amusing stories; started a game of "Stage Coach," which delighted the children very much. They next played "Going to Jerusalem." After this, to make the evening more enjoyable, Miss Perkins played the violin very beautifully, assisted by Miss Clark on the piano. There were a number of recitations and singing by the children. Mr. Hall then asked the children if they had a good time; the answer was yes sir, from all.

Each child was given a good size pound cake, an orange and three or four pounds of groceries, and went home very happy.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS will hold their meetings March 7th and 21st, in the Guild room, at half past seven o'clock. During February, the King's Daughters have made an entire infant's outfit, helped a poor family with their rent, given clothing and money to the Children's Friend Society, and made a number of garments for the Altar Society.

On April 4th, a Musical Tea will be given in the Guild room. The members of St. Stephen's Choir, under the direction of Prof. D. D. Wood, have again very kindly consented to sing. The object of the Tea is to aid the King's Daughters in their charitable work.

Tickets can be procured after March 10th.

SELECTED.

One day a courtier found King Henry V. attending the Celebration of the Holy Eucharist at an almost deserted side-chapel in Westminster Abbey, whilst a great crowd, gathered thick together, filled the nave, and hung upon the lips of a popular preacher. When an opportunity presented itself, the courtier inquired of the King, why he was not with the large congregation. On this, the King replied, "I would rather be with my Dearest Friend, than merely to hear him talked about."

MR. D. D. WOOD COMPLETED ON EASTER DAY his thirtieth year of service as Organist and Choirmaster of St. Stephen's Church.

It has been the fortune of very few men to give pleasure, and pleasure of so exalted and pure an order, to as many persons as Mr. Wood has done. His work has never been that kind of professional work which can be bargained and paid for. He has expressed in terms of Music the pure and high thought and devotion which only he that hath ears therefor can hear. Genius has been defined as "the capacity to take infinite pains." The definition is not adequate. It is true that genius cannot manifest itself without the infinite labor; but many an one expends the pains and falls short of the genius. Many among us think that this sweet soul and vigorous mind combines both requirements of the definition. For us there is no other Organist, as there is no other Choir. His touch has a sympathy and a pathos all its own. It has been purchased at a great price. God and himself alone know the cost. It would seem that no lower price would serve. God does not act blindly even when he imposes blindness. He secures his ends by the most direct means. The love and admiration which we give to our dear friend and Mæstro, could probably have been won for him at no less a cost. Probably no congregation in America has been blessed with music which in form and quality and precision, and above all, in reverence and devotion, leaves so little to be desired. And the people are not unmindful or ungrateful for God's good gifts.

THE "CITY UNION FOR PRACTICAL PROGRESS" asked the Rector of the Church, in common with the other clergy of the city, that he should preach upon a certain Sunday named upon "the gigantic evil known as the Sweating System." At the same time they sent him certain documents containing some information upon the subject; and also some proposals of the Society for its cure. The information was not very specific, nor were the proposed methods of its cure in all regards such as he could endorse. Beside that, the evil, while a very nasty one, does not seem to him to be one of that rank or quality, which can well be dealt with from the pulpit.

Nevertheless, it is a very real evil, and is closely associated with some customs which people do not ordinarily recognize as evils at all. The existence of the "Sweating System" depends upon the existence of two classes of evil persons, equally blameworthy; those who wish to sell garments for less than they are worth, and those who wish to buy garments for less than they are worth. The "Sweater," with his close-packed and steaming garret in which men, women and children work like slaves and live like beasts; is but an incident of the wide-spread determination to get the very most that one can for the very least in return.

It is hard to see what can be done directly to eradicate the evil. The measures which the City Union proposes are, first, the enactment of a law like the one now in operation in Massachusetts, compelling every retail seller of clothing to mark with a "tag" all goods which have been made in a tenement house. It is very doubtful if such a law is either equitable or possible of enforcement. The second remedy proposed is a law extending the "Factory Inspection" regulations concerning ventilation and sanitation to every building, be it private house or not, in which manufacturing is done. This would seem to be both wise and possible. The Union is doing good work at any rate in calling public attention to the physical and moral contamination which always attends this bad system.

But for the general public of well meaning people who wish to do the thing which is right, the thing to be urged is more willingness to pay a just price for the clothes which they wear. The "Song of the Shirt" will continue to be sung—that is, where the poor seamstress has breath enough left to sing—while those who wear the garments are willing to wear them with sweat and tears and possibly disease upon them, because they can be bought cheap. It is significant that the vile industry is almost entirely carried on by Russian and Polish Jews, that is, by those who within Christendom are farthest removed from the operation of the generous spirit of Christ.

This fact would seem to point to the path along which the cure must come, however slow it may be in coming. We believe profoundly that our Master is to be the healing of the nations. Just in proportion as His influence permeates the social organism evils like the one before us dissapear. Many are impatient at the slowness of this method, and cast about for some device which will operate immediately. In so far as their "practical" methods provide expression for so much of the spirit of Christ as has already been diffused they are efficacious. When they go beyond this, or essay to force this they fall impotent.

THE MID-DAY LENTEN SERVICES held in this Parish were attended by large and reverent congregations. There were thirty-seven services in all, with a total congregation of over seven thousand people.

THE EASTER CAROL SERVICE of the Sunday-Schools, the Parish Day School, and the Burd Orphan Asylum, will be held on Sunday afternoon, April 1st, at 4 o'clock. The offerings will be received from the various classes and congregation for "The Home of the Merciful Saviour" and "The Sheltering Arms."

Donation of 250 Easter Cards from Miss Stevenson; from Altar Society, 35 pieces of clothing and 2 bathing suits.

A box of oranges from King's Daughters, for the Children's Easter.

Three hundred and fifty pounds of groceries were given out to one hundred children, instead of one hundred and fifty pounds as stated in last month's PARISH NEWS.

March 28th has been selected for the children's Easter. One might ask what these entertainments do for the children? Just the same as the excursions do in the Summer; brighten their lives and give them something to think of, and take them away from the one living room where five and six are sometimes huddled together. They also show that some one has a kind feeling towards them.

A poor little girl who will be entertained next Wednesday, was sent out by her step-father to sell soap. Not being able to count, she was told that unless she brought home a 25 cent piece and 10 cents, she would not be let in when she came home at night.

An orange and Easter eggs, and Mr. Yost with his magic tricks, will give this child at least two hours of enjoyment. This is what the Winter work is for.

A MUSICAL TEA will be given by the King's Daughters, in the Guild Room of the Parish House on April 4th.

A number of ladies in the Congregation will assist in receiving.

The following members of the choir, under the direction of Mr. D. D. Wood, have very kindly offered their services.

Sopranos: Mrs. E. Newkirk, Miss Alice Burdette, Miss Anna D. Cowan, Mrs. Helen Conner. Altos: Miss Julia Plantholz, Miss Rebecca Lowenberg, Miss Jennie Gallagher. Tenors: Mr. C. Stanley Hurlbut, Mr. J. Ross Corbin. Basses: Mr. George Roden, Mr. M. H. Brooks. Pianist: Mrs. J. Ross Corbin.

SELECTIONS.

The Spectator published as a "genuine letter from a schoolboy to his mother" the following pathetic production: "My dear Ma,—— I wright to tell you I am very retched and my chilblains is worse again. I have not made any progress and do not think I shall. i am very sorry to be such an expense, but I do not think this schule is any good. One of the fellows has taken the crown of my best hat for a target. he has now borrowed my watch to make a water wheel with the works, but it wont act. Me and him have tried to put the works back, but we think some wheels are missing as they wont act. I hope Matilda's cold is better. I am glad she is not at schule. i think i have got consumption. the boys at this place are not gentlemanly, but of course you did not know this when you sent me here. i will try not to get bad habits. The trousers have worn out at the knees. i think the tailor must have cheated you, the buttons have come off, and they are loose behind. i don't think the food is good, but I should not mind it if I was stronger. The piece of meat I send you is off the beef we had on Sunday, but on other days it is more stringy. There are black beadles in the kitchen, and sometimes they cook them in the dinner, which cant be holesome when you are not strong. Dear Ma, I hope you and Pa are well, and do not mind my being so uncomfortable because i do not think I shall last long. Please send me some more money as i o 8d. If you cannot spare it I think I can borrow it of a boy who is going to leave at the half quarter and then he wont ask for it again, but perhaps you would not like to be under an obligation to his parents as they are tradespeople. I think you deal at their shop. I did not mention it or I dare say they would have put it down in the bill.—Yr. loving but retched son——"

The Rev. Hamilton Paul was entertaining a dinner party. He said grace in a low voice, and immediately began to eat. One of the guests, who was somewhat deaf, cried out: "Mr. Paul, you have not said grace." "I did." "But I didn't hear you." "I was not speaking to you."

THE FEMALE BENEVOLENT SOCIETY of St. Stephen's Church, presents its Twenty-ninth Annual Report to the Congregation. During the season of 1893 and 1894, the money received and expended, has been as follows:

Received from the sale of garments and other articles, made by the women employed by the Society, $580.42; received from Offertory, $193.31; received Subscriptions, $107.50; total, $881.23. Expended for paying Sewing women, $423.70; for materials, $457.53; total, $881.23.

Sixty-four women were employed during the Winter, and 2,235 articles made by them.

The Managers feel that the Society has done fairly well, considering the hard times; and they are grateful to the Congregation for the liberal way in which the appeals for aid have been met; and particularly for purchasing the articles at the closing sale.

H. C. WILKINS,
Secretary.

THE MISSIONARY BOX COMMITTEE in presenting their Annual Report, again thank the congregation for giving them the opportunity of sending to the missionaries most valuable boxes, through their generous gifts of money and clothing, which in many instances, were too good to call second-hand. The Lenten sewers made a great number of garments, which some sent to a missionary in the coal regions of Pennsylvania. Twelve boxes have been sent, valued at $1,000; one to Pennsylvania, one to Central Pennsylvania, one to Wyoming, one to Wisconsin, one for distribution among the charcoal burners in Alabama, one to Colorado, one to a Divinity student in the Theological Seminary, Virginia, one to Oregon, one to Arkansas, one to Texas, and one to Virginia to Mrs. Buford, for her work among the poor colored people.

The following extracts from some of the letters received, will show how gratefully they have been welcomed.

"The missionary box was full of good things from the top to bottom. I only hope that in fairing so well myself, I am not robbing others of what is justly their due—" "The contents of the box has clothed many a naked body, and carried comfort to many a despairing home. It is hard to believe how improvident the charcoal burners is. They are most grateful for this help, and when told that the clothing had been sent by the kind ladies of Philadelphia, they were overcome with gratitude." "Please convey to the proper persons my hearty thanks for the contents of the missionary box recently received. The clothes are a good fit and came in good time. The same evening the box arrived, we were able to delight the heart of an old woman, who has been unable to stir from her bed for two years, with a suit of undergarments.

THE ALTAR SOCIETY presents its Tenth Annual Report to the Congregation:

The Chancel Committee during the past year, has performed the duties required of it, and reports that it received gifts of oats, wheat and corn, which were used in the chancel on Thanksgiving Day. The decorations of palms in the chancel on Palm Sunday, were given by a member of the congregation; and a box of cut flowers was received on Easter Sunday.

The Embroidery Class Committee reports:

Donations of clothing have been received from the Lenten Sewing Committee, and 21 bathing suits. Clothing has also been received from Garment Society and King's Daughters and from many kind friends.

B, Sangree, Easter cards from Miss Stevenson, and two boxes of toys, rabbits for the sick children at home, two boxes of Oranges from the King's Daughters. M., 5.00; Contributing members in April, Miss Kate Liddell, 1.00; Mrs. Davison, 1.00; Miss Lavinia Davison, 1.00; Total, 14.00.

About 500 pounds of groceries have been given out by this society and six hundred children have been entertained and taken on excursions during the summer months; Last year four car loads of children at different times were taken to Atlantic City for a day's outing. If you had taken a walk to the Market Street Ferry, about seven o'clock in the morning, you would see eager little faces looking about to find the lady who invited them for a days outing to the Sea Shore. Then to show how much they appreciate the kindness shown them, you would hear them say can't I carry your coat or package?

Some of the children have alrady asked, "are we going to the Sea Shore this summer?" the reply was, we hope so. The cost of one of these Excursions is eighty-five dollars, the most of this is taken up with railroad travel and the children's dinner, the other is only incidental expenses. Come and see them start some morning and meet them at the ferry in the evening and you will see what these outings do for these poor children.

250 children were entertained Easter in the Sunday School room by Prof. Yost with his magic tricks and trained birds which the children always enjoy. Each child was presented with an Easter card, box of candy eggs and a large orange, "as they passed out of the room they said thank you, we had a good time."

April 28th, one hundred children were taken to the Eleventh St. Opera House, and entertained by Mr. Kellar. To see their bright little faces was enough to show how much they appreciated Mr. Kellar's kindness. "One of the little girls remarked that she thought Mr. Kellar must have a lovely home when he could make such pretty flowers grow so easily."

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the Whatsoever Circle report:

Money on hand, April 25th, $64.44; Dues from Active Members, 17.02; Donations received, 13.00; Money received from Phonographic Entertainment, 60.90; Donations and Money received from Tea, April 4th, 37.14; Total, 192.50, Expense for year, 152.24, Balance, 40.26.

Little Katie Judge, at the Home of the Merciful Saviour, was also made happy with a new coat and dress this winter.

The proceeds of the Tea given by the King's Daughters, April 4th, were $37.14.

Very many thanks to all from the Members of the Circle for their kind help, also to Mr. Wood and the members of the choir for their delightful music, those who were not their missed a very great treat.

The Garment Committee has discontinued its work until the Fall, and acknowledge contributions during April from: Mrs. Atmore, Miss L. Bell, Mrs. Davison, Miss Davison, Mrs. H. P. Taylor, Miss E. Magee, Miss M. J. Lewis, Mrs. Jos. Clayton, Mrs. J. A. Crane, Miss S. Stevenson, Mrs. J. R. Lippincott, Mrs. Judson, No Name.

IT WILL BE OF INTEREST to the many friends of Mr. David D. Wood in St. Stephen's Parish to know that Haydn's noble oratorio of "The Creation," is to be sung at the Temple, Broad and Berks Streets, on Thursday evening, May 10, by the Temple Chorus, under the direction of David D. Wood. There will be a large orchestra, with W. W. Gilchrist as conductor, and the soloists are to be Madame Emma Suelke, soprano; C. Stanley Hurlbut, tenor, and Dr. Carl Martin, basso.

Miss Rodman wishes to thank Mrs. Parmalee and Mrs. Blakey, for the bundles of clothing which they kindly sent for her to distribute.

THERE WAS AN ENTERTAINMENT given in the Sunday-school room on Thursday evening, April 26, under the auspices of the Boys' Guild, which was largely attended by the friends of the members, including a large delegation from the Girls' Friendly Society. There was a sketch given by the boys entitled, "More blunders than one," which was well presented by Clyde Mendenhall, George Pfeifer, Harry Bush, William Kuhn, Adam Shelhause, Albert Berg, and Charles Moore.

After this there was a varied program of singing, recitations, etc. Mrs. Arrison kindly opened the entertainment by a piano overture.

Miss Sanders and Mr. Richard Stratton kindly interested themselves in the affair, and did much to make the entertainment so great a success.

THE MEMBERS OF THE BOYS' GUILD of the parish are happy over the victory of Friday last. They had Tug of War contest in the Guild Room with a chosen team from the Young Men's Society of the Church of the Nativity. There were many friends assembled to see the result. The members of St. Stephen's Team were E. W. Spackman, anchor; John Firmin, Wm. Bishop and Harry P. Christensen. 1st. heat won by 4 inches gain. 2nd. heat by 5 inches gain.

The Boys expect to pull a return match in the Rooms of the Church of the Nativity, on Friday, May 11th. We wish them all success.

SELECTIONS.

Benjamin Franklin wrote to his daughter: "Go constantly to church, whoever preaches. The act of devotion in the Common Prayer Book is your principal business there, and if properly attended to, will do more toward amending the heart than sermons generally can do. For they were composed by men of much greater piety and wisdom than our common composers of sermons can pretend to be! and therefore I wish you would never miss the prayer days; yet I do not mean you should despise sermons, even of the preachers you dislike, for the discourse is often much better than the man, as sweet and clean waters come through very dirty earth."

HOW THE APOSTLES DIED.

From history and tradition we learn that all the apostles except St. John, died unnatural and cruel deaths, as follows:

1. Peter was crucified in Rome, with his head down, on a cross similar to that used in the execution of Jesus.
2. Andrew was bound to a cross and left to die from exhaustion.
3. St. James the Great was beheaded by order of Herod at Jerusalem.
4. St. James the Less was thrown from a high pinnacle, then stoned, and finally killed with a fuller's club.
5. St. Philip was bound and hanged against a pillar.
6. St. Bartholomew was flayed to death by command of a barbarous king.
7. St. Matthew was killed with a halberd.
8. St. Thomas was shot by a shower of arrows while at prayer, and afterwards run through the body with a lance.
9. St. Simon was crucified after the manner of Jesus.
10. St. Mark was dragged through the streets of Alexandria until he expired.
11. St. Luke was hanged on an olive tree in Greece.
12. St. John died a natural death.
13. Paul was beheaded by command of Nero.
14. Judas hanged himself and "fell and his bowels gushed out."
15. St. Barnabas was stones to death by Jews.

RELIGIOUS TRAINING.

"More and more there is growing up a disposition among parents to permit all matters of religious observance to be with their offspring mere matters of choice or preference. Your child must learn French and German and drawing; but he shall learn his catechism and his Bible lesson, and a reverent observance of this holy day if he chooses, and not otherwise. A more dismal and irrational folly is not easy to conceive of. I do not say that there may not have been folly in another and in an opposite direction. I am not unmindful that religious teaching has sometimes been made a dreary and intolerable burden. But surely we can correct the excess (not, I apprehend, very frequent or very harmful), without straightway flying to an opposite and worse one. And so I plead with you, who are parents, to train your children to ways of reverent familiarity with God's word, God's house and God's day."—Bishop H. C. Potter.

SINGING OUT OF TUNE.

That must have been a dreadful case of discord which gave rise to a trial in the Essex Archdeaconry Court in England, in the year 1615, wherein a certain man was accused, "that he singeth the psalms in the church in a jesticulous tone and allitonant voice, viz.: squeaking like a pig, which doth not only interrupt the other voices, but is also altogether dissonant and disagreeing unto any musical harmony, and he hath been requested by the minister to leave it, but he doth obstinately persist and continue therein." Now, the truth is that, the man who can sing ought to sing, but the man who cannot sing, and cannot be trained to sing, ought not to try to sing. His must be the inward spirit of praise going up silently before the Most High God.

Dr. James De Koven once said: "The members of our Church are prevented from giving the large gifts which one hears of elsewhere, by the fact that it costs more to support the average Episcopalian, and to keep him and his in that 'station of life unto which it has pleased God to call him,' than it has cost any other kind of Christian since the time when the Divine Master declared that 'the foxes have holes and the birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man hath not where to lay His head.'"

OFFERTORIES FOR JUNE.

Sundays—For General Charities.

THE RECTOR WAS ABSENT the last Sunday in May to preach a sermon in the University Course at Cornell.

THE RECTOR, WARDENS and VESTRYMEN of St. Stephen's Church, sent general invitations to the members of the parish to visit the Burd Orphan Asylum, on Founder's Day, Thursday, May 24th. There were many of the congregation present at the institution on that day.

After being received by the Warden Rev. Dr. Snively and Mrs. Snively, the asylum was examined in its various departments. After this the services of the day were held in the chapel. The Rev. W. S. Baer, the Secretary of the Diocese; the Rev. Mr. Matoda, a Japanese clergyman of the Church, who last Summer had charge of the chapel services; the Rev. J. L. Miller, and Rev. Dr. McConnell, took part in the services. The rewards and prizes for general good conduct, scholarship and faithfulness, were distributed to the children by Rev. Dr. Snively; after which, the Rev. Dr. McConnell made a brief address. The children of the asylum conducted the singing. All the visitors of the day were well pleased with the cheerful, happy faces of the children, and with their general air of content and healthfulness. The institution showed careful management, and in every part cleanliness and order were manifest. It was indeed a delightful day.

THE CHURCH WORK among the various societies of our parish, has stopped for the Summer. The Winter was a hard one for the poor, and our active workers were kept busy doing what they could to render assistance to those in want. But now, absence from the city of so great a number of faithful women, requires as usual, the closing of such kind of service. There is one society, however, in the parish to which we desire to call the earnest attention of our people. Its work does not stop, be the days short or long; the weather hot or cold. Those having charge of it give to it their personal devotion; this is the Children's Friend Society. The members of St. Stephen's Church know it well, and have generously supported it in its active work of benevolence in the years past. It is a society for poor children. It gives sunshine, fresh air and kindness to many a poor child, who otherwise would get precious little of these. In the years of its existence it has done an infinite amount of good, and its influence has extended over a large amount of ground, and among people in the poorest and most forlorn neighborhoods. The ladies who have charge, freely give it their earnest attention. Many children are cared for. In the hot summer season when you seek refreshment in the country or by the sea, the thought that you have been the means of enabling the neglected and poor to find relief for a little while from the oppression of their crowded homes, surely will be a satisfaction. Send your offerings to Mrs. Vanderslice, President and Treasurer, No. 9 S. 10th St.

ON MONDAY EVENING, May 28th, the Girls' Friendly Society met in the Guild Room for the close of their work for the season. The associates very thoughtfully provided a pleasant evening of entertainment, in which Mr. Hall gave some excellent recitations and sang some of his humorous songs. He was greeted most enthusiastically by all present. Mrs. Owens very kindly sang some lovely ballads with infinite expression and feeling much to the pleasure of the girls. She was accompanied on the piano by Mr. Owens. The Society then sang a song with Mr. Hall. After this the ladies handed around cake and ice cream. At the close of the evening, Rev. Mr. Miller, made a short address, and the meeting for the season closed with the Girl's Friendly Hymn sung by the Society and with prayer and benediction. The Society is very strong, and has a large membership of young women, who are engaged in various trades and kinds of business during the week. The Associate Ladies have done earnest work during the winter, and their influence for good has been greatly felt and recognized by all.

THE BOYS' GUILD of St. Stephen's Church had its annual excursion on Decoration Day. Through the kind invitation of Miss Henrietta Sanders, one of the honorary members of the Guild, they went out to the Sanders' Farm at Ship Road Station, on the Pennsylvania Railroad. The day was spent in playing base-ball and all sorts of competitive races and sports.

The results of the sports were as follows: 100 yards dash, (senior), was won by Wm. Bishop, time, 15 seconds; throwing the base-ball, won by Frank Collins, distance, 237 feet; quarter mile walk, won by Harry P. Christensen, time, 2 minutes, 20 seconds; 100 yards dash, (junior,) won by Clyde Mendenhall, time, 14 seconds; running broad jump, won by Frank Collins, distance, 14 feet, 3 inches; hop, step and jump, won by Frank Collins, distance, 29 feet, 4 inches; 220 yards dash, won by John Firmin, time, 33 seconds; putting the 16 pound shot, won by E. W. Spackman, distance, 25 feet, 5 inches; running broad jump, (junior,) won by Albert Berg, distance, 12 feet.

The prizes will be silver medals, with the event and record engraved on them.

Mr. Miller was judge; Geo. Pfeiffer, timekeeper; Wm. Guscott and Frank Gutteridge, measurers.

The day passed off without any accidents, and was considered on the whole, the most successful and pleasant excursion ever experienced by the Boys' Guild.

THE MOTHERS' LOYAL CIRCLE of King's Daughters, composed mostly of women in the mothers' meeting, gave, during the last year, one embroidered set of altar linen to a new church in Cape Charles City, Va.; made thirty-two woolen garments and sent them to the northern part of the city, to be distributed to the worthy poor of that section; thirty-five woolen garments to the Garment Committee of this Church. This Circle has always been self-supporting. In December of each year, it holds a Fair which supplies them with funds to carry on their work.

The winter work is now over, and as soon as the weather is settled, the excursions will commence; many children have asked if there will be any more entertainments? The rain does not seem to stop them; they are so afraid of being left out.

AT THE LAST MEETING of the King's Daughters of the Whatsoever Circle, Miss Bertha Ott was elected Secretary, in place of Miss Emma Edwards, who has gone to her home in London.

What are we doing is asked? Sewing and cutting rags for a carpet that is to be given to the Home of the Merciful Saviour for Crippled Children; visiting a poor sick girl, who cannot walk, and is a very great sufferer.

The meetings in June are on Wednesdays, the 6th and the 20th, in the Parish House, at half past seven o'clock. It is hoped and expected that Mrs. Henry Rood, the State Treasurer, will spend a social evening with the Circle on June 6.

THE RECTOR has given the use of the "Guild Room" for an entertainment for the benefit of an aged widow and daughter, to be given Thursday evening, June 7th, 1894, at 8 o'clock, by the Glenwood Singing Society, which was originally composed of members of the Girls' Friendly Society, and the Boys' Guild of St. Stephen's Church, conducted by a member of the Church, assisted by the pupils of the Neff College of Oratory.

Tickets 25 cents. To be had at the door, or of the Verger.

SELECTIONS.

NOT ALTOGETHER HARMONIOUS.

The choir was singing a new arrangement of the beautiful anthem, "Consider the Lilies." The pure sweet voice of the soprano rose clearly and distinctly in the solo:

"They toi-oi-oil not,
They toil not,
They toil not,
Ny-y-y-ther do they spin."

She paused, and the tenor took up the strain:

"Nee-ee-ee-ther do they spin,
They toi-oi-oi-oil not,
They toil not,
They toil not,
Nee-ee-ee-ther do they spin."

The tenor ceased, and the basso, a solemn, red-haired young man, with a somewhat worldly-looking eye, and a voice like a foghorn, broke in:

"Nay-ay-ay-ay-ther do they spin.
They toil not,
They toil not,
Nay-ay-ay-ay-ther do they spin.

Then the voices of the three were lifted up in semi-chorus:

"Ny-y-y-ther)
"Nee-ee-ee-ther) do they spin.
"Nay-ay-ay-ther)
They toi-oi-oi-oil not,
They toil not,
They toil not,
"Ny-y-y-ther)
"Nee-ee-ee-ther) do they spin."
"Nay-ay-ay-ther)

"Brethren," said the gray-haired, old-fashioned pastor, when the choir had finished, "we will begin the service of the morning by singing the familiar hymn:

"'And am I yet alive?'"

Three doors there are in the temple
Where men go up to pray,
And they that wait at the outer gate
May enter by either way.

There are some that pray by asking;
They lie on the Master's breast,
And, shunning the strife of the lower life,
They utter their cry for rest.

There are some that pray by seeking;
They doubt where their reason fails,
But their mind's despair is the ancient prayer
To touch the print of the nails.

There are some that pray by knocking;
They put their strength to the wheel,
For they have not time for thoughts sublime—
They can only act what they feel.

Father, give each his answer—
Each in his kindred way;
Adapt Thy light to his form of night,
And grant him his needed day.

Give to the yearning spirits,
That only Thy rest desire,
The power to bask in the peace they ask,
And feel the warmth of Thy fire.

Give to the soul that seeketh,
'Mid cloud and doubt and storm,
The glad surprise of the straining eyes
To see on the waves Thy form.

Give to the heart that knocketh
At the doors of earthly care
The strength to tread in the pathway spread
By the flowers Thou hast planted there.

Then in the common temple
There shall worship hand in hand
The lives that man's heart would hold apart
As unfit to dwell in one land.

For the middle wall shall be broken,
And the light expand its ray
When the burdened of brain and the soother of pain,
Shall be ranked with the men that pray.

THE OBJECT OF THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

Remember that the Sunday-school is not, in any respect, to take the place of the Church. It is simply one of the means or instrumentalities used by the Church for the pupose of teaching the young the principles of Christian Faith and Duty. It must never be regarded or employed as an institution separate from and independent of the Church. It properly exists solely as a help to the minister of the parish in the discharge of his duty in feeding the lambs of his Flock.

Therefore, as soon as your children are old enough to understand and take part in public worship, see to it that they attend and do so. If they are permitted to set aside this duty, one great object of their instruction in the Sunday-School will be defeated. You know that the time will soon come when your children will leave the Sunday School, and if now, the exercises there are permitted, as I fear they often are, to take the place of the appointed service in the Lord's house, they will have formed a habit of neglect that will bring to naught our best endeavors.

OFFERTORIES FOR JULY.

For General Charities.

PLEASE DO NOT FORGET the needs of the Children's Friend Society. It is precisely in the summer when the more fortunate people are out of the city that the Society needs the means to do its work. If people could only realize what it is for the poor little children and babies to stew in their stuffy, smelly, hot little rooms, during the summer, and with what joy they hail the chance to get a day even so far in the country as the Park, no one would find any flavor in his own vacation until he had first made it possible for some forlorn little creature to get at least one day in the shade and a good meal. People do not realize that it is simply impossible for the children of the poor to even get to the Park. They cannot walk so far, and they cannot pay their car fare. Please put a dollar, or five dollars, or fifty dollars in an envelope, and send it to Mrs. Vanderslice, 127 S. Fifth Street.

On two Sunday afternoons in June Miss Rodman has taken out a party of the girls to the Burd Asylum. As the girls are at work during the week, they greatly enjoyed the glimpse of the country.

After the beautiful little Service the girls wandered under the trees, ate their lunch, enjoying with it a great pitcher of cool milk, sent out to them by the thoughtful kindness of Dr. Snively.

During July Miss Rodman hopes to take them out again.

On the first Monday evening in June twenty-four girls met Miss Rodman at the Parish House of St. Stephen's Church for the purpose of getting better acquainted with one another, and in the hope of having a pleasant evening. They decided that the best thing to do was to form a Club. The name to be the "Girls' Summer Club." It was decided to have it both of a social and literary character. Miss Rodman was elected President, Miss Sarah Kinsley, Vice-President; Miss Louisa Widman, Secretary; Miss Emma Schopback, Treasurer. Since the first meeting the Club has grown rapidly, and seems to be a success. Each week a literary committee is appointed, who plan out a program, consisting of music, readings and recitations.

As most of the girls belong to the Girls' Friendly Society, or are hoping to next winter, the associates of that Society are much interested in this Club.

One of them, Miss Dickerson, furnishes cake and lemonade, which on the hot evenings has been most refreshing, and her kind thought of them has been greatly appreciated by the girls.

WHY SOME PEOPLE GO TO ROME, AND OTHERS DO NOT.

It is evident to all careful observers that the Church of Rome is looking with peculiar interest to the United States. The Church which has during the last century met with such disastrous losses in Europe and South America and Mexico clearly hopes that she may make it up in this country. It may be possible. At any rate any plan of such an astute organization as that deserves consideration.

Heretofore the movement has been overwhelmingly the other way. For every one who has left a Protestant Church to become a Roman Catholic ten at the very least have come the other way. Bishop Perry, of Iowa, reports that during his episcopate he has received over seven hundred adult Roman Catholics by actual count, whereas the loss the other way has not been above a score. The same is true in every part of the country.

But it is not a foregone conclusion that this state of things will continue indefinitely. Part of the impedimenta which the settlers of this country brought with them was a deep, bitter, suspicious dislike of Rome. It was in part justified, and in part it was unreasonable. But it existed. An unintelligent prejudice has probably had as much to do with keeping some people from going to Rome as has any conviction upon the question at issue. The real difficulties in the way of an intelligent and honest man becoming a Roman Catholic are far stronger to-day than they were a hundred years ago. That Church was then much less objectionable than it has since come to be. But people are not always reasonable in their actions. At any rate the unthinking prejudgement is much less likely now to deter than it once was. And it is likely to become less and less an element in the case. When it disappears what will be likely to happen? Will those who have been reared Protestants become Romanists any more frequently than they do now?

There are several classes of people who may possibly do so, and they are not the sort who as a rule do now take that step. At present those who take that path are as a rule persons who are led by a fancy rather than a conviction. I have never happened to know any one who became a Roman Catholic from clear conviction based upon an unbiased examination of the case. They always make up their minds to go, and seek for the reasons afterward. For this reason I have found as a rule that it is time thrown away to reason or argue with any one who has got this notion into his head. No argument against it can reach the motive for his action. It is like the bite of a tarantula, one who has once been bitten can never thereafter keep still. He may about as well go at once and be done with it.

But there is another class from whom some curious expressions are beginning to be heard. They are the so-called "hard-headed, practical" men. They wish a religion, but they wish a religion which can be conducted apart from the rest of their life. They are willing to pay for it handsomely. They are familiar with business-like transactions, and while they are busy making money they would be glad to turn over the conduct of their religion to any expert or company of experts who will give bonds to attend to it properly. This is precisely what Rome offers to do. One often hears the phrase "Catholic doctrine." The phrase is misleading. The Church of Rome has practically one doctrine and no more. That doctrine is "Obedience." Do what the Church tells you, and the Church will guarantee your salvation. Any man who can have any faith whatever that the Church either can or will fulfill her side of the compact would be foolish not to enter into it. Protestantism lays a heavy burden upon both the understanding and the conscience. It gives no guarantees of salvation upon any terms whatsoever. It is too honest to promise what it believes that no human power can ever be in a position to fulfill. A quack will promise unhesitatingly to perform cures which the conscientious physician will not promise on any terms. But one cannot shut his eyes to the fact that quacks find plenty of people to believe them, to follow their directions, to pay them, and even to firmly believe that they have fulfilled their promise.

It would seem to be well, therefore, that the essential difference between Rome and Protestantism should be more dwelt upon than it has been for some time past. Mr. Hutton said, with much truth, "Romanism and Protestantism are not two varieties of the same Religion, as so many think. They are two different religions." The one offers "salvation" in the world to come, as the reward of docility and obedience to the Church. The other offers goodness in this world as the result of strenuous personal endeavor carried forward best and normally under the stimulus and companionship of the Church which does not command but entreat. The one is business-like and dogmatic, the other is sentimental and cautious. The two presentations of religion appeal with force to quite different characters.

It looks as though the choice would become sharper and the lines more clearly drawn in the near future.

CHILDREN'S FRIEND SOCIETY.

The summer work has now commenced. Friday, June 22d, sixty children were taken to the Zoological Gardens. The baby seal, elephants and snakes seemed to be their admiration, but it did not take away their appetites—all seemed ready for their ice cream and cake when taken to the restaurant. They were a very appreciative lot of children, and seemed to enjoy everything, even to the car ride out and in.

In glancing over the pages of an early report book one is convinced of the fact that the "Whatsoever Circle" of the King's Daughters has been a most thriving and successful Circle since its organization, April 5th, 1890.

At the time of organization there were but six members, some of whom are still with us; since then we have grown quite rapidly, and have now reached about five times that number.

We are comparatively young yet, however we are strong and in earnest, and the future appears bright and encouraging.

Probably the question will arise, "What have we been doing the past four years?" The true and only answer one can give is that we have been working for the benefit of others in a quiet way, visited and relieved the sick and needy as far as possible.

Our members are coming and going constantly, and we extend a hearty invitation to persons desiring to join us in our good work, and will take great pleasure in voting them into our Order.

June the 6th the King's Daughters were sitting quite cozily in the Guild room, around the table, with their carpet rags before them, eagerly awaiting the arrival of a very entertaining person—Mrs. Henry Rood, the State Treasurer—whose visits are greatly appreciated by the Circle.

Mrs. Rood soon appeared. After a hearty shaking of hands, and a "cross" questioning, the meeting was opened by the reading of the 45th Psalm and Prayer.

We were then called upon to answer some very interesting conundrums concerning the human body, which proved a source of much amusement owing to the numerous funny answers.

Mrs. Rood also related a few incidents in connection with the conundrums, thus helping us to arrive at the correct answers more readily.

Near the close of the meeting lemonade was served, which was kindly donated by Mr. Dooner; also cake, which was made by some of the members of the Circle.

Mrs. Rood then spoke of the wearing of the King's Daughters' Cross, and asked us to kindly wear it at all times.

The meeting then adjourned.

The meetings in July are on Wednesdays, July 11th and July 25th.

SELECTIONS.

TOBACCO SPIRITUALIZED.

I.

This Indian weed now withered quite,
Though green at noon, cut down at night,
Shows thy decay,
All flesh is hay,
Thus think, and smoke tobacco.

The pipe, so lily like and weak,
Does thus thy mortal state bespeak,
Thou art e'en such,
Gone with a touch,
Thus think, and smoke tobacco.

And when the smoke ascends on high,
Then thou beholdst the vanity
Of worldly stuff,
Gone with a puff,
Thus think, and smoke tobacco.

And when the pipe grows foul within,
Think on thy soul defiled with sin,
For then the fire
It doth require.
Thus think, and smoke tobacco.

II.

Was this small plant for thee cut down?
So was the Plant of Great Renown,
Which mercy sends
For nobler ends,
Thus think, and smoke tobacco.

Doth juice medicinal proceed
From such a naughty, foreign weed?
Then what's the power
Of Jesse's flower?
Thus think, and smoke tobacco.

The promise, like the pipe, inlays,
And by the mouth of faith conveys
What virtue flows
From Sharon's Rose.
Thus think, and smoke tobacco.

In vain th' unlighted pipe you blow,
Your pains in outward means are so.
Till heavenly fire
Your hearts inspire
Thus think, and smoke tobacco.

The smoke, like burning incense towers;
So should a praying heart of yours
With ardent cries
Surmount the skies.
Thus think, and smoke tobacco.

OFFERTORIES FOR AUGUST.

For General Charities.

TWICE WITHIN A YEAR the destroyer has visited the Parish and seized from among the best. If he "loves a shining mark" what fairer ones could he have found than Mrs. Crawford Arnold and Mrs. Dundas Lippincott? The loss is unspeakable from every point of view. When exalted Christian character, good sense, charm of manner, cultivation and wealth all meet in one person, no wonder such an one is loved and admired. It will hardly be deemed invidious to suggest that Mrs. Lippincott's death will cause a greater loss to Philadelphia than would that of any other man or woman in it. Her good deeds were beyond count, but her good influence was more still. She did not obtrude her goodness, but it was known that she was good, and that did the work. She has done her work, and received her reward early. Mr. Lippincott will have the sincere sympathy of the clergy and people of this Parish, as well as of thousands beside.

"The souls of the righteous are in the hands of God; and there shall no evil befall them."

WHEN MR. AND MRS. GEORGE C. THOMAS go away for the summer, arrangements are made so, that one evening in the week, their valuable collection of pictures can be seen by those so fortunate as to have cards of admission. The pictures are numbered, and catalogues are provided for the visitors. The house is brilliantly lighted, and is in charge of several young men of the St. Andrew's Brotherhood, connected with the Church of the Holy Apostles. Their courtesy and interest add much to the pleasure of the guests. As each person enters the house a card is handed to him, with the request written on it, that he will vote for the picture he likes best: this adds greatly to the attention with which they are studied, for it is known that Mr. Thomas himself opens the box in the fall, and that he likes to know what has been the favorite picture. There are easy chairs, where one can rest and listen to the fine music; for Mr. Thomas tries always to have some one to play either on the piano or organ. The same trace of thoughtful kindness is shown everywhere, even to the palm leaf fans and ice water which are provided. It is Mr. and Mrs. Thomas's wish, first to have their own Church people have the enjoyment of their house and pictures, but the invitations are by no means confined to them. As far as they can, where ever they know of anyone who would enjoy seeing the fine pictures, a card is sent.

Owing to this kindness, Miss Rodman has been able to take with her, for several weeks, the girls belonging to "The Girls' Summer Club." And she has been greatly pleased to see how much they appreciated the pictures, and felt the generosity, which is so willing to share with others less fortunate, the beautiful things of life.

THE CHILDREN'S FRIEND SOCIETY is known by almost every one in the Parish and yet we are asked by some, what do you do?

We are not the Girls' Friendly, that is a good society and does ever so much good. We are the Children's Friend, the little children. The ladies who do the work go up the small streets in the city and invite poor little children for a day's outing, either to the Park, a Trip on the River, or what is best of all, a day's outing to the Sea Shore.

The ladies of the Society are received kindly by the mothers of the children, and they are glad to have the children go, for they are sure they will be well taken care of. Wednesday, July 18th, will show you how we go to work: Eight ladies, living in different parts of the city, start out to visit eight families, (sometimes the number is more), but for this trip each lady was to invite eight children. The children were invited and told either to meet at the lady's house who invited them, or go direct to the Market Street Ferry.

Half past six o'clock in the morning sixty-seven children and their care takers are waiting for the boat that is to take them to the seven o'clock train on the Pennsylvania Road to Atlantic City.

All are fixed comfortably in the car, and a badge of red ribbon tied to their little dresses or coats, so that they may be known from any other children that might be at the shore. Their bright little faces show what a good time they are looking forward to. "One poor child said she was afraid to go to bed for fear she would be left." After an hour's ride, crackers are distributed, for many of the children eat very little breakfast.

Shall we give out the buckets and shovels was the next question; they were the gift of their kind friend, Mr. B. R. Thomas. As each child receives a bucket and shovel, such remarks as these were heard: "oh! what a pretty bucket," "how large they are," "what a nice shovel," "can we keep them?" If Mr. Thomas had seen all the curiosities they had in the buckets on their return, he might have been surprised that any thing was left at the shore.

The Excursion House is now reached, bundles and hats disposed of. They start to the Beach. In less than fifteen minutes they are in the water, clothes and all, just as far as they could go without getting dripping wet; but thanks to a kind lady who, although a stranger, wishes to give them a ride on the Carroussel. Whilst they are having this ride, Mr. Clayton and Mr. Hall have gone to the Excursion House to get the bathing suits from Mrs. Trenwith, who had very kindly taken care of those the Society had last year. Through the kind friends in the Church every child had a bathing suit, which lessened the work for the ladies very much. It was very funny to see some of the little tots get a suit on a size or so too large; but they did not care, their thoughts were on the fun they were going to have. Mr. Hall and Mr. Clayton were soon ready to give the children a dip in the Ocean. Each child would come up and tell when they had their dip and how far out they had been.

Dinner time came too soon, but Mrs. Trenwith, who is always thoughtful, thinking the children would be hungry, had it ready at half past twelve o'clock. Soup, chicken, meat and vegetables, with ice cream for desert.

After dinner they played in the sand awhile; then the Proprietor of the Carroussel sends word he wishes to give the children a free ride. Bread and milk is then given them and off they go to the train, with many thanks to Mrs. Trenwith for all her kindness.

In less than a half an hour all the small children are fast asleep, and on reaching Camden each lady looks after her eight children, either giving them to their parents at the ferry, or seeing that they are safely home.

This shows just a day's outing and how the work is done.

July 25th, fifty-six children were taken for a trip down the river; the children enjoyed the ride on the boat very much.

This will make 175 children that have had an outing since the summer work began.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS had their Annual Excursion to Bartram's Botanical Gardens, Saturday, July 28th.

They were very much interested in the old house where John and Ann Bartram lived, built in the year 1731 and enlarged in 1770.

They also saw the tree called Christ Thorn.

The old Cider Press is quite curious, and the tomb stone of one of Mr. Bartram's slaves is almost worn away to nothing.

Many beautiful trees are there, and it is a spot that all should visit.

The King's Daughters will have their next meeting August 29th, at half past seven o'clock.

SELECTIONS.

Bishop Brooks wrote from Tanjore: "It is strange to be right in the midst of pure, blank heathenism after one has been hearing and talking about it all his life. And it is certainly as bad as has been painted. I have seen a good deal of the missionaries here, and a good many of them are doing very noble work, but the hosts on hosts of heathen must be a pretty discouraging sight to them sometimes. All the rest of my life I shall have pictures before my mind of these queer Hindoos riding on elephants (that they prod with a sharp iron stick behind the ear to make them go), squatting on their heels in the sunniest sunshine they can find, and religiously bathing in big tanks and tugging at the heavy cars on which they love to drag their horrible gods about the country; smiling, cheating, lying dreadfully, and making their country as picturesque as anything can be in all the world."

JUST ITS INTENTION.

It is related on good authority that an elderly man from Western Pennsylvania, whose family were Presbyterians and whose only experience in a religious way came from attending a country church with them, was once on a visit to a brother who was a Churchman and a Warden in a certain Philadelphia Parish. Sunday morning came, and he was invited to go to Church with his brother. He professed his willingness to do so if his brother would only post him as to what to do, for he had heard that "Episcopalians" were dreadfully formal. In Church they sat right together. The service began with the sentences, then the Warden whispered "kneel down." This seemed to be hard work. After the Lord's Prayer, on admonition, he "got up." Then "sit down," and so it went until after the Creed. When the "kneel down" then came it seemed too much for the visitor's patience, for as he was getting down he grunted in an undertone, "Well! this does beat the Devil." "Just its intention," quietly whispered the Warden, and after this the service went on without any further comment.

The first principle of Christianity is to forget one's self. When Wilberforce was straining every energy to get his bill for the emancipation of slaves passed, a lady once said to him: "Mr. Wilberforce, I'm afraid you are so busy about those slaves that you are neglecting your own soul." "True, madam," he replied, "I had quite forgotten that I had one." That remark contains one of the deepest thoughts of Christianity. [Address by PROFESSOR DRUMMOND.]

OFFERTORIES FOR SEPTEMBER.

For General Charities.

MR. SAMUEL CLARKSON, a Vestryman of this Parish died suddenly August 18th. The loss by his death is unspeakable. He was one of God's own. If ever man died "in favor with God and in love and charity with all men," surely it was Mr. Clarkson. As a Churchman he learned at the feet of Dr. Muhlenberg, to whom he was almost as a son. At the head of a great manufacturing concern, a large employer of labor, he was sagacious enough to bring prosperity to the business, and so kind and just as to hold the supreme confidence and affection of the employees. His faith was serene and his life blameless. May light perpetual shine on him, and may God lift up the light of His countenance upon his stricken family.

THE CHURCH has been open for services every Sunday during the summer season.

THE RECTOR expects to return to the City and to resume his parish duties about the middle of this month.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL in beginning the work for the coming season will be in need of some more teachers to fill vacancies that may occur, and to supply new classes to be formed. It is important that all classes should be supplied with teachers. There is need of earnest, faithful communicants who are "apt to teach" and who can interest the scholars in the weekly lessons. Anyone who takes charge of a class, should see to it that he be regular, punctual and faithful in the performance of the duties assumed.

The School will be opened on the first Sunday in October at 9.45 A. M. This is one of the most important departments of church work. Who will offer to help? Notify the Rector as soon as you can that he may see that all classes are supplied with such teachers as are needed.

THE BOYS' GUILD will hold its next regular meeting on Friday evening, October 5th at 7¾ o'clock, in the Guild room. Boys 13 years of age and over are invited to become members. This society is organized for the purpose of promoting reverence, purity, temperance and sociability among its members. Last year the membership was quite large and much good was done. There is much interest taken and loyalty is shown by all belonging to the Guild. Several ladies and gentlemen of the Parish last year helped to make the recreation hour, after the business part of the meeting, an attractive feature for the boys and young men. It is hoped these with others will come and help during the coming winter in this attractive work.

SINCE THE LAST REPORT the Children's Friend Society has had three Excursions to Atlantic City. Nearly three hundred children have had a day's outing at the Sea Shore this summer. Fifty have had a trip on the River, and over sixty were taken to the Zoological Gardens, making so far over four hundred children that have had an outing through this Society.

August 18th was called the Bar Harbor Excursion, because kind friends there had sent donations for another trip. On last Tuesday morning a little girl was seen standing at the door of one of the ladies' houses; when asked what she wanted? her reply was, "I have come to go on the Excursion." Poor child, she was just one day ahead of time, for the Excursion was to be on Wednesday.

Many of the children who have been with us this summer, have never been any place, not even on a train of cars. It don't seem possible, but we have found many such cases.

Such remarks as these were heard last Wednesday, as each child came out dressed in a bathing suit. "Oh, look at those children!" "Did you ever see so many," "look how happy they are, and every one has a bucket and shovel."

Look at that little girl with a bathing suit too large for her, digging away in the sand; how funny she looks and so happy. While the stranger is speaking, a little girl comes up; when asked what she is doing? her reply is catching oysters. And half a dozen, all talking at once, ask if we saw how far Mr. Clayton took them out? Another said did you see how he floated me? Look there he goes with a little boy on his shoulder.

The bath is over and dinner is ready, and one could hardly realize that there were over seventy children in the dining room, so quiet and well behaved were the children. One lady remarked that it was actually painful it was so quiet.

After dinner a little girl was heard say "it must have cost a million of dollars to give us that dinner, so many of us."

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS will have their next meetings September 12th and 26th, in the Guild room at half past seven o'clock.

THE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION of the Boys' Guild of St. Stephen's Church, held its First Annual Fall Sports on Saturday afternoon August 25th, 1894, at Chamounix, in west Fairmount Park. It was a delightful day for the sports and the different events were well contested. The results of the afternoon were as follows: 100 yards dash, won by H. Christensen, time, 12 seconds; throwing the base ball, won by Frank Collins, distance 275 feet; ½ mile walk, won by H. Christensen, time 4 minutes, 58 seconds; putting the 16lb shot won by E. W. Spackman, distance 23 feet, 6 in.; 220 yards dash, won by H. Christensen, time 26 seconds; hop, step and jump, won by E. W. Spackman, distance 31 feet, 8½ inches; 1 mile run, won by John Seed, time 5 minutes, 15 seconds; running broad jump, won by Frank Collins, distance 15 feet.

There were many of the friends of the Association present, and the interest manifested in all of the events was very encouraging.

The prizes were silver medals with a yellow enameled cross in the centre of each.

SELECTIONS.

My chief reason for being an Episcopalian is because I find what I need here to help me towards right behaving and right believing.

I like the moderation, the patience, the Christian good sense of the Episcopal Church. The longer acquaintance I have with my ministerial brethren and with myself, the more thankful am I for the Prayer Book, which protects the devotions of the congregation against changes of spiritual weather, does not allow the helpfulness or worthiness of the service, to be dependent upon the size of the congregation, the temperature of the Church, the disposition, the digestion, or the religion of the parson, but provides that God shall be reverently adored in words which are hallowed by the use of ages, and prayed to in petitions which cover every need of man. When the Archangel Gabriel is pastor of the Parish, we may be content with his extemporaneous prayers. But I would not be willing to commit my devotions to anybody else all the year round.

Another helpful institution of the Episcopal Church, beside the Prayer Book, is the arrangement of the Christian year. This keeps the balance of religious teaching. It makes it absolutely certain that the great truths of the Christian faith shall be taught every year in every Parish. The Parson cannot help himself. The Church herself reminds her children of the birth of Jesus Christ, of the events of his childhood, of the life that he lived, of his fasting and temptation in the desert, of the words and deeds which crowded the last week before His crucifixion; of that supreme fact of the Cross and the meaning of it, of His resurrection and ascension into Heaven, and of the coming of the Holy Ghost. Christmas and Easter are already kept, as they were of old, in all Christian Churches. Good Friday will come next. And presently the Week of Prayer, which in our curiously unwise and perverse way of doing things is put at a time which has no special significance, will be appointed at that week which annually commemorates the betrayal, the trial, the mocking and scourging, the condemnation, the death and burial of Jesus Christ.

I rejoice especially in the wide inclusiveness of the Episcopal Church, in the fact that there is room in it for all kinds of people. It is sometimes a matter of amazement to Christians of other communions that there should be so much space for difference, so many various positions and opinions in the Church. But this is that which distinguishes between a church and a sect. A sect is a company of people who think exactly alike. A church is a great, roomy, catholic institution which has a welcome for every man who even wishes to live a Christian life and who has made even a small beginning of Christian faith.

The truth is that people are different. We have been made so by the good Lord himself. Jesus Christ knew that perfectly and constantly acted upon the knowledge. But he did not teach that there ought to be a different church for all the various species of the human family. He founded one church and meant it to be big enough to take everybody in.

There are Episcopalians who are scarcely to be distinguished from Presbyterians, others who look like Roman Catholics, others who talk like Unitarians. Because these religious sects represent human temperaments and are deserving of a representation in a Christian church. It is the place of a Christian church to minister to every man that lives.

This broad and reasonable and Christian inclusiveness is secured in the Episcopal Church by the complete simplicity of it's doctrinal requirements. It asks its people to assent to the Apostles' and the Nicene creeds, to accept the Holy Scriptures as containing all things necessary to salvation, to partake in the two sacraments which were ordained by Christ himself, and to conform to the historical administration of the Christian church. It does not impose upon its members any metaphysical formulas, does not venture into theories, does not set up any doctrine of the Trinity, of the Incarnation, or of the Atonement, leaving these deep truths to the single statements of the brief creeds. It does not define the inspiration of Holy Scripture: its members may agree as they think best with the General Assembly or with Dr. Briggs. It leaves it entirely open to its people to be either Calvanists or Arminians, grounding its position in all these matters upon the blessed indefiniteness of Holy Scripture, which leaves room for difference. It does not account the ritual of either sacrament to be so important as the sacrament itself. In baptism it provides for either immersion or aspersion, as the Christian may desire, and it has a service for the baptism of infants and another for those of riper years. While in government it is as congregational as the Congregationalists, and as presbyterian as the Presbyterians, only adding that element of constitutional superintendence which is shown by all experience to be essential to the permanent well-being of any business, of any society, or of any state.

I cannot think of any true thing which I would like to teach which I am not perfectly free to teach in the Episcopal Church. Nor do I know of any wise thing which I would like to do which I am not absolutely free in this Church to do. I am an Episcopalian because the Episcopal Church is the most satisfactory church society I can find. GEO. HODGES.

"UNLUCKY FRIDAY."

Some of us have been brought up to dread Friday as a peculiarly unlucky day. Let us look into the matter a little.

Friday, long regarded as a day of ill omen, has been an eventful one in American history.

Friday, Columbus sailed on his voyage of discovery.

Friday, ten weeks after, he discovered America.

Friday, Henry VIII of England gave John Cabot his commission, which led to the discovery of North America.

Friday, St. Augustine, the oldest town in the United States, was founded.

Friday, the "Mayflower," with the Pilgrims, arrived at Plymouth; and on Friday they signed that august compact, the forerunner of the present Constitution.

Friday, George Washington was born.

Friday, Bunker Hill was seized and fortified.

Friday, the surrender of Saratoga was made.

Friday, Cornwallis surrendered at Yorktown; and on Friday the motion was made in Congress that the United Colonies were, and of right ought to be, free and independent.

Americans surely ought not to be afraid of Friday.—Sunday Afternoon.

Said a brilliant Oxford student who went to Africa, and died after a year's work: "I think it is with African missions as with the building of a great bridge. You know how many stones have to be buried in the earth, all unseen, for a foundation. If Christ wants me to be one of the unseen stones, lying in an African grave, I am content. The final result will be a Christian Africa."

IN MEMORIAM.

SAMUEL CLARKSON.

At a meeting of the Vestry held October 1st, the following Resolutions were unanimously adopted:—

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God to take out of this world the soul of our dear brother, Samuel Clarkson;

Resolved, That we hereby place on record our great grief and sense of loss. In every relation of life, Mr. Clarkson bore himself as a Christian, and, in the true sense of the word, a Gentle-man. As a Churchman, a man of business and a citizen, he was intelligent, upright, kind and faithful. We lament that we shall see his face no more, while we bless God's holy name for the good example of this His servant departed this life in faith and fear.

Resolved, That these resolutions be entered upon the Minutes of the Vestry, and that copies thereof be made to appear in THE PARISH NEWS, The Church Standard, The Churchman and the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

THE ATTENTION OF THE MEMBERS of this Congregation is once again earnestly asked to the Daily Services. Every day at 11 A. M. prayers are said in this Church for the spiritual health and benediction of all its people. We trust that these prayers are not without effect, whether the people are present or not. But is it not worth while to consider whether those whose business obligations will permit should not make a point of being present at stated times? It is quite true that "to labor is to pray;" so that if any one is earnestly at work doing his duty in that state of life into which God has called him, he is better employed than he would be while he neglected his work to say his prayers. But there are many who with a very little arranging could find a half hour from time to time to kneel in God's house and bathe his soul in a spiritual atmosphere. He will go out therefrom refreshed.

THE GIRLS' FRIENDLY SOCIETY resumes its work for this season on Monday, October 1st, in the Guild Room, when, no doubt, both associates and members will be glad to meet and begin their work again for the winter. The Cooking Class, which is held on Thursdays, will not begin until November, due notice of which will be given to the Society at some regular meeting beforehand.

THE GARMENT COMMITTEE will resume its duties on Monday, October 1st, and in expectation of heavily increasing demands this season, will be very grateful to all the members who will give cheerfully according to their means.

We are entirely without outside clothing for men and boys; a sorry outlook with cold weather approaching.

"Blessed is he that considereth the poor."

All articles must be addressed to the Garment Committee, and can be sent at any time to No. 9 S. Tenth Street, or any Monday to Parish School Building, rear of St. Stephen's Church.

As you turn the corner of Tenth and Chestnut Streets, on Friday, September 7th, you see two large coaches standing in front of the Parish House, waiting for the little ones that are to have an outing to the Dairy at Fairmount Park. Look at their bright little faces as each one takes a seat in the coaches and you will see that they are expecting a good time. Over fifty children are packed away; then comes the delightful river ride, the children singing and talking all the way out; the bells on the horses with their plumes add very much to the children's pleasure.

After spending an hour or so playing, they are given a ride in the Carrousel; then it is time for sandwiches, ice cream and biscuits; another run and home we go all saying they had such fun.

This was the last excursion for the summer, and a very happy one it has been for over five hundred children. Every year the work has increased, more excursions and more children have had an outing, thanks to the kind friends who have helped with their donations.

In November the winter work begins; this is just as important as the summer. Go into many of the houses of these children; see how they are crowded five, six and ten in a room; would you not be glad for one hour's pleasure one evening in a month? That's what our entertainments are for; also to keep up the interest in the children.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS will have their meetings Wednesday, October 3rd and 17th, in the Parish House, at half-past seven o'clock.

On the evening of August 30th, the King's Daughters of St. Stephen's Church visited the house of Mr. George Thomas to see his fine collection of pictures. They spent a very pleasant evening there and took great interest in voting for the picture they liked best, which was "Through the Mist," a marine scene, for which the majority voted. They desire to express their thanks for the kind invitation tendered them.

SELECTIONS.

There is a man, who shall be nameless, because he will not see this article, who refused to put anything into the offering on Sunday nights when there was no sermon. When the sermon was preached he put in a nickel, but said it was an outrage to pass the collection plate, when there was nothing but the Evening Service. The value which the man placed on the sermon was certainly flattering to the preacher, and not very flattering to the choir, as the service was valued at nothing, and the sermon at a nickel. The worst part of the above story is this, it is true. It represents the ideas not of one, but of many protestant minds. They come to Church to be preached at; the nickel they drop into the plate is supposed to go towards the pay of the preacher. The idea that worship is anything, or that they go to Church to worship, is something they have never grasped. The idea that they are obliged to offer something on God's altar to make their worship anything but a farce, would be considered ridiculous. It only shows how ignorant many people are of the very first principles of Christianity.

The following clipping from the Churchman illustrates what has just been said:

"It is said of a literary man, who died last year, that he never went to church, and a friend explains the fact by saying that he was not intellectually fed by what was set forth. But, supposing this to be true, observes a religious weekly, did not the man owe to his Maker the duty of joining in public worship? How poor an idea of the sanctuary must he have who supposes that it exists only for the purpose of public instruction! It includes this, but its primary intention is to render honor and homage to the greatest and best of all Beings. Then, as to intellectual food, is not this furnished by the living oracles which are more or less read or repeated in all Christian worship, or did the literary man think that he had exhausted the contents of the Bible? The main purpose of the pulpit is, not to bring forth new truth, but to exhibit old truth in its adaptation to the needs of the present. Hence, the most able and learned may be benefitted by the sermon of a man of very moderate gifts and acquirements, whose aim is to present Scripture truth in its simplicity."

Here is another excellent thought on the same subject:

"Ask the average protestant why he goes to his place of worship, and he tells you to get good. But worship is not a getting, but a giving; a service in which the chief or first idea is not the receipt of alms or wages, but of a duty rendered; a making on the part of the creature some return to the Creator, specially in ways suggested and prescribed by him."

A SYMPOSIUM ON UNITY.

Some new interest has been awakened by the New York Independent. A Congregational minister having written an article to the effect that the cause of Unity would be promoted by such a change of the laws and rubrics of the Episcopal Church as would permit ministers of other religious bodies to occupy its pulpits, the Independent, before publishing it, sent out the article in slips to all the bishops of the Episcopal Church, inviting the expression of their views upon the matter. Twenty-seven of our bishops courteously responded, and their answers, along with the original article, are published by the Independent.

It is a very notable fact that, although the bishops who respond are of all schools in the church, there is not one who believes that an exchange of pulpits would in any way further the cause of that organic unity which they have at heart. They point out that this exchange of pulpits is practised, and has been for a hundred years, by all the Protestant denominations, but they are no nearer to organic unity than before. If the exchange of pulpits would produce unity, why has it not done so in the case of the denominations which have practised it? Then our Church could not do this without a change in the preface to the ordinal, which forbids it, and the agitation for such a change would result in dividing ourselves, at least. Again, such a change, if it could be effected, would make a hopeless separation between the Anglican communion and all the other branches of the Historical Catholic Church, which comprise more than three-fourths of the whole Christian world, and thus will produce more division, instead of unity. In every discussion of this momentous subject it is only more and more apparent that on this subject of Church Unity the Protestant denominations and the Anglican communion do not occupy common ground. We believe the Scriptures demand Organic Unity; the others do not believe in this at all. They sneer at Organic Unity as impracticable. Perhaps it is as impracticable as the conversion of the world to Christ, nevertheless it may be the ideal towards which we are to strive. They are content with shaking hands over the fences which men have made, without ever thinking of taking down the fences. We know that the Church of Christ was practically one for centuries, and that, when danger threatened, the bishops could be called together from all parts of the world, and their decision was the voice of the Œcumenical Catholic Church. There is nothing but the wickedness of men which has destroyed this state of things, and we cannot be faithful to God if we do not at least labor to restore it. A mere exchange of pulpits among Christians who will not commune together, is only putting a plaster on a cancer to conceal its ugliness, which cannot heal it.

There seems to be some confusion of mind in the public about the meaning of the fourth plank in the Quadrilateral of our bishops on the subject of unity. Because it is not required that any particular theory of the Episcopate should be held, it seems to be supposed in some quarters that the fact is not important. These answers of our bishops will help to dispel this misconception. Our bishops unanimously hold that while Christian people may hold what theory they please about it, the fact is that in our judgment there can be no Organic Unity without the Historic Episcopate. Our bishops are a unit about this. The Historic Episcopate is a sacred trust with which they cannot part, and without which there can be no Organic Unity among Christian people.

Some years ago the late Horace Mann, the eminent educator, delivered an address at the opening of some reformatory institution for boys, during which he remarked that if only one boy was saved from ruin, it would pay for all the cost, and care, and labor of establishing such an institution as that. After the exercises had closed, in private conversation, a gentleman rallied Mr. Mann upon his statement, and said to him:

"Did you not color that a little when you said that all that expense and labor would be repaid if it only saved one boy?"

"Not if it were my boy," was the solemn and convincing reply.

Some one has handed us some remarkable figures, which recently were printed in one of our principal papers, showing the number of ministers in the religious bodies around us who have left their communions and have been ordained in the Episcopal Church in the last year. There were forty-one in all, including thirteen Methodists, eight Baptists, seven Presbyterians, seven Congregationalists, two Roman Catholics, two Universalists, one Unitarian, and one Adventist.

Love and hope always live together. Kill hope, and love will bring it to life again.

The only thing that keeps a stingy man from stealing is the risk of the thing.

One of the most terrible things about sin is that it makes us dissatisfied with God.

OFFERTORIES FOR NOVEMBER.

Third Sunday in the month—Benevolent Society.
Other Sundays—General Charities.
Thanksgiving Day—Episcopal Hospital.

THE OFFERTORY ON THANKSGIVING DAY will be as usual for the Episcopal Hospital.

THE RECTOR WISHES TO SAY A WORD to the Congregation of St. Stephen's Church about money. It is pretty well understood, and has been for a long while, that no collections are ever taken in this Church for anything connected with the Church's running expenses. In this it probably differs from most other churches, and it is a fact in which we all take great satisfaction. The offerings are always for charities of some sort, or for the expenses of the benevolent work which is carried on under the auspices of the Church. For this reason the Rector asks that the people who attend the services will provide the expenses of these charities; he asks it not as a favor, and he thinks it would be impertinent even to urge it as a duty. He has discovered in the past that it has never been necessary to do more than to place before the people what the actual needs of the case are, whereupon the people always provide.

We are beginning now another winter's work. Many of the people who are the most reliable contributors to this work have been until now out of town, but the expense of the work has gone on continually. For example—to take only a few of the activities of the parish as samples of the rest—the Altar Society has for its duty to provide all the accessories of a dignified and respectful worship of Almighty God. They give their time and personal labor gratuitously and lovingly; but the articles which they are required to provide cost money; and that money comes only from the congregation. Take again the Children's Friend Society. Each winter it provides simple entertainments of one kind or another for hundreds and hundreds of poor children. In the case of most of these children this is absolutely the only amusement that they have during the whole winter. These children live in the most squalid surroundings and have not a penny wherewith to pay for those means of entertainment which seem to most people to come as naturally as the air they breathe. They are dependent solely on the kindliness of the members of the Children's Friend Society for this purpose. To provide all these entertainments and to look after these poor little creatures, very often to provide for them sufficient garments to enable them to attend decently, costs money. This again can come only from the congregation. Then again, the Girls' Friendly Society has under its care somewhere about 150 working girls. It provides for them instruction, guidance and entertainment also. One evening in each week, at least, it is necessary to provide for many of them a plain tea, for it is impossible for them to go from their shops to their far away homes and back again to their evening classes. They are taught dressmaking, millinery, cooking, and some of the branches of ordinary education which they have not been able to receive elsewhere. All this costs money, and it can only come from the congregation.

The Benevolent Society, the Boys' Guild, the Sunday School, and in fact all of the work of the parish, can only be sustained and carried forward at a very considerable expense. This expense is provided for at the ordinary morning and afternoon offertories. The Rector of the Church begs most earnestly that the people who attend these services will bear this in mind, and that when they make their offering it will not be a mere mechanical and perfunctory act, but that they will remember they are providing the means for other men and women, who have time to do the work which the very people who themselves give the money are just as much bound to do, as are the people who take their money and use it for charitable purposes.

THE CUTTING COMMITTEE of the Benevolent Society, will meet on Tuesday, November 6th, at 10 o'clock, to begin their work of cutting garments for this coming season.

THE MOTHERS' LOYAL CIRCLE, King's Daughters, meets Wednesdays, at 2 P. M.

MISS RODMAN WISHES TO ACKNOWLEDGE having received:

E. N. M., ... $2 00

From Mrs. Parmalee, Bundle of Clothing.

THE GARMENT COMMITTEE.—I wonder whether the congregation, generally, understands what this committee means? I suppose not; for if they do, I am confident that every body would give liberally, even to the smallest girl or boy in the Church. Certainly every communicant would. It merely asks for two new articles of clothing, once a year, from each member, which can cost from six cents each to any higher price they choose, and to as many articles as they please to give. This clothing is put in the hands of nine experienced persons, forming the committee, for distribution among deserving poor; and for fear of pauperizing, are professedly given only to children under ten years and adults above sixty. But any deserving case, regardless of sex, sect or color, will be temporarily assisted, between those ages, who, for any good reason, is out of employment, or unable, physically, to labor for a living.

Partially worn outside clothing for men and boys, is always thankfully received, and judiciously distributed. At present there is one coat on hand; neither trousers nor vests of any size.

And who will take care of our little babies? We have two thin slips and some socks in the closet; would that be enough to make your babies comfortable?

Every package must be addressed to the Garment Committee, and can be sent any morning to No. 9 S. Tenth Street, or any Monday, between 10.30 A. M. and 12.30 P. M., to the Parish School Building, (rear of the Church).

DONATIONS RECEIVED by the Children's Friend Society in October:

Mrs. L. V. Sausser, . . . $2 00

The winter work commences in November; the question now is, what shall we do for the little ones' Thanksgiving? For they do not forget the pleasant evenings last winter, and were speaking of the entertainments on the excursions this summer.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of Whatsoever Circle, have their meetings the 1st and 3rd Wednesdays in the month, November 7th and 21st, at half past seven o'clock.

Katie Judge, the crippled child, at the Home of the Merciful Saviour whom they had taken to dress, died at Avon-by-the-Sea this summer. She was much loved by the whole circle, and was a good little Christian girl.

SELECTIONS.

"TOO EXCLUSIVE."

We regret indeed there are those who think that the Church is too exclusive, but we can hardly think it strange that there should be those who think it is, when we find that a still larger number think it too inclusive. "But"—it is said—"it does not invite other ministers into its pulpits." Why should it? They acknowledge no allegiance to us. The Church is not responsible for them; has no authority over them, and no assurances from them as to what they would preach, teach or say. The fact is, simply, that for good and sufficient reasons "this Church" confines its official teaching to its official teachers. The particular manner of their appointment is simply a part of its Apostolic heritage. No national Church could, without self-destruction, set aside for itself the three orders of ministers in Christ's Church, which have been from the Apostles' time until now. It is simply a fact that there have always been these orders of ministers in Christ's Church,—Bishops, Priests and Deacons. We did not create the fact and are not responsible for it. We could not change it if we would, and would not if we could. If others choose to do so it is their affair, not ours. "But" (it is said) "you do not recognize other churches." It is indeed true that we believe in one Church, not in many churches, but this we believe because it is the express teaching of Holy Scripture, and furthermore has been the universal teaching of the Christian Faith. Says the Apostle, "There is one Body and one Spirit;" and the Creed requires us to say, "I believe in one Catholic and Apostolic Church." Since one means one and not many; we must believe in one Church, not in many Churches. If it be said, "Do you suppose that it is made up only of those who belong to what is called the Episcopal Church, or the Anglican Communion?" We answer no; we do not. We claim that it includes the whole body of the baptized; that there is not anywhere a baptized man who is not a member of the Catholic Church; no matter by what name he may call himself, or by what name he may be called. If men must say, I am of the Pope, or I am of Calvin, or I am of Wesley, or I am of Williams, we can only answer with the Apostle, "Is Christ divided? Was Paul crucified for you, or were ye baptized in the name of Paul?" and, "While one saith I am of Paul, and another I am of Apollos, are ye not carnal?"—Rev. A. W. Snyder.

THE BEST HUSBAND.

No man, in my opinion, can be the best husband 'till he is the minister of his family. As the home is the first church, so the husband is the first minister. He is the high priest of that home; his wife the high priestess.

If religion means an abiding faith in an Almighty power above us, and a true love of God, who is love, together with love in the best sense of all mankind, then I say religion should have its place, a large place in every home; and the husband should be the one to encourage, by example and sensible teaching, its continued presence there. If he would have the happiest family about him, he will teach—not preach, understand—the doctrines of religion and morality. The father who would have his child, when that child becomes a man, continue in his career in the fulness of Christian faith, must bring up that child amid Christian surroundings. As a rule, those men who are most sincere in their religious belief, were imbued with the spirit of religion in childhood.

I cannot bring myself to believe that there is enough religion in our homes to-day—not enough, particularly in this great, seething, crowding, pushing city. Amid the rush, the pace that kills, religion is forgotten. The husband and father has no time for it; he can't even find house room for it. As only one man here and there will tolerate religion in his office or place of business; where then, do the great mass of men keep their religion? Some few keep it within the walls of a church, pay a handsome pew rent for keeping it there, and go take a look at it once every Sunday from eleven to twelve.

I fear that especially among well-to-do families, in the homes of prosperity, religion is almost entirely neglected; at least, the subject is seldom spoken of as an expression of real feeling, except in hushed tones. And yet I do not wish to paint the situation in darker colors than it really is. I do not say all husbands and fathers neglect religion. If there are great numbers of homes in this city in which religion has no place, there are still many households in which the family live together in the spirit of Christ's teachings; and when such is the case, it is usually because the husband and wife agree in their religion, and agreeing in that, agree in all matters, and are the happier. In these homes, husband and wife love God and pray and worship together, just as they work, hope, sorrow and joy together.—Rev. Dr. C. H. Parkhurst.

LES NOMS DES NÈGRES.

Noms illustres bien mal portés:

Un rapport de police d'une ville du Kentucky porte que Benjamin Franklin a été fouetté pour avoir volé des poules, que Thomas Jefferson a été arrêté pour vagabondage, que John Wesley a été pincé en flagrant délit de cambriolage, que Georges Washington passera devant les assises comme incendiaire, que Martin Luther s'est pendu à la branche d'un arbre et que Napoléon Bonaparte a été condamné à dix jours de prison pour avoir volé une chèvre.

Tous ces délinquants sont des nègres qui déshonorent des noms illustres choisis par eux.

The Rev. B. C. Haworth, of Japan, writes: "Every Japanese is enrolled at birth at the local temple. So long as he remains in the neighborhood of the family temple, it is almost impossible to get him to break the temple tie and join a Christian Church. The membership of Christian Churches is made up almost entirely of people who have come from other localities. In Osaka, for instance, it is a very rare thing to find a native of Osaka in any one of the churches."

No one ever had a good thought that was not prompted by the Holy Spirit.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the Whatsoever Circle will not have their next meetings until December 12th and December 19th, on account of the Sale held by the ladies in the Guild room December 5th.

"What is the Circle doing now?" was asked last week. Sewing for the poor, looking after an invalid girl, and giving a good time to about twenty little tots.

On Wednesday evening, 28th inst., a Thanksgiving party was given to twenty poor children. That meant a good time. First they played with some little Brownies, then games were played, favors given out, and each child was then dressed up in a paper cap and given a box of candy and some cake. One does not often see a happier lot of children, and the young ladies feel amply repaid for their trouble.

Donations of shoes for the poor children from Mrs. Louise V. Sausser.

SELECTIONS.

THE EVILS OF DIVISION.

Melancthon, the celebrated German reformer, the friend of Luther, and accounted one of the wisest and greatest men of his age, endeavored to show his countrymen the great danger and disadvantage it was to Christianity in general that it should be broken up into opposing sections; and accordingly he illustrated his argument by an allegorical picture of the wolves and the dogs, who were marching onwards to fight one against the other. The wolves, that they might better know the strength of their adversary, sent forth a master wolf as their scout. The scout returned, and told the wolves that the dogs were indeed more in number, but yet, that they should not be discouraged; for he observed that the dogs were not one like another; a few mastiffs there were, but the most were little ones, which could only bark, but not bite, and would be afraid of their own shadow. Another thing, also, he observed, which should much encourage them, and that was, that the dogs marched as if they were more offended at themselves than with us; not keeping their ranks, but grinning and snarling, and biting and tearing one another, as if they would save us the labor of it. And therefore let us march on resolutely, for our enemies are their own enemies; enemies to themselves and their own peace; they bite and devour each other, and therefore we shall certainly overcome them. Though a kingdom or Church be never so well provided, yet, notwithstanding, if divisions and heart-burnings get among its members, like a spreading gangrene, they will infect the whole; and like a breach in the walls of a besieged city they will let in the enemy to destroy it. Nay, though there should be a kingdom of saints, if differences and distractions get within that kingdom, they will, like the worm in Jonah's gourd, eat up all the happiness of it in one night. Hence we should seriously lay to heart the great danger of our unhappy divisions, and perceive the great advantage, safety and comfort of unity among Christians.

ON THE LORD'S SIDE.

When the country was suffering amid the pangs of the Civil War there was an assembly of denominational preachers in Washington. A delegation was appointed from that body to wait on Mr. Lincoln and offer him their sympathy and assure him of their approval of his policy. He received them courteously and thanked them for the encouragement they brought. At the conclusion of the conference the spokesman of the party said (not without some affectation): "We trust, Mr. President, that you never fail amid your anxieties, to pray that the Lord may be on your side." "Well, gentlemen," said Mr. Lincoln, "I must confess that I have failed to so pray, but I have very earnestly tried to always be on the Lord's side."

If only men were thus content to find out the Lord's will and earnestly to follow it at any cost, rather than to search for texts to support their own preconceived notions, in other words, to always strive to be on the Lord's side, rather than to get Him to be on their side, it would be the death of sectarianism and end the divisions which afflict the Church of Christ.—Church Bells.

Some one gives this wise suggestion: "When a man tells you that he attended a certain church six months without being noticed by anybody, ask him how many people he tried to help."

A Happy New Year!

There is a good deal of confusion in people's minds concerning the matter of "Church Work." Not long ago I was asked in all seriousness, "Is St. Stephen's a working parish?" The only immediate reply which suggested itself was, "What do you mean by a working parish?" My own idea is that fundamentally a working parish is one whose members labor diligently at their "profession, which is to be made like unto Christ." It is quite evident that if they are lazy or indifferent here no other work which they do will be likely to amount to very much. I venture to hope that the people of this parish are not unmindful of this primary obligation.

But of course I knew that what my questioner wanted to know was whether or not the parish maintained and ran a large and efficient number of "societies," "guilds," "organizations," &c. My reply was, "in proportion to the size of the parish you would probably say that in this sense it is not what you would call a working church." It bears but little resemblance to the so called "Institutional Church," which is strenuously advocated in some quarters. We have, as compared with some parishes, but few working organizations. We have none at all for appearance sake. We do not believe in constructing machines for sake of seeing the wheels go round. We do not believe in organizing societies for sake of "giving people something to do." People have more to do as it is than they are able to do well. The only legitimate reason for starting a society is that there is something which needs to be done. The organizations we have are about as efficient as it is possible for organizations to be. To begin with the Vestry itself, its work is done so quietly and well that nobody knows anything about it. The same may be said of the Sunday Schools, the Female Benevolent Society, the Missionary Society, the Altar Society, the Girls' Friendly, the Boys' Guild, the King's Daughters, the Mothers' Meetings, the Children's Friend Society and the Burd Orphan Asylum. The truth is they work so silently and with so little friction that people do not realize what they are accomplishing.

There are however at least two more things which need to be done. One is a large work among young men; the other is a still larger educational, reformatory and charitable work for street boys. I know, or think I know, what could be done and how it could be done. But it would require a considerable sum of money to secure the plant and the machinery with which to do it. The men and women who would do the actual work I know where to lay my hands upon. Will any body offer the money?

The Rector's appeal for toys to be given to poor children during the Christmas holidays was most generously responded to by the congregation. The various societies in charge of the distribution have presented in this paper their report of what was done with the presents sent in. There were many packages without names attached. Others were sent by the following:—

Miss McDowell, pupils of Miss Gordon's school (collected by Miss Earle), Mrs. Reilly, Mrs. T. M. McKean, Mrs. Josephine L. S. Adams, Miss Baird, Mrs. Arrison, Miss Isabel R. Hunter, Miss Stevenson, Katherine Wilson, Mrs. Frederick A. Koons, Mrs. Lovejoy, Mrs. Newlin, Miss Thorn, Mrs. A. T. Cook, Mrs. Josephine Adams, Miss Jamison, Mrs. T. A. Reilly, Mrs. Rynard, Mrs. Hansell, Miss Dickerson, Mrs. Nixon, Mrs. Hollingshead, Mrs. Parmalee, Stanley Atkinson, Mrs. Clarke Merchant, Mrs. Johnson, the Misses Holman, Miss Fagan, Mrs. Harkness Knorr, Mrs. A. F. Martin, Mrs. Russell, Mrs. Beauveau Borie, Mrs. Krombarger, Mrs. Leicester-Addis, Miss Evelyn Barr, Mrs. Sausser, Mrs. A. G. Brunner and Mrs. W. K. Barclay, Mrs. A. Pancoast, Miss L. H. Baird, Mrs. Joseph E. Widener, Mrs. W. K. Barkley, Mrs. Benjamin Rowland, Mrs. Dr. J. Graham, Mrs. McDowell, Mr. James Greer, Mrs. Dougherty, Mrs. T. P. Chandler, Jr., Misses Beatrice Powell and Doris Fenton, Miss Alice Grant, Mrs. Albert G. Hetherington, Dr. John Hewson, Miss Davis, Mrs. T. P. Chandler, Mrs. W. S. Price, Mr. Thomas, Miss A. McDowell, Mrs. Samuel W. Hamer, Mrs. Banks, Mrs. Griffith, Miss Burton, Mrs. Young, Mrs. Hunter Brooke, Mrs. E. Becker, Mrs. Craven, Mrs. Judson, Viola Fenton Bidlack, Catherine Smith, Mrs. Molloy, Mrs. Vanderslice, Mr. Hall.

What is now the St. Stephen's Branch of the Girls' Friendly Society was formed in 1889 at a sociable held in connection with the Theatre Services of the Rev. Mr. Johnson. It was organized by Mrs. Johnson with a membership of six girls, and for a time was supported through the generosity of Mrs. Alfred C. Harrison, who was its secretary for over two years. Through Mrs. Harrison's resignation and Mrs. Johnson's leaving the city, it became part of the Parish work of St. Stephen's, and has so continued with a steadily increasing membership up to the present time, when it now numbers over a hundred and twenty-five, and bids fair to overflow its present quarters. Of its original members only two remain, Sarah Gardner and Cecilia Troop.

The Christmas entertainment of the society was held on Monday evening, December 17th, when the regular classes were dispensed with, and the evening was made a purely social one, beginning with a donkey party, which caused much merriment, and followed by games in which the girls joined with great spirit. Mrs. Rutter then followed with a breezy talk, telling of her recent Christmas experience in the far West. Mrs. Rutter is one of the original workers in the society, who is gladly welcomed back by both associates and girls. A Christmas present of a simply framed photograph was then given to each of the girls from the associates. The evening's entertainment was closed by the singing of the Girls' Friendly hymn and the reading of the prayer by Mrs. Bowden.

A new feature of the Thursday evening meetings of the society is a class in book-keeping, which has proved very popular with the girls. The services of a thoroughly competent and practical book-keeper have been secured, and under her skillful instruction the girls are rapidly becoming versed in the mysteries of single and double entry and other features of book-keeping. Combined with the cooking class, this new departure makes the Thursday evening meetings vie in interest with the Monday evening gatherings.

Although the rain came down in torrents on the day of the fair given by the children of Miss Rodman's Sunday School class, it was a great success.

The children worked hard; the ladies interested were untiring in their efforts to make it a success. The friends of the children came in the pouring rain to show their interest in the cause, and to help the children raise money for the Sheltering Arms, and the Southern Home for Destitute Children. These two Institutions are doing a grand work by caring for and saving little children who have been ill treated or homeless.

The ladies of the Parish House Committee of St. Stephen's Church held, on the 6th, 7th and 8th of December, their annual sale of the handiwork of gentlewomen who are obliged by their own efforts to support themselves.

The Committee never charge the depositors any commission for selling their goods. The sales amounted this year to $911.70. The Committee wish most earnestly to thank the members of the Congregation for the cheerful and liberal patronage of this year's sale.

The children of the Infant class had a party on the Friday before Christmas, and it would be hard to find a happier set of children.

Several of the young ladies of the Parish, and some of the older members of Miss Rodman's afternoon class, kindly came and entertained the children. The spirit with which they played "Blind Man's Buff," "Drop the Handkerchief," and the zeal with which they "Went to Jerusalem," made the faces of the little ones shine with delight.

There was plenty of ice cream and cake, and very quickly the long tables were made ready. So much cream and cake were stowed away that those who were passing it trembled for fear some of the children might not be able to rise from the table; but they were, and not only that, but each child seemed perfectly able to carry home a doll, book or game that was given them. No one who saw their radiant little faces, as they said "Good night," had any doubts as to whether that party was a success.

Miss Rodman wishes to acknowledge having received bundles of clothing from Miss Perot, Mrs. Elliot, Mrs. Nixon and Miss Farrar Smith; magazines and papers from Mrs. Borie; cake from Emily, Lena and Leonard Beale, Frances Graham and Caryl Roberts, Emily Austen, Katherine Wilson, May Townsend, Annette Cornish, Josephine and Louise Elliot, Louise and Ethel Weightman, Ada Hetherington; 4 quarts of ice cream from Mrs. Hollingshead.

Clothing from Mrs. M. M. Parmalee; Mrs. John B. Craven, books and dolls; Miss K. B., stockings and handkerchiefs; box of new clothing from Mrs. Sidney Hoopes Evans; one dozen warm skirts, made by the King's Daughters, and Christmas tree fixing; Christmas cards, from Miss Stevenson.

Nothing appeals so much to a person's feelings as poor children at Christmas time.

One would have thought so had they gone into St. Stephen's Sunday School room about nine o'clock Friday morning, and a stranger would have looked and asked what was going on? On the platform was being arranged a drawing room, on which Mr. Clayton, who is one of the best of friends to the little ones, had worked for two days.

The walls were papered, curtains and hangings, loaned by kind friends in the Church, were hung, a mantle was built and bricked around, which when a Fairy's wand touched, would turn into boxes of candy. There were rugs, furniture, mantle ornaments and bric-a-brac.

But off in the corner stood a little crib; what does it all mean? Don't you see the toys that the people of St. Stephen's have so generously sent? It is the poor children that the Children's Friend Society have invited to have their Christmas to night. Half-past seven the tickets say, but at seven o'clock they commence coming, and after quite a number are in the room it is suggested that the Christmas cards be given out which Miss Stevenson so kindly donated.

Miss Littell from West Philadelphia very kindly offered to play a solo on the banjo, then Miss Bertha Walsh gave a recitation; some of the little ones were then called upon and they did very well. The curtain was then raised and there sat grandmother Kringle knitting, mother Merry on the other side of the room waiting for some one and in the crib a little boy and girl are supposed to be fast asleep. Mrs. Clayton then read "The night before Christmas when all through the house, &, &,"——A jingle is heard, up jumps mother and finds it is Santa Claus, (who is generally known as Mr. Hall, the children's friend). He comes in, looks at the children and goes to work to fill the stockings; then he goes out and the little ones wake up, take down their stockings and gather up the toys in their little nightdresses. Santa Claus comes back and looks around the room and wonders where he is going to get enough toys for over 200 children? Hark, what a prancing there is outside!

Then a Fairy enters (who is Miss Freeman), he tells his trouble and she takes her wand and waves it across the bricks about the mantle, which are then turned into boxes of candy. She then helps Santa Claus distribute them and a basket of small toys, tops, balls, mouth organs, horns and small dolls and bags of beads.

But this is not all, over two hundred gifts were given out, dolls, kitchens, dishes, blocks and games of all sorts, books and all sorts of toys imaginable, including a blackboard and a tricycle which a kind little boy brought down to the Church to give.

You can imagine the children's delight, they never had such a nice Christmas.

The ladies of the Society would like to thank the Rector and all the kind friends of the congregation for making these children so happy.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the Whatsoever Circle, have their meetings the 1st and 3rd Wednesdays in the month, January 2nd and 16th, at half-past seven o'clock.

The King's Daughters have visited in December St. Christopher's Hospital, there making seventeen poor little children happy with toys, books, jelly and scrap books. They have sewed and given to the Children's Friend Society twelve little warm skirts and helped with the Christmas entertainment, sent two garments to the Garment Society and last but not least, filled five large baskets with poultry, all sorts of groceries, can vegetables, fruit and potatoes, candy and nuts for five poor families. A note from one of the women was received, expressing how much pleasure her Christmas basket gave.

SELECTIONS.

EXCUSES.

So you are not going to church this morning, my son? Ah, yes, I see. "The music is not good." That's a pity; that's what you go to church for, to hear music. And the less we pay, the better we demand.

"And the pews are uncomfortable." That's too bad—the Sabbath is a day of rest, and we go to church for repose. The less work we do during the week, the more rest we clamor for on Sunday.

"And the sermon is so long, always." All these things are to be regretted. I would regret them more sincerely, my boy, did I not know that you will often squeeze into a stuffed street car with a hundred other men, breathing an incense of whiskey, beer and tobacco, and hang on to a strap by your eyelids for two miles, then pay five cents for the privilege of sitting on a rough plank in the broiling sun for two hours longer, and come home and talk the rest of the family into a state of aural paralysis about the "dandiest game you ever saw played on that ground."

Ah, my boy, you see what staying away from church does. It develops a habit of lying. There isn't one man in a hundred who would go on the witness stand and give, under oath, the same reasons for not going to church that he gives to his family every Sunday morning. My son, if you didn't think you ought to go, you wouldn't make any excuses for not going. No man apologizes for doing right.

THE GROWTH OF THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

The Rev. A. E. Waffle, D. D., writing from Jamestown, N. Y., to The Christian Enquirer, draws attention to the fact that the Episcopal Church is growing in every part of the United States. Speaking of the growth of the Baptist community in the State of New York, Dr. Waffle says the Baptists are increasing mostly in the large towns, but that in the state some of their associations have barely held their own, while some have suffered an actual decrease during the last twenty years. From 1870 to 1892, according to The Annual, the Baptists increased from 100,032 to 136,212, an actual gain of 36,180, or 36 per cent., whilst in the same period the Episcopalians have increased as much as 141 per cent. Upon this notable increase of the Episcopal Church, Dr. Waffles makes the following remarks:

"What are the reasons for this superior growth? It certainly is not due to better preaching, for the Baptists have more better preachers than any other denomination. Some will say that it is due to immigration from England; but that is a mistake, for the bulk of English immigrants are Wesleyan Methodists. Some will attribute it to the ritual, and yet others to the fact that Episcopalianism is an 'easy' religion, not requiring conversion and a godly life. How far these causes are operative I do not know; but, in my opinion, they effect Episcopalian growth far less than is commonly supposed. I believe that this growth is due mainly to the confidence, assurance and courage of the Episcopalian leaders. They believe that theirs is 'The Church,' and are not slow to assert their belief. That very assurance, and the exclusiveness which follows it, is their tower of strength. They are not ashamed of their belief, they have the 'courage of their convictions,' and a large part of the world takes them at their own estimate. Here is the secret of their power.

Bishop Tucker, of Uganda, ordained seven men to the ministry recently, two of whom are the greatest chiefs in the country and govern great provinces. These were only ordained deacons. The ceremony took place in the cathedral, of which the Bishop says: "For Central Africa it is as wonderful a building as Durham cathedral is for England. There are nearly 500 trees in it used as pillars. Some of them were brought five or six days' journey and needed several hundred men to carry them." On February 5, twenty-eight men were baptised, and on the 8th, seventy-five adults were confirmed. More than 150 candidates for baptism appeared in a few days.

It never pays to cherish a fault-finding spirit.

THE FOLLOWING RESOLUTIONS of the Vestry were by an oversight not printed in the PARISH NEWS of January as they should have been and as was intended.

IN MEMORIAM.

GEORGE BLIGHT.

At a meeting of the Vestry of St. Stephen's Church, Philadelphia, held December 3, 1894, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God to take out of this world the soul of our dear brother and fellow vestryman, George Blight.

Resolved, that we hereby desire to place upon record our deep appreciation of the life and character of our departed friend and colleague. Mr. Blight was a member of St. Stephen's Parish since its founding in 1823, being brought to it when a child. He was made a member of its vestry in 1872. During his whole lifetime, in his association with the Church, he manifested those qualities which have so long made him to be regarded as almost the ideal of a Christian gentleman. His deep and simple-minded devotion, his unfailing courteousness, and his willingness to devote time and attention to Church affairs, have rendered him invaluable and made his death a loss all the more deplorable to the Church.

But we console ourselves by calling to mind that those same properties of mind and heart which have been to the Church upon earth so valuable are those same qualities, which, we humbly believe, have made him fit and prepared for the enjoyments and activities of the Church beyond.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Vestry, and that copies of the same be sent to the family of Mr. Blight, and also be published in the PARISH NEWS, The Church Standard, the Churchman and the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

EDWARD ROWLAND, Secretary.

THE BISHOP WILL MAKE HIS ANNUAL VISITATION for Confirmation on Tuesday before Easter, April 9, at 11 o'clock.

Any person who has not been confirmed and who is old enough to be confirmed, and who is not in a position to give a satisfactory reason for not having been confirmed will kindly give his or her name and address to any of the Clergy before or during Lent.

FOR SEVERAL YEARS THE NOON DAY SERVICES for business women have been held at St. Stephen's during Lent. For a still longer period a similar service for business men has been held at old St. Paul's on Third Street. This latter service has been under the management of the St. Andrew's Brotherhood of the Diocese. This year the Brotherhood proposed to the Rector of this Parish that they should bring their services from St. Paul's and consolidate them with the business women's services at St. Stephen's.

It seems to be a wise and right thing to do. This coming Lent, therefore, the two services will be merged into one large service for business men and women to be held every day at St. Stephen's Church at 12.30, and ending upon the minute at 5 minutes before one. There will be, as has been heretofore, a short service and a short address. It is hoped that the Bishop of the Diocese will be able to open the services on Ash Wednesday. During the remainder of that week the Rector of the Church will conduct the services and make the addresses. During the following weeks the Clergy and services will be as follows:

Beginning Monday, March 4th, Rev. Dr. Mortimer, of St. Mark's Church.
Subject, "Temptation; its laws."

Beginning Monday, March 11th, Rev. Mr. Burgess, of St. Asaph's.
Subject, "Temptation; its remedy."

Beginning Monday, March 18th, Rev. Dr. Parks, of St. Peter's.
Subject, "Human Nature; what it is."

Beginning Monday, March 25th, Rev. Dr. Bodine.
Subject, "The Christian's Daily Life."

Beginning Monday, April 1st, Rev. Dr. McConnell.
Subject, "The Church; what it is."

The attendance at these services will no doubt be very large, and it is both hoped and expected that the advantage of them will be even greater than that which has manifested itself as a result of our Noon Day Services in previous years.

During Lent as usual there will be Evening Prayer every day at 5 o'clock with Confirmation Instructions at the Wednesday and Friday 5 o'clock services.

THE THIRD SUNDAY IN FEBRUARY, which occurs this year upon the 17th of February, is the day, which for a number of years has been used in this Parish for the annual offering the Diocesan Missions. It will be used this year for the same purpose, and in the same way.

As to the purpose, the Rector has in previous years said about all he knows. Certainly all the members of the parish will agree with him that the City in which we live will yet bear a considerable amount of preaching of the Gospel. Beside that, all who are in any sense related to the church will agree with him that the Gospel has in certain regards been better presented by this Church than it has by any other. The truth is, what this City and all other cities need at this juncture more than anything else is not more wisdom or sagacity in the management of its affairs or better political arrangements. What it needs is more good people; that is to say people who do not lie nor steal nor covet their neighbors' goods, and who at least try to do to others as they would have others do unto them. The offering for the Diocesan Mission is to provide for a portion of the expenses necessary in creating such people.

As to the method, it has been the custom to ask each member of the Parish annually for $5 for this purpose, and as there are many who cannot afford to pay so much and who pay but a portion of it, others have always been willing to contribute more than their share so as to bring up the balance. The representative of the Parish will call upon every family in the week between the 2nd and 3rd Sundays of February to receive their offering, which will be placed on the Altar the 3rd Sunday. These collectors have always been received with courtesy and the Rector has no doubt that they will be so received again. Will the contributors kindly place their contributions in an envelope addressed to the Church and instruct their servants to give them at once to the collector when he calls.

THE MANAGERS OF THE FEMALE BENEVOLENT SOCIETY wish to announce that on Friday, February the 8th there will be a Sale, in the Guild room of the Parish House, after service; a Sale of articles made by the poor women employed by the Society. These articles are suitable for Hospitals, for the Garment Committee of the Church, or for any charitable object to which the buyer may wish to donate them. There is a very large stock on hand and each week it grows larger, so, if the ladies of the Congregation will kindly come on Friday and buy, it will be a great assistance to those who have this work in charge.

THE MISSIONARY BOX COMMITTEE, through the generosity of the Congregation, has been able to send three valuable boxes this winter to Missionaries in Michigan, Missouri and Oklahoma. Judging from past years they feel confident that the offerings during Lent will enable them to undertake the sending of the usual number of boxes to those who are working in these Mission fields.

Most valuable clothing has been sent to the Committee from the following:

AT THE JANUARY MEETING of the Associates of the Girls' Friendly Society several things of interest concerning its general management were discussed; among others a plan for a Neighborhood Conference, in which it was decided that our Branch should take the initiative, provided the co-operation of the neighboring Church could be secured. By a Neighborhood Conference is meant that several branches of the Girls' Friendly Society, who are near enough to be neighbors, should meet together now and then to make each other's personal acquaintance, to confer together about matters interesting or helpful to all, to ask questions, to give answers, to receive instruction. Perhaps some of our members will write papers, as it is hoped that they will heartily respond to this appeal to their hospitality, and to take a strong individual interest in the successful carrying out of this idea. At a conference of this kind held in New York, one of the members read a paper on "An Ideal Associate," and an associate responded with one on "An Ideal Girl." This conference successfully carried out could not fail to be beneficial to all, besides giving an opportunity for pleasant social intercourse among those having the same aims in view.

It was also decided to form a class in darning, where the girls will be given instruction in this homely but very important domestic accomplishment. Those members wishing to join should make application to Mrs. Bowden, who will give their names to the associate having it in charge.

After this the dressmaking class will be held on both Monday and Thursday evenings, as the number of pupils has made it impossible for the teacher to do full justice to all in a single evening. Through the kind offices of Mrs. Hall a sewing machine was secured at an almost nominal price, which adds greatly to the facilities of the class. This is one of the most important classes in the society, and its popularity shows how highly the members appreciate its practical value.

HELENA, MONTANA, Jan. 14, 1895.

MY DEAR DR. MCCONNELL:

Are you one who thinks a Missionary Bishop is one who should stay at home and mind his own business? I am doing that this year, and I wish I could do it every year. But money does not come in, and I am at my wits' end. Hooker says "Cut down my salary," but I know it ought not to be done, and I don't mean to do it. However, where the money is to come from to pay my clergy I do not know. I wonder if you can help me.

Faithfully yours,
L. R. BREWER,
Missionary Bishop of Montana.

A CHINESE ENTERTAINMENT entitled "A trip to Central China" (fifteen ladies and gentlemen in Chinese costume) will be given by the King's Daughters of the Whatsoever Circle on Wednesday evening, February 13th, 1895. Doors open 7.30; commencing at 8 o'clock. In the Sunday School room of St. Stephen's Church.

THERE ARE THREE CLASSES OF PEOPLE who are concerned with the Bishop's visit to this Parish for Confirmation.

(1) Those who have sons and daughters between fifteen and twenty, who have not yet been confirmed. Of course, they cannot summarily bring such young people to the Bishop; but they cannot well answer to God for it if they let the matter drift, and through indifference or hesitancy fail to set before their sons and daughters their duty.

(2) There are the young people themselves, who having now reached years of discretion should face the facts of life and deal with them. Religion is one of those facts from which no one can escape, even if he wished.

(3) Those grown men and women who are practically Christians, but who have not been willing thus far to be definitely counted upon as upon the Master's side.

In all these cases the ground of the obligation is the same.

Confirmation may stand, in a general way, for openly joining oneself to Christ's Church. Why should one do so? I reply:—generally speaking, he cannot be a good man without it. This is not because there is any magic in the Church or the Sacraments to make a man good in spite of himself. It is because the idea of goodness, an ideal which has come to be quite universally accepted, is such as cannot be realized without this. His idea of goodness is double. It contains the idea of personal purity, and of earnest solicitude for other people's welfare, and he declares their religious welfare to be the chief thing. Now, the first of these might, conceivably, be reached by an individual alone. He might become, all by himself, clean and chaste, and honest and patient. He might do all this alone with God. In some rare instances he does so, but ordinarily, he does not. There are a few persons who secure an education all by themselves, but they are very few; and they get their education painfully, and as a rule, their education is not good. Personal righteousness does not come easy to any human soul. If one really desires it, he will do well to learn in the divinely established school of goodness, which is the Church. The routine, the atmosphere, the ordinances, the Sacraments of the Church, are generally necessary to salvation from sin. They are necessary. As things are it cannot be reached without them. Of course, if one does not really wish for personal goodness, there is nothing more to be said. He ought not to be confirmed.

But the second requirement of goodness according to Christ, cannot be reached at all apart from the Church. There is no other institution in existence which has for its purpose to make the world good. There are institutions a plenty for keeping the world in order, for feeding it when it is hungry, for clothing it when it is naked, for instructing it when it is ignorant; and these are all excellent. But Christ's society is for a higher purpose. It is to get men set right with their inmost selves and with Almighty God, with life and death and the future. He asks recruits for this Society. He declares that He will make up his final judgment of every man largely upon the way in which he has or has not responded to this call. He wants to know upon whom He may count. "He that confesseth me before men, him will I also confess." Joining the Church, then, is not a profession that one is better than his fellows; or that he is better to-day than he was yesterday; but that he is in sympathy with the aim and purpose of the Son of Man, and wishes to be so counted.

THE NOON-DAY LENTEN SERVICES this year, as has been announced, will be under the care and direction of the St. Andrew's Brotherhood of the Diocese. It is with some reluctance that the Rector changes the kind of services, which have given so much pleasure, and he hopes profit, for several years past. But the truth is that the daily addresses, together with the other work necessary is more than he is up to. He does not feel that he can any longer do it well, and would therefore prefer not to undertake the whole of it. For that reason he welcomes most gladly the offer of the St. Andrew's men that they should undertake the care of the services, and he is very glad that the people of our own Parish and others will have the opportunity to hear such men as Dr. Mortimer, Dr. Bodine, Mr. Burgess and Dr. Parks. There is every reason to hope and expect that the services will be very largely attended, and that they will also be pleasant and profitable.

LENTEN SEWING.—The Committee are ready for contributions of money and goods for the Lenten work. The members of the Congregation are kindly asked to take or send for cut-out garments to have made and ready for distribution Easter week. The demands are great from hospitals, homes, nurseries, &c. Garments will be given out after any morning service.

Owing to the kindness of several of the young ladies of the Parish, the little children of the Infant Class had on Friday afternoon several hours of almost perfect happiness. For over an hour the young ladies worked with a will, helping the children with the games; and then the "party" came in. Every child had all the cake and ice cream he or she could eat and that is saying much.

The poor children have not been forgotten, but owing to so much sickness in our city and the children having such a nice Christmas Entertainment it was thought best to wait a month or so.

Many of the children have been seen by the different ladies in the Society, clothing given to some and shoes to others, which were given by the King's Daughters of the Whatsoever Circle.

It has been asked by a stranger if we have a shoe fund in St. Stephen's Church? They have them in other Parishes. Will each member of the Congregation contribute 25 cents a year towards such a fund if the King's Daughters will start one?

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the Whatsoever Circle have their meetings the 1st and 3rd Wednesdays in the month, March 6th and 20th.

The Entertainment given February 13th, entitled, "A trip to Central China," by the Rev. Mr. Poole, a missionary of some years in that country, was most instructive and entertaining, and was enjoyed by all. It might be a good idea to have it repeated before a still larger and older audience. The young ladies and gentlemen made quite a pretty picture in their Chinese and Japanese dresses.

DIOCESE OF PENNSYLVANIA.—A Quiet Day for Churchwomen, will be held on the second Thursday in Lent, March 7th, 1895, at the Church of the Incarnation, Broad and Jefferson Streets, Philadelphia. To be conducted by Rt. Rev. William Croswell Doane, D. D., LL. D., Bishop of Albany. The services will be as follows: St. James' Church, Walnut and Twenty-second Streets, 7.30 A. M., Holy Communion; Bishop Doane Celebrant Church of the Incarnation, 9.30 A. M., Holy Communion; Rev. Dr. Newlin Celebrant, 10.30 A. M., First Meditation, 3 P. M., afternoon Offerings of the day, for the United Offerings of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Board of Missions made at its Triennial Meeting in October.

Conference of Churchwomen in Holy Trinity Parish House, Twentieth Street below Walnut, on Friday, March 8th, from 10.30 A. M. till 1 P. M. and from 2.30 till 4.30 P. M.

ON TUESDAY, JANUARY 15TH, the annual meeting of the corporation of the Church Training and Deaconess House was held at the Deaconess House. In the absence of the bishop of the diocese, the meeting was called to order, and prayer was offered by the Rev. Dr. Rumney, the warden. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mr. Ewing L. Miller, and, after a brief address by the warden, the report of the treasurer, Mr. George C. Thomas, showing a small balance on hand, was received and referred to the auditing committee.

The report of the board of managers was read by Miss E. N. Biddle. The report of the house-mother, Miss Sanford, deaconess, was also read. From the various reports, it appeared that during the past year there have been in the House nineteen students, besides twenty day students attending the classes. Though the work is still new, and is still largely tentative and experimental, eleven women have been already set apart as deaconesses, and sixteen have been sent out as qualified Bible-teachers. The interest of the work has been increased by the occasional residence of missionaries from abroad, as the Rev. Dr. Tyng, of Japan, and the Rev. Jules L. Prevost, of Alaska, also by frequent visits from missionary bishops and from the officers of the Woman's Auxiliary. The demand for deaconesses greatly exceeds the supply, and the managers are continually asking themselves why it it that more women do not devote themselves to deaconess work, and why they do not more generally avail themselves of the opportunities of instruction which are offered. The clergy have shown the greatest interest in the house and its work, and have freely undertaken to conduct the classes of the students. The following is the teaching corps: Professors: Pastoral Theology, Rev. T. S. Rumney, D. D.; Theology, Rev. William Ely; Old Testament, Rev. L. W. Batten, Ph. D.; New Testament, Rev. R. W. Micou; Prayer Book, Rev. L. N. Robinson; Ancient Church History, Rev. R. T. Eastman; Modern Church History, Rev. John R. Moses; New Testament Use of the Old Testament, Rev. James D. W. Perry, D. D.; Business Methods, Rev. Horace Fuller. Instructors: Hygiene and Home Sanitation, Seneca Egbert, M. D.; Bible Study, Miss Coles, Miss E. N. Biddle, Miss McVickar; House-Mother, C. H. Sanford, deaconess.

The organization of the corporation is as follows: President, the Bishop of the Diocese; warden, Rev. Dr. Rumney; the board of council, the president and warden ex-officio, John Ashhurst, Jr., M. D., Charles C. Harrison, R. Francis Wood, George C. Thomas, treasurer, and Ewing L. Miller, secretary.

The following is the board of managers: President, Miss Coles; Vice-President, Miss McVickar; Treasurer, Miss E. P. Aertsen; Secretary, Miss Anne N. Sanders, Miss Frances E. Bennett, Miss E. N. Biddle, Miss Annie Buchanan, Mrs. William W. Farr, Miss Elizabeth Morris, Mrs. Effingham Perot, Mrs. Andrew A. Blair and Mrs. Edward R. Fell.

A resolution was adopted requesting the bishop to address a pastoral letter to the clergy and parishes of the diocese, calling attention to the Church Training and Deaconess House, not only with a view to secure subscriptions and donations to its support, but even more urgently to press upon the attention of the women of the diocese the opportunity which the House affords to qualify themselves for efficient service as deaconesses and for any department of Church work in which they may be called to serve.

OFFERTORIES IN APRIL.

Good Friday—City Missions.
Easter Day—Special Parish Endowment Fund.
Sunday after Easter—Society for the Increase of the Ministry.
Other Sundays—General Charities.

During Holy Week the Ante-Communion Service with Epistle and Gospel will be said every day at 11 o'clock.

At a public service on the evening of March 28, one Lady Associate and thirty-two girls were received into the Girls' Friendly Society of the Parish.

The Lenten Sewing Committee have, during this Lent, given out an unprecedented number of garments to be made up for the poor by the ladies of the congregation.

The Rector having accepted an invitation to make an address at Yale University the first Sunday in April, will necessarily be absent from the parish upon that day.

The Services on Easter Day will be at 8 and 11 a. m., and at 4 p. m. Both the law and the unbroken custom of the Church requires that every one who has been confirmed shall "receive the Holy Communion, at the least, three times in a year, two of which times shall be at Christmas and Easter."

Confirmation will be administered Tuesday in Holy Week, April 9th, at 11 o'clock. Owing to the short time between that time and the hour for the Noon-day Service it is not advisable that any but those who are then confirmed should receive the Holy Communion at that Service.

The congregation and visitors will be admitted to the Church, at the services on Easter Day, in the way that has been customary for some years. The pew-holders and regular attendants will be admitted by the north transept door. The front doors of the Church will be opened immediately before the time for beginning the services. We think our own people understand the impossibility of reserving their pews after the time when services begin; it is very desirable therefore that they should be in their seats before the hour. Of course those who attend the services regularly have the right and ought to have the right to their own seats on the high festivals of the Church. It is not fair that their places should be taken by those persons who only come to church on great festivals, and then rather to satisfy their curiosity than to receive spiritual benefit. Nevertheless there are very many visitors who come with the purest and best motives, and this congregation has during many times shown its desire to extend hospitality to all comers.

The offertory on Easter Day will be, as has been for several years, for the Special Endowment Fund of the Church. This is a fund which is being accumulated for the maintenance of St. Stephen's in years to come. No part of it nor the income of it will be available for current expenses until the capital sum reaches the amount fixed in the Articles of Trust under which it is being built up. At present there is no necessity for its use, but the congregation which now worship in St. Stephen's are enjoying the advantages of buildings and equipments which were provided by those who have now gone to their rest. It is but fair and honorable that we should make what return we can by providing for the necessities of those who come after us. It is perfectly clear that those who shall come after us will be those much less able to provide for the support of the Church than is the present congregation. The one thing which the Rector would venture to again urge with all earnestness is whether the people's offerings be given for this purpose or whether they be discontinued for some other charitable use, that the offering of each individual on Easter Day should be a real offering and not a make-believe one. Let each one by his offering express in some measure his own gratitude for the hope of his own immortality which springs out of the divine event of Easter Day.

The Lenten Work taken out by the ladies of the congregation is to be returned by Easter Monday morning. The Committee will then assort the garments made and prepare them for distribution where most needed.

The Managers of the Female Benevolent Society wish to announce that on Wednesday, April 10th, there will be a Sale, in the Guild room of the Parish House, after service; a Sale of articles made by the poor women employed by the Society. These articles are suitable for Hospitals, for the Garment Committee of the Church, or for any charitable object to which the buyer may wish to donate them. There is a large stock on hand, so, if the ladies of the Congregation will kindly come on Wednesday the 10th of April and buy, it will be a great assistance to those who have this work in charge.

The Garment Committee have received 34 garments during March and distributed 80.

Contributions were received from Mrs. Thos. H. Fenton, Mrs. Hansell, Missionary Box Committee, Mrs. Wiegand, Col. D. Parker, Miss Sidford, Miss Stoddard, Mrs. Vanderslice.

Monday, April	1st—Miss Sanders,	Miss Baird.
" "	8th—Miss Cleemann,	Mrs. Reinboth.
" "	15th—Miss Stoddard,	Mrs. Lammot.
" "	22nd—Miss Sidford,	Mrs. Muirheid.
" "	29th—Miss Sanders,	Miss Baird.

A Fair for the benefit of the Home for Colored Crippled Children will be held during the second week of May, in St. Mark's Parish House. The ladies of St. Stephen's Church will have a table for the sale of fancy articles, etc., and ask the members of the congregation to help them in the work by sending donations of money or fancy articles to be sold at this table. Please send your donations to Mrs. John Crane, 330 S. Fifteenth Street, or to Parish House in her care.

Miss Rodman wishes to acknowledge having received clothing, toys, picture books and supplies for the Lenten work from Mrs. Williamson, Mrs. Cox, Miss Bell, Miss Farrar Smith; from Miss Thomas 12 volumes for the library of the Infant Class.

Received in March:

Mrs. Austen, $1.00; Mrs. Adams, $1.00; Miss Atmore, $1.00; Mrs. Breuil, $1.00; Mrs. Francis Breuil, $1.00; Mrs. Carver, $1.00; Miss Garrett, $10 00; Mrs. Albert Caldwell, $5.00; Mrs. Colket, $5.00; Mrs. Davison, $1.00; Mrs. McDowell, $1.00; Mrs. Francis Lewis, $5.00; Mrs. Hunter, $1.00; Miss Mitchell, $1.00; Miss Sharpe, $1.00; Miss Shoemaker, $1.00; Misses Wood, $2.00; S. S. Class, $3.20.

The object of the Visiting Nurse Society is "to give to the poor, and those in moderate means the best home nursing under the existing circumstances." A visiting nurse is furnished without charge to those unable to pay for her services. Often in her rounds from house to house, among the very poor she finds great suffering, especially in maternity cases, where the family is utterly unable to get the necessary sick diet, clothing, bandages, medicine, etc. In such cases the Society furnishes these articles, but as it is supported entirely by voluntary contributions their supplies often prove inadequate. Learning that certain articles of clothing, etc., were greatly needed, some of the ladies of St. Stephen's Church have, in addition to their other Lenten sewing, been working to supply them. They have met on Friday mornings at the Parish House. As one result of this work they have decided to form a permanent society, the object being to supply necessary articles for cases of illness. In a parish as large as St. Stephen's there is continual need of an organization of this kind. The deaconess of the Church has more than once felt the want of it in spite of the generous way in which the ladies always respond to appeals for help.

The details and plan have not as yet been fully decided upon. Indeed it is growing into existence in a very quiet way, but much interest is felt in the work.

The name chosen is the "St. Stephen's Aid Society." Mrs. Charles Carver has kindly consented to act as President; Miss Maria G. Mitchell as secretary; Miss Mary Wood as treasurer. The executive committee consist of Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Austen and Mrs. Breuil.

There are many ladies who have shown their interest in the work by giving money or supplies, but who as yet have not been able to attend any of the meetings. Those who have been able to take part in the work of the Society are Mrs. Adams, Mrs Austen, Miss Atmore, Miss Balch, Mrs. Breuil, Mrs. Francis Breuil, Mrs. Brunner, Mrs. Beauveau Borie, Mrs. Albert Caldwell, Mrs. Carver, Mrs. Colket, Mrs. Clarkson, Mrs. Cox, Mrs. Darley, Miss Davison, Miss Garrett, Mrs. Hewson, Mrs. Hunter, Mrs. Francis Lewis, Mrs. Law, Miss McDowell, Miss Maria G. Mitchell, Miss Perot, Miss Sharpe, Miss Shoemaker, Miss Farrar Smith, Miss Snyder, Miss Mary Wood, Miss Alice Wood.

REALIZING THE IMPORTANCE of concerted action in Girls' Friendly work, the associates of St. Stephen's Branch invited the associates of St. Marks, St. Clements and Epiphany to a conference of Associates, which was held in St. Stephen's Parish House and resulted in a general interchange of ideas and discussion of the work and aims of these four Branches. It was decided to unite in a social evening whereby the members would be given an opportunity of meeting one another in social intercourse and where the idea of a General Conference of Associates and Members could be presented. This resulted in the gathering of about one hundred and fifty representatives of the neighbouring Branches and the first of the evening was passed in listening to recitations and music given through the kindness of friends to whom our thanks are due. Miss Dickerson, Head of the Literature Department of Pennsylvania, then spoke of a Conference she had recently attended in New York and advocated the holding of a similar one here at which the members might be given an opportunity of expressing themselves about the desirability of belonging to the society and of proving that they were in every way as well advanced as the members of New York and Massachusetts where this idea has been successfully carried out.

One of the interesting features of the month was a "Don't Evening," conducted entirely by the members themselves and consisted in the reading and discussion of things Girls' Friendly girls should aim not to do. Some of the "Don'ts" were decidedly unique and original and in the discussion which followed many bright definitions were given in illustration.

"First Lessons in Nursing" was the subject of a practical talk given by Dr. Gertrude M. Streeper through the kindness of Mrs. Rutter, and was full of useful information about the care of the sick. A stage was fitted up with a cot, medicine table and the necessary appurtenances of a sick room, even to the patient, a small child of six or seven years, who gracefully lent herself to a practical demonstration of how the bedclothes can be changed without disturbing the patient, the best way to give a dose of medicine and other helpful hints of a like nature.

An Admission Service at which thirty-three new members and one associate were admitted to the society, was held on last Thursday evening. Dr. McConnell's solemn words on giving to each her badge of membership, "Wear it so worthily that in the end you may receive the crown of everlasting life," were calculated to make each and every one impressed with the solemnity of the occasion and the underlying principle of the society.

Have you any tickets for a Concert? You won't forget me, will you? and the answer was, we will try to remember you all.

Prof. Fow and Prof. Hoy have already been engaged to entertain some two or three hundred children with their Humorous sayings, Comic Recitations and Fun in Silence. In addition to this, the ladies of the Society wish to give each little one a candy Easter egg. Any donations for this purpose will be very acceptable.

Bundle of Magazines, name lost, many thanks to the giver.

The Shoe Fund started by the King's Daughters of the Whatsoever Circle, March 1st, has made a very good beginning.

It might be well to state here the object of a Shoe Fund; hardly anybody will let a child or anyone else starve, and clothing will be given, but shoes are expensive and very hard to get. Many poor little feet were frosted this Winter just for the want of a good strong pair of shoes. It is to help such that this Fund has been started, but the money will not be touched until Fall, when the King's Daughters hope to have it in working order.

To be a member of this Fund costs 25 cts. a year. Any old shoes sent to the King's Daughters will be mended; or should the giver wish to have them mended so much the better.

This Fund will not interfere at all with any other society, indeed the idea is to help all.

Any case being reported to any member of the Circle will have attention at once.

Church Missions House,
New York, March, 26th 1895.

TO THE CLERGY AND LAITY:

The Board of Managers, by resolution, has requested me, as President of the Board of Missions, to set forth a statement of the present condition of the missionary treasury, and ask for contributions to relieve its embarrassment and to provide for the demands of the work. I am not surprised, but I am nevertheless grieved, to learn that the financial depression throughout the country during the past two years has made itself felt in the serious reduction of contributions for missionary objects. The payments to the missionaries have been continued; but it has been necessary to borrow money for that purpose. The treasury of the Board is indebted to the amount of more than $100,000. The obligations incurred for this year must be met, but unless adequate means are provided it will become necessary to make a serious reduction in the appropriations which must be made at the May meeting of the Board for the new year. Such curtailment would be at great loss and sacrifice to the missionary work, which should not be permitted except in case of extremest necessity. The expansion of the work of the Church in the United States is a constant appeal to us, not only to hold the ground that has been gained, but to continue to advance as rapidly as we are able. The opening of the great nations of the East is a call to us to follow the leadings of Divine Providence by strengthening the hands of those whom we have sent with the Gospel to China and Japan.

These demands grow imperative at a time when the ordinary sources of income are checked. A debt of $35,000 brought forward from last year, has been increased by the falling off of contributions since. During the six months from September 1st to March 1st the contributions were $136,371, while for the corresponding period last year they were $168,915. From the 1st of March to the 1st of September next there will be required to meet the appropriations of the year $375,000. During the corresponding months of last year (including the unusual amount of $70,000 from legacies), the receipts were $270,000. It is our duty to place these facts before all our Church people, trusting that in this season of spiritual earnestness a special disposition will be shown to replenish the missionary treasury and provide against a hurtful curtailment of the work.

May I ask that this letter be read in the churches, and opportunity given for offerings in behalf of our missionary work?

J. WILLIAMS,
President of the Board of Missions.

DENVER, COL., Feb. 25, 1895.

REVEREND AND DEAR SIR:

I wish to call your attention to the enclosed description of the Denver Home for Consumptives, now in process of erection. It will be in no sense a local institution, but will offer good board and home care, for the small sum of $5.00 per week, to the sufferers from pulmonary disease who come here from all parts of the country.

Seventy-five per cent. of the consumptives who are sent to Colorado by their physicians are cured or benefited; and the percentage would be greater were it not for the fact that many of these exiles, being people of very small means, are unable to pay the high prices asked here for comfortable board such as their condition requires.

It is to cure this numerous class of health-seekers—sick, poor and homeless—that the new home is being built: and certainly no institution in the land is more needed or can be the means of saving a greater number of valuable lives.

In this belief and in behalf of the churchmen of Denver, I ask you to aid the work with your check for a sum however small. I ask you also to lay the matter before any of your parishioners who you think may be interested in it.

Very truly yours,
FREDERICK W. OAKES.

DENVER, COL., Feb. 22d, 1895.

TO THE LADIES OF ST. STEPHEN'S GUILD:
No. 9 S. 10th St., Phila., Pa.

DEAR LADIES: This is to acknowledge the receipt of the "Missionary Box" so kindly sent by you to us. It was delivered yesterday, and of course, I could not write until to-day, for the evening was occupied fully at "The Opening." So generous were you in its preparation that I find it impossible to adequately thank you. We were in need of everything; we are in need of nothing. You have not only given us pleasure in receiving, but have administered to our actual necessities. After supper, we held a special Thanksgiving Service to Him who gave you the ability and the will to give; and begged Him to give you in addition thereto, such a measure of His grace as to "make you perfect in all good works."

A few days since, I received by mail a surplice. I do not know who is responsible for this—if any of you should find it out, please thank them for me. You have been so generous that I am emboldened to ask one other favor, i. e., that during this season in which you will draw very near to the "Source" of all blessings, presenting your "special intentions," please among them pray that God may bless our Mission with power to do much for Him; and that He may raise up some friends to help us finish our chapel, that we may have a place to worship.

We, all of us (eight) thank you for the comfortable clothing. Sincerely,

Dr. James De Koven once said: "The members of our Church are prevented from giving the large gifts which one hears of elsewhere, by the fact that it costs more to support the average Episcopalian, and to keep him and his in that 'station of life unto which it has pleased God to call him' than it has cost any other kind of Christian since the time when the divine Master declared that 'the foxes have holes and the birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man hath not where to lay His head.'"

THE RECTOR, the Rev. Dr. McConnell, sailed for Europe on Saturday, April 27th, on the steamer Southwark, for a much-needed rest. He will be absent from the parish until about the middle of September. The earnest prayers and best wishes of the congregation for his welfare go with him. May he have a safe voyage, a pleasant vacation, and return to his people with renewed vigor and ready for another year of faithful work in our city.

THE RECTOR EARNESTLY BEGS the attention of our people to the following letter about the Children's Friend Society. There is no organization in St. Stephen's Church nor in Philadelphia, which does better work. Please do not let it be crippled for want of funds. Send your contributions to Mrs. Vanderslice, care of St. Stephen's Church.

PHILADELPHIA, April 18th, 1895.

MY DEAR RECTOR:

You are going away from us for a time and I am sure I hope you will come back benefited by the trip.

I have tried to see you to have a talk with you about our Children's Friend Society, for I do not wish you to come back and find it does not exist.

You can see by each month's report that we do not get the donations that we used to get.

Parhaps it is due to the times. I am sure I hope the people are not losing interest in our poor little children. I do not think there is a society that is known so well outside of our own Church and in other cities as the C. F. S.

Each month our little parish paper goes to so many people that are interested and have sent donations of some sort to our poor children.

A work that has been going on for five or six years, surely cannot go to pieces, and yet we cannot carry on the work long without the small amount we will have in the treasury. I don't think we will have much over forty dollars when I count up last night's expenses.

I am interested in everything in our Church, but as I am at the head of this Society, it is my duty to tell you before going away just how we stand. Would a special collection do us any good? Or can you help us in any way? If we can only start and if there be any people left in St. Stephen's after you are gone, I think, as heretofore, they will help with the Summer work.

Many children are looking forward to the excursions, and bathing suits have been made, but what can we do without money?

Please don't think I am begging. I merely want you to know the facts.

Very Sincerely,
VIRGINIA VANDERSLICE.

THE MANAGERS OF THE Female Benevolent Society of St. Stephen's Church present to the Congregation the 30th Annual Report.

During the season of 1894-95, the money received and expended has been as follows: From offertory, and balance left from last year, $216.23; from sales, $575.11; from subscriptions, $149; making a total of $940.34. Cash paid sewing women, $409.79; for dry goods and trimmings, $513.91; making a total of $923.70. Balance, $16.64.

Over sixty women were employed during the Winter, and two thousand four hundred and ninety articles made by them.

Of these articles, there still remain a number unsold. The ladies having them in charge would be glad to dispose of them to any of the congregation wishing to purchase.

THE MISSIONARY BOX COMMITTEE, at the close of the season of '94-'95, desires to report that in reply to one letter through the Freedmen's Committee and six through the Domestic Committee, and an appeal from Mrs. Buford, eight boxes have been sent this Winter, their aggregate value estimated at $758.94.

One of these were sent to Mrs. Buford's Mission; two were sent to Divinity students, and one to the College of the Sisters of Bethany. The remaining four were sent to missionaries doing active service in the Church's work. Among them was a joint box supplying the wants of two missionaries.

AT THE EASTER ENTERTAINMENT of the Girls' Friendly Society, held on Monday evening, April 22nd, a varied programme of recitations and music was most charmingly rendered by Mrs. Lamberton and Miss Neidhard, to whom both associates and members wish to express their hearty appreciation of their kindness. Mr. Hall coming in during the entertainment and being most warmly greeted, made a few impromptu remarks which brought to a close an evening thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The Annual Tea and Service for Members and Associates of the Girls' Friendly Society of Pennsylvania, was held at the Church of the Epiphany on Saturday evening of last week, and in spite of the inclement weather the seating capacity of the church was taxed to its utmost limit. St. Stephen's Branch was well represented and being one of the largest, made a fine showing as they marched in church, carrying at their head the new banner presented to them by the Altar Society of the Church. After a brief service, the Bishop of the Diocese made a short but impressive address, dwelling chiefly on the broad conception of friendship as embodied in the title of the Society and referring to the greatest of all conceivable friendships—that of Jesus Christ for all mankind.

"A Conundrum Tea" will be given by the members on Thursday evening, May 9th, for the benefit of the Lodge-by-the-Sea, which this year will be at Cape May, N. J., where a house with a capacity of accomodating forty members at a time has been secured on Hughes St. within two blocks of the beach. There are two parlors, a large dining room, kitchens and a laundry for the use of visitors. The price of board will be three dollars per week and application can be made at any time to Miss Reese, Froebel Institute, Lansdown, Pa., and should in all cases be signed by the Branch Secretary, Mrs. Bowden.

The entertainment which will be given in aid of this holiday house will be a musical and literary one, conducted entirely by the members themselves, and the refreshments will likewise be donated and prepared by them under the direction of the cooking teacher. The tickets, which through the efforts of a member were donated by Mr. Dunlap, to whom our thanks are due, are for sale by the verger and both associates and members, the price being fifteen cents a piece, and it is hoped there will be a large demand for them by all the friends of the Society.

SELECTIONS.

Dr. Penticost tells a story about a little girl who was one day talking to her grandfather. The old gentleman had been imparting some good advice, suitable to the tender years of his grandchild. Finally, the latter put the questions: "Grandpa, are you a christian?" "Yes, my dear, I hope I am." "What church do you belong to, grandpa?" "Oh I belong to the Church of Christ." "But what is that? Are you a member of the same Church that mamma and I are—the Episcopal church?" "No, my dear, I am not an Episcopalian." "Are you a Presbyterian, then?" "No; I am not a Presbyterian?" "Are you a Baptist, then?" "No." "Are you a Methodist?" "No, dear; I do not belong to any of the churches; I just belong to Christ." After a pause in which the little one was thinking it all over, she turned her face up to her grandfather's and said, "Well, grandpa, if I were you I would try and get in somewhere."

One provision of the will of the late Lemuel Coffin is peculiarly suggestive. This is the endowment of Holy Trinity Church. Well would it have been, indeed, for the moral and religious welfare of this great city if this commendable idea had been acted upon by men of means and liberality years ago. During the past twenty-five years fifteen churches in the centre of the old city have been abandoned, and now those concerned are appalled at the work which confronts them. A hundred Christian Leagues, as proposed, cannot meet the emergency. And at this time other churches which a little while ago thought they were safe from being crowded out or fatally impoverished, are facing a grave situation. But Holy Trinity, thanks to the generous devotion of one of its founders, will escape such a fate. The example thus set by Mr. Coffin should be followed generally. There is scarcely a church in the older or central part of the city which sooner or later will not feel the need of such friendly assistance. There should be no more abandonment of these sacred edifices consecrated to the work of Christianity. Evening Telegraph.

ANSWERS from the Board School scholars in London include the following: "Jerusalem was surrounded by walls to keep the milk and honey out." "The cities of refuge were intended for those who had unintentionally committed suicide." "Titus was an Apostle who wrote epistles. He was the Emperor of Rome, and his surname was Oates." "The hydra," said a little maid of five once, "was wedded to Henry VIII. When he cut off her head, another one sprung up." "The United States is governed by machinery" (who can deny it?). "St Peter was crucified head downward, because he mentions it."

The Rev. Dr. Miel, himself once a Roman priest, has received into the Episcopal Church during his rectorate at the Church of St. Sauveur, Philadelphia, 400 adult Roman Catholics, including six priests. We know of several other rectors who can give figures equal at least to a half of the above. We have many Roman Catholics for Confirmation ourselves, and have had at least one Roman priest tell us that if he were younger he would renounce the Papacy and come into the Anglican Church.

The Bishop of Maryland reports that in his average Confirmation classes there are about 30 converts from Romanism and the same number from the Methodists each month. "The tide of return," said he, "appears a steady one."

Because we suffer, it ought not to be inferred that God is not a father. Suffering, trial, exposure, seem to be necessary elements in the education of a moral being.

OFFERTORIES FOR JUNE.

General Charities.

WORD HAS BEEN RECEIVED from the rector, the Rev. Dr. McConnell, that he and his family arrived at Liverpool in safety, and that they were all well. At present they are staying in London.

THE ATTENTION OF the members of our congregation is respectfully called to the Annual Commencement of the Divinity School, Philadelphia, in the Church of the Epiphany, Chestnut and 15th Streets, Thursday, June 6th, at 11 o'clock A. M. The sermon, by Rev. W. R. Huntington, D. D., Rector Grace Church, New York.

THE GIRLS' SUMMER CLUB will reopen Monday evening, June 3, 1895.

THERE WAS A SCENE of about as perfect happiness as one often sees in this world, on Wednesday afternoon, May 22, when between sixty and seventy children of the Infant Class of St. Stephen's Sunday School were taken out to the Zoological Garden. The long omnibuses were filled with the little children, who were delighted that both going and coming "the longest way 'round was taken. The day was perfect; the deep fascination which the animals always have for little folks, was felt just as strongly as usual. The ice-cream was thought to be without a flaw, and with plenty for all. Every particle of cake which the ladies so kindly provided was eaten; yet all had enough, and best of all no one was hurt, lost (and some of the children were very small) or made ill.

The young ladies who gave up the afternoon for the sake of giving the little ones pleasure, felt more than repaid by the sight of the radiant faces of the children.

Those who contributed to the happiness of the little ones were Mrs. Arrison, Mrs. Seth Caldwell, Miss Cattell, Miss Clarkson, Mrs. S. Weir Mitchell, Miss Maria G. Mitchell, Miss Perot, Miss Stevenson, Miss Sharpe, Miss Thomas, The Misses Wood, Mr. John H. Tabler and Mr. Clayton.

Miss Rodman wishes to acknowledge having received in May: Mrs. S. Weir Mitchell, $5; Miss Stevenson, $1; a friend, $1; also clothing, books, papers, cards, tracts, dolls and picture books from Mrs. Arrison, Mrs. Borie, Miss Bell, Mrs. S. Weir Mitchell, Miss Farrar Smith, Miss Stevenson, Miss Wood, Mrs. Blakey.

Lawrenceville, Va., May 20, 1895.

MY DEAR MISS LEWIS:

The large and most valuable box of clothing sent me by the ladies of St. Stephen's Missionary Box Society, reached me safely last Friday. I thank you all from my heart for the large supply of useful clothing you have sent the poor creatures under my care. There are now ninety patients, and I need not tell you how sorely I need the generous help you have given me.

It touched me very much that the ladies remembered my little Mary Stewart. She was delighted with the pretty doll, and sends many thanks for her. It was certainly kind and sweet to think of her.

We have had a great deal of sickness and sorrow during the past pitiless Winter. Many poor wornout sufferers have gone to their eternal rest; many still linger suffering so much and so patiently, it makes my heart ache to see them. Last night a poor old man died, and is lying still and cold to-day awaiting his burial. Such work as mine is necessarily full of infinite sorrow; unutterable sadness, but it has blessed compensations. I do not believe one unworthy woman was ever blessed with friends as tender and true and good as God has given me. May He bless and reward you all for all you have done to help me. With truest love and gratitude,

Sincerely Yours,
PATTIE BUFORD.

THE GROWTH OF THE G. F. S. of St. Stephen's Church, has been an encouraging one since its commencement eight years ago, when about ten girls gathered from the Arch Street Theatre Sunday evening services, under the direction of Mrs. J. Edgar Johnson, its first Secretary, formed its nucleus. A little fancy sewing, a cup of tea and cake, an interesting book and games, held them together, coupled with a warm personal interest in them and their homes. Now we number 123 members, and about thirty-three candidates.

Two admission services have been held this Winter, and we find the majority of the girls though not Episcopalians, earnest and truthful. It has always been our custom, from the very start, to provide a simple tea, in order that those living at a distance, may come directly from their work. At present we have classes in dressmaking, calesthenics, book-keeping, cooking and embroidery, and last but by no means least, a current event class which of late has merged into one of discussion, and many thoughtful subjects have been discussed before the girls and by them.

Realizing the need of a closer touch with our neighbors and familiarity with their methods, (at Miss Wright our Diocesan President's suggestion), a Conference was held of St. Mark's, St. Clement's and Epiphany's G. F. S. Branches, and just before Lent a social gathering, in the evening, of the Associates and Members of these Branches, in this Parish House, for music, dramatic reading and a simple entertainment. About 150 in all were present.

Much of the good work done in St. Stephen's is due to our Deaconess, Miss Rodman, who forms a summer club, thus holding the girls together till we meet in the autumn.

We also have a gifted Associate, Mrs. Rutter, whose ten minutes address before we close, is full of good counsel and helpful thoughts. If I have said too much of the bright side of our work, I trust you will pardon me. We have had many failures and discouragements, but to the Divine blessing, and faithfulness of my predecessors and Associates, is due our present success.

At the Tea and Entertainment given in the Parish House by the members of the society, in aid of the Lodge by the Sea, at Cape May, $69.47 was cleared. This is a very creditable amount considering that the idea originated with, and was carried out entirely by the members themselves.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of The Mothers' Loyal Circle report for the year 72 woolen garments were made; 34 were sent to Mrs. Buford's Hospital; 10 to Miss Rodman; 10 to the Italian Mission; 18 to the Garment Committee of this Church; two dollars to a poor, sick girl; a cross of flowers for the funeral of one of the Circle; two dollars, the fee for membership of the Ladies' Italian League.

This Circle is composed, mostly, of elderly women, who support themselves by their own exertions, or have large families to care for; yet they gladly give what time they can to work for others, so that their work for charity is more than praiseworthy.

MRS. CRANE WISHES to acknowledge through the PARISH NEWS, receipts of donations for the fair held at St. Mark's Parish House, for the Colored Crippled Children's Home from the following ladies: Misses Magee, Miss Cleemann, Miss Stevenson, Miss Sharp, Mrs. Caldwell, Mrs. Arrison, The Misses Wood, Mrs. S. Weir Mitchell, Miss Smith, Mrs. Graham, Mrs. Edward Crane, Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. Stevens, Miss Wilkins, Miss Atmore, Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. Stratton, Miss Stratton, Mrs. Joseph Perot, Miss Sarah Wister Perot, Miss Seabrook, Miss Bessie C. Morris The Misses Langton, Mrs. M. M. Parmalee.

St. Stephen's table netted the fair $51.25.

MR. EWING L. MILLER, the Chairman of the Lenten Service Committee of the St. Andrew's Brotherhood, reports:

Many of us, while professing Christians and sworn to serve under His Banner until our life's end, make the excuse for our inactivity that we have no ability or no chance to do work for the Master. This is more often the case with men, especially with young men, than with women. The Brotherhood of St. Andrew has become, under God's Providence, in a large measure the means of making and giving men Opportunities; and the Brotherhood in Philadelphia has been singularly blessed during the past Lenten Season by the opportunity which the Rector of St. Stephen's Church, and through him the entire parish, both individually and collectively, gave to them for doing the best Brotherhood work in its history.

The Keynote of the Brotherhood is found in St. John 1; 40-42. Having found Christ to strive by prayer and service to bring our brother men to Him; and since its organization, the solemn days of Lent and Advent have been used for its greatest efforts towards this end.

For many years, daily Lenten Services have been held in old St. Paul's Church, 3rd Street below Walnut; but since the general westward movement of the business center of the City, the Local Council of the Brotherhood has felt that its efforts would be productive of better results if it could follow that westward march and do work in its midst. The logical situation was St. Stephen's Church; but this Church had for several years been ministering during Lent to the business women; and it was with considerable hesitancy that the Chairman of the Lenten Service Committee approached the Rector with a view of enlisting his interest in the movement from St. Paul's. With what success, however, is now a matter of history—and one of the most happy episodes in the History of the Brotherhood in this City. The Church was literally handed over to the Brotherhood, between the hour of noon and one P. M. daily, through Lent—Pulpit, pews, organ, bells, everything! And we found ourselves as Lent approached with all the best machinery possible at our disposal and only lacking the motive power, (God's faithful ministers) and the fire, (congregations) to commence a most active campaign for Christ and His Kingdom: A glorious opportunity!

A few well-chosen words to the Brotherhood was all that was needed—for the Brotherhood is composed of the active workers of the church, and is ready at all times to take any hint whereby their energy and vigor may display themselves on the Brotherhood lines. Two hundred cards to as many Chapters in the Diocese, told them of the opportunity. These cards brought about 120 responses and requisitions for over 25,000 cards, announcing the services, for distribution. They also brought volunteers for a men's choir which throughout the entire season of Lent, made a great feature of the services in splendid hearty singing of hymns. The selected clergy entered with greatest enthusiasm into the work, and by a series of well thought out subjects, gave their hearers one of the best expositions of the Christian life and duties that have ever been presented by our Church.

With such an opportunity, how could these services fail of success? Whether actively engaged in their management, or only withdrawing for a few moments out of the busy day, to approach the Throne of Grace. Many eyes were dimmed as we left the dear Church on Easter Eve, and thought that these services were ended, for a time at least.

About half of the Lenten days were threatening or stormy ones. Careful count was made of each congregation, and on 21 clear days the church was full—this means five persons in every pew in the middle aisle, and other parts of the Church in proportion. The total attendance was 23,315 for the forty services; and from careful count of these, an average of 38 per cent. (8859) were men; 221 per service!

The results of this series of services can not be estimated. We know that men entered and departed from the Church with the question, "what kind of a Church is this," indicating that our services appealed to others than our own Church people. We know that we were asked: "What is this Brotherhood?" and "What does this Brotherhood mean?" and now, some who asked the question, wear the Button on their coats which signifies their intention to try harder than ever before to work and pray for the spread of Christ's Kingdom.

So the opportunity has been given and taken advantage of. The Brotherhood in Philadelphia has the consciousness of having made a hearty effort. God grant that the Rector and Parish of St. Stephen's may give them another such during the Advent Season, and again next year; so that these solemn seasons may become veritable harvest times—times of in-gathering for His Church in Philadelphia.

OFFERTORIES FOR JULY.

For General Charities.

THE REV. MR. MILLER preached at the House of Refuge for Girls on Sunday afternoon, June 16th. On Sunday afternoon, July 7th, he is invited to preach to the boys, in the chapel of the House of Refuge, at Glen Mills. There are about six hundred boys in this institution.

THE GIRLS' SUMMER CLUB is even more of a success than ever. The average attendance is double that of last year. The girls manage it themselves, making their own rules and getting up their own programme each week. There is a very friendly spirit among the girls, and each one seems determined to do her part towards making the club a success, and attaining the end for which it was started.

REV. DR. MCCONNELL in a recent letter reports that he and his family are well and busy sight seeing. They were in Paris on June 18th and were about starting for Holland. Below will be found extracts from some of the letters written for the Press of this city:

"As I wander about the city of Rouen I can see how history has left its record, stratum upon stratum. First the simple mercurial Celt, Christian in name but pagan at heart. Then comes the Norse savage, greedy for plunder, but with that vein of mystic devotion which still makes of the practical Englishman the most sentimental of men. Then came the Church. Then came modernity. Here at Rouen one sees what the world was like when the Church possessed it. Western Europe from the eleventh to the fifteenth century was a monastery. Almost everywhere the monastery has been demolished and its stones used for factories and palaces, but here it stands as of old. Here the Church survives after a fashion.

Away on the top of the high hill which overlooks the valley of the Seine, the far-away plains of Normandy, and Rouen lying at our feet, stands Notre Dame de bon Secours. A gem of the thirteenth century Norman, its graceful arches and pillars richly gilt, it has its walls lined with votive tablets set up by grateful votaries of the Virgin. "I prayed to Mary for my child and she heard me," "Mary heard me for my husband," "I vowed to Mary and she remembered me." I look at the dates upon the anonymous tablets. A few are old, 1364, 1621, but by far the majority are of to-day. One before me is 1894. Here the religious thought of the middle ages still survives.

PETRIFIED PRAYERS.

As I look down upon the little old city at my feet I see churches, churches, churches. They have no relation to the needs of the population. They were here before the people. They stand like eternal cliffs and people ripple about their walls. They are all old. The beautiful old cathedral rises out of the mass of old crooked streets as it did A. D. 1270. St. Ouen, the finest Gothic pile in the world, stands on its high hill as it did in 1318, as it did when Joan of Arc went from its chancel into the church-yard outside to make her recantation an hour before the poor girl was led away to be burned in front of the cathedral yonder. There is St. Gervais, St. Machlon, St. Patrice—every saint, in fact, save Matthew, Mark, Luke and John. There is not a modern church in the place. The day of building is long gone by here. They now build cotton factories.

They were not built to worship in, they were votive monuments of piety. They are prayers in themselves. But a prayer once prayed, its office is done. If it takes the form of poetry it may live in literature. If it takes the form of architecture it lives in art. But a prayer it never really is, save for him who first uttered it. These are petrified prayers."

In writing about a dinner in Merchant Taylours Hall on Thread Needle Street, London, he refers to the speeches there:—

"And then the speeches. The Lord Mayor, Sir Joseph Renals, a business man, was the best of all. With the usual English hesitation he talked in a business-like fashion, and did but little damage to his "h's." The Archbishop of Canterbury said some wise things, and if he had not attempted to be ponderously facetous at times would have been all that one could desire of one whose cares of Church and State must leave him little time and heart for a lighter vein. His benignant face above his purple dress coat was good to look upon. It was a Tory dinner. The wicked people who propose disestablishment were assaulted hip and thigh. But it was noteworthy that a feeling of despondency ran through all the speeches.

The rugged old Bishop, of London, brought the house down when he declared in effect that they "would fight to the end against disestablishment which was fatal policy, and against disendowment which was simple robbery, but that if worst should come to worst the Church would still know how to hold the heart of the English people." An American could not but think that may be the disaster which they seemed to foresee might prove the greatest blessing which the Church of England has known for many a century. As "the fatal gift of Constantine" became the bane of Rome until it was rudely snatched away by Victor Emmanuel, so Augustine of Canterbury may have his false policy undone in spite of his successors. At any rate I could not help thinking that if disestablishment had come a hundred and fifty years ago the Church of England would now be, in a modified form, the Church of the United States, and "our unhappy divisions would by now have been healed."

Fifty-two bean bags from King's Daughters.

Game of lawn tennis and game of croquet from the Misses Eisenbrey.

June 15th was the first of the summer outings; one o'clock promptly the Guild room was filled with as happy a set of children as one would wish to see, waiting patiently for the stages to take them to the Dairy at the park, where they were going to have a good time.

One of the ladies said to the children while they were waiting, "I think the King's Daughters have something in this closet for you;" all eyes were turned and each little hand was put out to receive a bean bag, which when handed to them they could not resist giving it a little toss.

The stages are here, some one calls from the stairs and each lady gets her little flock together and starts to pack them in the stages.

"Where is Mr. Clayton?" some one asks, for he is a friend to all the children. "Here I am," he said. Three stages drive out Market Street with many looking on, as much as to say, wish I could go too.

It would be hard to say which were the brightest set of children as they were all very musical, singing their little school songs such as Robin Hood, Sweet Briar, You can't play in Our Yard, Many Flags and Columbia Gem of the Ocean.

On reaching the grounds, the games commenced at once, Mr. Clayton joining in their sports much to the children's delight.

Ice cream and biscuits were served, and last of all they had a ride on the Merry-Go-Round, which was a donation from one who has helped us as a substitute very often and just before her death spoke of our little children.

We have given out during the month of June about three dozen garments, we can always find something to do for the poor children.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the Whatsoever Circle received from Miss Sidford $1.00

A large box of books from Miss Stevenson. A pair of shoes for Shoe Fund from Mrs. Reinboth; game of lawn tennis and croquet from the Misses Eisenbrey, which is to be used by the King's Daughters and Children's Friend Society.

The King's Daughters have made 52 bean bags and donated them to the Children's Friend Society. They are very much interested and are doing what they can to brighten the life of a poor invalid girl, who had her back broken in two places when she was thirteen years old and is now twenty-three and not any larger than a child nine years old.

All day long she is in one position, on a hard wooden settee, with a mattrass which might be more comfortable. Perhaps next fall when some of you clean house, you might have an old couch which if you would kindly donate to the King's Daughters they will have it moved to Lizzie's residence as that is the poor girl's name.

The King's Daughters will have their next meetings July 3rd and July 17th in the Parish House at half past seven o'clock.

SELECTIONS.

Nothing breaks family peace so quickly or so effectively or so permanently as the conviction on the part of each member of the household that it is his or her bounden duty to set every other member right upon whatsoever subject may happen to turn up in the table-talk of the day. Not otherwise is it in that larger family of which God is the Father and His dear Son our Elder Brother—that household into which we are regenerate by water and the Holy Ghost: here, also, much unhappiness has been and is occasioned by insisting too strenuously upon absolute unanimity of sentiment and opinion. Of course, there are bounds to what people can endure under the same roof. Wherever there is what the physicists call tension, there there must also be the limit of tension—that is to say, the breaking or the bursting-point. I do not dispute, neither do I desire to cloud, that fact. There are a number of perfectly definite propositions that underlie and underpin family tranquility. Knock out a single one of these and the family must go to pieces. Even so there are "Church principles," if you please, which cannot be unsettled without bringing the whole fabric about our ears. All I venture to maintain is that the number of these necessary agreements may possibly have been exaggerated, and that it might be a good thing if the coming generation, the pioneers of the twentieth century, were to take for a special task the effort to discriminate more carefully than has hitherto been done between those articles which are really the articles of "a standing or falling Church" and those that may have been mistaken for such in the past. Rev. Dr. W. R. Huntington.

"ENGLISH AS SHE IS WRITTEN."

A Traveler in Japan says the Japanese have a mania for putting up English sign advertisements, and they flood your room at the hotels with English cards. And such English! A conspicuous notice at a Kioto hotel reads:

On the dining-time nobody shall be enter to the dining and drawing-room without the guests allow.

One of the articles in the municipal laws of Kioto reads:

Any dealer shall be honestly by his trade. Of course the sold one shall prepare to make up the safe package.

A Tokio dentist's circular reads:

Our tooth is a very important organ for human life and countenance as you know; therefore when it is attack by disease or injury artificial tooth is also very useful. I am engaged in the Dentistry and I will make for your purpose.

The printed label on the claret bottle at Nikko read:

Weak man who is not so hard of his stomach takes notice of his health ever must use this wine usually.

ENLIGHTENED INHUMANITY.

Reading over a letter written from India, I came across this paragraph: "The nations here are principally Hindus; consequently they never take life, except sacrificially; therefore birds are especially blest, multiply rapidly, and become very tame. Two big crows flew out of the hallway as I entered, on my way to breakfast, this morning, and at the table two small birds, uninvited but welcome guests, flew in at the windows and were picking up a few crumbs, all unmindful of a roomful of people. They flew out again, with no fear of bad boys, the rifle or the gun. Church Standard.

OFFERTORIES FOR AUGUST.

General Charities.

REV. DR. MCCONNELL, while in Paris, preached in the American Church one Sunday in June.

DURING THE MONTH of August the Rev. H. M. G. Huff, formerly of the Church of the Epiphany, will officiate. If his services are needed during the week, communications can be had with him through the verger—Joseph Clayton.

THE REV. DR. MCCONNELL in his last letter, dated The Hague, June 27th, says: "We have been very busy sight-seeing. We were three weeks in Paris and saw it above ground and beneath; including the sewers and the Catacombs. I did not think much of it. Paris is not an attractive place for my taste. It is a paradise for artistic people, and for rich people; but not for the average mortal. We came here a week ago and are in love with the place and the country.

We have gone about a good deal on bicycles. Friday we went to Delft and back through the country villages—a ride of 27 miles. It is the best possible way to see a strange country, and the roads are superb. We have been very well."

THE GIRLS' SUMMER CLUB has been such a success, and the girls have seemed to enjoy it so much, that Miss Rodman has decided to keep it open two weeks later than last year. It will not close until the middle of August. The object of the Club is to supplement and continue the work of the Girls' Friendly Society of St. Stephen's Church. That society is doing a grand work. By its help many a girl has been better equipped for the struggle of life, and enabled to resist temptation. The aim of the Club is to hold the girls together, and to make them feel that the Church counts as a factor in their lives in the summer as well as in the winter. The girls meet at the Parish House about half past seven.

The first half hour at the Club is a social time; one of the girls is appointed each night to act as the hostess, she especially looks after new members and strangers, and also as each girl comes in she is introduced to the others; it makes no difference how well she may know them already, the ceremony is gone through with, and it is astonishing how quick many of the girls are getting to be about saying the little pleasant things that do so much to put people at their ease. At eight o'clock seats are taken for the business meeting, the roll is called, the minutes read, the literary and entertainment committees appointed, and the management of the club and plans for the future discussed and regularly voted upon. After that comes a little music, and a recitation or two. Then lemonade and very simple cakes are passed about. The girls have the great advantage of having the services of a regular music teacher, who sings with them, making suggestions, and doing what she can to train their voices. After a hymn or two the Club motto (Phil. iv: 8) is said in concert, sometimes the deaconess says a few words, and the meeting is closed with prayer.

Several evenings the girls have taken advantage of Mr. George C. Thomas's generosity in opening his house, and showing his fine collection of pictures. One Sunday afternoon a party went out to the Burd Asylum; the girls were greatly impressed by the beautiful service in the Chapel, they had a delightful walk in the woods about the place, and came away very enthusiastic about some delightful graham bread and milk that had been kindly offered them. On Sunday, August 4th, another party of the girls from the Club will go with Miss Rodman.

One outcome of the Club has been that almost every girl, who had not already a bank account, has begun to put money into the Dime Savings Bank. The girls are being encouraged to put a little in week by week. Already plans are being made for next summer, and it is earnestly hoped that then something can be done for others outside the Club needing help, and as yet not reached by the Girls' Friendly Society.

Miss Rodman has been greatly helped by the books and magazines which from time to time have been sent her by the ladies of St. Stephen's Church. She is especially indebted to the Misses Eisenbrey, Cattell and Miss Perot. She also wishes to acknowledge a bundle of clothing sent by Mrs. Stratton.

It hardly seems necessary to explain the work of the Children's Friend Society, so well is it known in the Parish. Yet as new members come into the Church they might like to know about the work and how it started.

In 1888, some four or five ladies in the Parish who had seen so much distress amongst the poor, and meeting many poor little children in the small streets about the city who never got an outing or any fresh air, planned they would take some half dozen out for a ride in the cars to the Park and furnish a lunch for them. So great was their delight and enjoyment that on the following Saturday the ladies repeated it, increasing the number of children. This, however, could not continue long without funds, so the work was started by asking friends for five cent donations to give a poor child a ride, and it would be a very hard hearted person that would refuse.

At the end of the first year, seventy-five children had been taken on excursions, entertained and looked after.

It was then time the work should have a name and be formed into a regular society. The ladies meant to be the Children's Friends, so this name was selected from a number of others. Then the rector, Dr. McConnell, asked if the society would like to belong to the Parish. Proud the members are that St. Stephen's Parish is the originator of such a good work.

At that time it was the only society with the exception of the Country Week of the kind. Now the Culture Extension League, many Guilds and King's Daughters are starting the same work. Public School yards are thrown open for children to play in; but there is work enough for all.

Over 600 children's names are now on the books of our society, and they are taken on excursions in the summer and entertained in various ways in winter.

It is not only the people of St. Stephen's Parish that have contributed to this work, but many donations have been received from other cities.

On Wednesday July 17th, Mr. and Mrs. Apple very kindly donated the ride for the excursion to George's Hill. They had three of the Union Transfer coaches waiting at the Parish House to take seventy children for a drive. It did not take long to pack them in the "beautiful coaches" as the little ones called them. All were ready and off they started, out Market street to Broad street, then to Spring Garden street, entering the Park at Green street entrance, passing Lemon Hill, Zoological Gardens, Memorial Hall, Horticultural Hall and stopping at George's Hill. All was new to the children, and the ride was enjoyed very much by all. The children felt hungry on reaching George's Hill, and were ready for some biscuits, as well as a good drink of spring water. The society had just invested in a new tin bucket, and whenever a child was missing, the answer was, "they have gone to the spring for a bucket of water." Had it not been that Mr. Jackson Blank's wagon was seen coming up the Hill with ice cream, it might be feared the spring would be dry. Bean-bag and games of croquet were played, and Miss Dora Friedel, Miss Minnie Wilder, Miss Bertha Walsh and Mr. John H. Tabler greatly assisted the ladies in giving the little ones a good time. They returned home along the river road which delighted the children. It was quite amusing to see how excited they would get when the coaches back of them would get ahead. At Tenth and Chestnut streets they started that old song "We won't get home until morning."

Although we have not been able to have any Sea Shore excursions, or give the children a dip in the Ocean (much to their disappointment) the work is going steadily on. The next excursion will be August 2nd.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the Whatsoever Circle received from a very kind gentleman in the Church a couch for Lizzie Weikle, the invalid girl in whom they are so much interested.

The young ladies of this Circle have preferred to continue their meetings and work throughout the entire summer, doing whatever good their hands find to do.

Saturday, July 27th, they had their annual excursion to Gordon Heights, leaving Chestnut street Wharf at half past one o'clock, and returning home on the eight o'clock boat. Although it rained the young ladies had a very enjoyable afternoon.

The King's Daughters will have their next meetings August 7th and 21st.

SELECTIONS.

The New York newspapers are devoting considerable space to the fact that Bishop Potter has forgone his annual vacation, and will spend a month as the working rector of the Cathedral mission on the east side of New York. There are many clergymen who labor all the year in in just such districts, who suffer privations patiently and willingly, if so be that they can help their fellows, and whose devotion and self-sacrifice are never heard of in the outside world. Bishop Potter, just and generous as he is, has not been slow to acknowledge this fact when being interviewed, and has also been careful to explain that he was not going to induce martyrdom, or that he proposed "slumming." He wanted to learn for himself the character and requirements of that particular mission field, and, certainly, there was no better way of obtaining such knowledge than by mingling with the people who live and labor there

But without giving the Bishop's work sensational importance, something that he has himself deprecated, his resolution to go where he has gone is a good illustration of self-abnegation. He has set an example to his clergy, and his course is a splendid object lesson in the democracy of the church—the equality of all men in the sight of heaven, something about which we hear a great deal, but see very little. Christianity will become more of a reality to weary toilers and workers when it is brought to them by just such simple and gentle ways.

The Inquirer.

QUERY.

This appeared lately in one of our advanced sheets:

"Which is growing faster, the broad Church or the Catholic party?"

It is not for us to answer it; but the question seems to us well put and calling for developments which may throw light upon it.

The terms church and party are here properly applied. The Church must be broad, being Catholic. The Catholic party has no right to the name of Church, and still less to that of Catholic Church. It is a party, and for that very reason is uncatholic. Here are some of their respective characteristics:

Catholic,	Partisan.
Broad,	Narrow.
Comprehensive,	Exclusive.
Progressive,	Retrogade.
Liberal,	Intolerant.
On one side,	On the other.
Faith,	Beliefs.
The commandment of God,	Traditions.
Righteousness,	Rites.
Works,	Practices.
Truth,	Authority.
Freedom,	Burdens.
Ministers,	Priests.
Christ,	Church.
Etc.,	Etc.

LE SIÈCLE PRÉSENT.

Si ce n'est point un siècle de convictions religieuses, c'est du moins un siècle de sincérité en matière de religion. Sans manquer au respect dû aux choses sacrées ou considérées telles, il ose les regarder en face et s'en fait même un devoir. L'homme n'a plus peur de Dieu, il le cherche au contraire. Nous considérons onc, non comme un sacrilège, mais comme un acte consciencieux, l'étude critique des fondements du christianisme, telle que l'ont entreprise des esprits supérieurs et sincères. Le résultat sera, au lieu du culte idolâtrique rendu par tant de chrétiens à certains hommes et à certaines choses, une plus juste appréciation et une estime plus rationnelle et des hommes et des choses. La superstition pourra y perdre, la vraie religion ne peut qu'y gagner.

ROMAN CATHOLICS are setting up an ambitious claim to be the founders of the American Republic. The absurdity of this claim is best shown by the fact that among the signers of the Declaration of Independence, we find 26 Episcopalians, 12 Congregationalists, 6 Presbyterians, 2 Quakers, 2 doubtful, and one single Roman Catholic, namely, Charles Carroll.

"To my own mind the conclusive evidences of the truth of Christianity are found in the social movements of the world about me. I know that Christ is King of men, that His Kingdom is the kingdom of the truth, because I see that He has laid down laws to which men must conform in every relation of life if they would be happy and prosperous and free."

Write it on your heart that every day is the last day in the year. No man has learned anything rightly until he knows that every day is doomsday.—Emerson.

THE PARISH DAY SCHOOL will begin its session on Monday, September 9th, in the Parish Building, rear of the Church, Miss Kate Lewis teacher. Applications for the admission of girls may be made to her at the opening of the School.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL will open for the coming season on the first Sunday in October, at 9.45 A.M. Rev. J. L. Miller has charge of the School. Applications for admission can be made to him at the opening of any session during the year. The teachers who find that they cannot take charge of their classes at the opening sessions, will please notify Mr. Miller, so that he can make suitable provision for the vacant places.

The children have had a long vacation. They will be gladly welcomed back to the School. There will be need of more teachers, owing to several vacancies in the classes that must be filled. There are many communicants in a Parish the size of ours that have plenty of time to do some Church work. The appeal for teachers is made to such as these. Teaching is not easy work. So much is demanded. Love of children, aptness to teach, regularity of attendance and punctuality as well. Then an interest in the religious work, and a feeling of responsibility as to the advance in Christian growth of the children committed to one's care. Other Church work there is an abundance, but as things are as they are, it does seem the care of the Sunday School children is one of the most urgent duties that the Parish is bound to fulfill.

SUMMER WILL soon be ended. Soon the warm weather will pass away. The people will settle down in their accustomed places, and active Church work in the city parishes will be resumed. Many in this congregation of ours may be thinking of what they ought to do for others, and how best they can help the Church in the work she has to do in our portion of the city. It does seem as the city increases in size the shorter time there is to do active work. The fashion of spending a greater portion of the time in the country or at the sea-side of those well furnished with money and leisure necessarily interferes with Parish work in the heart of our city life. But soon the work here will begin. What will you do?

"THERE ARE DIVERSITIES of gifts but the same spirit. And there are differences of ministries but the same Lord." The Church has so many channels of work. There are so many ways to be of use. In our own Parish we have many societies. Would it not be well for those willing to work in the Parish to look at the list of our societies, with their times of meeting, the names of directors, etc.? and then at the earliest opportunity, upon your return to the city, let the Rector know just what you would like to do, or, better still, to let him know what you feel you are best able to do for the Church and your fellow-men.

THE PARISH HAS a goodly list of societies and organizations for work. The members are in earnest, and when help and assistance are asked for, it is because there is work to do and willing hands alone are invited to come and take hold.

The Altar Society, with its Chancel Committee, its Library Committee, Embroidery Class, Order Committee, and with these also the superintending and management of the Lenten Sewing.

The Female Benevolent Society, with its Board of Managers, Cutting Committee, Parcelling Committee, Distributing and Paying Committee, Selling Committee, Special Orders Committee, Examining Committee, and Garment Committee.

The Missionary Box Committee.

The Sunday School, with its various classes; Infant School and Bible Classes.

The Mothers' Meetings.

The Children's Friend Society.

The Boys' Guild.

St. Stephen's Association.

The Girls' Friendly Society.

And besides all these, from time to time, special work for young men who place themselves in readiness to respond to the calls of the Rector.

PHILADELPHIA, July 10th, 1895.

THE BISHOP OF THE DIOCESE desires to call attention to the advantages now afforded in the Church Training and Deaconess House of the Diocese of Pennsylvania, for all women to qualify themselves for greater usefulness in the Church, or home, or Sunday School, or in society.

This Institution is established not only for the training of those who are to be set apart as deaconesses, but also for the instruction of all who have a mind to work for Christ in any department of Christian activity.

The scheme of studies includes courses in Church History, Church Music, Methods of Teaching, Business Methods, Home Sanitation, the Prayer Book, the Books of the Bible, the New Testament Use of the Old Testament, English Composition, Doctrinal and Pastoral Theology.

Instruction is given in all of these departments by teachers of large experience and culture, who devote their best energies to their work.

All of these courses are free. It is only necessary to apply to the House Mother, 708 Spruce Street, who will furnish tickets admitting to the lectures which the applicant elects to attend.

From the first Wednesday in October to the last Tuesday in May, one lesson a week is given in most of the courses. A few of them do not extend through the year, and in some three or four lessons a week are given.

It would seem that there must be in this Diocese many earnest-minded Churchwomen, who, if they knew of the opportunity which here exists, would be glad to make use of it. There are many teachers in our Sunday Schools who would be greatly benefited by taking one or more of these courses. And there are, doubtless, many not actively engaged in teaching or any parochial or missionary work, who would find their religious life deepened, and their grasp of truth and duty made stronger, by giving a little of their time to such systematic study of some department of Christian doctrine, or history, or work, as taking up one or more of these courses would require.

Following will be found the Scheme of Studies for the coming year, with the names of the Faculty and Instructors, and I earnestly invite your attention to a consideration of the benefits which may be derived from their teaching.

Faithfully yours,

O. W. WHITAKER.

August 23rd was the second Excursion to George's Hill, making about 150 children that have had an outing this month.

One o'clock, prompt, the children are told to be at the Parish House; each one is given a bean-bag or ball to carry out, and then they start for the Trolley Cars, Tenth and Arch Streets. Very happy it makes them feel, when they are the only ones permitted to get on the cars.

They enjoy the ride very much, and on reaching the grounds all are eager to get to the top of the Hill. Hats come off, but before starting to play they must have some biscuits, as many, for fear of being left at home, ate very little dinner.

Many of the children on this last trip were half orphans, some of them very pretty children. The work of this Society does not end by taking a child once on an Excursion; the ladies wish to be the Children's Friends, and they are proud to see many of them, growing up into womanhood and manhood, bright and useful. Places of employment have been found for some, and they have worked themselves up and now are holding high positions in stores.

One family living in a dark cellar, not fit for a human being to live in, was moved and made comfortable when the Society first started; now the children have grown up and the mother is well and a hard working woman.

But we must not forget the children and the Excursion. Miss Hines, Miss Bessie Wilder and Miss Nellie Miller, and Mr. Tabler helped very much to entertain the children.

Now it is time for the Ice Cream and Cake, but we must not forget an invalid gentleman's kindness to the children on the trip August 2nd, General E. L. Townsend, who was driving in the Park, was attracted to the children, and spent most of the afternoon taking two at a time for a drive around George's Hill, which was appreciated very much by all.

There will be one or two more Excursions. The members of the Society wish to thank all those who have helped them with the work this summer.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the Whatsoever Circle had a Trolley Ride to Chestnut Hill on the evening of August 21st; it was enjoyed by all.

Their next meetings will be September 4th and September 18th, in the Parish House, halfpast seven o'clock.

OFFERTORIES FOR OCTOBER.

Third Sunday, Domestic Missions.
Other Sundays, General Charities.

THE RECTOR returned from his vacation in Europe, on Sunday, September 15th, and came to the Church in the afternoon and took charge of the evening service.

THE WINTER ARRANGEMENT of the afternoon service, begins as usual the first Sunday in October. On that day, and thereafter, service will be at 4 o'clock, with sermon, and offertory for charities. The congregation is reminded, that by a resolution of the Vestry passed several years ago, pews will be retained for their owners until the time of beginning the service. After that time it will be taken for granted that the owners are not coming, and strangers will be seated as rapidly as possible.

THE TROLLEY SYSTEM IS PRODUCING some marked changes in the distribution of population in Philadelphia. It is somewhat too soon, probably, to determine just what its effect will be upon the down-town churches. To speak more precisely, we are curious to see what its effect will be upon St. Stephen's. It is possible that it may bring people there, or it may take them away, or more likely still it may do both. The present indications are that it will induce the removal from the city to the suburbs of a considerable number of parishioners who have heretofore lived somewhat near the Church. A few of these will remove so far away that they will be beyond the reach of their old Parish. But on the other hand, it begins to be clear that the increasing rapidity of motion and the fact that so many trolley lines converge about 10th and Chestnut, will make it possible for a constantly increasing number of persons to attend the services at St. Stephen's if they feel so inclined. As a matter of fact, among the regular attendants at present, there are pew holders from Chestnut Hill, Germantown, Overbrook, Merion and West Philadelphia. Strangely enough, these are among the most regular attendants. The indications are that one effect of the trolley system will be to break up parish boundries even more than they are broken up at present. The churches which have for some time been regarded as down town and out of reach of the population are no longer so. They are easily accessible. Their prosperity, hereafter, will depend upon their willingness and ability to do the Churches' work among men. People can go to them, and will go to them if there is anything really valuable to be got when they do go.

But this same distribution of population has created new duties for the Church in every portion of the city. There are at least four or five places within the city limits where a new town of from five to ten thousand inhabitants will be made, out of whole cloth, within three or four years. There is no church in any of these places. The people who go to them are, as a rule, at the commencement of life. They buy a new home and place a mortgage upon it which it will require several years, at least, to extinguish. They do not know one another. They belong to all sects and denominations. The old city goes before them and builds for them their streets and their school houses. Later on they themselves pay for these and support them. In the same way the old Church must go before them and build their churches for them. Later on they will build these and support them. But they cannot be depended upon to take the initiative.

One of these new places in the city is in the neighborhood of 52nd and Haverford Road. It is a section for which St. Stephen's Church is to some extent responsible. The corporation happens to hold the title of a considerable section of land in that vicinity which has been in their hands for many years. Most of it is held in trust for the Burd Orphan Asylum. It is proposed at once to begin the work of a new mission or church in that vicinity. The Rector will ask the Vestry to take such action as is in their power, and which they have already expressed their willingness to do. He will call upon the congregation of St. Stephen's for continuous contributions of money for the support of services. He will call upon the people who attend the church to give their personal help as workers in this new mission field. Judging by the building operations already in progress, or for which permits have been taken out there will be in that vicinity, where at present no one lives, a population of at least six thousand within two years. In five years, they will be able to support and maintain their own church. It is the plain duty, however, of St. Stephen's to take action at present so that in the future the Church may be able to do its duty in that vicinity. The congregation will be kept informed continually of whatever arrangements may be made to this end.

THE GENERAL CONVENTION of our Church in the United States is in session during this month of October at Minneapolis. It meets once in three years to consider and take action upon the state of the Church, to make and change laws and regulations for the Church, and to arrange for its work in the future. The Convention is composed of two houses. First; the House of Bishops, consisting of the eighty-two bishops of the Church. Second; the House of Clerical and Lay Deputies, which is composed of four Clerical and four Lay Deputies from each of the fifty-two dioceses, and of one Clerical and one Lay Deputy from each of the eighteen missionary jurisdictions. For the last twenty years the principal work of the General Convention has been the revision of the Prayer Book. That was completed at the last Convention in Baltimore three years ago. Probably most of the work to be done at this session is the routine work which accumulates during the three years. In addition to that, at the last Convention a committee was appointed to report a revision of the Constitution and Canons of the Church. That committee will make its report at this Convention. It will no doubt give rise to prolonged discussion, and probably a considerable number of changes will be made in the present Constitution. These changes, however, will not sensibly affect the every day life of the parishes and people of the Church. The most important of the proposed changes relate to Ordination of Ministers. When the Convention will have adjourned and taken final action, the PARISH NEWS will publish a resume of their action, and point out any practical effects that it may have upon the church life of the people.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL WILL begin on Sunday, October 6th, at 9.45 A. M. It is important that the teachers should be on hand to take charge of their classes at that time. It is unfortunate to have the scholars present only to find no one there to teach them. If for any reason the regular teachers cannot then be present, will they not kindly send word when they may be expected, so that provision may be made for the classes in the meantime. Some more teachers will be needed. If any in the congregation can find an hour to give to this work every Sunday morning they will be welcomed, and work can be readily supplied them. Regularity and punctuality are important.

THE WORK OF OUR PARISH in its various departments is necessarily stopped during the summer season. One society, however, has a work to do chiefly in the hot weather. It tries to be a friend to children who in the heat and dust of a summer in the city are crowded away in the poor and uncared for neighborhoods. These children are looked up, gathered together in little bands and not sent but are taken by kind friends out for little excursions into the country. Members of the congregation and others interested in the good work have given from time to time liberally of their means, but the nature of these kindly offices to children is such that more than money is needed and more than money can buy. Those interested in the active work of the Children's Friend Society, (Mrs. Vanderslice and a band of devoted women with her) carry on the work simply as a labor of love. They have done a noble work, a work of benevolence in which all who have the interest of the parish at heart have every reason to feel gratified. This work has been going on for a number of years. Other societies outside of our parish have since been organized for this purpose. The good resulting from all these efforts cannot be lost. All honor to these women of our parish who so earnestly and lovingly deny themselves many a day of pleasure that they may let some gladness rest upon the little children who so sorely need it and might not otherwise obtain it.

THE WOMAN'S BOARD of the Rush Hospital invite their friends to an opening "TEA" to be held at their new location, N. E. corner of 33rd Street and Lancaster Avenue, on Wednesday Oct. 9th from 4 till 10 o'clock. The present site is much more healthful and attractive than the former one, and the ladies hope for an increase of interest and donations proportionate to the improvement of the building and comfort of the patients.

DONATIONS RECEIVED by the Children's Friend Society in September:

Mrs. W. S. Russell,	$2 00
From King's Daughters (Whatsoever Circle),	1 00
Mrs. Dutilh,	1 00
Total,	$4 00

The summer excursions ended September 13th. Although the Society has not been able to give the children a dip in the ocean this year, over 500 have been taken to the Park.

The members of the Society take this opportunity to thank the ladies who so kindly made the bathing suits. Eighty suits were packed away carefully in camphor, in hopes that another year they may be put to some good use.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the Whatsoever Circle have visited, this month, St. Christopher's Hospital. They donated two dozen bibs, four panel pictures, scrap books, balls, paper dolls and other toys to the children.

Donations have been received from Mrs. Herman Bitterlich; eight panel pictures, a piece of bed-ticking and three pairs of shoes from Mrs. Crombarger; three pairs of shoes from Mrs. Sausser; two pairs of shoes from Mrs. Vanderslice. For Shoe Fund from King's Daughters 50 cents. The amount towards the Shoe Fund that was started last March, has now reached $14.75; will not more join as members? Many 25 cents will help to cover many little feet this winter. Anyone wishing to join can give their name to Mrs. Vanderslice or to any of the King's Daughters of this Circle.

The King's Daughters will have their next meeting on October 16th, in the Guild room at half past seven o'clock, p. m.

SELECTIONS.

CHRISTIANITY.

Strictly speaking, it is not a religion. It refuses to take its stand side by side with the other religions. It stands on a ground of its own and is, to a great extent, destitute of those qualities which constitute what is ordinarily called religion. It has little to say about the origin of man. It has no theory to propound concerning the nature of God. It has no formal statement concerning the manner of future existence. It refers to all these things, to be sure, but it takes them for granted. It does not reveal them, it does not uphold them. It simply assumes them.

Christianity is Christ's working theory of life. It runs thus:

"Life is under the management of a Father. It is to be passed amongst brothers; act accordingly. This is my commandment: 'May ye love one another.' Your brother may injure you grievously; do not retaliate. Conquer him with patience and bind him to yourself with the meshes of love. You may suffer thus; very probably you will. You may perish. Nevertheless, not a hair of your head shall be wasted".

And He practiced what He preached. He became Himself the supreme example of His method.

"Let His mind be in you which was also in Jesus Christ."—Phil. 11: 5.

THE MISSION OF CHRIST.

Christ has very clearly defined His mission. He did so in His first sermon in the synagogue at Nazareth. He read Isaiah's prophecy of the Messiah, and declared that He had come to fulfil it; and this is what He read:

"The spirit of the Lord is upon me, because He hath anointed me to preach the glad tidings to the poor; He hath sent me to heal the broken-hearted, to proclaim deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord."

To carrying out this purpose He gave His life. He framed no creeds, prescribed no ritual, conducted no regular and established public worship. To these things the Church has largely given its endeavors—not so Christ. He went about doing good. He fed the hungry, healed the sick, comforted the mourning, instructed the ignorant, inspired with newness of life the sinful and despairing. That He did these things was, He affirmed, the evidence of His Messiahship.

GOD GIVE US MEN!

For the welfare of the Church, as well as of the State, in its highest offices, we may cry out with Dr. J. G. Holland:

"God give us men! A time like this demands
Strong minds, great hearts, true faith and ready hands;
Men whom the lust of office does not kill;
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy;
Men who possess opinions and a will;
Men who have honor, men who will not lie;
Men who can stand before a demagogue
And damn his treacherous flatteries without winking;
Tall men, sun-crowned, who live above the fog,
In public duty and in private thinking.
For while the rabble, with their thumbworn creeds,
Their large professions and their little deeds,
Mingle in selfish strife, lo! Freedom weeps,
Wrong rules the land, and waiting Justice sleeps."

IN MEMORIAM.

WILLIAM M. STEWART.

IN THE DEATH OF Mr. Wm. M. Stewart, the Vestry and Parish have sustained a serious loss. He has been identified with the work of the Church, here and elsewhere, for more than half a century. Where he was best known he was loved and honored most. In the western part of the State few Churchmen were better known, or have done more to make it grow in uncongenial soil. In Philadelphia his work was done more quietly. But by his clear judgement and faithfulness, and far more by his simple minded and brave godliness he has well served the Church and its Master. His deeply grieving family will have the sympathy and prayers of all the people.

MISS RODMAN'S afternoon class will begin Sunday, November 3rd, at a quarter before three in the Parish House.

THE MANAGERS OF THE Female Benevolent Society will have their first meeting in the Parish House on Thursday, the 7th of November, at 11.30, after morning service.

THE RECTOR REGRETS GREATLY that after so long an absence during the summer he should have felt it his duty to be absent from the Parish the last Sunday in October. He did so in order that he might accept an invitation to preach at Harvard University; an invitation which for various reasons he felt compelled to accept.

In each November during a number of years the Rector has asked a number of gentlemen and ladies in the Parish for certain definite sums of money for the expenses of the charitable and benevolent work done chiefly during the winter. He has ventured in each case to name the sum which he has asked of each person. He has done this because he has felt that he was in a position to know better than any one else what amount was needed for the purpose, and because he has believed that people would rather be asked for a certain definite amount than to be requested to contribute whatever they might think best. Last year he asked forty-six people for $50.00 or $25.00 each, and forty-three out of the forty-six sent him the amounts asked for. The other three declined for reasons which were perfectly legitimate and perfectly plain. This November he proposes to considerably extend this invitation to assist. With the new work which has been undertaken in West Philadelphia, to which he contributes his own labor gratuitously, a very considerable increase of expenses will be entailed. A good many people may therefore expect to be asked for money. Of course, they may not be able to respond. They will be the judge of that. But judging by the past, and by the way in which those who have heretofore been asked have given, he has little apprehension on the subject.

The Garment Committee will resume its work on Monday morning, November 4th, at eleven o'clock in the Parish Building, and contributions of clothing will be gratefully acknowledged.

During October, contributions of money and clothing have been received from Mrs. Muirheid, Miss Christopher, Mrs. Bunker, Mrs. Chandler, Mrs. Rowland and "No Name."

The Excursions are over, and we are waiting to plan the Thanksgiving treat. The children look forward to it. It is a little sunshine in many weary lives.

Will you not remember the little ones when you yourself are going to a lecture or concert this winter? Help the Society in some way by your offerings so as to make these lowly ones a little happy.

The King's Daughters of the Whatsoever Circle are sewing for the House of St. Michael and All Angels. They have visited their sick girl, Lizzie Weikle, who is glad to have a visit from any of the Circle.

Donation of books for the King's Daughters' Library have been received from Mr. Andrew Cornith. From Mrs. Abram R. Cox, Jr., $1.00; Mrs. Edward Rowland, 25c.; Mr. George T. Rowland, 25c.: Mrs. Crombarger, 25c.; Mrs. George Wilder, 25c.; Miss Ida Harper, 25c.; Mrs. Joseph Clayton, 25c.; Miss Bessie Clayton, 25c.; Miss C. H. F., 50c.: total, $3.25. Two pairs of shoes from Mrs. Sausser, 1 coat from Mrs. Parmalee.

SELECTED.

FOR SUFFERING ARMENIA.

In response to a memorial from the clergy and laity of the Diocese of New York, the General Convention on October 10th took the following action:

Whereas, The Armenian Church, one of the most ancient communions of Christendom, is being subjected to a persecution of peculiar atrocity involving the wholesale slaughter of men and the violation of women; and

Whereas, Those who survive these terrible persecutions are now perishing from disease, cold, and hunger; and

Whereas, In the New Testament times, as St. Paul tells us, the churches of Christendom contributed to relieve the necessities, each of the other;

Resolved, That this convention commends to all those whom it in any wise represents, and to all Christian people, the prompt and energetic employment of whatever measures may contribute to the succor of this afflicted people, and especially such contributions as may relieve their sore necessities.

Resolved, That the authorities of the Church of England be respectfully asked to take such action as will fitly commend the cause of the Armenian Church to the whole English-speaking world.

In accordance with this action of the General Convention, we, the Committee appointed to present said memorial, respectfully ask the immediate attention of our brethren of the clergy and laity to the important duty thus laid upon us, so that the appeal of the Convention may be sustained by immediate response suitable to the urgent necessities of the case.

As the horrors of the winter, always so severe in those mountainous regions, and now more than doubled by the destitution brought on by Turkish oppression, are about to set in, if substantial aid is not sent before the roads are blocked with snow and all communication with the outside world cut off, we shall next spring have to count by thousands the deaths due to the winter alone.

It is, therefore most important that a large sum should be sent without delay to the British Ambassador at Constantinople, to be distributed by the local relief committees composed of British consuls and American missionaries.

We, therefore, venture to request that all clergy will take up collections on behalf of Armenia, in accordance with the appeal of the General Convention.

Henry Y. Satterlee, John. P. Peters, W. Montague Geer, C. W. E. Body, J. Bleecker Miller, Herant M. Kiretchjian, Committee.

There can be no question as to the fact of the unspeakable atrocities committed, with the connivance of the Turkish Government, upon the Christian Armenians. It is literally true that their men are tortured and murdered by the hundreds and their women outraged by the thousands. I will be only too glad to forward through the proper channels any aid which any one will give.

THE CHURCH OF THE HOLY COMFORTER at the corner of 48th and Haverford Avenue has been for a number of years in difficulties. These have been largely due to its unfortunate location. For some reason, difficult now to understand, the Church was planted right against the interminable blank wall of the Philadelphia Insane Hospital on one side, and overlooking an impassable ravine on another side. This cut it off from the whole population on the two sides where at that time the population was. It confined it to a comparatively small and difficult area. For this and other reasons it at last became evident to the authorities of the Diocese that the Parish could no longer stand on its own feet. Arrangement has therefore been made whereby St. Stephen's becomes responsible for it and for its future work.

Three or four blocks beyond the present site of the Church there has already begun a movement of population which promises to build up that whole section very rapidly. It also happens that in that section St. Stephen's Corporation controls a considerable amount of ground. The place where the Church of the Holy Comforter can do good work in the future, become self-supporting and prosperous, will be by removing a few blocks to this new locality. Looking forward to that, the Vestry of the Parish have unanimously voted to transfer all its property, Church, Sunday School building and lot, to St. Stephen's Corporation, and have elected Dr. McConnell its Rector. He has accepted that Rectorship, and has undertaken to do what he can to put the Parish on its feet. He believes that within a year it can become more than self-supporting. He will appeal to the congregation of St. Stephen's Church for help during the time which must elapse before the Holy Comforter can walk alone. A thoroughly competent man will be secured as Minister-in-charge. The plan is to begin afresh, gather and solidify a congregation in the present church building, and within a year or two, or whenever the proper time comes, to sell that property and build a more commodious church at 52nd street and Haverford avenue.

THE SEATS IN THE Church of the Holy Comforter will be free. It must depend for its support upon the offerings of those who attend its services. It is taken for granted that these services will be a pleasure and a profit to those who attend. It is also taken for granted that they are honorable men and women who would not willingly accept favors without making an honorable return. It will be left to each one of them to say how much he is able or willing to give for the maintenance of the Church. He is more than welcome for a while whether or not he contributes anything. But if it should happen after he has been for a time an attendant at those services that he should still not be willing to help to any extent, it would then seem to be evident that the Church was not doing for him what he has a right to expect and that he should secure some other place of worship.

MR. JOHN O. BARRETT, one of our most prominent Brotherhood members and an earnest worker in the Church, has just commenced his studies for the Ministry at the Divinity School at Nashotah, Wisconsin.

THE POOR PEOPLE in our parish depend largely upon us every winter to furnish them with clothing, coal, etc. We have only one society at present to look after them, (the King's Daughters) and supplies and material of all kinds will be gratefully accepted by this society.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL Christmas Festival will be held on Thursday evening, December 26th, at half-past seven o'clock.

ON CHRISTMAS DAY the Holy Communion will be celebrated in the morning at eight o'clock and also immediately after Morning Prayer and Sermon, at eleven o'clock.

THE LADIES OF THE PARISH HOUSE COMMITTEE, of St. Stephen's Church, intend holding, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the 5th, 6th and 7th of December, at No. 9 S. Tenth St., their annual sale of the handiwork of gentle-women, who are obliged by their own efforts to support themselves.

In this sale will be found articles of useful and artistic needle-work, and delicious home-made jellies, preserves, pickles, etc., of superior quality and at most reasonable prices.

The ladies of the Committee hope it is understood that no commission is charged the depositors for selling their goods, and earnestly trust that the congregation will do all in their power to further this good work.

IT HAS BEEN THE CUSTOM in St. Stephen's for a number of years to devote a series of Sunday afternoons each winter to a course of lectures or instructions upon some aspect of the work of Christ and His Church. Two years ago the general subject was, "The Life of Christ." Last winter it was, "The Bible; how it came to be, and what it is." This winter it will be, "The Doctrines of the Church; what they are, and why we believe them." The course will be commenced the second Sunday afternoon in December. These instructions or conferences are of necessity considerably longer than the conventional sermon. Experience has shown, however, that many people are really desirous to have their ideas cleared and stated with coherence. Of course, only those who are really interested in the subject matter are willing to devote so much time and attention as it requires. Those who for any reason are not able or willing to give such long continued attention as is necessary can always protect themselves by staying away.

APROPOS OF THE REQUEST OF THE RECTOR made lately of a considerable number of people in the Parish for specific sums for the expenses of the Church work, a few things may well be said. There seems to be a misapprehension about one point. This money as well as the offerings in Church is not chiefly for distribution among the poor. The Church gives just as little cash to the poor as it can help. It tries to help them otherwise. Through the Benevolent Societies which provide work for them, through the Girls' Friendly Society which tries to uplift self-respecting girls who are earning their own livelihood, through the Children's Friend Society which tries to bring a little brightness into the lives of poor children, and through all the Societies of the Church this money is expended. Much of it also goes to the upbuilding of the Church in poor parts of the city, and much of it goes out of the city altogether. For this purpose money is always required. The people who call themselves Christians need never hope, and ought not to wish, to escape from calls for money. They are constant, and they will remain constant. The Church is a household, and like every other household bills come to it all the time. They will continue to come as long as it remains a household. Of course we all understand that the ideal way to do Church work is for each Christian man and woman to go out into the world and do it themselves. But there are very many who are so situated that they cannot do this. There are many others who do not feel that they possess the gifts and capacities to enable them to do it well. All these, therefore, can only do their work by proxy. There are those who have time, or who make time, and who have the ability to do these things. The rest are called upon to bear the expense. In this particular case the response to the Rector's appeal has been almost unanimous. The few who have felt compelled to refuse have done so for the very best reasons, which he thoroughly understands to be honest reasons.

DURING NOVEMBER 92 articles were contributed and 29 distributed, and contributions of money and clothing, to the Garment Committee, are acknowledged as follows:

Mrs. Arrison, Miss E. Bell, Mrs. Seth Caldwell Jr., Miss Cleeman, Mrs. C. H. Hillman, Mrs. Moody, Mrs. Musgrove, No Name, Mrs. Parmalee, Miss Sidford, Mrs. Jos. R. Smith, Mrs. Stratton, Miss Wilkins and Miss Maria S. Wilkins. From Miss Margaret Dickson, two dollars. Money thus contributed and that arising from the sale of garments, goes toward buying new clothing as it is needed. At present, there is more demand for merino underwear for men and women than for anything else. It has been found better to let the applicants for clothing pay something for the garments received, even though the sum be trifling, as the mere fact of being allowed to purchase articles at a nominal rate, preserves a feeling of self-respect and prevents pauperizing.

Monday, Dec.	2nd—Mrs. Reinboth,	Miss Cleemann.

DONATIONS RECEIVED by the Children's Friend Society in November: Miss Stevenson, $2.00; Cash, $1.50; Mrs. Richardson, $10.00; Friend, 50 cents. Total $14. 00.

On November 27th the little ones had their Thanksgiving Entertainment. Prof. Hoy, with his Marionette Minstrels (Lilliputians,) which are represented by seven life like figures, taking the following parts: Bones, Banjo, Violin, Flute, Cornet, Tamborine and Interlocutor. Punch and Judy ended the evening performance.

Messrs. Blasius, 1101 Chestnut street, very kindly loaned one of their pianos for the evening.

Donations for the Children's Christmas will be very acceptable.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the Whatsoever Circle will have their next meetings December 4th and 8th, in the Guild room of the Parish House at half-past seven o'clock.

Donations received, Miss Dickerson, $1.00: Books from Mrs. Russell.

For Shoe Fund, Miss Dickerson, 25c.: Mrs. Hansell, 25c.: Miss Hansell, 25c.

On Monday December 9th, at 8 o'clock, A CONCERT, in aid of the charitable work of the King's Daughters, (Whatsoever Circle) will be given in the Sunday School room. The members of the choir, under the direction of Mr. Wood, have kindly volunteered their services.

Tickets can be procured from any of the King's Daughters or from the Verger.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS are making new vestments for the Choir.

A CHOIR CONCERT is being talked of for the latter part of January.

THE CHOIR IS NOW REHEARSING the Christmas music, and, from what has been heard, it promises to be one of the finest services they have rendered.

THE BROTHERHOOD OF ST. ANDREW will begin next month to thoroughly canvass the Parish, calling at every house, leaving a copy of the "PARISH NEWS," a card setting forth the hours of service and an invitation to attend the Church. The Parish will be divided into districts, and a member of the Brotherhood will be responsible for each district. There will also be a lady assigned to each district, who will assist in visiting and noting new families. The members of the Church and congregation can materially aid in this work by notifying any member of the Brotherhood when a new family moves into their neighborhood.

WEDNESDAY EVENING SERVICE during the winter will consist of Evening Prayer, and the instruction at this service will consist of a study of the Sunday School Lesson for the following Sunday. This service will be very instructive not only to the Sunday School teachers but also to the congregation, as the course of study is a very interesting one, consisting of the Parables and Miracles of our Lord. During December the parables will be those of the Advent.

Wednesday, Dec. 4—The Ten Virgins, St. Matt. 25: 1–13.
" " 11—The Talents, St. Matt. 25: 14–30.
" " 18—The Tares, St. Matt. 13: 24–30, 36–43.

Music at this service will be led by a voluntary choir under the direction of Mr. L. Willard Harris, who has kindly volunteered his service as organist.

ALREADY NEW INTEREST and life is manifest in the Sunday School, as shown by an increase in the number of scholars and zeal and activity on the part of the teachers. At an early date some new and interesting features will be introduced.

The children under the direction and training of the Organist and Choir Master, Mr. John Ackroyd, are rapidly learning their Christmas Carols. Some time during Christmas week a festival and Christmas Tree will be given the children of the Sunday School.

Contributions for this purpose are solicited from any who are willing to give. Send to Rev. J. J. Lanier, 4517 Fairmount Avenue.

WHEN A COMPANY OF CHILDREN are playing together there is very apt to be one or two or more who get miffed and declare that "they won't play" unless they have their own way in the game. They withdraw into a corner and sulk, or they go home and leave the company. Usually they are disciplined pretty sharply by their play fellows. They are jeered at and called names, and are lucky if more vigorous methods are not used. Such persons are not unknown in the Church. If everything is not done their way they won't play. The folly of their position is evident to everybody except themselves. Of course, anyone has the power to withdraw from any organization if the methods of the organization are not satisfactory to him. But if the organization exists for the purpose of doing a work which he is interested in he will not withdraw from it unless the methods which it pursues are very bad indeed. Our Parish is set down in the midst of a community, and its purpose is to build up the Church in that community. To do so the members of the Parish must live and let live. They must give and take. One's own personal pleasure in the affair is not the thing of the first consequence. The main thing is to get the work done. To do so the Services of the Church and its methods generally must be such as commend themselves to the greatest number. No individual has the right to allow his personal preference to interfere with the work of the Church. This principle is recognized in every secular club or association of men. It surely ought to be the rule in a Society of Christian people who profess that each member thereof does not "consider his own things, but the things of another."

THE RECTOR AND VESTRY HAVE ADOPTED the following address and form of pledge, which will be distributed generally throughout the Parish:

The purpose of the Church of Christ is to keep His Gospel always before men. It tries to make them Christ-like by the methods which He has ordained, the Word, Sacraments, and Prayers. This involves expenses. It is expected, both by the Church and the world, that every congregation of Christian people will pay its own bills. There may be good reason why it may be for a time unable to do this—but only for a time. It offers to the people of the community where it is a very valuable thing. It takes for granted that every man and woman who takes advantage of this offer will pay for it according as they are able. It does not believe that any one wishes to go to Church as a pauper, living on the gifts of others.

The Church of the Holy Comforter wishes to serve you and your children in Christ's way. It asks you, in return, to pledge what you think right for the Church. It may be much, or it may be little, but it ought to be something. Whatever you may do will be known only to God, to yourself, and to the Rector and Treasurer of the Parish.

I. Fill the blanks in the accompanying pledge with your name, address, and the amount you are willing to give weekly for all religious purposes together.
II. Place the Pledge thus filled in the plate at any collection. Envelopes for one year will be sent to you at once.
III. In consideration of this Pledge, the Church assures the giver that no further call will be made upon him during the year for any purpose whatever. Of course, anything additional which he may choose to give will be received and applied as he may designate.
IV. At any service place the amount of your weekly pledge in the plate. Never give the money which you have pledged except in an envelope.
V. No one but the Rector and the Accounting Warden will know the amount of your pledge.
VI. The amount received will be paid out in the following order:
  (1) Necessary expenses—as fuel, light, sexton, repairs, etc.
  (2) Salary of Minister in charge.
  (3) Music.
  (4) Sunday School.
  (5) The balance will be divided among Diocesan, Domestic and Foreign Missions.

AN APPEAL FROM MRS. BUFORD.

The twelfth year of the existence of my Hospital is now completed, and I send to my friends, who have built and supported it, my annual report of what has been done. My heart is very full of love and gratitude for your generous kindness, which has enabled me to take care of the largely increased number of patients during the past most trying year. The number has varied from seventy-five to ninety, twenty-five have died, forty-five have been discharged, ninety-four received. Seven hundred and seventy-eight sick and needy sufferers have been assisted outside in their own homes. The receipts from January 1st to September 1st, have been three thousand one hundred and eighty-nine dollars and fifty cents, the expenses have been three thousand seven hundred and eight dollars and seventy-one cents. Ten of these poor unfortunates are blind, many are slowly dying with incurable diseases, a large number are old and feeble, past usefulness, past work, helpless, decrepid. Thirty are friendless, homeless, orphaned or abandoned children. Nobler, worthier objects constantly appeal to you for charity, but there are not, there cannot be on earth creatures, more forlorn and pitiful than those for whom I plead.

The Hospital and Orphanage are widely known now—and I trust their influence for good is widely felt. Many sick and afflicted ones are brought to me from different sections of Virginia, and from North Carolina. Last year I ventured to beg my friends to help me raise an Endowment Fund, to keep up this hospital, crowded always, how sorely needed God only knows, after I am gone. This object is very near my heart, but I must leave it to Him, in whose Hands are the hearts of the children of men. Not mine the power, nor strength, nor means, nor responsibility of perpetuating this beautiful charity, only mine to be faithful to the end. Two thousand dollars have been invested as a nucleus for this endowment—which I can use if my necessities force me to do so. Fifty dollars will provide for one person for one year, one thousand dollars will endow a bed. There has never been a time since my Hospital was opened, that we have not had some poor young creature slowly dying of consumption, often several cases at the same time. About two months ago, a poor young girl, one of my own scholars and one of my brightest and best, came back to me. Father and mother had both died with consumption, she had been off in service vainly trying to make her own living, a wasted shadow of herself, hollow eyed with quick labored breathing, a constant hacking cough, a poor ruined girl, a little sick baby in her weak trembling arms, she came back to me. The sickly baby died in a few days, and then reason gave way, a raging maniac, singing snatches of wild songs, starting up, shrieking out with the strength of delirium, she lingered for several weeks and then God in tender mercy sent the angel, called Death, to give her rest.

Young girls with happy homes and fathers and mothers watching over you, if you so beloved, so blessed, would out of your abundance spare a few crumbs to save these hapless victims of want, and privation and tainted heredity, and such temptations as God keep you ignorant of forever, surely your pity and compassion for these forlorn and shipwrecked creatures, would lend a purer, serener brightness to those quick coming future years. And proud fathers and mothers, rejoicing over your noble sons, and fair daughters, and prattling little ones, think sometimes of these pain racked sufferers, these children homeless, fatherless, motherless, all childish joys and pleasures blighted by disease, hunger, want.

You my friends, who have watched and helped this work so many years must feel as deeply as I do, that even from its feeble incipiency His pitying Hand has rested tenderly on this poor effort to help the helpless.

OFFERTORIES FOR JANUARY.

Third Sunday—Foreign Missions.

AT A MEETING OF THE VESTRY of St. Stephen's Church, in the city of Philadelphia, held November 4th, 1895, the following preamble and resolution were adopted:

WHEREAS it has pleased God in His wise providence to take out of this world the soul of our dear brother and fellow Vestryman, Mr. William M. Stewart, we therefore desire to place upon record our testimony to the respect and confidence in which we have held him, and our sense of loss. In all his relations he was a godly man, and, having discharged his duties faithfully and borne his burdens bravely, we rejoice in the sure hope that he has gone to enjoy the rest of Paradise.

Resolved That the Secretary be requested to convey to Mr. Stewart's family our sincere sympathy, and to publish the above preamble and resolution in THE PARISH NEWS, Church Standard and The Churchman.

EDWARD ROWLAND, Secretary.

THE CLERGY OF THE PARISH wish a Happy New Year to all the people thereof.

THE RECTOR IS VERY ANXIOUS to find some one who possesses a file of the Churchman, or the Church Journal, or the Episcopal Recorder, or any Church newspapers covering the period between 1865 and 1885. He has not been able to find any of these in any library in Philadelphia or New York. It may be possible, however, that individuals who have been subscribers to these periodicals have preserved them. If such be the case, he would regard it as a very great favor to be allowed to look through them.

THERE HAS BEEN LATELY a vast amount of irresponsible talk about the matter of a possible war with England. The origin of the interest in the matter is perfectly well known to all. Ordinarily the Christian Minister need not concern himself with such questions. But there seems to be in this instance such a lack of realization of what war means, such a lightness and lack of thought in discussing the subject, that it cannot be out of place to call the attention of all sober-minded folk to the seriousness of the matter involved. Of course, it is always possible that a nation may be compelled to settle a great question by the appeal to arms. We have not yet reached the point when such an appeal is theoretically out of the question. But it ought to be evident that such a mode of settlement can only be justified when the question involved is one of life or death. Nothing will justify a nation in going to war except its own imminent peril of being destroyed. A nation is like an individual. It may become right for an individual to preserve his own life by taking the life of him who threatens it. Nothing short, however, of this will justify him. Affront, or slight, or abuse, or disregard, or even great personal loss, will not justify one man in attempting to kill another. Nothing will justify him except palpable and immediate danger. This is just as true of a nation as it is of a man. It is still more true when the question is between two Christian nations. Between two men of that sort when a difficulty arises each is expected to be patient and courteous and considerate of the other, and they are expected to exhaust all possible means of adjustment before proceeding to the ultimate one.

In the controversy between ourselves and Great Britain which is now being discussed, none of those pre-requisites have yet been fulfilled. We have been talking of "honor," and they have been talking of "rights." War cannot grow out of either of these sources without both countries going back a thousand years in their ideals. It may well be doubted whether the thing in dispute is intrinsically even a very important matter. It certainly is not very important just yet. If its settlement be left finally, as no doubt it will be, to those who know something by experience or otherwise of what war is, the solution will be a peaceful one. There are still enough men living in the United States who have seen and felt the awful wretchedness of warfare, and there are enough men of the same sort on the other side of the water, to render it unlikely in the highest degree that the cheap and tawdry talk which is now prevalent will result in embroiling two nations. The two peoples are too closely bound together in blood, in religion, in commerce, in trade, in history and in a common future, to run to the madness of attempting to cut each others' throats.

THE ANNUAL SALE held on December 5th, 6th and 7th by the Ladies of the Parish House Committee, in the Guild Room, in behalf of needy gentlewomen who send in the work, realized $748.98. This, without any charge by way of commission, etc., was handed over to the women who had placed their work on sale.

THE CHRISTMAS FESTIVAL OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL was held in the evening of St. Stephen's Day, December 26th. The large tree was beautifully decorated. The carols were joyously sung by the scholars present. Dr. McConnell made an address to the School. Miss Chandler gave several recitations, which were much appreciated. Mr. David D. Wood was present, and conducted the singing of the school, having trained the children during the Sundays in Advent. Candy, cake and oranges were distributed to all present. The Festival was a very happy one.

DURING DECEMBER 228 articles have been contributed and 71 distributed by the Garment Committee, and acknowledgments are due to Mrs. Borie, Mrs. Crombarger, Mrs. Crawford, Mrs. Sidney H. Evans, Mrs. Goforth, Mrs. Kelly, Mrs. Lineaweaver, No Name, Mrs. Reinboth, Mrs. Richardson, Miss Rodman, Miss S. Stroup, Mrs. D. Parker and Mothers' Loyal Circle, King's Daughters. A contribution of children's half-worn coats would be much appreciated.

Monday, Jan. 6—Miss Reinboth, Miss Cleemann.
" " 13—Miss Rodman, Miss Sanders.
" " 20—Miss Stoddard, Mrs. Lammot.
" " 27—Miss Sidford, Miss L. Bell.

ON SATURDAY, DECEMBER 21ST, the Infant Class had their Christmas party. Ninety children played games and sang, and then the "party" began, when all had all the sandwiches cake, ice cream and candy they wanted.

That the little ones were so perfectly happy was owing to the untiring efforts of the young ladies who so willingly gave up the afternoon to entertaining them.

Those who sent toys, cake, sandwiches, etc.: Mrs. Austin, Mrs. Arrison, Mrs. Leicester-Addis, Mrs. Barclay, Mrs. Blakley, Mrs. Borie, The Misses Bell, Mrs. Beale, Miss Borie, Mrs. Wm. B. Buck, Mrs. Brunner, Mrs. Hunter Brooke, Miss Cattell, Mrs. Chandler, Mrs. A. J Cook, Mrs. Seth Caldwell, Mr. N. DEAR MADAM:—This Ascensiontide has an added element of joy to us, in the manifestation of that Charity, which our Lord's whole life so beautifully illustrated, and which is enjoined as the crowning grace of all, —"the greatest of these is Charity."

Your Missionary Box (and such a box) has just arrived. It was detained for some time at Toledo, probably a week or more, but eleven days after the shipment I ascertained that the Pennsylvania Lines had an Agency in this city. I went to them and they put a "tracer" after it, which soon brought it to light. And it came in, a large box,—well filled,—shaken together, and running over with good things. And it came in good time to meet our present necessities—and everything will find a welcome place.

Dear Ladies of St. Stephen's, for such an expression of your love to Christ and his cause, and his weary workmen, we give you our warmest and most cordial thanks.

If, as it is said, gratitude is the fairest blossom which springs from the soul, then our souls are in beautiful blossom to-day, and may the fruitage be added sheaves in the harvest of the Master.

We had hardly gotten the box out of the way, when the postman brought us your second special gift, the beautiful stole. It is perfectly lovely. I fear I shall be tempted to wear it all the time. And every time I do wear it, you may be sure it will be a perpetual reminder of the generous and loving hearts of St. Stephen's.

I must tell you about my little grand-boy, eight years old. He was very animated, helping to hand the things out of the box, when he espied the little suit. "Oh, he said here is a suit for me." And sure enough it was just his fit,—and when he found a nickel in one of the pockets, he felt as though he had a personal friend in Philadelphia.

Dear Ladies, it will always be our fervent prayer that "the blessing of God Almighty may be amongst you, and remain with you always."

SUBJECTS FOR THE Wednesday Evening Lectures for the coming month:

Wed., Jan. 8—The Lame Walk. St. Mark 2: 12.
" " 15—The Lepers are Cleansed. St. Mark 1: 32-45.
" " 22—The Deaf Hear. St. Mark 7: 31-37.
" " 29—Blind receive their Sight. St. Matt. 20: 25.

A FEW WEEKS AGO, the Rector called the attention of the Congregation to the fact that the pledges made in 1894 had been mislaid, and asked all who had made such pledges to renew them on the new form, copies of which could always be obtained at the Church door. Some have not yet complied with this request. Your compliance with this very reasonable request is greatly desired, as it will materially aid your Rector and Vestry in the proper financing of the Church work. Those wishing the Church's prosperity and are willing to contribute toward its support, can have no valid objection to renewing their pledge in the new form.

THE CHOIR CONCERT mentioned last month has been definitely decided upon, and will be held on February 6th, at 8 P. M., in the Sunday School room. Cards of admission will be 25 cents and can be obtained, after January 22nd, from any member of the Choir, or at the door on the Concert evening.

The purpose of this entertainment is to raise funds for the purchase of music to be used at the Church services. Heretofore the Choir has been self sustaining, all music being bought with money voluntarily subscribed by its members and the receipts from entertainments. It is their wish to continue in this spirit of independence and relieve the Church of any expense for this purpose.

To members of our Parish no comment is necessary, but to our friends of St. Stephen's Parish we extend a cordial invitation to be present and can promise a pleasant evening.

THE CHILDREN'S CHRISTMAS FESTIVAL and Christmas Tree was a decided success. The children enjoyed it and so did the older people. The children sang their carols beautifully, and afterwards went into the Sunday School Room, where there was awaiting them a lovely Christmas Tree and Santa Claus to distribute the presents. Santa Claus was happy, the children were happy, the teachers were happy, everybody was happy and in a good humor. Long may the light of Christmas shine in our hearts, and the Christ Child never lose his power!

The joyful Christmas is past and the time of work is at hand. There has been for the past few weeks a small attendance in all the Church Societies. This has been attributed to the unusual demands Christmas makes upon our time. But Christmas is past, work is at hand for every one. Let us work!

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS wish to thank the Congregation of the Holy Comforter for their liberal response to its appeal on behalf of the poor, just before Christmas.

THE RECTOR AND VESTRY HAVE ADOPTED the following address and form of pledge, which will be distributed generally throughout the Parish:

The purpose of the Church of Christ is to keep His Gospel always before men. It tries to make them Christ-like by the methods which He has ordained, the Word, Sacraments, and Prayers. This involves expenses. It is expected, both by the Church and the world, that every congregation of Christian people will pay its own bills. There may be good reason why it may be for a time unable to do this—but only for a time. It offers to the people of the community where it is a very valuable thing. It takes for granted that every man and woman who takes advantage of this offer will pay for it according as they are able. It does not believe that any one wishes to go to Church as a pauper, living on the gifts of others.

The Church of the Holy Comforter wishes to serve you and your children in Christ's way. It asks you, in return, to pledge what you think right for the Church. It may be much, or it may be little, but it ought to be something. Whatever you may do will be known only to God, to yourself, and to the Rector and Treasurer of the Parish.

I. Fill the blanks in the accompanying pledge with your name, address, and the amount you are willing to give weekly for all religious purposes together.

II. Place the Pledge thus filled in the plate at any collection. Envelopes for one year will be sent to you at once.

III. In consideration of this Pledge, the Church assures the giver that no further call will be made upon him during the year for any purpose whatever. Of course, anything additional which he may choose to give will be received and applied as he may designate.

IV. At any service place the amount of your weekly pledge in the plate. Never give the money which you have pledged except in an envelope.

V. No one but the Rector and the Accounting Warden will know the amount of your pledge.

VI. The amount received will be paid out in the following order:

(1) Necessary expenses—as fuel, light, sexton, repairs, etc.
(2) Salary of Minister in charge.
(3) Music.
(4) Sunday School.
(5) The balance will be divided among Diocesan, Domestic and Foreign Missions.

OFFERTORIES FOR FEBRUARY.

Third Sunday—Diocesan Missions.
Fourth " —Sunday Schools.

THE THIRD SUNDAY IN FEBRUARY is the date of the Annual Collection for Diocesan Missions. The method of making this offering is so well known in the Parish, that it would hardly seem to need any further explanation. In the sermon on the second Sunday morning in February, the condition and needs of the work of the Church in this Diocese will be carefully considered and laid before the people, as it has been done in previous years. During the following week a representative of the Parish will call at the house of every family to receive his contribution. This contribution will be placed in the Alms Basins at the Offertory on the morning of the third Sunday, February 16th.

It has been for ten years the custom of the Parish to make this offering as nearly as may be $5.00 for each member of the congregation. Of course, there is not and cannot be anything compulsory about the matter. Each one will do what he thinks right. This has been, however, the standard which has not only been aimed at, but which has been practically secured. Of course, there are many persons who cannot afford to give so much, and ought not to try to do so, but, on the other hand, there are many who can give twice or five times the amount, and who have shown in the past that they are ready and willing to do so. The Rector would especially ask that the members of the Congregation would have their offering ready, so that the agent of the Parish may be able to receive it when he calls, without waiting and without being compelled to call several times.

LAST LENT A DAILY SERVICE and address was held in the Church, beginning at 12.30 and ending promptly at five minutes before one o'clock. Those services were under the management and direction of the St. Andrew's Brotherhood of the Diocese. Those who attended them will remember both the numbers, and the interest which marked them last year. About twenty thousand people in all attended them last Lent. The attendance varied from four hundred and fifty to eight hundred and fifty every day, by actual and careful count. It is expected to repeat the same services this coming Lent. The arrangement of preachers and topics will be seen in the scheme below. There is only one name that is possibly not known to any of the congregation, and that is that of the Rev. Mr. Aitken. Mr. Aitken is a clergyman of the Church of England, who has once or twice before visited this country as a missioner. In the services which he conducted in Old Trinity Church, New York, the building was crowded to the doors every day by the busy men from about the lower part of Broadway. The effect of his very remarkable addresses is felt to this day, and will be felt by many through all time.

Schedule of Lenten Services, under the Auspices of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, at St. Stephen's Church:

Come: BRING a friend!

THE CONFIRMATION INSTRUCTIONS will be given during Lent at the 5 o'clock services Wednesdays and Fridays, and a Confirmation class will also be gathered in the Vestry room on Wednesday evenings at 7.45 o'clock. We have spoken so often about the nature and obligation of Confirmation that there seems little more to be said. In fact, there is nothing more to be said. There is, however, something to be done. Any man or woman who has come to mature age, and who wishes goodness rather than badness for himself and for the world in which he lives, is certainly called upon to join that society—the Church—which is the only organization in the world which exists for the sake of building up goodness. The requirements are very simple, as simple, indeed, as they could possibly be made. The door of Church membership is open to any one who can say that he believes the Apostle's Creed, and can further say that he wishes and intends, by the help of God, to lead a sober, righteous and godly life. If there be any such person who has not been confirmed, the question for him to ask himself is not "Why should I do this thing?" but "What possible ground of exemption have I from this duty?"

THE ANNUAL CHURCHWOMEN'S CONFERENCE will be held on the Second Thursday in Lent, Feb. 27th, 1896, at the Church House, Walnut and 12th Sts. Morning session at 10.30 o'clock. The Bishop of the Diocese will open the Conference.

IN THE REPORT of the Children's Friend Society of last month, the account of the Christmas Festival arranged for the little ones was unintentionally omitted, much to the regret of those most interested in the good work of the Society. The ladies' by means of the generous donations of contributors and friends, provided a delightful entertainment and over 250 children received a present, either of clothing or toys. Miss Perkins, violinist, and Miss Bessie Wilder, pianist, kindly assisted in the entertainment. Mr. Hall, always the friend of the children, helped greatly to make a happy time for the little ones.

DONATIONS RECEIVED by the Children's Friend Society in January: from Mrs. Moody, $1.00; contributing members, Mrs. Joseph Reinboth, $1.00; Mrs. C. P. Stratton, $1.00; Total, $3.00.

Any one can be a Contributing Member of the Society for $1.00 a year. This will help to entertain little children and take them on excursions in the summer.

MISS RODMAN has received during the month of January, from Mrs. Cornish, $3.00; afternoon S. S. Class, $4.00; from Miss Stevenson, a package of cards.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the (Whatsoever Circle) will have their meeting February 5th and February 19th, in the Guild room at half-past seven o'clock.

The King's Daughters have given out this month five pairs of shoes to those in great need.

January the 8th, the King's Daughters from the Church of the Holy Comforter, West Philadelphia, spent the evening with our Circle. All enjoyed the evening very much and hope to repeat it soon again.

DONATIONS FOR THE St. Stephen's Aid Society were received from: Mrs. McConnell, Mrs. J. F. Breuil, Mrs. Webster Fox, Miss Christopher, Mrs. Moody, Anonymous. They are all donations of clothing.

THE CHOIR DESIRES to thank the King's Daughters of the Parish for new Cottas.

WE HAVE FELT for some time that a mothers' meeting would be of great benefit and usefulness in our Parish. As soon as the proper person can be secured, one will be organized.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS will give an Entertainment in the Sunday School building of the Church on Tuesday evening, February 18th, for the purpose of increasing the funds of their Band. Mrs. Richards will have charge of the Entertainment, which insures that it will be a thoroughly enjoyable and delightful affair.

THE APPEAL OF THE RECTOR and Vestry made in the January issue, in reference to renewal of pledges (from subscribers whose pledges made in 1894 had been mislaid), has met with some response, and it is desired that those who have not complied with the request will do so at their earliest convenience.

ON JANUARY 2ND Miss Edith Taylor entertained her Sunday School class at her home. Games, music and refreshments were in evidence until a late hour, and the class, together with twenty-five little friends, spent a very enjoyable evening. Miss Taylor's class numbers fifteen, and is the largest in the main school.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL is to be congratulated upon its growth in the last three months. From an attendance of fifty-five in October it has grown to an average attendance of about ninety-five. We will not be satisfied with less than one hundred and fifty by Easter, for which teachers and scholars are earnestly working.

THE CHURCH CONGREGATION has steadily increased both in numbers and in earnestness. We are not only glad to note the increased attendance, but also that they not only wish to avail themselves of the privilege of Church worship, but that they wish to help the Church's work. This is the best sign we have noted. No Christian should long content himself with simply coming to the Church's services. He should be a doer as well as a hearer of the Word. It is doing the will of God that makes us acceptable to Him.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE CHOIR CONCERT, to be given on the evening of Thursday, February 6th, are well under way. The program will include Solos, Duets, Quartets, Glees and Tableaux. The services of Miss Burdette, a Soprano of marked ability and voice, have been secured, and will be accompanied by Prof. D. D. Wood, Organist of St. Stephen's Church. Negotiations are pending with other talent, but it is not possible at this time to give particulars; it may be said, however, that our Choir Master, Mr. John Arkroyd, has spared nothing in his efforts to make the entertainment perfect in every detail. Cards of admission are twenty-five cents, and can be obtained from any member of the Choir, or at the door on the Concert evening.

THE RECTOR AND VESTRY HAVE ADOPTED the following address and form of pledge, which will be distributed generally throughout the Parish:

The purpose of the Church of Christ is to keep His Gospel always before men. It tries to make them Christ-like by the methods which He has ordained, the Word, Sacraments, and Prayers. This involves expenses. It is expected, both by the Church and the world, that every congregation of Christian people will pay its own bills. There may be good reason why it may be for a time unable to do this—but only for a time. It offers to the people of the community where it is a very valuable thing. It takes for granted that every man and woman who takes advantage of this offer will pay for it according as they are able. It does not believe that any one wishes to go to Church as a pauper, living on the gifts of others.

The Church of the Holy Comforter wishes to serve you and your children in Christ's way. It asks you, in return, to pledge what you think right for the Church. It may be much, or it may be little, but it ought to be something. Whatever you may do will be known only to God, to yourself, and to the Rector and Treasurer of the Parish.

I. Fill the blanks in the accompanying pledge with your name, address, and the amount you are willing to give weekly for all religious purposes together.

II. Place the Pledge thus filled in the plate at any collection. Envelopes for one year will be sent to you at once.

III. In consideration of this Pledge, the Church assures the giver that no further call will be made upon him during the year for any purpose whatever. Of course, anything additional which he may choose to give will be received and applied as he may designate.

IV. At any service place the amount of your weekly pledge in the plate. Never give the money which you have pledged except in an envelope.

V. No one but the Rector and the Accounting Warden will know the amount of your pledge.

VI. The amount received will be paid out in the following order:

(1) Necessary expenses—as fuel, light, sexton, repairs, etc.
(2) Salary of Minister in charge.
(3) Music.
(4) Sunday School.
(5) The balance will be divided among Diocesan, Domestic and Foreign Missions.

SELECTIONS.

THE WHOLE OF LIFE IS A BUILDING up; a saying of single things, single deeds, single thoughts, one upon another, until they make the whole structure. We talk of a man's founding a fortune; of building up an education or a position in society; of sights and words that are "edifying," which means simply that they help to build up, or to strengthen, our minds or souls or artistic powers, and so on.

When our poet said: "All are architects of Fate, building on the walls of Time," he meant that every action of every man adds something to the great structure of human life. Every deed and word is a stone, good or bad, firm or crumbling, going to make up the most important building in the universe—human character.

And in all this building, which is going on around us and in us, day by day, the first thing to look at and to be careful of, is the foundation. We must start aright; with the true purpose and motive, or the deeds built up above it will not hold together.—C. L. P.

SINS OF OMISSION.

It isn't the thing you do, dear,
  It's the thing you leave undone,
That gives you a bit of heartache
  At the setting of the sun.
The tender word forgotten,
  The letter you did not write,
The flower you did not send, dear,
  Are your haunting ghosts at night.

The stone you might have lifted
  Out of a brother's way;
The bit of heartsome counsel
  You were hurried too much to say;
The loving touch of the hand, dear,
  The gentle, winning tone,
Which you had no time nor thought for,
  With troubles enough of your own.

Those little acts of kindness,
  So easily out of mind,
Those chances to be angels
  Which we poor mortals find;
They come in night and silence,
  Each sad, reproachful wraith,
When hope is faint and flagging,
  And a chill has fallen on faith.

For life is all too short, dear,
  And sorrow is all too great,
To suffer our slow compassion,
  That tarries until too late;
And it isn't the thing you do, dear,
  It's the thing you leave undone,
Which gives you a bit of heartache
  At the setting of the sun.

The following statement recently appeared in Public Opinion:

"A good showing is made by the so-called Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States. Over 4,000 clergy, 550,000 communicants, and nearly 2,000,000 baptized persons; over 100,000 confirmed—this is a very fair result in the way of increase during the year. Besides, there are nearly five hundred candidates for Holy Orders, and the records show an increase of income amounting to $2,000,000. The general growth of the Church far exceeds proportionally that of the population at large, or of any other religious section of it in particular. It looks like the Church of the Future."

IN RESIGNING THE RECTORSHIP of St. Stephen's the Rector has hesitated greatly as to whether he should or should not attempt to state publicly his reasons therefor. In a matter where one's own personal life is so closely involved, he cannot very well speak about it without an appearance of offensive egotism. On the other hand it does not seem right that one should go away from friends so good and true without saying why. In general, the reasons may be summed up in the statement that the work which is necessary to keep prosperous and useful a parish so numerous and at the same time so widely scattered as this one, has become so laborious that he is not able to do it. On the Parish Record, and among the regular attendants are thirty-five families in West Philadelphia, twenty-five scattered about through Germantown and Chestnut Hill, five in Camden, three in Merchantville, three in Haddonfield, and others in Overbrook, Bala, Merion and Bryn Mawr, and from 3500 North to 2000 South on the city streets. Out of nearly seven hundred families, less than fifty live east of Broad street. This will explain the Rector's weariness so far as outward conditions are concerned. For another side of the case he ventures to quote from an all too kind but true editorial in the Church Standard of a week ago:

"We are not authorized to state any of Dr. McConnell's reasons for resigning the Rectorship of St. Stephen's, to accept that of Holy Trinity, Brooklyn; but we venture to believe that there is one cause of such changes as this, which does not readily suggest itself to the lay mind. A man goes into a great parish in vigor of youthful manhood, full of physical energy and intellectual activity. After a while he has set things in motion and has so established them that they need only to be kept up. He sees further things which might be done, but the doing of which depends upon others rather than himself, and which others are not prepared to join with him in accomplishing. Consequently, so far as the activities of the Church are concerned, there grows upon him in the course of years a feeling that the work which he was sent to do is done, and that while another man might carry it on, or even develop it in ways of which he has not thought, his own peculiar faculties and his enlarged experience may be more usefully applied in some other place. This state of mind is very different from that of mere willful restlessness. It springs from a dutiful recognition of facts and from the painful acceptance of a logical inference.

"Besides, a man of active intellect is often oppressed by a feeling which never disturbs the pleasing self-satisfaction of lesser men. It was the feeling which distressed Phillips Brooks, the painful feeling that his preaching is beginning to lack freshness, that he is constantly repeating himself, and consequently that his pulpit ministrations are less edifying than they ought to be; while the same ministrations, if addressed to a different congregation, might be more useful. We have known several men, but only men of high distinction, who have been depressed and almost oppressed by a feeling of that kind; and notwithstanding the fact that their congregations were both deeply and gratefully appreciative of the privileges which they enjoyed, the feeling itself was not unreasonable. After all, every man however great, has his own cycle of thought, and the extent to which he can give expression to it is determined, not only by his own powers, but also, and very largely, by the congregation he addresses. With the same congregation always before him, it is nearly certain that the time will come when he must think that he has preached himself out; and that in delivering the same message to a different congregation, he should not only have the stimulus of feeling the freshness of the old message when delivered to the new flock, but might also in a new church find new lines both of thought and address. Whether rightly or wrongly, the feeling does come to preachers of superior ability. When it comes, it brings with it a sense of weariness against which the man struggles in vain; and as a wise physician often prescribes a change of scene or of occupation as the only remedy for physical fatigue, so, in a case like this, a change of the pastoral connection may be indicated as the indispensable condition upon which the man shall be enabled to do his best work.

"We do not say that these considerations have in any way entered into Dr. McConnell's thoughts in forming his resolution to remove from Philadelphia to Brooklyn. We mention them, nevertheless, both because we think it likely that they may have had some influence with him, and because we know that the congregation of St. Stephen's and his other friends in Philadelphia, while they will not easily reconcile themselves to his decision, will wish to be able to reconcile it with the long-continued and devoted attachment which has existed between him and them."

As the Missionary Box Society no longer exists as a separate organization, but has been included in the Aid Society, it may be well to review its work in the past.

The Society was established in 1866–67, and its records show that during a period of twenty-eight years, that is from 1867 to 1895 inclusive, it has sent out 197 boxes. These, together with other special gifts, are valued at $17,523.48.

This does not include the work of the present year, and it is hoped that under the new conditions the standard will not be lowered.

The Managers of the Benevolent Society will hold, on Thursday, March 5th, at 10 o'clock A. M., a sale of garments made under their direction by the poor women to whom they give sewing. These garments are especially suitable to be given to the poor and to the charitable institutions of the city.

The Garment Committee report having received 60 garments during February, and have distributed 39. Acknowledgments for contributions are due to Mrs. Atmore, Miss Atmore, Mrs. Hine, King's Daughters, Mrs. Lundy, Miss Lundy, Mrs. Molloy, the Misses Magee, Mrs. J. P. H. Evans 75 cents, Master Homer Evans 25 cents, Mrs. Anna M. Kelly 25 cents. Dues are now owing for the year 1896. One pair of shoes from Miss Maud Wetherley. Three pairs of shoes from a kind friend. The King's Daughters have given out in February three pairs of shoes, two pairs of over-shoes, also clothing to a poor family.

The Committee on Lenten Sewing meets every Monday and Thursday to cut out garments for the Hospitals, Homes, Missions and the poor. There have been distributed over 700 garments each Easter season, giving comfort to many needy persons, and help to many charitable institutions in the city. The Committee will be glad of any contributions of money or goods. The garments to be made can be taken out after any week-day service.

WHO SHOULD BE CONFIRMED? Only two questions are asked any person wishing to be confirmed in the Episcopal Church. The first is, do you believe the truths contained in the Creed? The second is, are you going to try to lead a Godly life? Any person who can honestly say yes to these two questions is not only ready to be confirmed, but it is his duty to be confirmed.

The only condition is the desire to be Christ's disciple and the will to try to be like Him. The docile spirit to be taught of Christ, is enough to begin with. Christ says, "Come, follow me." All who desire to do so, have only to arise and come. To cluster around him as our head and king, and to obey Him that we may become like Him is Christianity.

Any one as he hears of Christ and reads about Him, and finds himself desiring to be like Him, and willing to cast in his fortunes with Christ's fortunes, is ready to confess Christ openly before men.

While upon earth Christ drew His Disciples from the outcasts and the most moral classes. Magdalene from the outcasts; Peter and Andrew from the most moral. He asked no questions about their past. He asked no questions about their character. Some of them had no past save one of shame. He offers them a future full of glory. They had no character; they came to Him to get character; the weak to be made strong; the bewildered to get light; the doubting to get faith; the despairing to get hope; the empty to be made full; the mourners to get comfort; the lost to be saved! And it is still so To feel the need of Christ, to have the desire to be like Christ, to have the will to try to obey Him; constitute the sole requirements for Christian discipleship. This is the first step, but it is only the first step. Many more remain to be taken. Much more remains to be learned and done in the stern education of life as we work out our own salvation with fear and trembling.

THE HOLY COMFORTER CIRCLE of King's Daughters, wish to thank the Beta Psi Society for the delightful and successful dramatic entertainment, given on Tuesday, Feb. 18. A goodly sum was realized. The Sunday-school building was packed by an appreciative audience, who thoroughly enjoyed the comedy from the beginning to the end, and were at times rapturous in applause. Seldom have amateurs shown such skill and so little crudeness in their acting. Long life and much success to the Beta Psi Society!

THE THANKS OF Mr. John Arkroyd and the Choir are heartily extended to the following ladies and gentlemen for the able assistance rendered at the Concert held on February 6th: Misses Burdette, Sproule, Robb, Sanderson and Edith Taylor, and Prof. D. D. Wood, Messrs. Mellor, B. Wood, Devine, F. Broadbent, H. Broadbent, Jenkinson Frankenfield and Harbert Hamilton.

THE CHOIR CONCERT was held on Thursday evening, February 6th, as announced. There could hardly have been a worse night for an entertainment, yet over one hundred were present. The audience was appreciative, the applause generous, and every one, it is believed, spent a pleasant evening.

In addition to solos, duets and quartets, the Choir sang five glees, all of which were given with precision and perfect expression. One of the best, "The Vesper Hymn" was marred by the storm, for the hidden chorus could scarcely be heard above the wind that fairly howled around the building.

Last, and by no means least, came eleven beautiful tableaux by the young ladies of the Church, under the direction of Miss Sproule.

Mr. John Arkroyd is to be congratulated for the admirable programme presented and for the fine work done by the Choir under his direction.

THE RECTOR AND VESTRY HAVE ADOPTED the following address and form of pledge, which will be distributed generally throughout the Parish:

The purpose of the Church of Christ is to keep His Gospel always before men. It tries to make them Christ-like by the methods which He has ordained, the Word, Sacraments, and Prayers. This involves expenses. It is expected, both by the Church and the world, that every congregation of Christian people will pay its own bills. There may be good reason why it may be for a time unable to do this—but only for a time. It offers to the people of the community where it is a very valuable thing. It takes for granted that every man and woman who takes advantage of this offer will pay for it according as they are able. It does not believe that any one wishes to go to Church as a pauper, living on the gifts of others.

The Church of the Holy Comforter wishes to serve you and your children in Christ's way. It asks you, in return, to pledge what you think right for the Church. It may be much, or it may be little, but it ought to be something. Whatever you may do will be known only to God, to yourself, and to the Rector and Treasurer of the Parish.

I. Fill the blanks in the accompanying pledge with your name, address, and the amount you are willing to give weekly for all religious purposes together.

II. Place the Pledge thus filled in the plate at any collection. Envelopes for one year will be sent to you at once.

III. In consideration of this Pledge, the Church assures the giver that no further call will be made upon him during the year for any purpose whatever. Of course, anything additional which he may choose to give will be received and applied as he may designate.

IV. At any service place the amount of your weekly pledge in the plate. Never give the money which you have pledged except in an envelope.

V. No one but the Rector and the Accounting Warden will know the amount of your pledge.

VI. The amount received will be paid out in the following order:

(1) Necessary expenses—as fuel, light, sexton, repairs, etc.
(2) Salary of Minister in Charge.
(3) Music.
(4) Sunday School.
(5) The balance will be divided among Diocesan, Domestic and Foreign Missions.

SELECTIONS.

MEN AND MONEY.

"Herein," says Mr. Ruskin, "is the test with every man, whether money is the principal object with him or not. If in midlife he could pause and say, 'Now I have enough to live upon. I will live upon it, and having well earned it, I will also well spend it, and go out of the world poor as I came into it,' then money is not principal with him; but if, having enough to live upon in the manner befitting his character and rank, he still wants to make more, and to die rich, then money is the principal object with him, and it becomes a curse to himself and generally to those who spend it after him. For you know it must be spent some day; the only question is whether the man who makes it shall spend it or some one else, and generally it is better for the maker to spend it, for he will know best its value and use. This is the true law of life."

I have seen a picture of Niagara in which a group of visitors in the foreground was so large that one could scarcely see the falls. Some men are like photographers who always take their pictures so. Whatever the scene may be, self is always in the front, larger than anything else which the picture has to show.

OFFERTORIES FOR APRIL.

EASTER DAY—Special offerings.
Second Sunday—Easter Carol Service. Home for Crippled Children.
Third Sunday—Society of Increase of Ministry.
Last Sunday—General Charities.

THE FAMILY OF THE LATE MR. JAMES MAGEE have been for years adding to the treasury of memorials in St. Stephen's Church. Those which they have placed there are things of beauty, and will be joys forever. The Parish is called upon once again to express its obligation to the same donors for a new and most beautiful Tablet erected to one of their ancestors, a signer of the Declaration of Independence. This Tablet has been for many years in Independence Hall, and was removed from there in consequence of the changes being made in that venerable edifice. It seems fitting in every way that it should find its permanent resting place in the walls of St. Stephen's Church.

ON EASTER DAY THE SERVICES will be at eight o'clock, eleven o'clock and four o'clock. At the two latter services the pew-holders and regular members of the Congregation will be admitted as usual through the north transept door. The front doors will be opened promptly at the hour of the service itself, and the visitors will be provided with seats to the full capacity of the Church.

It seems rather an inhospitable mode of action, but upon reflection it will commend itself to all reasonable people. It is but right and fair that those who attend the services all the other days of the year, should have an opportunity to occupy their own seats on the great high festival, and that those who only visit the Church upon such occasions should be asked to wait upon the convenience of the regular attendants.

THE OFFERTORY ON EASTER DAY will be for whatever purpose each particular giver may mark his offering. If he will place it in the plate with a card saying for what charity or benevolence he wishes it to be used, it will be so applied. Any which is not so marked will be distributed by the Rector at his best discretion among the various charitable enterprises of the Church. There are at least two reasons why this offertory should be large. The first is because it is to be made upon Easter Day and ought to bear some proportion to the value which each giver places upon the hope of his own resurrection, which has come to him through the work of Jesus Christ. The second reason is a practical one. The charitable and benevolent work of the Church costs money; a good deal of money. There are many willing hands who are ready to do the work, but they cannot do it and furnish the money also. After Easter there always follow a number of months, during the summer, when the income from offerings is relatively little. It is desirable in every way that the treasuries of the various societies should be left with enough in them to carry forward their work, so that their beneficiaries will not be called upon to suffer.

THE NOON-DAY LENTEN SERVICES for the last six weeks have been in many ways very remarkable. It is to be doubted whether as many people have ever been inside of a church in this city within the same period of time. The Church has been full, and more than full at every service. How much good they may have done no one can tell. There are a few who always attend such services from an insatiable appetite to hear addresses. Probably they might be better men and women if they should hear less preaching and do more practicing. But this class of persons is relatively small. The great majority of those who have attended have listened to the word of God with an honest heart, in order that they may practice it in their lives. It must be that many among these have been mightily helped forward in the better way. The men of the St. Andrew's Brotherhood, who have had charge of the services, are in every way to be congratulated upon the efficiency and success of their arrangements.

THE EASTER CAROL SERVICE of the Sunday School, Parish School and Burd Orphan Asylum will be held on Sunday after Easter, at 4 o'clock. The offerings will be received for the Home for Crippled Children.

THE LAST MEETING of the St. Stephen's Aid Society was held on Friday, March 27th. Over 350 garments have been made during the winter meetings, and are ready for distribution. Three Missionary boxes were also completed, and sent to their destination on March 30th.

THE GARMENT COMMITTEE report having received 91 garments during March, and have distributed 102.

Contributions are gratefully acknowledged, as follows: from Mrs. Arrison, Mrs. C. H. Colket, Miss Christopher, Mrs. Cornish, Miss Bessie Clayton, Mrs. Crombarger, Mrs. Fenton, James Greer, Mrs. Hine, Mrs. Johns, Mrs. Judson, Mrs. Lammot, Miss Livingston, Mrs. Maulsby, Mrs. S. Weir Mitchell, Mrs. Muirheid, Mrs. Newlin, No Name, Miss Florence Pancoast and Mrs. Stratton.

There has been so great a demand for underwear of all kinds for men and women, particularly in the matter of undervests, that contributions of those articles will be appreciated, in readiness for another season.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY TO THE BOARD OF MISSIONS.

THE UNITED OFFERING OF 1898.

The Woman's Auxiliary has marked three Triennials with a United Offering. In 1889 it gave $2,000, with one-half of which to build the first church (Christ Church, Anvik) in our Alaska Mission, and with the other to send a new Missionary to Japan. In 1892 it added $20,000 to the Enrolment Fund. In 1895 it gave $56,000 to endow the Episcopate in a Missionary Jurisdiction. In 1898 it hopes to bring a still larger sum, and entrust it to the care of the Board of Missions, for the training and support of women workers in the Mission fields of the Church.

In the offering of 1895 every Diocese and Missionary Jurisdiction had a share, varying from $8,000, given by New York, to $5 received from West Africa. In the offering of 1898 we wish that not only every Diocese and Missionary Jurisdiction should be represented, but every Parish and Mission also. We ask all Diocesan Officers to bring the matter before all Parish Officers, and they, in turn, before the members of the Parish Branches. Then we ask that women interested speak of it to women uninterested; that from Diocese to Diocese, from Parish to Parish, from Mission to Mission, the impulse may be handed on. And as with the Woman's Auxiliary, so so with its Junior Department, even to the newest member of the Babies' Branch; we would have no individual left unappealed to, who claims connection with the Missionary Society, which is the Church.

From the Church Missions House, Mite Boxes for the United Offering and copies of this leaflet will be sent to all who ask for them. These boxes are for the daily penny, the weekly dime—for any conscientious, systematic gift which the owner of the box may feel able to make. The boxes should be opened in September of the three succeeding years, 1896, 1897 and 1898, and the contents sent to some Officer of the Auxiliary within the Diocese, appointed to receive them.

Will you not send for these boxes soon, and begin this ingathering without delay? And with the box, will you not use the prayer inscribed upon it? Then October, 1898, may see, not only an abounding united gift of gold and silver, but a free and loving offering of women of the Auxiliary, giving themselves to Mission work for Christ and His Holy Church.

JULIA C. EMERY,
Secretary.

Church Missions House, 281 Fourth Avenue, New York.

In the last three years Pennsylvania gave $6,560.60, and in the next three years she hopes to double it.

THE MITE BOXES can be obtained after any of the daily services from the Sexton, who will take the names and address of those taking the boxes, and report to Miss Magee, 1720 Walnut Street, Treasurer.

THE RECEIPTS from the Choir Concert given February 6th were $43.50; expenses, $14.90, leaving net amount of $28.60 for the Choir Fund. This is a remarkable showing when the stormy night of the Concert is considered.

AN ABSTRACT from the Warden's Annual Report shows that for the fiscal year ending April 2nd, 1896, the receipts from all sources were $1,830.23, and expenditures $1,753.34. The Parish Record for the same period shows—25 baptisms, 1 marriage, 12 burials. There are 83 communicants on the Record.

DURING THE MONTH OF APRIL, the two things of most importance to the Parish will be an Entertainment, given by the children of the Sunday School for the purpose of buying a blackboard for the Infant Class. The management of it will be in the hands of the teacher of the Infant Class, Miss Sproule. Price of admission will be ten cents. The date cannot at this time be definitely fixed, but it will be some time about the middle or last of the month.

THE OTHER EVENT OF INTEREST to the Parish will be a social gathering of its members in the Sunday School to spend a social evening together, for the purpose of becoming better acquainted the one with the other. The Societies of the Parish will be the hosts on this occasion.

CHRIST AND HIS WORK is summed up in one word, the Resurrection. For him to accomplish this work in us three factors are necessary: (1) Time, (2) Faith, (3) a New Birth. His work is to be a gradual work. As he seeth the Father work, so he works, gradually, slowly, but effectually. His birth into the world is the descending of a higher kingdom of life into that just beneath it, to lift it up. This work has been going on gradually for the last nineteen hundred years. This is the aeon of the world's birth pangs into Christianity, into Christ's Kingdom of Life. The march of humanity is slowly but steadily setting towards that far off divine event toward which all creation moves. The goal of that far off divine event is attained in the gift of immortality, the birth into Christ's Kingdom of Life. But immediately the thoughtful person answers, what good will this do me? I will not live to see this dream of immortality. In a few years at most I will have had my day and ceased to be. I will have descended into the realm of the dead. What reason should I have to rejoice in the possible immortality of the Race, if I, the individual, be left behind and perish by the wayside? I reply, if you the individual perish by the wayside and be left behind, you have no reason to rejoice whatsoever. Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die. But our Lord, in virtue of belonging to a higher Kingdom of Life than ours, being a spirit of larger discourse, looking before and after, claims to know (1), That Death is not destruction to you, the individual; (2), That he has the power to recall us to life and reinstate us in the Life of the Human Race. He demonstrated this power again and again.

But the most knotty factor remains. It is Faith. It is that which most seriously and vitally concerns us. The work can only proceed for us, the individual, as we personally exercise that Faith, by means of which this New Birth is brought about.

A temporary refusal to exercise this Faith retards the Birth into his Kingdom. An eternal refusal to do this would mean an eternal abiding in the Kingdom of Sin and Death. And so Christ stands upon the threshold of our Kingdom of Life, saying I can take you, weak, sinful man, purify you, and lift you up into my Kingdom of Life. Do you believe I can do this? Will you obey me? I must have a complete surrender of your will, affections, life and property. What I say do, you must make your utmost effort to do. Where I say go, you must make your utmost effort to go. I must be your King or nothing. You must work in my kingdom or I can not save you. If you do so, I pledge you my utmost power and I will never forsake you. Though you die a hundred times, not a hair of your head shall be injured. This is the Faith Christ asks of us, and is the fusion-point of our souls with the spirit of Christ. It is the Virgin womb in which is born the spiritual man. When St. Paul triumphantly exclaimed: "I no longer live, but Christ lives in me," Christ's resurrecting work was nigh finished in St. Paul. Faith is the supreme effort of lifting ourselves into Christ's Kingdom of Life, but finding ourselves far short of the goal, cries, "God be merciful to me a sinner." The grace of God is the descending Christ meeting us and lifting us up into the realm of the Blessed, called Heaven. This is the Resurrection.

THE RECTOR AND VESTRY HAVE ADOPTED the following address and form of pledge, which will be distributed generally throughout the Parish:

The purpose of the Church of Christ is to keep His Gospel always before men. It tries to make them Christ-like by the methods which He has ordained, the Word, Sacraments, and Prayers. This involves expenses. It is expected, both by the Church and the world, that every congregation of Christian people will pay its own bills. There may be good reason why it may be for a time unable to do this—but only for a time. It offers to the people of the community where it is a very valuable thing. It takes for granted that every man and woman who takes advantage of this offer will pay for it according as they are able. It does not believe that any one wishes to go to Church as a pauper, living on the gifts of others.

The Church of the Holy Comforter wishes to serve you and your children in Christ's way. It asks you, in return, to pledge what you think right for the Church. It may be much, or it may be little, but it ought to be something. Whatever you may do will be known only to God, to yourself, and to the Rector and Treasurer of the Parish.

I. Fill the blanks in the accompanying pledge with your name, address, and the amount you are willing to give weekly for all religious purposes together.

II. Place the Pledge thus filled in the plate at any collection. Envelopes for one year will be sent to you at once.

III. In consideration of this Pledge, the Church assures the giver that no further call will be made upon him during the year for any purpose whatever. Of course, anything additional which he may choose to give will be received and applied as he may designate.

IV. At any service place the amount of your weekly pledge in the plate. Never give the money which you have pledged except in an envelope.

V. No one but the Rector and the Accounting Warden will know the amount of your pledge.

VI. The amount received will be paid out in the following order:

(1) Necessary expenses—as fuel, light, sexton, repairs, etc.
(2) Salary of Minister in Charge.
(3) Music.
(4) Sunday School.
(5) The balance will be divided among Diocesan, Domestic and Foreign Missions.

EASTER.

White Day!
Our thoughts turn back to thee, drawn
By the brightness of thy rays' clear
Shining: e'en through much gloom
Of intervening years.

Whiteness thy fitting
Emblem—oh, Day triumphant, with Great victory of sacrifice so pure
And free, death were a bond too
Weak to hold it!

The cross no more of Shame and death the symbol, but Garlanded with flowers and lifted
High above the world.

We bend the knee:
To Thee, the risen Christ, our Adoration bring.

President and Secretary.—Miss Stoddard.

Meets Wednesdays at 2 P. M.

One of the clergy of the parish will be at the Parish House, 10th St., above Chestnut, every day during the week, at 11 o'clock. Church open daily, from 9 to 12 o'clock.

It is well for those making arrangements for baptisms, marriages, funerals and other services, needing the presence of a clergyman of the church, to see one of the clergy before fixing the time.

Rector, is as happy as it unusual. We shall long regret his loss, but we cannot let him go without our most honest thanks for services of incalculable usefulness.

We wish him God-speed and a like success wherever he may be. S. Weir Mitchell, M. D.

THE MOTHERS' LOYAL CIRCLE, King's Daughters, report having made eighty flannel garments —forty-six were sent to the Southern Home for Destitute and Friendless Children, fifteen to the Italian Mission and fifteen to this Church.

THE LENTEN SERVICE COMMITTEE of the Local Council, Brotherhood of St. Andrew, desires most heartily to thank the Rector of St. Stephen's Church, and through him the pew-holders, for their renewed kindness to the Committee during the Lenten Season just passed.

We feel that the Services for business people held in the Church have been the most successful in the history of the Brotherhood in this country, and that lasting benefit has accrued therefrom in the spread of Christ's Kingdom among men and the awakening in many hearts of a sincere and lasting love for the Master.

The fact of the Word being preached to 32,770 souls in these forty Services, an average of 819 per service, and a gain of forty per centum over the attendance of last year speaks volumes in itself. The Committee in stating this large aggregate number in attendance, and pointing to the fact that few churches in this diocese can give such a total attendance in an entire year's services, congratulates the Parish of St. Stephen's that it has been blessed with such an opportunity for doing good; knowing as we do the inconveniences to which pew-holders may have been put, by reason of the immense throngs of strangers who have daily entered their doors.

Two instances may serve to illustrate the benefits derived from these services from two points of view. First: that personal individual effort was made by Brotherhood men to carry out the second great rule of our organization; the chairman received a note from a member of the Brotherhood previous to the services conducted by Rev. Mr. Aitken, in which he stated that, up to that date, he had brought fifty-one young men to the services. Second: that these services brought a blessing to those who attended them. The ushers in the middle aisle had noticed, particularly, a well dressed, gray haired man who was in daily attendance throughout the services, and that each day he took a card from the usher. On the Saturday before Easter, this man asked one of us for a few minutes conversation, in which, while declining to give his name, he thanked him for his kindness in finding him a seat every day, and stated that he and a friend were sitting in a hotel one day very early in Lent, when one of our service cards was placed in his hand. It seemed like a call to him. The thought of younger and better days came to him. It had been many years since he had seen the inside of a church. He made up his mind to "go to St. Stephen's and see what these services were like." His friend accompanied him. The result of this visit was another, and then daily until they ended. He said he felt as though his entire life was changed; and that he intended, by God's help, not to go back to the old life again; that he owed it all to that little card being placed in his hand so many weeks ago. He showed a letter from his friend, who had recently moved to New York, who joined with him in testifying to the great influence the services had wrought upon his life.

We may hope and pray that these influences for good may be lasting. At any rate, it is encouraging to hear of such cases, and feel that there must have been many such in the Providence of God that only He knows of, and will give the increase to.

THE RECTOR AND VESTRY HAVE ADOPTED the following address and form of pledge, which will be distributed generally throughout the Parish:

The purpose of the Church of Christ is to keep His Gospel always before men. It tries to make them Christ-like by the methods which He has ordained, the Word, Sacraments, and Prayers. This involves expenses. It is expected, both by the Church and the world, that every congregation of Christian people will pay its own bills. There may be good reason why it may be for a time unable to do this—but only for a time. It offers to the people of the community where it is a very valuable thing. It takes for granted that every man and woman who takes advantage of this offer will pay for it according as they are able. It does not believe that any one wishes to go to Church as a pauper, living on the gifts of others.

The Church of the Holy Comforter wishes to serve you and your children in Christ's way. It asks you, in return, to pledge what you think right for the Church. It may be much, or it may be little, but it ought to be something. Whatever you may do will be known only to God, to yourself, and to the Rector and Treasurer of the Parish.

I. Fill the blanks in the accompanying pledge with your name, address, and the amount you are willing to give weekly for all religious purposes together.

II. Place the Pledge thus filled in the plate at any collection. Envelopes for one year will be sent to you at once.

III. In consideration of this Pledge, the Church assures the giver that no further call will be made upon him during the year for any purpose whatever. Of course, anything additional which he may choose to give will be received and applied as he may designate.

IV. At any service place the amount of your weekly pledge in the plate. Never give the money which you have pledged except in an envelope.

V. No one but the Rector and the Accounting Warden will know the amount of your pledge.

VI. The amount received will be paid out in the following order:

(1) Necessary expenses—as fuel, light, sexton, repairs, etc.
(2) Salary of Minister in Charge.
(3) Music.
(4) Sunday School.
(5) The balance will be divided among Diocesan, Domestic and Foreign Missions.

SELECTIONS.

A clergyman was very anxious to introduce some hymn-books into the Church, and arranged with his clerk that the latter was to give out the notice immediately after the sermon. The clerk, however, had a notice of his own with reference to the baptism of infants to give out. Accordingly, at the close of the sermon, he arose and announced that "all those who have children whom they wish to have baptized, please send in their names at once to the clerk." The clergyman, who was stone deaf, assumed that the clerk was giving out the hymn-book notice, and immediately arose and said: "And I should say, for the benefit of those who hav'nt any, that they may be obtained at the vestry any day from 3 to 4 o'clock; the ordinary little ones at one shilling each, and special ones with red backs at one shilling and four pence.

"How shall I thank you?" asked one friend of another who had rendered invaluable assistance at a time of urgent need and perplexity. "Do not try," was the answer, "except in so far that, finding another in difficulty, you should pass on the kindness."

ON THE FIRST OF MAY, the Deaconess, Miss Emily T. Rodman, left this parish for the purpose of assuming duty in Holy Trinity Church, Brooklyn: the Rev. Dr. McConnell, the Rector, having asked her to go to his new field of work. She was very actively engaged in the various departments of our parish work, and will be much missed by the many friends to whom she endeared herself. The Infant Class of the Sunday School was under her care and direction, and increased steadily in attendance under her ministration. The earnest prayers and best wishes of the congregation will go with her in her new work.

Mrs. S. Molloy, one of the teachers of the Sunday School, very kindly consented to take charge of the Infant Class after the resignation of Miss Rodman. Her scholars, some of the larger girls of the Sunday School, have faithfully assisted her in the care of the little children.

ANNUAL REPORT OF ST. STEPHEN'S G. F. S. Branch:—A steady improvement in the interest felt by the girls and their quiet, thoughtful demeanour, and general regular attendance, has given the Associates reason to feel encouraged in the Girls' Friendly Society of St. Stephen's Church. In point of members we have not as many as last year. Some have passed away, one or two married, and others have not returned. So that while we had 130 last year, we have but 102 this present time. During the hot weather of last summer, our Deaconess, Miss Rodman, formed a summer club which did admirable work, for it not only gave her a personal interest in the girls, but developed another talent in them. They recited for her, and wrote compositions which they read to her, and when we returned in the autumn we found them ready and eager for the winter's work. Classes were formed as usual for cooking, dressmaking and singing, adding book-keeping, which, under the able tuition of Mr. Richardson, of the New Century Guild, has been a great benefit to those who persevered in learning single and double entry.

Dr. McConnell held an impressive admission service during Lent, and said a few beautiful, helpful words to the girls, afterwards giving them each a flower or two from off the altar.

Much interest is now being shown in trying to raise enough money for a piano, and toward the bath rooms of the Cape May Girls' Friendly Holiday House. As last year the girls raised (quite by themselves) $72 for it, it is to be hoped they will be equally successful this year. Mr. and Mrs. Hall gave an Easter entertainment for them, which they enjoyed very much; and during the winter the girls planned their own "Amusement Evening," and the singing, recitations, and charades were very creditable. We were much pleased that one of our girls won the first prize, and another, honorable mention for the best essay on Ivanhoe.

A. C. Bowden, Branch Sec'y.

Donations received by the Children's Friend Society in May:

Mrs. W. S. Russell, $2.00; King's Daughters, (Whatsoever Circle), $4.00; From X., (through Rev. Mr. Miller), $10.00; From Miss Carrie Hutchinson, (through Rev. Mr. Miller), $1.00; Mr. and Mrs. Seth Caldwell, Jr., $10.00.

Contributing members in May:

Mrs. A. N. Crombarger, $1.00; Miss Dupuy, $1.00; Miss A. E. Dupuy, $1.00; Mrs. S. Hopper, $1.00; Mrs. Charles E. Milnor, $1.00; Miss E. A. Ford, $1.00.

The little ones are looking forward to their Summer outings. Already some have inquired when are we going to have an Excursion?

So much has been said of the work of the Society, that all must be familiar with it. The children, many of whom live up little crowded streets, sometimes two or three families in a room, are taken out for a day's excursion or an afternoon's outing, and given a good time out in the country where good fresh air can be had.

The children have many kind friends in the Church and out of it who remember them by donations, or contribute $1.00 a year to help the work along.

When you are away this Summer, will you not think of the C. F. S. and aid us in our work?

The King's Daughters of the Whatsoever Circle will have their meetings June 3rd and June 17th in the Parish House, at half-past seven o'clock.

The work done by this Circle in May, has been the sewing of rags for a carpet to be given to their invalid girl, Lizzie Weikle. The King's Daughters from the Church of the Holy Comforter, have kindly assisted in this work and have given a dollar towards the weaving of the carpet.

The first break in the Whatsoever Circle, was caused by the death of Daisy McConnell, May 25th. She was one who was always glad to do her part in any work that was being done for the good of others and will be missed by all.

The Boys' Guild of St. Stephen's Church held their Annual Excursion and Spring Sports on Decoration Day, May 30th. They went, with their chaplain, Mr. Miller, to a farm near Mt. Airy, on the Reading R. R., and there spent a most delightful day. The result of the sports was as follows:

100 yards dash won by Charles Moore, 9 yards handicap, time 11 1-5 seconds; second George Pfeiffer, 8 yards handicap. The 220 yards dash was won by William Bishop, 15 yards handicap, time, 27 4-5 seconds; second, H. P. Christensen, scratch. The ½ mile run was won by Charles Moore, 40 yards handicap, time, 2 min. 32 3-5 seconds; second H. P. Christensen, scratch. The 1 mile run was won by H. P. Christensen, scratch, time 6 min 25 seconds; second Harry Bush. 100 yards sack race won by Charles Moore, scratch, time 39 2-5 seconds; second Herbert N. Bowers, 1 yard handicap. The hop, step, and jump was won by Albert Berg, scratch, distance 32 feet 6 inches; second E. W. Spackman, scratch. Putting 16 lb. shot won by George Pfeiffer, 3 inches handicap, distance 24 feet 8½ inches; second E. W. Spackman, scratch. First and second medals were awarded as prizes.

SUNDAY SCHOOL HONOR ROLL.

May.

Attendance: Dora Swope, George Binder, Anna Nellis, Mortimer Rawlinson, Martin Binder.

New Scholars brought by: Jennie Bass, 1; Mary Boston, 1.

On June the tenth at 8 p. m. the Bishop of Easton will confirm a class in the Church of the Holy Comforter for Bishop Whitaker. A large attendance is expected on this most solemn occasion.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL has just purchased and given out to the children quite a number of new books. The children are delighted with them. The only regret is that we have no more money to buy more books with, and make them still more happy with good reading.

THE GIRLS' FRIENDLY SOCIETY will soon have a box ready for Mrs. Buford's Hospital in Va.

ON THURSDAY EVENING, June 18th, the local Chapter of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, will give a "Smoker" in the Sunday-school building. A cordial invitation to be present is extended to the men of the Parish. A pleasant evening is promised and it is desired that all should attend.

HERETOFORE, IT HAS been customary for members of our Congregation who leave town during the Summer, to pay subscriptions when they return. In consequence of this policy, the Church has had an unnecessary struggle for existence from June to October. It must be well-known to our parishioners that we are dependent upon the weekly collections; the Vestry therefore ask that pledges be prepaid for the number of Sundays each subscriber will be absent. These amounts will be set aside and added to the collection each week.

It may not be generally known that our Mother Church, St. Stephen's, contributes a certain amount towards the support of our Parish; the balance necessary to carry on the work it is expected will be met by the Congregation with the aid of the Convocation. This expectation has not been met; the expenses exceeding receipts by nearly $3.00 per week.

It is earnestly hoped that each individual interested in the welfare of the Church of the Holy Comforter, will increase his or her subscription as much as possible, and that the total increase will more than make up the amount needed each week.

THE RECTOR AND VESTRY HAVE ADOPTED the following address and form of pledge, which will be distributed generally throughout the Parish:

The purpose of the Church of Christ is to keep His Gospel always before men. It tries to make them Christ-like by the methods which He has ordained, the Word, Sacraments, and Prayers. This involves expenses. It is expected, both by the Church and the world, that every congregation of Christian people will pay its own bills. There may be good reason why it may be for a time unable to do this—but only for a time. It offers to the people of the community where it is a very valuable thing. It takes for granted that every man and woman who takes advantage of this offer will pay for it according as they are able. It does not believe that any one wishes to go to Church as a pauper, living on the gifts of others.

The Church of the Holy Comforter wishes to serve you and your children in Christ's way. It asks you, in return, to pledge what you think right for the Church. It may be much, or it may be little, but it ought to be something. Whatever you may do will be known only to God, to yourself, and to the Rector and Treasurer of the Parish.

First Excursion, July 11th, weather permitting.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the Whatsoever Circle have their meetings July 1st and 15th, in the Parish House, at half past seven o'clock.

This Circle was organized in 1890 by ten members; it now has a membership of thirty and ten honorary members. Some have moved away, others have married, and there has been one death, but the work "In His Name" goes on the same. Homes and Hospitals have been visited, clothing made, jellies and flowers taken to the sick, and toys to the little children.

A little girl in the Home of the Merciful Saviour was dressed entirely by the Circle until her death. Another, who has been an invalid for thirteen years, is cared for in many ways, and she in turn, as a "shut in" King's Daughter, has scrap albums and pictures brought to her, which she arranges quite artistic, and they are then taken and given to the sick in the Hospitals by the King's Daughters.

In 1893 a Shoe Fund was started; many children and sometimes a mother have been made happy or kept from taking cold with a new pair of shoes. "Whatsoever your hands find to do" is the work of this Circle.

SELECTIONS.

RELIGION IN VACATION TIME.

The vacation season is fast drawing near. Ocean-bound vessels, and railroad cars heading West and North, will be crowded with rich people and people of all kinds, seeking change, recuperation and the new scenes which suggest new ideas and often foster new strength. The opening summer brings with it, as the poet says,

"the wish to be away;"

away from the tedium of wearing routine, from places associated with some sad or difficult experience, from ties and duties which have been so long in sight that change is for a short period necessary, in order that a return to the familiar environment may be met with freshened power and energy. We are not speaking of the idlers who in travel seek only new opportunities for frittering away their lives and affections under other skies and on other shores. To these people who are in a small minority, life is one long vacation; one round of pleasure routine. Yet amid the darkening shadows of such lives—and shadows come with time even to the sated pleasure-seeker—our vacation thoughts may well yield a lesson of some sort.

Any recreation which implies a suspension or a neglect of religious observances does a great deal more harm than good. The restraint which is needed by all those who are permitted and privileged during the summer to enjoy the luxury of complete leisure is exactly what regular worship and devotional exercise avail to furnish. Many, however, who are regular church-goers in the city, are tempted to lounge all Sunday on the hotel veranda or the steamboat deck during the summer without a thought of religious responsibilities. The country clergymen often finds his parish overrun, in the fairest and most charming season of the year, by a crowd of city people who think they can "do what they like" so soon as they pass beyond the limits of asphalt pavements and electric lights. We do not forget the vast number of excellent church people who do not in the country leave behind the love of the Church which they show in the city.

The plain duty of all holiday seekers is to show themselves in the presence of the rural population, or the foreign population, not merely more fashionable, more refined, more liberal than the toilers who surround them, but more God-fearing and devout. The Canadian woodcutters in the Adirondacks, who have exchanged their home in Quebec villages for a sojourn in one of the playgrounds of New York, have been heard to declare that there is no God south of the St. Lawrence. This is a reproach which in some degree has been occasioned by the temporary irreligion of holiday seekers. Sunday should be scrupulously observed in any case by the most worn-out toiler who rushes to shore and mountain for his brief holiday. Etiquette, good form, at least, should prescribe this tribute to religion. The poor churches of the rural places should, moreover, command the alms as well as the presence at public worship of all church people who take up their abode in summer in the neighborhood of these sometimes forgotten shrines.

To refresh body and mind and think it necessary for such an end to relax religious devotion and duty is sheer folly. Idleness, even when it comes in the shape of needed leisure, is always dangerous. But it loses all its danger, and may prove an unmixed benefit and blessing when those who seek it in a vacation forget neither the dignity, the duty, nor the privilege of their Church membership.—The Churchman.

CHURCH ATTENDANCE.

"Emerson, in his Divinity Hall address, when giving that description, never to be forgotten by any reader, of his attendance in a country church during a snow storm, when the snow was real and the preacher merely phenomenal, drew the conclusion that the popular interest in public worship was gone or going. Walk the streets on Sunday, fifty years later, and see if you still think so! Yet I remember well that all who passed for radicals then held this view; I know that I expected, for one, to see an immense diminution in the building of churches and in the habit of attendance. Practically, the result has not followed; even the Sunday bicyclers have not emptied the churches. The difference is not in the occupants of the pews, but of the pulpits; that course has been adopted which Henry Ward Beecher recommended at the ministers' meeting—not to scold the people for sleeping in church, but to send somebody into the pulpit to wake up the minister. There is prevalence of larger thought, of braver action."—The Outlook.

It is well that we have so often to entertain God's angels of disappointment, and sorrow, and care unawares, for if we knew of their coming we might turn them out of doors.

SUNDAY SCHOOL HONOR ROLL.

JUNE.

ATTENDANCE: Martin Binder, Mortimer Rawlinson, George Binder, Willie Dowdy, Resie Rose.

NEW SCHOLAR BROUGHT BY: Mary Boston, 1.

Through an oversight the following names should have been on the Honor Roll for the month of May for attendance: Lewis Binder, Willie Dowdy, Anna Dowdy.

DURING THE MONTHS of July and August the Sunday School will meet at 9 A. M.

ON JULY 15TH THE SUNDAY SCHOOL will have a picnic at Chamounix. The children will meet at the Church, 48th and Haverford, at 8 A. M. Coaches will be provided, and all the Sunday School children will be carried free. Adults will be charged 25 cents. Contributions towards the picnic fund will be very acceptable from any wishing to contribute.

ON THURSDAY EVENING, June 18th, the Local Chapter Brotherhood of St. Andrew gave a "Smoker" in the Sunday School building, which was a success in every way. The Chapter's object in giving this entertainment was to bring the men of the Parish together for a social evening, make them mutually acquainted, and in this way bring more men to Church. The attendance was fair, and it is hoped that these entertainments will be continued during the coming winter, and that when they become better known they will be largely attended. The Chapter wishes to thank the gentlemen who so kindly assisted during the evening and helped make the affair a success.

GIRLS' FRIENDLY SOCIETY has just sent out a box of clothing to Miss Buford of Va. We are glad to welcome our new candidates to our branch, fifteen in number, and our new associate, Miss Edith Taylor, who so generously assisted in filling our box. We will be glad to have more associates and members for our next year's work. We closed our year's work with a sociable, which was greatly enjoyed by all. E. C. KEILIG.

THE RECTOR AND VESTRY HAVE ADOPTED the following address and form of pledge, which will be distributed generally throughout the Parish:

The purpose of the Church of Christ is to keep His Gospel always before men. It tries to make them Christ-like by the methods which He has ordained, the Word, Sacraments, and Prayers. This involves expenses. It is expected, both by the Church and the world, that every congregation of Christian people will pay its own bills. There may be good reason why it may be for a time unable to do this—but only for a time. It offers to the people of the community where it is a very valuable thing. It takes for granted that every man and woman who takes advantage of this offer will pay for it according as they are able. It does not believe that any one wishes to go to Church as a pauper, living on the gifts of others.

The Church of the Holy Comforter wishes to serve you and your children in Christ's way. It asks you, in return, to pledge what you think right for the Church. It may be much, or it may be little, but it ought to be something. Whatever you may do will be known only to God, to yourself, and to the Rector and Treasurer of the Parish.

OFFERTORIES FOR AUGUST.

General Charities.

THE REV. ELLWOOD WORCESTER, PH. D., has been elected Rector of this Parish. He will enter upon his duties about the middle of September or the first of October.

THE REV. DR. WORCESTER was elected Rector of St. Stephen's Church by the unanimous vote of the Vestry, all the members being present with the exception of three, two of whom are in Europe. The newly elected Rector is about 34 years of age. He was born in Rochester, New York. He was graduated from Columbia College in the Class of '86. After a course in the General Theological Seminary he studied for a year or two in Germany, at Leipsic, where he won his degree. He began his ministry as Assistant Minister in St. Ann's, Brooklyn, under the Rectorship of the Rev. Dr. Alsop. He was there a short time, but very soon made for himself a warm place in all hearts. His sermons and addresses gave great promise. They were full of thought, very compact, interesting and instructive. For the past few years he has been at South Bethlehem, being Chaplain of Lehigh University, and Professor of Mental and Moral Philosophy. The students like him as a preacher. Those who know him well speak of his agreeable personal qualities. He is manly, broad-minded, a hard reader and deep thinker, a man of undoubted ability. His wife is a daughter of Bishop Rulison, of Central Pennsylvania. He comes to this parish most highly recommended by some of those highest in authority within the Church. He is endorsed by the Rt. Rev. Dr. Davies, Bishop of Michigan; Bishop Potter, of New York, speaks most highly of him, and so also does the Bishop of our own Diocese, who will gladly welcome him here. The place he is called upon to fill is a responsible and an high one of itself, but besides this, he is to succeed the Rev. Dr. McConnell and to carry forward the work so ably done these past years by that brilliant preacher and able administrator of affairs; all those who have the welfare and success of St. Stephen's at heart will give to him a cordial welcome and be ready to aid him in his work. The earnest prayers of the congregation will go with him that he may be replenished with the truth of God's doctrine and endued with innocency of life that he may faithfully serve before God to the glory of his great Name and the benefit of his Holy Church, through Jesus Christ our only Mediator and Redeemer.

DONATIONS RECEIVED by the Children's Friend Society in July, Mrs. S. P. Chandler $5.00, Mrs. W. S. Russell $3.00, Miss Sarah Eisenbrey $10.00, Mrs. E. M. Rumpp $3.00 (proceeds of sale from Candy), Miss Sidford $2.00.

Contributing Members in July: Mrs. E. M Rumpp $1.00, Miss M. S. Rumpp $1.00, Mrs. Heyl $1.00, Mrs. James Arrison $1.00, Mrs. Kelly $1.00, Miss Cleemann $1.00.

July 11th, One o'clock sharp, was the time for the first Excursion to start.

As you enter the Guild room of Parish House you are greeted with bright happy faces, all anticipating a good time.

Bean bags and balls were distributed, the children were then counted, numbering 100, and formed in a line and started for 10th and Arch Streets, where the cars were waiting to take them to George's Hill.

On reaching the Hill, after disposing of their hats and bundles, the fun commences until Mr. Blank's wagon was seen coming up the hill. The children were then treated to ice cream and biscuit; after that they were ready for more fun, until it was time to go home.

After reaching the city many remarked they had such a good time and said thanks.

The Society hopes to take another hundred out for an outing on the first of August.

The Society return thanks to the King's Daughters who assisted in entertaining the children. Miss Bessie Wilder, Miss Carrie Rothpletz, Miss Bertha Walsh and Miss Clara Friedel.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS OF THE Whatsoever Circle have their meetings August 5th and 19th in the Parish House half past seven o'clock.

Donation received, $1.00 from Miss Sidford. Four pairs of shoes to women and children have been given out this month.

Received from Mrs. Taylor two pairs of shoes, from Miss Lowenberg one pair.

Four dozen bean bags have been made by the Circle for the poor children's outing.

SELECTIONS.

TO DO WELL AND TO DO GOOD.

Living is doing. Phillips Brooks said: "Life is effectiveness. Right living is doing well and doing good. To do well is the obligation of right living, which under God, a man owes to himself; it is the pith of Godliness. To do good is the obligation of right living, which under God, a man owes unto his neighbor; it is the heart and marrow of charity. To do well is to walk in the way of righteousness; to do good is to walk in the royal way of love. To do well was the supreme lesson of the Old Testament; to do good is the supreme lesson of the New Testament. A Jew might have rested satisfied if he had done well; a Christian can never be content until he has done some good. It is well to have done well, but to do good is divine. We not only want to do as well as we can, we want also to do all the good we can. The man of whom the best they can say is that he has done well enough, that man has probably never done good enough. The two must go together; they travel hand in hand; as the old German, Adam Heyden, said: 'He who does the most for others does the best for himself,' or as Whittier said of the two great commandments,

> 'The first is last, and the last is first,
> And the two are verily one.' "

He who lives in Christian lands, and is educated by Christian schools, and doctored by Christian charities, and nurtured by Christian influences, and yet himself lives not like a Christian, he is as the parasite upon a noble tree—he feasts at a table which he does not help to spread.

Phillips Brooks says: "Prayer is not conquering God's reluctance, but laying hold upon God's willingness."

SUNDAY SCHOOL HONOR ROLL.

JULY.

ATTENDANCE: Anna Nellis, Martin Binder, Mortimer Rolandson, George Binder.

NEW SCHOLAR BROUGHT BY: Lizzie Anderson, 1.

MINISTER IN CHARGE OF THE Holy Comforter will be away on a vacation at Conanicut, R. I., from August 5th to 30th, but the services of the Church and Sunday School will continue the same as they are at the present—Sunday School at 9.00 A. M. and Morning Prayer at 10.30 A. M.

75 yds. dash, boys, won by John Turner.
50 yds. dash, girls, won by Anna Nellis.
Sack race, boys, won by John Turner.
Hoop race, girls, won by Lizzie Anderson.
3 legged race, boys, won by Bertie Rankin, Mortimer Rolandson.
Potato race, boys, won by Harold Rankin.

SELECTIONS.

THE TONE OF VOICE.

It is not so much what you say,
As the manner in which you say it:
It is not so much the language you use,
As the tones in which you convey it.

"Come here!" I sharply said,
And the baby cowered and wept;
"Come here!" I cooed, and he looked and smiled,
And straight to my lap he crept.

The words may be mild and fair,
And the tones may pierce like a dart:
The words may be soft as the summer air,
And the tones may break the heart.

Whether you know it or not,
Whether you mean or care,
Gentleness, kindness, love and hate,
Envy and anger are there.

Then would you quarrels avoid
And in peace and love rejoice,
Keep anger not only out of your words,
But keep it out of your voice.

—Youth's Companion.

A little newsboy in Chicago was asked by a man with a club foot to give him a "shine." He did this with hearty good will, and the man whom he had served flung him a quarter, saying with a little pathos in his tone, "Take that, my boy. You have had a heavier job than usual;" upon this the little fellow handed back the change saying, "Why, mister, I couldn't make money out of your hard luck."—Church Union.

THE RECTOR AND VESTRY HAVE ADOPTED the following address and form of pledge, which will be distributed generally throughout the Parish:

The purpose of the Church of Christ is to keep His Gospel always before men. It tries to make them Christ-like by the methods which He has ordained, the Word, Sacraments, and Prayers. This involves expenses. It is expected, both by the Church and the world, that every congregation of Christian people will pay its own bills. There may be good reason why it may be for a time unable to do this—but only for a time. It offers to the people of the community where it is a very valuable thing. It takes for granted that every man and woman who takes advantage of this offer will pay for it according as they are able. It does not believe that any one wishes to go to Church as a pauper, living on the gifts of others.

The Church of the Holy Comforter wishes to serve you and your children in Christ's way. It asks you, in return, to pledge what you think right for the Church. It may be much, or it may be little, but it ought to be something. Whatever you may do will be known only to God, to yourself, and to the Rector and Treasurer of the Parish.

OFFERTORIES FOR SEPTEMBER.

General Charities.

THE REV DR. ELWOOD WORCESTER will enter upon his duties as Rector of this Parish on the first Sunday in October.

THE PARISH DAY SCHOOL will begin its sessions Tuesday, September 8th, at 9 o'clock. Those desirous of having girls placed in the school this Fall will apply to the teacher, Miss Kate Lewis, or to any of the clergy of the Parish.

MRS. MOLLOY, WHO HAS kindly taken temporary charge of the Infant Class, took the children out to the Park on Wednesday, September 2nd, for a day's excursion. She was assisted by the young ladies of her former class, who rendered valuable aid in taking care of the little ones and in helping to entertain them during the day.

PROFESSOR D. D. WOOD and the members of the Choir took their annual vacation during the month of August. They return to their duties on the first Sunday of September, to be gladly welcomed back by the congregation. They were much missed in the Summer.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL WILL begin on the first Sunday in October. The scholars have had a long vacation. It often seems as if after so long away from school bringing them back would be attended with much trouble. In fact this is not so. The children love their school and soon return to their places. It is not long before the various classes are well filled. The children are all right. The trouble is not with them. A class without a teacher, that is the secret of so much disaster! The children become disheartened. They quickly go away and soon the entire class is broken up. Teachers must be had for the classes. Many of our faithful teachers no doubt will return in time to take their classes on the first Sunday. They will be ready to welcome the children and so far it will be well, but one asks himself how is it to be with the other classes? Those most interested in the welfare of the school do not want to see children lost to the Parish. So the demand is for more teachers. These must come prepared to be regular and punctual. There are many communicants here who are well qualified to teach. They have some time at their disposal. They are earnestly asked to give their names to the Clergy of the Parish, and places can be found for them either among the boys or girls. Teachers are needed. Who will volunteer?

DONATIONS RECEIVED BY the Children's Friend Society in August: Mrs. J. G. Hillman, $5.00; Mr. S. J. C., $10.00; Mrs. Albert Pancoast, $10.00; Mr. R. E. Atmore, $5.00; Miss Stevenson, $10 00; Total, $40.00.

Contributing members in August: Mr. Craig Atmore, $1.00; Miss Grace Atmore, $1.00.

One reads in the daily papers of the work done by the Country Week, Culture Extension League and other charitable societies.

What is said of the Children's Friend Society of St. Stephen's Church which first started the day's outings? It goes along quietly working all the time. It had two excursions to the Park this month with about one hundred and fifty children.

The Managers regret they were not able to take the children to the Sea Shore, but the funds would not permit that. It is hoped the sly little moth miller will not devour the bathing suits (which are packed away in camphor), before another season.

One could judge for himself whether the poor children enjoyed their outings should he have happened to pass a car on its homeward way and have heard the children singing that old familiar song, "We won't go home until morning."

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the Whatsoever Circle have their meetings in September, on the 2nd and 16th in the Parish House, at 7.30 o'clock. Miss Bessie Wilder, Miss Ida Harper, Miss Dora Friedel, Miss Mabel Crom and Miss Lilly Harper kindly assisted in entertaining the children at the Park.

SELECTIONS.

GOOD RULES FOR EVERY DAY.

1. Never neglect daily private prayer; and when you pray, remember that God is present, and that He hears your prayers.

2. Never neglect daily private Bible reading; and when you read remember that God is speaking to you and that you are to believe and act upon what He says.

3. Never profess to ask God for anything you do not want. Tell Him the truth about yourself, however bad it makes you; and then ask Him, for Christ's sake, to forgive you what you are and to make you what you ought to be.

4. Never let a day pass without trying to do something for Jesus. Every night reflect on what Jesus has done for you, and then ask yourself, "What have I done to-day for Him?"

5. If ever you are in doubt as to a thing being right or wrong, go to your room and kneel down and ask God's blessing upon it. If you cannot do this it is wrong.

6. Never take your Christianity from Christians or argue that, because such and such people do so and so, therefore you may. You are to ask yourself, "How would Christ act in my place?" and strive to follow Him.

"GIVING ALL DILIGENCE."

"If you want to be a strong Christian—that is to say, a happy man—you must bend your back to the work and give all diligence. Nobody goes to heaven in his sleep. No man becomes a vigorous Christian by any other course than giving all diligence.

"It is like some of the old wives' recipes for curing diseases with some familiar herb that grows at every cottage door. People will not have that; but if you bring them some medicine from far away, very rare and costly, and suggest to them some course out of the beaten run of ordinary, honest living, they will jump at that.

"Quackery always deals in mysteries and rare things. The Great Physician cures diseases with simples that grow everywhere. A penny-worth of some familiar root will cure an illness that nothing else will touch. It is a homely virtue, but if in its homeliness we practised it, our souls would wear a different face from what they do to-day."—Rev. Alexander McLaren, D. D.

AFTER A VACATION OF two months the Vested Choir will again lead the singing of the Church, beginning on September the 13th.

THE GIRLS' FRIENDLY SOCIETY will organize for the winter's work on the second Thursday in September, the 10th. The meetings of the Society during the winter will be held in the Parish Room. Judging from the number of new members coming into the Society, it promises to be full of good works and do much good during the winter.

On September the 6th, the first Sunday in September, the Sunday School will again meet at 2.30 P. M., continuing through the winter. The summer holidays are now over and the teachers and scholars are all expected back in their accustomed places. The teachers will as soon as possible hunt up their old scholars and search out the new.

SELECTIONS.

The great philanthropist, George Peabody, was once asked whether he enjoyed making money or giving it away, and he replied: "I enjoyed making money. I think it is a great pleasure to make money, and when the idea was first suggested to me that I should give money away, it did not please me at all—in fact, it distressed me. But I thought the matter over, and concluded that I would make an experiment on a small scale. So built the first of the model tenement houses in London. It was a hard pull, but after it was done I went among the poor people living in the rooms, so clean and comfortable, and I had quite a new feeling. I enjoyed it very much. I gave more, and the feeling increased; and now I can truly say that much as I enjoyed the making of money, I enjoyed far more the giving it away."

The personal character and personal influence of its members will build up a parish. The tendency is to depend too much upon the minister as if he were paid to maintain the Church. It is more than he can do and more than he ought to be expected to do. He is to be the leader of a willing, zealous people in worship and good works. He has a right to expect that, using his strength and time in full measure, doing his duty, the people will feel a personal responsibility for the prosperity of the Church. Some do and many do not. Nearly everybody who goes to Church has the power to take another with him. The personal invitation to come would greatly increase the congregations and financial support of the Church. Congregations that draw are more needed than ministers who draw. People often think they need better preaching, or better music, or a better Church, when they need more of the spirit of consecration and self-sacrifice. The people have much to do in putting spirit, vigor and heart into the preacher. The well-being of the Church depends, above all things, upon the standard of personal religion, upon the interest, zeal, thoughtfulness of the people.

The holy man fills his calendar not so much with saints' days, as with saints' deeds.

The Rector and Vestry have adopted the following address and form of pledge, which will be distributed generally throughout the Parish:

The purpose of the Church of Christ is to keep His Gospel always before men. It tries to make them Christ-like by the methods which He has ordained, the Word, Sacraments, and Prayers. Third Sunday—Domestic Missions.

SERVICES ON SUNDAY at 11 o'clock in the morning, and in the afternoon at 4 o'clock.

THE REV. DR. WORCESTER will enter upon his duties as Rector of the Parish on the first Sunday of the month. He will preach the sermon at the morning service at 11 o'clock, and at the evening service at 4 o'clock.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL will begin its work on Sunday morning, October 4th, at 9.45 o'clock. If possible every class ought to be supplied with a teacher at the very beginning. Nothing is so discouraging to the scholars and fatal to the prosperity of the school as not to have a teacher at the head of a class, or to have one who can never be depended on as to regularity or punctuality. We have many earnest noble-minded persons who have done most faithful and excellent work in teaching, and in moulding and shaping the characters of the young. We shall need more of these. There can be found, in a congregation as large and intelligent as this, many who can interest themselves in this kind of work. They are "apt" to teach. They are asked to let their willingness to take a class be known to the Rector or any of the clergy. May the work of this school year be begun in earnest, prayerful endeavor to reach the young of our congregation and parish, that they "may be virtuously brought up, and lead a godly and a Christian life."

Amongst the many activities of a modern parish there is none so important as that of the Sunday School.

THE GARMENT COMMITTEE will begin its work on Monday, October 5th, at 11 o'clock, in the Parish Building, in the rear of the Church. Contributions of clothing can be sent on any Monday. They will be gladly acknowledged. Miss Cleemann will take charge on Monday, October 5th.

DONATION RECEIVED by the Children's Friend Society in September: Mrs. W. S. Russell, $5.00.

The summer work ended September 5th with an excursion of over sixty children to the Zoological Garden. In the morning the day promised to be clear, but unfortunately for the children, whilst they were making their visit to the lions and tigers, it commenced raining very hard; with eight umbrellas for such a large number it was hard to tell what to do. However, someone suggested taking them to the elephant house, four or five at a time; this was continued until all the houses were visited, ending up with the new monkey house, which was the admiration of all the children.

By this time the children were hungry, and they did not mind at all eating their biscuits in the monkey house. It was then suggested by one of the ladies that they should jump in the cars and come to her home, where they had their ice cream and cake, which made up for their disappointment at the Zoological Garden.

Any suggestions in the way of entertaining the little ones this winter, the members of the Society will be glad to receive.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the Whatsoever Circle have their meetings in October on the 7th and 21st, in the Parish House at 7.30 o'clock.

During the month of September this Circle has made and donated aprons, three dozen bibs and other clothing to the Home of St. Michael and All Angels. Also visited the Home on the 19th of September, taking books and cakes to the children. The Sister in charge was very kind in showing the young ladies the House and Memorial Chapel.

SELECTIONS.

FOREIGN ECHOES.

Nobody can accuse the Archbishop of York of not speaking plainly in the reply to the Pope's encyclical which he made the other day in York Minster, before a synod of the clergy of his diocese. Here are a few of the salient passages: When this union is represented to us as a union not only with our Blessed Lord and with one another, but as a union with Peter, and, still more, with the successors of Peter, or, in plain terms, an unqualified submission to the Roman Pontiff, we are bound to neglect a claim so entirely unsupported by the teaching of Holy Scripture, or by the voice of the universal Church. Until we could, per impossible, be convinced that St. Peter himself but held this position of supreme authority, still more that such a position and such authority was transmitted to those who followed him in his office, whatever that office might have been, until it has been proved to us that the Bishops of Rome do hold, and have held, this position and authority, by the direct appointment of our Blessed Lord Himself, it is impossible that, on any terms, we could acknowledge such a claim, or yield ourselves to this obedience. There can be but one answer to such a demand. Nor is our difficulty less as regards the unity of the faith. If the faith be that which, once for all, was delivered to the saints, the faith contained in the Holy Scriptures and in the creeds of the undivided Church, we are already at one alike with the Church of Rome and the Churches of the East. But if by the faith is meant the excretions of doctrine which have accumulated during successive centuries, ... if it is to include the doctrine of indulgences, whatever that may practically mean, or that Romish doctrine of Purgatory which our Church condemns as the perverted substitute for the true idea of the intermediate state, then, indeed, in loyalty to our Master, we must decline to take this yoke upon us, or to yield our assent to what our Church has rightfully characterized as fond things vainly invented and repugnant to the Word of God. . . . . The inquiry now being held respecting our Anglican orders owes its first impulse to the writings of Roman Catholics themselves. On our own part there is not, and never has been, a shadow of a doubt, nor should we be one whit the better or one whit the worse, as regards our holy orders, whatever the opinions of the Church of Rome might be."—N. Y. Evening Post.

THE BROTHERHOOD OF ST. ANDREW, feeling the importance of the money question, and in order to enable themselves to vote intelligently in the coming election, have made arrangements to have all phases of the money question explained by able speakers. Free Silver, Oct. 1st, 8 P. M.; Philosophy of Money, Oct. 8th, 8 P. M.; Gold Standard, Oct. 15th, 8 P. M. Lectures in Sunday School Room, admission by card only, which can be obtained by application at the Church or to any member of the Brotherhood.

MINISTER IN CHARGE of the Church of the Holy Comforter is delivering a series of sermons of Christian Civilization. He wishes to establish in Philadelphia a strong Church of men and women who believe in the reality Brotherhood of Man. He believes that righteous dealing, love that goes up to God as worship, and down to man as helping service, is true religion; that the path of service and helpfulness to man is the only path of light to God. There are enough men and women in Philadelphia to establish such a church, if they would only get together and know one another. He invites all who believe that a better civilization is possible for man, to come and hear his sermons every Sunday, 10:30 A. M. and 7.45 P. M.

Last Sunday morning his sermon was on "Sacred things," of which the following is an extract: If you should ask me what is the most sacred thing upon this earth, I would not point to the altar, but to the pews and unhesitatingly say: Human Life! If you ask me why? I reply: Our religion teaches us that when God came in most majestic apparel, He robed himself in a garment whose warp and woof was humanity; when He came in divinest tenderness, it was a human eye dimmed with tears; when He came in infinite beauty it was in a human heart that beat with infinite compassion, pity and love.

If you were to ask me to name the greatest blasphemer, I would not say the desecrator of churches, but him who would harm in any manner whatsoever the human form divine. When you injure the human body you desecrate the Temple of God himself.

If you were to ask me to name the thing I consider that most intimately touches the destiny of man at present, I would say the Bread and Butter question.

Bread supports life, and life is a divine thing, and anything that ministers to life is a sacred thing. When the miner is digging coal it is a sacred thing, for he is warming human life; when the doctor is writing a prescription, it is a sacred thing, for he is saving human life; politics is a sacred thing, for when an American casts his ballot he is affecting the destinies of seventy million human lives. When a man holds a ballot in his hand he should hold it with the sacredness that he does the sacrament!

SELECTED.

If we had realized how very hard it is to tear apart the prison walls of evil habits, we would not have put so many nails in when we were fastening them together.

THE RECTOR AND VESTRY HAVE ADOPTED the following address and form of pledge, which will be distributed generally throughout the Parish:

The purpose of the Church of Christ is to keep His Gospel always before men. It tries to make them Christ-like by the methods which He has ordained, the Word, Sacraments, and Prayers. This involves expenses. It is expected, both by the Church and the world, that every congregation of Christian people will pay its own bills. There may be good reason why it may be for a time unable to do this—but only for a time. It offers to the people of the community where it is a very valuable thing. It takes for granted that every man and woman who takes advantage of this offer will pay for it according as they are able. It does not believe that any one wishes to go to Church as a pauper, living on the gifts of others.

The Church of the Holy Comforter wishes to serve you and your children in Christ's way. It asks you, in return, to pledge what you think right for the Church. It may be much, or it may be little, but it ought to be something. Whatever you may do will be known only to God, to yourself, and to the Rector and Treasurer of the Parish.

OUR WORKS DO FOLLOW US.

AT THIS SEASON of the year a plain and friendly chat on the subject of money is timely and appropriate. Before building our tower we must count the cost. The winter campaign is beginning and from the general stagnation of the times it promises to be a severe one. Our organizations and societies are also beginning their work and they will have plenty of work to do. St. Stephen's, as the Rector has already found out, is in many respects a unique church. There are very few like it anywhere. It is doing in the best sense a catholic work. Its sympathies and its generosities extend far beyond the limits of its own parish, even beyond the organized work of the diocese. There is not a good or generous cause in anyway connected with the Church in this country that does not feel that it can plead its necessities with us with a good hope that we will do what we can to relieve them.

This is as it should be. It is a noble tribute to the character of the men who have guided the destiny of our venerable parish in past years. "To whom much is given of him shall much be required." We cannot help feeling a just pride and happiness in being part of such a Church as this. But at the same time the work our Church has done in the past imposes upon us an obligation for the future. Our Works do Follow Us—our good works no less than our bad works. Many worthy and admirable causes are looking to us both within our parish and outside of it. We must be true to ourselves.

Thanks to the able administration of our competent and devoted Vestry, our people can feel that their gifts will be applied directly and wholly to religious and philanthropic objects. We do not ask your money for insurance, or coal, or to pay salaries, or to discharge old debts; but to educate the young, to reclaim the erring, to relieve the necessities of the deserving destitute, to make poverty and old age less bitter, to strengthen the Kingdom of Christ in many places where it is still weak. The history of such a work as this can never be told, but it will be revealed at the Last Day. God forgets nothing.

After all, conscientious, regular giving is largely a matter of habit and education. With a little effort probably most of us could train ourselves to give twice as much as we are now giving without seriously missing it. Perhaps some persons may be interested in knowing what the average offering per Sunday of each worshipper of St. Stephen's is. It is eight cents per week in summer on the part of persons actually in attendance on our services, and ten cents a week in winter. That is to say we receive an average of nine cents a week, or four dollars and sixty-eight cents a year from each individual. This is not a bad showing. It is much more than many churches receive. But surely, considering the average ability of our people, it is not enough. There is a good old rule in whist—"when in doubt, play trumps." A good rule in giving is—when in doubt between ten cents and a quarter, put in a quarter!

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

The Rector would like to repeat the substance of a few words of exhortation he recently addressed from the chancel on the subject of the Sunday School. He is glad to observe that his appeal has already borne some fruit, and he trusts that by setting it before the congregation in this form it may meet with a larger response.

The Sunday School of St. Stephen's is not as large or as flourishing as it ought to be. It is weaker relatively than most of our other parochial organizations. And yet the Sunday School is the most important of them all. It is true, owing to the absence of numerous dwellings in the immediate neighborhood of our Church, owing also to the distances at which most of our parishioners live, St. Stephen's, at present, cannot hope to have a Sunday School like the great schools of St. Augustine's or St. George's, in New York.

Granting this, we can easily double our present numbers if our people will make an effort to send us their children, and, above all, if we can obtain a sufficient number of intelligent and conscientious teachers. A good teacher attracts scholars. When one has anything to teach there are always plenty of persons who are willing to learn. The marvelous success that has attended the Jesuit system of education is due largely to the fact that they give their best men to teach the youngest children. They know that the impressions of early childhood are indelible. It was a wise man who said "Give me the instruction of a child until it is six years old, and I do not care who educates it afterward." Mohammed loved children. Often when preaching in the mosque of Medina, if he saw his little grandchildren enter he would descend, embrace them tenderly, and place them beside him in the pulpit. Then, excusing himself to the congregation on account of their innocence, he would go on with his discourse. There was Another who said "Suffer the little children to come unto Me, and forbid them not."

The responsibilities of parents are heavy enough at the best. We should lay as many as we can on God. The best and easiest way to goodness is through association with the good. The habits of piety and tender association formed in childhood can never be entirely lost. The teacher also is not without a reward. Never does my religion stand before me so plainly as when I attempt to teach it to another. To believe ourselves—that is an easy matter for most of us. But to believe so as to inspire faith, to believe so as to make others believe—there is always something great about that.

For those children who are not able to attend the morning session of the Sunday School, an afternoon class will be formed similar to the class formerly taught by Miss Rodman. This class, which will meet at three o'clock, will be conducted by Miss Hall, of the Deaconess' House, with the kind assistance of Mrs. E. B. Putnam.

AFTERNOON LECTURES.

The Rector expects in a short time to begin to substitute a series of simple "talks" on the Bible and on other matters pertaining to our Christian faith for the regular Sunday afternoon sermon. The sermon is an excellent institution, but it has its limitations. There are a thousand things which any thoughtful pastor would like, from time to time, to say to his people, and which the people would be interested in hearing, that are too homely or too fragmentary to be introduced into a sermon.

A congregation that has had the privilege of listening to Dr. McConnell's lectures does not need to be told that the Bible is not only the Word of Life, but also the most interesting book in the world. Nevertheless the Bible, and in particular the Old Testament, to most of us is a sealed book, and there are many reasons why it should be. It is the Rector's conviction that the better we understand the Bible the more we shall love it, and the more wonderful it will appear to us. It is true modern criticism has placed many old truths in new lights, but it gives back to us more than it takes away. It is that which gives us courage to proceed. There is a reverence for the Bible which consists in letting it entirely alone. The Jews felt such a reverence for the name of God, in consequence of which they forgot how to pronounce it. God does not desire such a service as this. "The hour cometh and now is when the true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth: for the Father seeketh such to worship Him."

THERE IS TO BE published in the Philadelphia Saturday Review, in a week or two, an illustrated article on St. Stephen's Church, present and past, and also one on the Burd Asylum.

A RECEPTION WILL BE given to the children of the Sunday School by the teachers and officers about Thanksgiving-tide.

THE GARMENT COMMITTEE will be glad to receive the annual contributions of two new garments from any member of the congregation who feels disposed to send them. Underwear of all kinds, for women and children, will be particularly appreciated, as a goodly supply will be needed to give to the applicants during the winter months. The articles can be sent at any time to the Parish Building in the rear of the Church, and should be labelled for the Garment Committee. The ladies will be at the Parish Building every Monday from half-past ten to half-past twelve o'clock.

Contributions are gratefully acknowledged as follows: From Mrs. J. L. Adams, Mrs. T. P. Chandler, Mrs. Crombarger, Mrs. C. H. Fenton, Mrs. C. H. Hillman, King's Daughters, Whatsoever Circle, Mothers' Loyal Circle, Mrs. M. M. Parmalee, and Mrs. Edward Rowland.

Number of articles received during October, 89, and 59 were distributed.

Good use can always be made of men's clothing, heavy underwear, shoes, coats, etc.

A Boarding and Temporary Home for Colored Children, under the name of "The House of the Holy Child," is to be established about November 15th in this city. This Home, it is hoped, will supply a longfelt need, as heretofore there has been no place where colored women at service could have their little children properly cared for. In the past year practical test has been made, by individual effort, of such a home. It has been eminently successful, and in order that the work may be enlarged, the aid of the charitable public is now solicited. A house, 1819 Fitzwater Street, has been rented, and visitors will be cordially welcome at any time. November 19th has been chosen for Donation Day. The religious training will be that of the Episcopal Church, but the Home will not be connected with any parish.

Manager, Miss Edith Wharton Dallas,
1514 Pine street.
Secretary, Mrs. William Ellis,

Treasurer, Mr. George Wharton Dallas,
606 Chestnut street.

The foundation of the "House" is endorsed by the Rt. Rev. O. W. Whitaker, Bishop of the Diocese of Pennsylvania.

THE EXCURSIONS are over, and the members of the Children's Friend Society ask what shall be done for the little ones on Thanksgiving Day?

It is almost ten years since this Society was organized. Most every week some who have now grown up, tell how, as children, they enjoyed both the outings in the summer and the evening entertainments. Children have come in to the Church and Sunday School, employment has been found for some, and kind, encouraging words given by all the members engaged in the work.

Donation received from Mrs. Edward S. Moody, $1.00.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the Whatsoever Circle have their meetings November 4th and 18th in the Parish House at half-past seven o'clock.

The work done by this Circle in October has been for the Garment Committee, and also for St. Christopher's Hospital.

Last year a Shoe Fund was started by this Circle. Anyone can be a member by giving the small sum of 25 cents a year. Shoes partly worn are very acceptable. Many little feet, as well as large ones, may be kept from being frosted this winter. Will you not help us in this work and add your name to the Shoe fund?

THE FEMALE BENEVOLENT SOCIETY will have its first meeting on Thursday, November 5th, at 11 o'clock, immediately after the morning service in the Church. It is necessary to make several changes in the managers and officers of the Society. Therefore there is a need that as many of the ladies of the congregation as can should be present at the business meeting after the service, for the purpose of electing officers and appoint the various members of the committees for the coming season.

THE EMBROIDERY CLASS of the Altar Society will meet on Friday, November 6th, at 10 A. M. It is earnestly hoped that the members will begin work promptly, and be regular in their attendance as far as possible. This Class is taught church embroidery during a part of the week, and makes the altar linen and vestments of the clergy of our Parish; and where it is thought best also the linen and surplices of poor and far-away missionaries. If any ladies in the congregation should like to enter the Class to learn this department of church work, or to help the ladies prepare the linen work of our Parish, they can join the Class by applying to the Superintendent, Mrs. Taylor, on Friday mornings.

THE GIRLS' FRIENDLY SOCIETY has started for its winter's work. It meets on Monday and Thursday evenings from 6.30 to 9.30 o'clock. Thursday evenings are devoted to the different classes, among them dress-making, cooking, book-keeping, etc. Monday is devoted to general instruction and recreation under the direction of the various associates. The ladies ask for the interest and co-operation of the members of the congregation. The Society has done a large work, and has a large list of members, and is recognized as one of the most important branches of this valuable organization in the diocese.

THE BOYS' GUILD of St. Stephen's Church has begun its meetings in the building used for the Sunday School in rear of the Church. This organization has reached many boys of the neighborhood, and has existed for several years, exerting a great and helpful influence over them. Miss H. W. Sanders and Miss Stratton have given their Friday evenings to the work. Much can be done, and more persons are needed to carry the work into greater ways of usefulness.

SELECTED.

"Uncomforted?—Nay, think not so!
White deeds dropped thickly, drift like snow
And lift the soul where it may boast
Of saint-like nearness to Christ's feet
And angel intimacies sweet:—
He knows Christ best who helps men most.

Pure deeds are fruit of love divine
And bear the soul their own sweet wine
To make its holiest pulses stir
With angel rapture; men forget
That great men suffer greatly; yet
God comforteth the Comforter."

Miss Tillie Taylor teaches a Class in Sewing in the Parish Room every Saturday from three

Our Organist, Mr. J. Ackroyd, for the past two weeks has been absent on account of sickness. We hope to be able to welcome him at his post, which he so ably and satisfactorily fills, on next Sunday. In his absence Mr. L. Williard Harris kindly consented to act as organist in his place. The Minister in charge, Vestry and Congregation extend to him a vote of thanks for his timely and invaluable assistance.

SELECTIONS.

Whenever you yield to temptation, it brings you no happiness. There may be, perhaps, at times a fancied pleasure in the wrong doing, but it is not real, and it is not lasting. There may be a sort of passing pleasure, as when, in betting or gambling, you win largely; or when, by theft or falsehood, you get something for which you have had a longing; or when, by fine dressing, you gain the flattery of silly admirers.

But there is no satisfaction in all this. How can there be? These things do but indulge the lower part of your nature, that which is earthly and tainted with sin. But there is a higher nature in you, even that which is Heavenly. Your better part strives against sin, but Satan is continually dragging you down, and trying to make you rebel against God and lose your own soul.

Now, what is it that you want to enable you to conquer this great enemy of your soul? What do you want to enable you to withstand the temptations which you meet with every day?

You want strength, spiritual strength. And this can only come from the Holy Spirit.

Dr. Chalmers, the eminent divine, was fond of telling the following story: Lady Betty Cunningham, having had some difference of opinion with the parish minister, instead of putting her usual contribution in the collecting plate, merely gave a stately bow. This having occurred several Sundays in succession, the elder in charge of the plate at last lost patience, and blurted out: "We cud dae wi' less o' yer manners and mair o' yer siller, ma leddy."—S. S. Magazine.

"Wealth," says Dr. Holmes, "is a steep hill which the father climbs slowly, and which the son often stumbles down precipitately."

THE RECTOR AND VESTRY HAVE ADOPTED the following address and form of pledge, which will be distributed generally throughout the Parish:

The purpose of the Church of Christ is to keep His Gospel always before men. It tries to make them Christ-like by the methods which He has ordained, the Word, Sacraments, and Prayers. This involves expenses. It is expected, both by the Church and the world, that every congregation of Christian people will pay its own bills. There may be good reason why it may be for a time unable to do this—but only for a time. It offers to the people of the community where it is a very valuable thing. It takes for granted that every man and woman who takes advantage of this offer will pay for it according as they are able. It does not believe that any one wishes to go to Church as a pauper, living on the gifts of others.

The Church of the Holy Comforter wishes to serve you and your children in Christ's way. It asks you, in return, to pledge what you think right for the Church. It may be much, or it may be little, but it ought to be something. Whatever you may do will be known only to God, to yourself, and to the Rector and Treasurer of the Parish.

THE REQUESTS for the special fund for Church work were sent out somewhat late. Those contributions that were not received in time for publication will be acknowledged in next number of PARISH NEWS.

THE SPECIAL CHURCH WORK FUND.

The Rector desires to make grateful acknowledgement for the response made to his attempt to create this fund, both by the people who gave and by those who for excellent reasons did not give. Personal appeals for money are as a rule not pleasant either to make or to receive. But in this attempt the painfulness of the request has been mitigated in almost all cases by the kindness and frankness of the response.

The principal embarrassment to a man necessarily a stranger to the circumstances of many of our people lies in the danger of a request that ought not to be made, and, which if made, ought not to be granted If such mistakes have been made no one is so sorry as the person who originated them.

On the other hand this fund represents too much in our parish life and work for it to be abandoned without grave cause. As has often been stated before, this money is devoted primarily to our working societies. The Sunday School, the Girls' Friendly, the Boys' Guild, the Altar Society, the Children's Friend Society, the various branches of the Woman's Auxiliary, the King's Daughters and others all come in for their shares. There will always be money and the disposition at St. Stephens to aid the deserving poor, but experience has proved that in the great majority of cases the best way to do this is to help people to help themselves. By supplying innocent and useful activity to our young men and women, by giving little pleasures to children that are not little to them, by helping weaker parishes, and supplying the necessities of some of our good missionaries, we are doing a better work than we should do in supporting an army of lazy and mendacious beggars in idleness. It is this mistaken kindness that has degraded the holy word Charity.

The Rector had this fact impressed upon him on his arrival in Philadelphia. He was surprised at the cordiality of the welcome extended to him by large numbers of tramps and professional beggars, who claimed to have enjoyed the confidence of his predecessor. This the Rector soon found cause to doubt. For a few days, not knowing what else to do, he distributed small sums of money among these worthy fellows. The news evidently spread that a greenhorn had come to town, and the rectory was fairly besieged. The prospects of securing a little time for study and repose seemed poor, when the Rector, advised by a good friend, adopted a new plan. Instead of giving money, he laid in a stock of tickets on comfortable inns and decent eating houses for these "starving" and "homeless" men. Their disgust was extreme. Some who were not too proud to beg were altogether too proud to present a ticket for a meal. Others, having taken tickets, revenged themselves by tearing them in pieces and strewing the pieces in front of the rectory door. Very few made any use of them. But the best of it was, showing the perfect understanding that exists among these people, that the army in a few days dwindled away to the moderate number of petitioners which every city rector expects as part of his day's work.

In reality no more difficult or perplexing problem lies before Christianity or civilization than what to do with that class of society, which sometimes we allude to with a light heart as "the submerged tenth." These are the persons, evolutionists tell us, natural selection is winding out. They are designed for slaughter. Will Christianity ever acquiesce in that? If I may use the figure, society is a craft of only a certain degree of buoyancy. For three parts to be above the surface, it is necessary for the fourth part to be submerged. The floating of the three parts depends on the drowning of the fourth part. That is not a pleasant thought. Some of us may well wish we did not weigh so much. The problem is to increase our buoyancy, to convert our old waterlogged craft into a balloon, so that every part of it may be bathed by air and sunshine.

This will be the problem of the future. But that is no reason why we should not grapple with it according to our strength at present. Human happiness is still a science that lacks its man of genius. Our present social condition is the result of ages of abuse and ignorance, which it will require ages to undo. We feel this as soon as we come into the presence of these outcasts, these step-children of fortune. There is something sad and burnt out about these neglected ones. They are the living result of centuries of crushing repression. They constitute a class antiquity did not know. They carry the stigmata, the physical brand of degradation and degeneration on their persons. They seem to say to us "How can a man be born when he is old? Can he enter a second time into his mother's womb and be born."

There was a curious and barbarous superstition in the middle ages, that when a wall was laid that was to stand for centuries, a living human being must be immured at its foundation. Change this a little and it gives us a profound truth. If these broken stones are ever to rise and form anything good, living men and women must be built into that fabric. Money alone can never work this miracle: love and devotion may. Those "buried lives," sunk in the mire of our great cities, fighting their lost battle underground, are the foundation stones on which, if at all, humanity will rise. The guilty again will be saved by the sufferings of the innocent.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL Christmas Festival will be held on Monday, December 28th. Holy Innocents' Day, in the Sunday School Room, at 7.30 o'clock. The Christmas Tree will be handsomely decorated and the Carols, taught by Mr. David D. Wood, will be sung.

The Infant Class will hold its Christmas Festival Saturday, December 26th, at 3 o'clock.

WITH THE FIRST WINTRY blast come appeals for canton flannel underclothing, shoes and outside wraps, which the Garment Committee have not been able to supply, owing to the lack of these articles on their shelves. Will the kind hearted people who intend to make contributions of clothing and who have not yet done so, please send unbleached night-gowns, canton flannel drawers, shoes and jackets for women and children. Its seems best to specify from month to month what is actually needed, and meantime grateful acknowledgements are due to Miss Cleemann, Miss Christopher, Miss E. Bell, Miss L. Bell, Mrs. Crawford, Miss Dickson, Miss Baird, Mrs. Lammot, Mrs. Edward Rowland, Mrs. Sinn, Miss Sidford, Mrs. Stratton and Miss Williamson. Garments received in November, 56; garments distributed in November, 43.

Monday, Dec. 7—Miss Cleemann, Mrs. Reinboth.

THE EMBROIDERY CLASS need more workers, on both altar cloths that are being made for St. Stephen's and for the French Church, and other work. It is also desired to form a class of beginners among the younger members of the congregation. A teacher will be ready to instruct this class, on Friday mornings, from 10 A. M. to 12 M., as soon as a sufficient number will signify their willingness to enter this class to the Superintendent, Mrs. H. P. Taylor, who can be seen on Friday mornings in the room on the third floor of the Parish House.

The instruction is free to any member of St. Stephen's, provided she gives her time and work to the Altar Society.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY TO THE BOARD OF MISSIONS.

THE UNITED OFFERING OF 1898.

The Woman's Auxiliary has marked three Triennials with a United Offering. In 1889, it gave $2,000, with one-half of which to build the first church (Christ Church, Anvik), in our Alaska mission, and with the other to send a new missionary to Japan. In 1892, it added $20,000 to the Enrolment fund. In 1895, it gave $56,000 to endow the Episcopate in a Missionary Jurisdiction. In 1898, it hopes to bring a still larger sum, and entrust it to the care of the Board of Missions, for the training and support of women workers in the mission fields of the Church.

In the offering of 1895 every Diocese and Missionary Jurisdiction had a share, varying from $8.000, given by New York, to $5 received from West Africa. In the offering of 1898 we wish that not only every Diocese and Missionary Jurisdiction should be represented, but every Parish and Mission also. We ask all Diocesan Officers to bring the matter before all Parish Officers, and they, in turn, before the members of the Parish Branches. Then we ask that women interested speak of it to women uninterested; that from Diocese to Diocese, from Parish to Parish, from Mission to Mission, the impulse may be handed on. And as with the Woman's Auxiliary, so with its Junior Department, even to the newest member of the Babies' Branch; we would have no individual left unappealed to, who claims connection with the Missionary Society, which is the Church.

From the Church Missions House, mite-boxes for the United Offering and copies of this leaflet will be sent to all who ask for them. These boxes are for the daily penny, the weekly dime—for any conscientious, systematic gift which the owner of the box may feel able to make. The boxes should be opened in May of the three succeeding years, 1896, 1897, and 1898, and the contents sent to some Officer of the Auxiliary within the diocese, appointed to receive them.

Will you not send for these boxes soon, and begin this ingathering without delay? And, with the box, will you not use the prayer inscribed upon it? Then October, 1898, may see, not only an abounding united gift of gold and silver, but a free and loving offering of women of the Auxiliary, giving themselves to mission work for Christ and His Holy Church.

JULIA C. EMERY.

These boxes can be obtained at the Parish House by applying to the Verger, Joseph Clayton, who will take the names and addresses.

$75 were received from Mite-boxes for 1896. Treasurer, Miss E. J. Magee.

SELECTIONS.

A TRUE RELIGION IS FOR ALL.

"Three classes of men one sees," said Buddha, "as when one sits beside a pond, and observes the water lilies growing in it. He sees some below the surface, others with heads raised quite above it, and others still just resting on the water. So all mankind is of these three, the sunken, the hopelessly bad; the confirmedly virtuous; and the undecided, the wavering. The first it may not help, the second is strong and does not need me. But the third—shall I leave them to perish? Perhaps my word may save them, or some of them."

But Jesus saw with deeper insight that some of those sad submerged ones have still the power to lift themselves above the turbid flow of passion into the light, the pure day, of a spiritual life; that some of those proud heads will bow and sink and need to be raised again. A real Saviour must be for all. A true religion must be for all. None so bad that he cannot be touched by it. None so good that he does not need it, since its ideals ever soar far above all human achievement.

DEFINITIONS OF HOME.

A prize was offered recently by London Tid-bits for the best answer to the question, "What is home?" Here are a few of the answers received:

The golden setting in which the brightest jewel is "mother."

A world of strife shut out, a world of love shut in.

Home is the blossom of which heaven is the fruit.

The only spot on earth where the faults and failings of fallen humanity are hidden under the mantle of charity.

The place where the great are sometimes small and the small often great.

The father's kingdom, the children's paradise, the mother's world.

The jewel casket containing the most precious of all jewels—domestic happiness.

Where you are treated best and you grumble most.

Home is the central telegraph office of human love, into which run innumerable wires of affection, many of which, though extending thousands of miles, are never disconnected from the one great terminus.

THE RECTOR AND VESTRY HAVE ADOPTED the following address and form of pledge, which will be distributed generally throughout the Parish:

The purpose of the Church of Christ is to keep His Gospel always before men. It tries to make them Christ-like by the methods which He has ordained, the Word, Sacraments, and Prayers. This involves expenses. It is expected, both by the Church and the world, that every congregation of Christian people will pay its own bills. There may be good reason why it may be for a time unable to do this—but only for a time. It offers to the people of the community where it is a very valuable thing. It takes for granted that every man and woman who takes advantage of this offer will pay for it according as they are able. It does not believe that any one wishes to go to Church as a pauper, living on the gifts of others.

The Church of the Holy Comforter wishes to serve you and your children in Christ's way. It asks you, in return, to pledge what you think right for the Church. It may be much, or it may be little, but it ought to be something. Whatever you may do will be known only to God, to yourself, and to the Rector and Treasurer of the Parish.

A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

By the time our paper reaches its destination these words will have echoed over the entire globe. Another of the earth's long journeys around the sun has been accomplished. Another stage of life's journey is passed. How swiftly the years slip by. Who would think that twelve months had glided away since we were preparing ourselves to meet the good year 'ninety-six? Time is a strange thing. It has only one dimension, it is all length. It is so inevitable. It moves in only one direction. It never retraces the smallest step it has once taken.

"The Moving Finger writes, and having writ,
"Moves on: nor all your Piety nor Wit
"Shall lure it back to cancel half a Line,
"Nor all your Tears wash out a Word of it."

The one thing certain is that life flies. We are all in Time, and it is sweeping us away. Like a river it has its deep and its shallow places, its dangerous rapids, its plunges into the unknown, its calm and level stretches. Like a river it flows, sometimes swift and sometimes slow, now through sunless chasms and again beside the green pastures. But if we inquire what this wonderful Time is, and Whither it is carrying us, we can only say with Saint Augustine—"If you had not asked me perhaps I might have told you, but since you ask the question, I must confess I do not know."

It is that which gives much of its strangeness to human destiny. There is in us just enough of the permanent to make us shudder that we are so vanishing. We are mortal weavers weaving an immortal fabric. On the one hand is conscience proclaiming truth and goodness to be supreme and eternal, on the other hand the vicissitudes of a mortal lot, the awful indifference with which death marks out its victims. This contradiction is the cause of much of our sadness. The two do not agree. One or the other must be sacrificed. If man is eternal, Time and change cannot mean very much to him. If he is so evanescent, why attempt to inject such infinite issues into his little life?

The two writers who have felt this contradiction most profoundly are the Preacher of Ecclesiastes and the Persian poet Omar Khayyam. That is why, in spite of their cynicism, we love them, for they have touched all our sorrows. It is true they both sacrifice man to the blind process of the world, but they do so with many regrets, Koheleth surveys with an impartial eye the strange events of human life. He sees man with his infinite aspirations circumscribed by a finite destiny, the good man cut down in early life, the bad man flourishing to a hoary old age. He beholds the funerals of criminals celebrated in the city where they have done their worst deeds. He sees some men toiling like ants their whole life long without ever enjoying the fruit of their labors or even knowing for whom or what they are working. He paints in matchless colors the coming on of old age, the gradual loosening of all the timbers of the house, decay, disillusion, the closing, day after day, of some door between us and the world, and he comes to the bitter conclusion—"All is Vanity." Life passes so quickly, pleasure is so fugitive, men are so ungrateful, women are so perverse and unsatisfactory, there is only one thing worth doing, and that is to enjoy yourself as much as you can with the wife you have loved in your youth, mindful all the time of the evil days that are coming as the finale of the happiest life, and of Death that so soon will pass his sponge over all. "Amuse yourself young man in your youth, walk in the ways of your fancy and according to your pleasure. But know that God will ask of you an account of all that." "There is not one of your pleasures for which you shall not hereafter atone by many regrets." Omar Khayyam, in some respects a loftier spirit, is even more bitter. His irony wounds us more profoundly, his laughter is more mocking.

These two books are of immense value because they draw the conclusions of a philosophy without faith, with a courage that our modern doctrinaires do not possess. These latter rhetoricians rob us of God and our hope, and then try to make us believe we are richer than we were before. Omar and Koheleth are more candid. Most of us probably have our moments of doubt when we surrender ourselves to their seductive charm, but we feel all the while that theirs is not the true philosophy of life. This knot, difficult to untie, can be cut by the sword of faith. Pessimism is a morass. Those who wander into it are swallowed up by it. For that reason it is best to keep out of it. There are some persons that accomplish great things without any apparent belief in immortality, but, as Renan says, they are sustained by the knowledge that their friends believe it for them. There is also a word which neither Omar nor Koheleth though of, but which forms the basis of every true philosophy and every true religion. That is the word Duty. By holding fast to duty in the face of all obstacles man triumphs over destiny.

ON CHRISTMAS EVE, by request of the Rector, there was held in the Church a short Carol Service for the children of the parish. The carols taught by the Organist, Mr. David D. Wood, were sweetly sung by the Sunday School scholars. The service was conducted by Dr. Worcester, and the address was made by the Rev. Mr. Miller. Many of the congregation were present and took part in the service. Immediately after the service eight children, brought to the Church by Sister Elizabeth, were baptised by the Rector.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL held its Christmas Festival in the Parish Building, in the rear of the Church, on Holy Innocents Day, at eight o'clock P. M. The Sunday School room was filled with the children and young people of the School and Bible Classes, with many friends and parents of the children in the gallery. The carols were beautifully sung by the School. The tree was handsomely decorated with flowers, tinsel and toys, and shone forth brilliant in color under the bright gas light. Candy, oranges, cake and apples were given to all. There was a short service, and an address by Mr. Miller. Miss Maud Taylor gave a well selected list of recitations, which were much appreciated by the children, as was shown by the repeated calls for more selections from her. Owing to a previous engagement, Dr. Worcester came in before the close. He greeted all heartily and wished all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. By his interest in the school and frequent visitations on Sunday mornings during the sessions, he has endeared himself already to the children and young people of the parish.

SISTER ELIZABETH'S REPORT.

The beginning of new work is always somewhat difficult, but to Sister Elizabeth the "starting" in S. Stephen's Parish has been made comparatively easy by the kindly welcome given, and the help of the ladies managing the Charitable Societies.

The benefit of the "Garment Committee" was discovered the very first week, when a poor little baby made her entrance into the world totally unprovided for, the mother herself having hardly clothes to cover her. Within a few hours both were made comfortable, warm and very grateful. Five other small bairns would testify this month, could they speak, to the usefulness of the "Aid Society," and the warmth and comfort of the little wrappers and sacques, etc., made by the kindly fingers.

But it is not only clothes that are needed. Christmas Eve the Rector's attention was drawn by a member of the congregation to the condition of a family living some little way out. Not only were they found to be in great distress and poverty (one son out of work for four months, the other very seriously ill, the mother a widow and no work), but two other families were discovered as badly, if not worse off than the one visited—"illness, many little mouths to fill and no work" was the cry of all; the absolute necessaries of life were bought for them, but it was impossible to do more—illness and poverty together must indeed be hard to bear!

With all the sadness there are still many things to help and cheer us on, and for which we are most thankful; one I should like specially to mention came to me the other day in the shape of two new dollar bills, "to be spent for the poor woman and little baby," no name or address was given, but I felt sure it meant a bit of self-denial from some one, and I should like to thank her here and tell her how grateful the poor mother was for the help; a little of the money still remains and will be used for coal.

One other thing: a number of very nice children's Picture Books were given me just before Christmas to distribute, and gave great pleasure to the small children who received them.

The Bible Class, started the first Sunday in December, has been very encouraging, having grown from two to fifteen members in three weeks, but we hope before long it will double its numbers. This class is not intended for young children, but all over the age of fifteen will be welcome.

The class is held in the Rector's room in the Parish House every Sunday afternoon at three o'clock, and it is a great help to the teacher if the members can be in their places five minutes before.

THE RECTOR gladly acknowledges the generous donation of picture books for the little children sent by Mrs. Theophilus P. Chandler, and also a box of Bric-a-Brac from Mrs. C. L. Martin given to the children of the Infant Class. He also thanks Mrs. Drysdale for the toys and books sent for distribution.

A MOST GENEROUS response in the shape of warm underclothing was made to the appeal of the Garment Committee in the last PARISH NEWS, for 95 articles were received, and 107 distributed during the past month. As the outgoing number exceeded the incoming, however, there is still need for more contributions.

THE GIRLS' FRIENDLY SOCIETY will have their Christmas entertainment in the Guild room on Monday evening, the 4th inst., at 8 P. M.

THE BOYS' GUILD held a debate with the Girls' Friendly Society on Tuesday, December 22nd, in the Guild Room. The subject was Resolved, that "the fear of punishment was a greater preventative to crime than the hope of reward." The boys had the affirmative side. The girls took the negative. The decision was rendered in favor of the members of the Boys' Guild, much to their joy.

THE INFANT CLASS of the Sunday School had its Christmas Festival on Saturday afternoon. The tree was decorated by the teachers, and with the candy, cake, oranges and presents of books, bric-a-brac, all the little ones had a delightful time. The carols were sung joyfully, and recitations made by the little boys and girls were a feature of the occasion. Santa Claus was there and helped to distribute the presents.

THE CLOSING EXERCISES of the Parish School for the Christmas holidays took place on Wednesday, December 23rd, in the Parish Building. The exercises consisted in singing and recitations by the pupils; the Christmas gifts were distributed, and the bright and happy faces of the children expressed their great pleasure. After the Creed had been said the Rector made a short address, and closed the school with prayer.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS (Loyal Circle) held a Fair in the Guild Room, on Friday, December 18th, in the evening. The proceeds are used by the members of the Circle in helping forward their charitable work during the winter. This Circle is mostly composed of the women in Miss Stoddard's Mothers' Meeting.

DONATIONS RECEIVED in December by the Children Friend's Society: Mrs. E. M. Rumpp $1.00, Miss Mary Rumpp $1.00, a Friend $5.00, Mrs. J. P. Hillman $5.00, from church fund through Dr. Worcester $25.00, Miss Anna Sinclair $1.00, Miss Ford $1.00. Christmas cards for two or three hundred children, Miss Stevenson.

Are the children going to have any Christmas? Those interested in the work hardly knew what to say, as the funds were low—almost like Mother Hubbard's Cupboard. Dr. Worcester was Santa Claus, and has come to our relief, and we hope, with the help of kind friends, to give the little ones a good time the beginning of January.

The children would miss these Entertainments, they are talked over the whole year; they cost between twenty and thirty dollars, the Excursions in the summer the same, Sea Shore ones seventy-five and eighty dollars each. When this work started it was the only Society, except the Country Week, of the kind. Donations have been received in years back from many persons in other cities, and all were glad to hear of the good time given to the children.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the Whatsoever Circle will have their meetings, Jannary 6th and 20th, in the Parish House, half-past seven o'clock.

Donations received: Miss Mary Sidford, $2.00.

Four families were made happy with all sorts of good things for Christmas; also clothing, toys and candy for the children.

A little girl was also given a pair of shoes, which were a little worn, but with the addition of a pair of overshoes she will, although very small and not quite fourteen years, be able to go to work.

Don't forget the Shoe fund, and help the King's Daughters to keep some little feet from being frosted.

Twenty-five cents a year, overshoes very acceptable.

Contributors to Shoe Fund: Mrs. C. F. Fenton, 25 cents; Viola Fenton Bidlack, 25 cents.

IN MEMORIAM.

GEORGE B. ROBERTS,
Died, January 30th, 1897.
Vestryman, 1870-1897.

AT A MEETING OF THE VESTRY of St. Stephen's Church, in the city of Philadelphia, held February 1st, 1897, the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That the Vestry, in common with their fellow citizens, lament the loss to the public of the valuable life that has passed away with the death of Mr. George B. Roberts. In common with their fellow churchmen they lament the loss thus fallen upon the Church of which he was so devoted and useful a member. But they feel a nearer and deeper sorrow in the loss of him as a fellow Vestryman and friend. Mr. Roberts was a man of affairs deeply engrossed in the cares of business, but he always found time to attend to whatever other duties were cast upon him.

He served in this Parish as a Vestryman, continuously, for upwards of twenty-six years; in that time no important matter came before the Vestry that he was not present taking a leading part, and with his clear and practical mind solving difficulties and framing plans of action. He was patient and courteous in discussion, and endeared himself to all by his kindly helpfulness. The Vestry have lost a wise counsellor, an able coadjutor and an earnest, frank and sincere friend.

Resolved, That the Vestry extend to the family of Mr. Roberts their earnest sympathy.

Resolved, That a committee of the Vestry be appointed to attend the funeral, and that these resolutions be entered upon the minutes of the Vestry, and a copy thereof sent to the family of Mr. Roberts, and copies thereof be made to appear in THE PARISH NEWS, Church Standard and The Churchman.

THE ANNUAL OFFERING FOR DIOCESAN MISSIONS will be placed on the Altar on Sunday morning, February 21st. This annual offering has come to be a well known and well approved institution in St. Stephen's. For the sake of those who have come to the parish within the year, we will explain again, this year, the way it is done.

On Sunday morning, February 14th, from the pulpit, will be told more in detail the work of Diocesan Missions. During the week which follows, every family will be waited upon by a committee of gentlemen, among whom the parish has been districted for this purpose. The committee simply calls to receive offerings of those who give. They will make no argument or appeal of any kind. The Rector will do all that publicly. Of course the committee will be courteously received by all well-bred people, whether they can see their way to contribute or not. The amount expected, according to a tacit agreement which has been in force for a number of years, is equal to $5 from each person. This is what we have done heretofore, and nobody is any poorer, while many a poor missionary and struggling handful of people are much the better off.

Of course there are many in the parish who cannot afford to give so much as the sum mentioned above, but there are many others who can, and heretofore have given far more than the amount, so as to make up for their poorer neighbors. There is no fear but that they will do so again. The whole amount gathered by the collectors will be by them placed in the alms-basins, Sunday, February 21st.

THE PROCEEDS OF THE Ladies' Sale, held in the Guild Room, in the early part of December, in aid of gentlewomen who are obliged by their own efforts to support themselves, amounted to $417.00.

THE RECTOR would like to call the attention of the congregation to Sister Elizabeth's report, which he believes will interest them. It is a comfort and satisfaction to him to know that this great work of charity is in such good hands. This, as most of us know, is a hard winter. To the poor it is a very hard winter, because it is so hard to get work. Hundreds and thousands of people, probably as good as most of us, find it difficult to keep their stomachs reasonably full of food and to keep warm at night. A certain number of these persons look naturally to us. They have worshipped with us, some of them for many years. They know us better than we know them. They have knelt beside us around the Lord's Table. Among these persons, for the most part, Sister Elizabeth's work lies. It is something that the Church, in the person of one of its ministers, should go to them, but it is not much, after all, if she goes empty-handed. St. James ridiculed that form of charity more than eighteen hundred years ago—"Go in peace, my brother or my sister, be warmed and fed." In such weather as this it requires coal and wood and blankets to keep people warm. Hungry stomachs need bread and butter, and occasionally a little meat, more than soft words.

The Rector has, of course, the Charitable and Benevolent Fund, but too much of it is appropriated by obligations and promises of long standing to enable him to dip into it very heavily. During the month of February Sister Elizabeth could use one hundred dollars in relieving actual want and suffering. Perhaps some of us would have a better digestion, and sleep more sweetly in our comfortable beds, if we assisted her in this good work. At all events the objects of our kindness would. Nothing retards digestion like protracted hunger, and cold is a great enemy to sleep.

SISTER ELIZABETH'S REPORT.

A gentleman was once heard to remark "I do hate to get a begging letter asking just at the end instead of at the beginning for what it wants, as if I had to be persuaded into giving. I always make a point of refusing whatever is asked for in this way." Taking warning by my friend's sad experience (who, needless to say, did not get what she wanted), I have followed the rule of telling my wants straight out at the very beginning, and have always found my friends ready and willing to help.

WANTS FOR FEBRUARY.

Boots to keep some little feet I know warm; sizes, 10½, 11 and 12; for bigger feet, 3½ and 4. Coal. Groceries. Flowers, each week, for sick and sad, especially needed and appreciated this time of year.

Having told my "wants," my warmest "thanks" must follow to the kind and thoughtful people who have already given their help, several of whom do not wish their names mentioned. I often wish they could see the delight and gratitude with which their gifts are received. The poverty and distress is still great, and will be, I fear, until after March, so many fathers and brothers out of work, and the little money put by for "hard times" all spent, and that dreadful nightmare, debt, riding fast over them.

One specially sad case was brought to our notice, by a good member of St. Stephen's, of a poor old woman who had been without food for two days; she had never before asked help, and was much distressed at having to receive it now. There are many others, perhaps not in such a desperate condition, but still greatly in need of temporary help and sympathy.

Money is never given, but coal, food, rent and clothes are, to the deserving and really needy, and, may I add, in every case a visit is paid to the home before help is given.

The Bible Class is now held in the Guild room, over the Rector's, in the Parish House; it is growing slowly, but we trust surely; eighteen members belong, but are not always all present. May we ask, with the beginning of a new month, for more regular attendance?

The Friday before the first Sunday in the month there will be a Women's Preparation Class for the reception of the Holy Communion on the following Sunday; it will be held in the Guild room in the Parish House, at 7.45.

The "mothers" still meet Wednesday afternoons, and last week, through snow and wind, ten found their way to the Parish House, and were rewarded by a visit from the Rector. All ask anxiously each meeting for Miss Stoddard, and there will be general rejoicing when she is able to be among us once more.

CONTRIBUTION.

A gentleman who is well acquainted with the congregation of St. Stephen's Church, on Sunday afternoons in particular, and who has lived and traveled much abroad, says that it is the nearest approach to an English rural parish of anything he has ever seen in this country. There is everything in it, socially and intellectually; all sorts and conditions of men. The rich and the poor are met together in it in a most striking manner. He says he has even met with tramps in a ten-cent lodging house who had been here the Sunday before, and entertained him with an account of the Services. As to the character of the congregation in the other direction it does not become us to quote him, except so far as to say that it is his opinion that extremes meet here as scarcely anywhere else in the city. We should be glad to believe that it is so.

ON LOOKING OVER the list of names of contributing members, the Garment Committee would report that a number of members have not yet sent in their annual donation. Two new garments sent to the Committee constitute membership, not a very heavy tax surely, and could the donors see how their gifts are appreciated, flannel skirts, women's nightgowns and children's dresses would be sent every week, and no appeal for clothing be necessary. As is, however, these articles are now asked for, and acknowledgments for clothing received during the past month are due to Mrs. Atmore, Miss Atmore, Miss Baird, Miss L. Bell, Mrs. Bunker, Miss Dickerson, Miss Bessie C. Clayton, Mrs. C. F. Fenton, Mrs. Lammot, Miss Livingstone, Mrs. Pancoast, Mrs. Reinboth, Mrs. Sausser, Miss Sidford, Mrs. H. P. Taylor, Miss S. Stevenson and Miss Wilkins.

THE CUTTING COMMITTEE of the Benevolent Society earnestly desire to add to its numbers new workers to assist in cutting garments to be made by the poor women. The Committee meets on Tuesdays at 10 o'clock, in Parish House, No. 9 S. Tenth St. The Benevolent Society will gladly welcome them; their assistance is greatly needed.

THE AID SOCIETY has already sent out three Missionary Boxes, besides making up garments to be given to those whose necessities are great, especially for infants and young children. We give below a letter of thanks, just received, acknowledging a box sent to a colored missionary in the South, with a family of four little children. This was a Christmas Box, and, besides the necessary clothing, contained a gift for each of the little children:

DEAR MADAM:—I have to acknowledge receipt of letter and box, both of which reached me today. I have to ask you to convey to the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Stephen's Church our most heartfelt thanks for so excellent a box, the contents of which cannot fail to be of the highest benefit to us, and to contribute very much to our comfort and happiness.

Again thanking you very much,
I am, dear Madam,
Yours in the Holy Church,

DONATIONS RECEIVED in January by the Children's Friend Society: Mrs. C. P. Stratton, $2.00; Miss Louise Betts Edwards, $1.00; Mrs. H. P. Taylor, $1.00; Mrs. Anna M. Kelly, $1.00.

Clothing from Miss Anna Sinclair.

January 13th over three hundred children were entertained by Professor Perry, the popular Magician—A Night in Wonderland. It was one of the finest entertainments the children have had, and was much enjoyed by all.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the Whatsoever Circle meet February 3rd and 17th, in Parish House, half-past seven o'clock.

Donations received: Mrs. H. P. Taylor, $1.00; For Shoe Fund, Mrs. H. P. Taylor, 25 cts.; Mrs. Edward Rowland, 25 cts.; a Friend, $1.00; H. F., 25 cts.; Miss Dora Friedel, 25 cts.; Mrs. Anna M. Kelly, 25 cts.

Mrs. H. P. Taylor, an honorary member of this Circle, donated ice cream and cake for all the members of the Circle, which was enjoyed very much.

This Circle visited, January 23rd, St. Christopher's Hospital, taking clothing, books, toys and candies to the sick children.

One dozen pairs of shoes have been given out this month to those in great want. It is astonishing how many children have the pretence of a shoe. Examine them, and you will find one thickness of leather; should it be rainy, you will find them soaking wet. Is it any wonder that so many have colds, which develop into diphtheria and other diseases? The King's Daughters ask for second-hand shoes or overshoes, to help them keep some poor little ones from getting sick.

The Bishop will administer Confirmation in St. Stephen's Church on Tuesday in Holy Week at 11 o'clock.

CONFIRMATION.

"A certain man had two sons." That is a picture in miniature of God and the world. The certain man is the Heavenly Father; the two sons are those who stay in and those who stay from the Father's house.

The heart of that Father throbs with love for all the world, and longs for nothing so much as for the return of those children who are wandering and lost in a sinful world.

He calls them to come back and be at home. That is really the meaning of the call to Confirmation. Come home and all that the Father has shall be yours as well as His.

That call should be heard and heeded by the men and women of the world and of this Parish. It promises moral health, spiritual wealth, the highest joy and perfect rest and satisfaction.

Why then, do not men rise and go back to the Father's house? Among other reasons there are these: Grown men and women have not infrequently a feeling that to confess Christ and enter His Church is to exhibit a kind of sentimentalism and weakness of which they are ashamed. The call to Confirmation is for children. The Church is the place for women and children. But what if this be true. It is equally true that the call is to men and women as well as children, and the Church is emphatically for men, for He Who is its Head is the "Lord of all power and might." They who are on God's side are on the strong side; and therefore men who pride themselves on their strength should join themselves to Him Who is the source of all their power. Time was when kings, princes and noblemen were not ashamed to kneel at the font and the altar and be signed with the sign of the cross; and the noblest and most kingly act that any man can perform is to confess allegiance to Christ and and fight under His banner.

Besides all this, every man is bound by the obligation of his creation and redemption to use his influence to promote goodness and righteousness among his fellows. The Church, whatever may be its faults and weakness, is on the whole, the saving influence of the world, without which there would be little safeguard for the family, property, or anything the world holds dear.

The church therefore calls for strong men, and gives to all who come into it, as all true education does, larger, higher and nobler manhood and womanhood developed into the symmetry and sweetness, the beauty and glory of the character that is in Jesus Christ.

Men sometimes feel that by being confirmed they take new obligations upon them which they are not sure they can keep. But there is no new obligation taken in Confirmation.

There is simply the recognition of an old obligation that is on every man, whether in the Church or out of it; an obligation to love and serve God and do the everlasting right. What is required is that men shall try to do their best. There is no better than the best, and to try to do that is but our reasonable service. Put away then all doubt and temptation. Be willing to give up that which is evil, to do that which is right, and to confess Him Whom you all believe is your Lord, and you will be prepared to come to Confirmation.

In this congregation there is probably not one who would not like to accept Christ and to enter His Church. Most of you mean to do so before you die. But you wait irresolute, apparently but not really indifferent.

You are like the hands and machinery of a clock that is all wound up ready to start and keep time, but as yet motionless.

Let this simple appeal and the solemn services of the Lenten season be the influence that shall touch your hearts and hands and start you on your way to the Father's house, and toward the perfect manhood of Jesus Christ.

Rise up in the dignity of your manhood, realize its splendid possibilities. Confess Christ. Renounce evil. Ratify your baptismal vows, and promise, God helping you, to keep His commandments and live a better life.

SISTER ELIZABETH'S REPORT.

A short story by Tolstoi has been forcibly brought to my mind lately, and I have no doubt is well known to many of you.

The old man, Avdyéitch, as you will remember, was a poor cobbler. One night he dreamed that "The Christ" was coming to visit him next day. On the morrow it happened that several people needed his help, and to all he gave willingly: to one just a warm seat by his fire, to another an old coat and cup of tea, to a third kind words, and so on. That evening when peacefully resting in the twilight, he fancied he saw forms in the dark corner of his little room, and heard a voice whisper, "Avdyéitch did you not recognize Me?" then out of the darkness slipped one after another the people who through the day he had helped, each saying, "This is I." Then the old man understood his dream, and that the Saviour had really come to him and had been received by him, and the words rang in his ears "In as much as ye have done it to the least of these my brethren ye have done it unto Me." So is the Voice of Christ heard now by those who have lovingly given to the needs of others, for the very smallest gift of hard earned pennies as for the larger ones; and surely this is the best thanks we can receive. Could the people who have been helped this month pass before their good friends, how many think you of us would recognize in their poor, sad faces "The Christ" and how many feel the great honor of having been allowed to minister to His needs? Had this honor been fully recognized, I think there would have been no WANTS in the March number of our PARISH NEWS. I do not ask those who have already so generously given, but to those who perhaps did not see the February NEWS, or were not able to give at that time, I would say there are still many poor hungry ones, sick and out of work, who need your special help. After this month I sincerely trust things will brighten, and do not be afraid, I shall not be always begging!

It was a great pleasure last Wednesday afternoon to once more see Miss Stoddard at the "Mothers' Loyal Circle," and we hope before many weeks she will be strong enough to take up the work she has carried on for so many years.

Friday evening next, March 5, at eight o'clock, the Preparation Class for the Reception of the Holy Communion on the following Sunday, will meet in the Guild Room. All communicants are welcome.

THE FEMALE BENEVOLENT SOCIETY desires to call the attention of the congregation to the Annual Sale of garments, kitchen and glass towels, dusters, etc., to be held after the morning service, Friday, March 12, in the Guild Room of the Parish House. It is scarcely necessary to remind those who are interested in the poor, of the need the Society has for the money which helps so materially to remunerate the poor women during the winter months when their necessity is great. There will be garments on sale very suitable for the ladies of the congregation to buy and give to the needle-work Guild.

THE GARMENT COMMITTEE report having received 67 garments during February, and have distributed 54. Acknowledgements with thanks for articles donated are due to Miss Christopher, Miss Dutilh, Mrs. Drysdale, Mrs. Edward Fell, Miss French, Miss Koons, Mrs. Maulsby, Mrs. Newlin, Mrs. Muirheid, Mrs. Richardson, Miss

ONE OF THE CHARMS of St. Stephen's Church is the surprise most persons feel on passing, for the first time, from the outside to the inside. Even to those who know every stone in the old building too well to be surprised, the pleasure is not less. The Rector had this brought to his mind in a somewhat amusing way a little while ago. A friend was visiting him who has spent much of his life abroad and is familiar with the finest church buildings in Europe. Standing on Tenth Street, and surveying the plain exterior of St. Stephen's of which he had heard so much, with evident disappointment he said, "I suppose your congregation intends to build a new church pretty soon." But on entering and observing the treasures of art contained in that plain shell, like jewels in a simple casket, our monuments, our beautiful window, our superb mosaic altar-picture and reredos, he exclaimed, "O my friend, I take it all back. There is nothing like this in this country."

Although we believe and are sure that God can be worshipped acceptably wherever He has recorded His name in Nature or in the hearts of men, there will always be something touching and uplifting in works of art inspired by religious ideals. There is devotion enough in the picture galleries of Europe to keep faith alive through a darker period of unbelief than that through which certain countries are now passing. These great object lessons in religion speak a universal language, they appeal to all hearts. We in St. Stephen's owe an immense debt of gratitude to those generous and devoted men and women who have provided us with objects on which our eyes can never rest without pleasure.

But on the other hand, what has been done so well in the past ought to be an incentive to us to go on and do more, until every suitable portion of the Church has been enriched with beautiful memorials of those who once loved it and worshipped in it. In particular, there remains one niche to be filled, one work to be done of such a nature that we cannot help wondering that no one has thought of claiming it as his or her own.

Our Chancel needs only one thing to make it perfect of its kind, and that is a glorious window. Our present Chancel window, which consists only of conventional figures, the work of a bygone school of art, the eyes of generations have rested on without learning one religious lesson. What we should have in this most conspicious place is a worthy representation in colored glass of the martyrdom of the Saint after whom this Church is named. The scene itself is dramatic and inspiring in the highest degree, and the three adjoining lights would lend themselves well to this treatment. On the one side St. Paul guarding the clothes of the murderers, on the other the Saviour just rising to his feet to greet his faithful servant, and in the center the martyrdom of the Saint. Such a picture would give a solemnity to the Church it does not now possess, and a more touching and beautiful memorial could hardly be imagined.

THE RECTOR INTENDS to publish a new Year-Book of the Parish.

It is particularly requested that all persons who consider themselves members of St. Stephen's Church, (communicants, pew-holders and regular attendants,) fill out the blanks prepared for this purpose that none may be overlooked in the new book. These blanks will be placed in the pews and in the vestibule of the Church.

THE OFFERINGS ON EASTER DAY will be for the Special Endowment Fund of the Parish.

This is the only service in the year at which the offerings of the people are asked for anything connected with the sustenance of this Parish. And even on this occasion it is not really so, in so far as this present congregation is concerned. This Fund was begun, several years ago, for the express purpose of guranteeing that St. Stephen's Church should be able for all time to minister to the people of the city who live round about where the Church stands. The Church is now strong and vigorous, and is constantly giving of its money to all contemporary good works and charities. While this is the case it is the time to provide for the future.

CONFIRMATION will be on Tuesday in Holy Week, April 13th, at 11 o'clock.

The Rector desires particularly that all who are to be Confirmed will meet him in the Guild Room after the 5 o'clock service on Friday, April 9th, to sign the Parish Register, arrange for the Confirmation Service, and to say some words to them of a more private character than can well be done at the public confirmation lectures.

THERE WILL BE A celebration of the Holy Communion on Maundy-Thursday, at 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

THERE WILL BE Morning Prayer and Litany, with Sermon, and Offertory for the City Mission on Good Friday, at 11 o'clock.

ON EASTER DAY THERE WILL BE two celebrations of the Holy Communion, one at 8 o'clock, and later at 11 o'clock.

IT IS THE LAW AS WELL AS THE CUSTOM OF THE CHURCH that every one who has been confirmed shall actually partake of the Holy Communion "at least three times a year, one of which shall be Easter Day." Of course it is a law without any penalty attached. It is a custom which any one has the power to disregard if he chooses to. It is a rule, however, which ought to be as binding as any which the art of man could devise. To disregard it is to do one's self an injury, and is also to do a wrong to the society with which one has identified himself, and, above all, it is discourteous to the Master.

ON EASTER DAY THE SERVICES will be at eight o'clock, eleven o'clock, and four o'clock. At the two latter services the pew-holders and regular members of the Congregation will be admitted as usual through the north transept door. The front doors will be opened promptly at the hour of the service itself, and the visitors will be provided with seats to the full capacity of the Church.

It seems rather an inhospitable mode of action, but upon reflection it will commend itself to all reasonable people. It is but right and fair that those who attend the services all the other days of the year, should have an opportunity to occupy their own seats on the great high festival, and that those who only visit the Church upon such occasions should be asked to wait upon the convenience of the regular attendants.

THE EASTER CAROL SERVICE of the Sunday Schools, Parish Day School and Burd Orphan Asylum, will be held in the Church on the first Sunday after Easter, April 25th, at four o'clock. The offertory will be for the Home of the Merciful Saviour for crippled children.

THE LENTEN WORK taken out by the ladies of the congregation is to be returned by Easter Monday morning. The Committee will then assort the garments made and prepare them for distribution where most needed.

SISTER ELIZABETH'S REPORT.

How small one letter seems! And yet what a difference it can make. Boo*k*s are delightful, and treasures, but boo*t*s are necessities. Many of our boys I expect are glad it was only a printer's error last month and that the boo*t*s are boo*t*s still, and not, by the changing of the letter t into k, books.

A little Scotch baby wishes to thank the Ladies' Aid Society for taking pity on him; he is not the only baby that is grateful, but having a good provident mother he naturally expected better things; he found when he entered the world that his twin brother was well cared for and had plenty of garments, his mother having "provided for ain but not for twa," he was left out in the cold.

The Communicants' preparation class meets the Friday before the first Sunday in the month, at eight o'clock, in the Guild Room.

THE LAST MEETING of the St. Stephen's Aid Society will be held on April 9th. The members of the Society and also any ladies of the congregation are urged to call or send for work to be done during the summer.

THE LADIES OF THE BENEVOLENT Society will hold a Sale in the Parish house on Wednesday, April 14th, from half after ten until half after one o'clock, for the purpose of selling garments, household articles, etc., made by the poor women the society employs.

Owing to the bad weather on the day the last Sale was held, we had few buyers. It is very much hoped that all the ladies of the congregation will make use of this opportunity to furnish themselves with dusters, scrub-cloths, dish-cloths, also garments suitable to give to the poor and hospitals, and at the same time aid the good work of the Benevolent Society.

THE GARMENT COMMITTEE have received 61 garments during the month of March, and have distributed 50. Contributions are gratefully acknowledged as follows: from Mrs. Edith Allen, Mrs. J. K. Barclay, Miss L. Bell, "Whatsoever Circle" King's Daughters, Mrs. and Miss Davison,

On Wednesday, March 24th, the Rev. Frederic Poole, who is in charge of the Chinese Mission on Race Street, gave an illustrated Lecture on "China and Chinatown." Over 100 stereopticon views were used in describing the lecture. Among them was the Race Street Mission, scenes of the riot district in China in 1892, characters of the Chinese Empire, two Chinese girls undergoing the operation of foot binding, and many other instructive pictures.

The proceeds of this lecture are for the benefit of the King's Daughters of the Whatsoever Circle, for their charitable work among the poor.

The money given to the Rev. Mr. Poole for this lecture goes to the Chinese Mission. The King's Daughters feel that it is a very good Lenten offering, as well as a very beautiful lecture.

The proceeds were	$49 10
Expenses for the evening . . .	23 60
Balance	$25 50

DONATIONS RECEIVED by the Children's Friend Society in March: Miss E. W. Stevenson, $5.00; Mrs. Bunker, $1.00; from a Friend, $5.00.

Easter is coming, and the children are asking, Are we going to have anything? It is a hard question to answer, and yet, when all is brightness around, and the children have had so many happy times in St. Stephen's Sunday School room in years past, surely this Easter will not be an exception. Some of the congregation will respond to the appeal, and help the Society to make glad the hearts of the little ones in whom they are interested.

AN ENTERTAINMENT will be given by the Boys' Guild in the Sunday School building, on Thursday evening, April 22nd. Programme will consist of a comedy, in two acts, entitled "The Cool Collegians," and another, in one act, entitled "Box and Cox." Tickets, 15 cents, can be purchased from Mr. Clayton, or any member of the guild.

SISTER ELIZABETH'S REPORT.

The warm spring days and the wild flowers we see being sold in our streets bring with them the thought of green fields and country lanes to which many will be going in a very few weeks. May I ask those fortunate ones to think of the sick and needy who will be left in the great city? The summer holiday and rest I believe would be a happier time if each traveller should leave behind him a little offering for the relief of Christ's sad and suffering children, of which, alas! there are still many to be cared for. Any who may doubt my word and will come and join me in a day's visiting, I am sure will realize the needs of others more than they ever have before in their lives.

Knowing the warm hearts in St. Stephen's congregation, I feel certain, though asking much, I shall not ask in vain.

The Bible Class meets each Sunday afternoon at four o'clock, in the Guild Room. All over the age of fifteen are welcome. The Communicants Preparation Class meets the Friday before the first Sunday in the month, at eight o'clock, in the Guild Room.

The Bible Class for young women started in December, has now twenty members. The Communicants' Preparation Class has had a small but very satisfactory attendance, and is slowly but steadily growing.

During the five months of work in St. Stephen's Parish $134.10 have been placed in my hands for the relief of the poor, among whom my time has been I may say almost entirely spent. This money has been used to help only the really deserving in times of sickness or special distress. One month eighteen families were relieved, all simply needing temporary help.

ALL THOSE who took part in the mid-day Lenten Services, held in St. Stephen's, under the auspices of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, must have been exceedingly gratified with the attendance from day by day. The Church was filled at nearly all services, and on Good Friday the large congregation at the regular morning service as it pushed its way out of the building found another waiting patiently to take the seats for the mid-day service. The attention and reverence were noted. The number of men and women, who came from their active business to engage in the short services, singing the hymns, taking part in the prayers and attentively listening to the earnest, direct and practical sermons, was indeed most impressive. The congregation at some services more than filled the Church. The average attendance was about 800, making a total attendance of about 32,000.

A HANDSOME set of bishop's robes was presented during the Lenten season to the Rt. Rev. Hugh Miller Thompson, of Mississippi, through the efforts of members of the congregation, assisted by a few friends from outside the parish.

WITH THE COMING of Spring, annual reports appear giving the result of the winter's work. In the main, the season cannot be considered as having been a severe one, as demands for clothing have not been so numerous, nor, with a few exceptions, have the applicants been so absolutely poverty-stricken as in former years.

The total number of articles received during the year was 469, and 575 were distributed. Including a number of garments left over from the preceding year, the balance now on hand is 337. It has been found expedient to always keep a supply of warm underclothing for early distribution, as contrbutions do not come in very fast before December, and clothing is given away during the entire year under the supervision of the Deaconess.

The Treasurer reports a balance of $10.95 in the treasury.

LOOKING BACKWARD.

The first of May marks the end of our fiscal year. At this time, following the example of other corporations, we present a printed statement to our "Shareholders," by which they can judge of our financial condition and obtain some general insight into the work accomplished during the past year. In comparison with what we ought to have done it does not seem much. But in comparison with what some people thought we were going to do it seems a good deal. Most of us, especially during the fall and early winter, were entertained ad nauseam with dark prognostications of coming evil. The Rector among others received his full share. Of course the prophesies may still be fulfilled to the letter. It is best not to crow till we are out of the woods. But at the present time, thank God, we are sailing under a tolerably clear sky. The usual amount of work has been done. The usual obligations have been met and discharged. Probably few Episcopal Churches in Philadelphia have more uniformly large congregations, and in none does harmony and good feeling more generally prevail. All this is matter not of boasting and self-congratulation, but of devout thanksgiving to God, and it should inspire us all to do our best in the future. The strength of any structure, whether it is a church, a nation, or a human character, is in direct proportion to the sum of the virtue, the sacrifice and devotion laid at its foundation. Judged by this severe standard, we may hope that the future of St. Stephen's will be long and glorious.

ST. STEPHEN'S FARM.

The Rector, as he writes these words, cannot help wondering if they will ever stand for anything more real than words. He confesses that at present they represent his pet ideal. Himself a countryman, he sometimes sighs for a breath of his native health. But it is not for himself primarily that he desires a farm. Most of us possess comfortable homes for the winter, and when the weather gets too warm we retire to the beautiful country that surrounds Philadelphia, or go to the sea or the mountains. But to a great many of our people this is not possible. They have not money enough to undertake a long journey, or to put up at an expensive summer hotel. They must stay at home and console themselves by talking about the weather, or reading in the newspaper that "this is the hottest July we have had since seventy-three." This is particularly hard on children and on invalids, and it is these two classes of persons which we have at present more particularly in mind.

St. Stephen's Farm, as it exists at present in imagination, would be primarily a summer home for children. Other churches, even newspapers, have such homes. Why should not we have one? We have the children. We have also competent persons to accompany them to take care of them. What we want is a pleasant country-place within easy access of Philadelphia to take them to. But this farm need not be for children only, nor would it be useful only in the summer season. There is that large and growing class of self-supporting young women who are working in Philadelphia far from home and their friends. What a boon it would be to them at any time of the year when compelled to rest awhile, in convalescence after sickness, or when merely worn out and unable to work, to have a quiet place of rest to which they can retire for a little while to gain fresh strength and courage for the battle of life. Lastly for many families who have no country places of their own. St. Stephen's Farm would be their country place where they could spend a pleasant day out of doors with their children.

This project is thoroughly practical, nor would it be expensive if we only had the farm. We are spending a good deal of money now in sending children into the country and in providing temporary homes for worthy young women, all which could be done more satisfactorily and economically on our own farm. We do not require a very large piece of ground. What we want is a small farm not too far from the city, pleasantly situated, with a substantial house and a barn. The Rector knows now a suitable man and woman to take charge of it. We should have a couple of horses, a few cows, poultry, and a few good dogs; who are often better company than men. (It was Lord Byron, we believe, who said "The more I see of men the better I like dogs.") We should raise our vegetables, a little fruit, and hay for our beasts. That would be the extent of our ambition as farmers of the soil. The rest of our time we should spend in cultivating human happiness.

Among the property holders of our congregation it is possible there may be some man or woman in possession of such a small farm, not a very good investment as it stands, but which might be made an excellent investment for life eternal. Perhaps that is too selfish a view to take of it. Let us say—that might yield a splendid crop of happy shouts and laughter, of red cheeks and sturdy arms and legs. At any rate we shall refuse no fair offer, either as a gift or as a lease. You give us the farm and we will do the rest. One thing, however, is certain, St. Stephen's must have a farm."

ST. STEPHEN'S BRANCH of the Girls' Friendly Society has at the present time 86 members, 8 probationers and 10 candidates. The meetings are held Monday and Thursday evenings. This winter, classes in dressmaking, cooking and singing were held on Thursday evenings, with Mrs. Johnson in charge. Monday evenings the interests are varied, as each associate instructs or amuses her band of girls as she deems wisest. One holds a current event class, another one in history, another reads and talks to her girls, while others teach embroidery. Occasionally the members are all brought together to enjoy a common interest. This winter Sister Elizabeth gave a course on nursing, on simple, practical lines, which we hope was helpful, as the girls were eager and interested. Sister Elizabeth also gives a short talk just before closing on Monday evenings. Not the least of our pleasures and helps are the talks Dr. Worcester occasionally gives the girls. The literature hour, from seven to eight, is in charge of our Literature Associate, and is one of the most successful features of our work. The members arranged an entertainment during the winter for the benefit of the Cape May Holiday House, the proceeds of which amounted to $52.50. They hope to make it $60.00 before we close. The mothers of the members were invited at Christmas to spend an evening with them, and were entertained with music, a living library of books, and ice cream and cake were served. They passed a bright and happy evening. An admission service was held February 22nd, admitting one associate and ten members.

Balance in Treasury, Nov. 6th, 1896, $61.85. Received: Dues from Associates, $7.60; donations, 50c.; from Dr Worcester, $50.00; Miss Sidford, $1.00; Mrs. Richardson, $5.00; members dues, $12.24; probationers dues, 20c.; dues from classes, $7.80; sale of books and badge 55c. Total, $146.74.

Expended: Mission House, N. Y., $4.00; badges, $3.00; Diocesan Treasurer, $10.35; classes, $61.00; Christmas and Easter Entertainments, $20.75; tuning of piano, $2.50; Candidates' class, $1.00; keys to kitchen closet, $2.50; cooking materials and utensils, $16.40. Total, $121.60. Balance, $25.14.

CHILDREN'S FRIEND SOCIETY reports for the Year 1897: Donations and money received, $210.75; donation, (through Mr. Miller) $11.00; from Church Fund, (through Dr. Worcester) $25.00; contributing members, $15.00; active members, $4.50; total, $266.25; expenses, $235.50; balance, $30.75.

Donations received by the Children's Friend Society in April: Miss Garrett $5.00, Mrs. James P. Hillman $5.00, Miss Elizabeth Stevenson $5.00, Mrs. Moody $1.00, Miss H. F. Martin $1.00, Mr. Stephen Green $20.00, Mrs. M. E. Love $1.00.

Contributing members: Mrs. Moody $1.00, Mrs. W. H. Sinn $1.00.

Clothing from Mrs. Wetherley, 300 Easter cards from Miss Stevenson.

The children had a very happy Easter in the Sunday School room, April 20th. Mr. Illidge had been engaged to show them some of his beautiful stereopticon pictures, commencing with the Moon and Stars, Mount Vesuvius in eruption, etc. When a company of soldiers were approaching we could hear, on the phonograph, the drum and fife, or if a train of cars was shown a whistle could be heard. Another surprise was in store: 300 children were presented with bright metal Easter eggs, filled with sugar eggs. All went home happy, and felt grateful to those who helped to make it a happy Easter for them.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the Whatsoever Circle meet May 5th and 19th, in Parish House, at half-past seven o'clock. Donation: Miss Sidford $1.00. Dues for Shoe Fund: Miss Dutilh 25 cents, Miss Gass 25 cents, Mrs. Wilder 25 cents. One pair of shoes from Miss Annie Denny. Received for tickets, since last report, from entertainment, $4.75. Received from the Lenten Sewing Society 36 garments, to be given to the poor.

King's Daughters of the Whatsoever Circle, report: Money received during the year, $44.65; dues from members, $15.75; money received from entertainment, March 24th, $30.25; total, $90.65; expenses, $65.58; balance, $25.07. Received for Shoe Fund, $9.50; expenses, $5.25; balance, $4.25.

THE MOTHERS' LOYAL CIRCLE, King's Daughters, reports forty-five flannel garments made. Ten were given to the Home of the Holy Child, thirty-five to the Garment Society of this Church.

The Circle regrets that its charity work is so much less than usual, owing to the long illness of the President.

THE DIOCESAN CONVENTION.

It is a profitless task to follow the proceedings of the Diocesan Convention in the daily papers. Churchmen, however, generally want to know what the Convention actually did.

First of all it was decided to raise $16,000 for Diocesan missions by apportionment among the parishes, and $10,000 by direct appeal. This is the same as last year.

The principal subject before the Convention was the proposed canon on New Places of Public Worship. As the law stood prior to the Convention, whenever a new church was to be erected at any point, the Rectors of the three churches nearest to that point were required to give their consent. If they refused, an appeal lay to the Bishop and Standing Committee, whose decision was final. The new canon adopted by the Convention provides for a petition to the Bishop in the first instance; notice is then to be given to the three nearest Rectors and to the Vestries, and they are given an opportunity to object. The arguments pro and con are then heard by the Bishop and Standing Committee. The latter then advises the Bishop, but the Bishop is not bound by this advice—he is to decide the question himself. The canon is not intended to exploit any theory of churchmanship, but rather to concentrate responsibility. The trend of modern legislation is in this direction, and better results seem likely to ensue from a concentrated rather than a divided responsibility.

The only other matter of importance was the subject of "Missionary Boundaries. It has long been felt that some plan should be devised by which the whole diocese should be districted for missionary purposes, or, in other words, that every parish should have a definite portion of territory allotted to it, and then be held responsible for the missionary and charitable work within that territory. It was not possible all at once to put into operation any system and make it compulsory. The Convention, however, adopted a canon permitting the convocations to divide up territory in this way. This, it seems to us, is a step in the right direction. Probably at first some convocations will take advantage of the canon, while others will not. If it shall prove a success, it will no doubt be universally adopted, and our missionary work be carried on more intelligently and systematically.

These are the most important acts of the Convention. The proceedings were characterized by very earnest debate, but the best of feeling prevailed at all times.

ON THE MORNING of Ascension Day Miss Jane Hall, who for several years has rendered important services to St. Stephen's, was "set apart" for the office and work of a deaconess. The service was very interesting, and the chancel was beautifully adorned with white flowers. The Rev. Dr. Perry preached the sermon, and the Bishop of the diocese ordained. Miss Hall will carry with her to her new work the best wishes of her many friends and her scholars in St. Stephen's.

In the afternoon of Ascension Day a goodly number of our congregation assisted in the commemoration of Founder's Day, at the Burd Asylum. The day was perfect, and our beautiful Asylum, embowered in green, never appeared to better advantage. The chapel was crowded to its utmost capacity when the procession, headed by sweet little girls in white, carrying banners, filed in, singing a hymn composed by the organist, Mr. Squires. In the chancel were Dr. Snively, Mr. Miller, Archdeacon Brady, Rev's Henry Hoyt and S. C. Hill. Dr. Worcester made the address, speaking on Woman's place in Nature and in the Kingdom of God. After the service the visitors inspected the different parts of the institution, and found them all in a most satisfactory condition. A fine collation was served in the refectory, and all returned to their homes well pleased. If the dead have knowledge of the events of this world, MRS. BURD'S generous spirit must rejoice to see how this great work of hers is flourishing.

THE FOLLOWING LETTER has been received from Bishop Thompson, whose visit to St. Stephen's during Lent will long be remembered by those who heard his fine sermons and addresses:

JACKSON, MISS., May 13th, 1897.

MY DEAR DR. WORCESTER:

The "Robes" have arrived, and are greatly admired by the ladies of the household.

Will you kindly convey to the ladies who gave them, my warmest thanks for this beautiful and timely gift? I shall feel quite as well dressed as any Bishop has any right to be.

With kind remembrances to Mrs. Worcester, and pleasant memories,

I am, my dear Dr.,

Very sincerely yours,

HUGH MILLER THOMPSON.

THE EVENING SERVICE on Whitsunday will be held on Sunday, June 6th, in the Church, at quarter before eight o'clock. The Rector will preach the annual bacalaureate sermon to the graduating class of the University of Pennsylvania. The front pews in the middle aisle will be reserved for the students. All the congregation are invited to be present and to take part in this service.

ON WEDNESDAY, June 23rd, the Rector will deliver the Phi Beta Kappa Oration before the professors and undergraduates of Hobart College, Geneva, New York.

THE MANAGERS of the Female Benevolent Society of St. Stephen's Church present to the congregation its thirty-second annual report. During the season of 1896–97 the money received and expended has been as follows: Balance from last year, $163.91; offertory, $144.53; from sales, $561.25; subscriptions, $37.50: total, $907.19. Paid for dry goods, etc., $441.45; paid sewing women, $366.76; for pensioners, $54.50: total, $862.71. Balance, $44.48. Fifty women have been employed and 2,005 garments made by them. SISTER ELIZABETH'S REPORT.

A very happy birthday party took place on the fifth of May, given by one of St. Stephen's little members.

Grace Putman, being through illness unable to keep her own birthday in the usual way, asked that some other children might be made happy, and celebrate the day instead.

At four o'clock in the afternoon, if you had peeped into the Parish House, you would have seen a pretty sight. On the table stood a splendid cake, brilliantly lighted with eleven candles, telling the age of the sick child. Standing round were smiling boys and girls, looking very interested in a number of packages and boxes. The smiles increased when it was found that the packages, boxes of candy, cake and flowers were all to be carried home. Before the cutting of the cake each child held a lighted candle, and sent messages of thanks and best wishes for restored health to the "little Sister." At a given signal the candles were blown out, the cake cut, and little fingers began tugging at the string and paper that hid from sight boots, dress, suit of clothes, etc. Beside the children being made happy, three families received large parcels of groceries. I feel sure that "little Sister" never received so many thanks and good wishes before on her birthday as were sent her this year.

THE ANNUAL EXCURSION of the Boys' Guild of St. Stephen's Church was on Saturday, May 29th, Decoration Day. The Guild went to Burlington, N. J., and were then taken in two wagons to the farm of Miss Ellen L. Parrish, which was offered to them for the day's sports. The boys and young men were accompanied by the Rev. Mr. Miller and the honorary members Miss H. W. Sanders and Miss Stratton. The day was a delightful May day. The time was spent in playing base-ball and in athletic contests. Handsome silver prizes, with the Guild colors and date, were presented to the winners. All returned safely home, declaring it was the best excursion of the Guild so far.

Opportunity.

This I beheld, or dreamed it in a dream:
There spread a cloud of dust along a plain;
And underneath the cloud, or in it, raged
A furious battle, and men yelled, and swords
Shocked upon swords and shields. A prince's banner
Wavered, then staggered backward, hemmed by foes.
A craven hung along the battle's edge,
And thought, "Had I a sword of keener steel,
That blue blade that the king's son bears—but this Blunt thing—!" he snapt and flung it from his hand,
And, lowering, crept away and left the field,
Then came the king's son, wounded, sore, beset,
And weaponless, and saw the broken sword,
Hilt-buried in the dry and trodden sand,
And ran and snatched it, and with battle-shout
Lifted afresh he hewed the enemy down,
And saved a great cause that heroic day.

AMIABILITY.

Amiability is the first and the chief of Christian virtues. An unamiable Christian is a very bad Christian indeed. He who has not learned amiability from Christ has surely studied Him amiss, for Jesus must have been divinely amiable to be loved as He was loved.

It is one of the strangest contradictions that Christianity should make so many persons unamiable on principle, and yet amiability is at least one half its message. We deceive ourselves finely on this point. Our surliness toward our brother, our contempt for him, is zeal for the truth. Suppose it is. Do such truths as Jesus taught need to be enforced by surliness in order to make them accepted? Does not unamiability rob them of almost all their charm? But this man you say is such an awful heretic. We must throw a little mud on him to let people see what he is. If he is an amiable heretic, he is nearer the truth than you are. Most of the Saints have traversed this earth their garments defiled by the mire of intolerance, their faces shining with the light of God.

That is a lesson little minds will never learn. It seems to them a mere betrayal of truth, a strange indifference to principles dearer than life. And so it would be if Christianity were a mere set of ready-made opinions. But, thank God, it is not that. Christianity is Spirit and Life. Even if your dogma were so luminous and so comprehensive as to include and to shed light upon all things human and divine, it need not make you unamiable. To be in possession of such a truth as this ought to bring a man much peace. He should be careful not to mar its beauty in order that other men may love it too. Even if they will not love it, he should still love them.

Jesus, it is true, had few dogmas. He had beliefs—beliefs the most vast, the most positive that have ever taken possession of the soul of man. It was his lot to see those beliefs rejected by the majority, accepted by very few; but that did not embitter him. It did not destroy his faith either in himself or in human nature. He loved men at least as much as he loved the truth. For this reason all hearts that are susceptible to love are well disposed toward the truth as it is in Jesus. It does not follow however that men will be equally well disposed to the truth as it is in you or in me, if we are fretful, peevish persons. "Though I speak with the tongue of men and of angels and have not charity I am become as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal." Benevolence, sweetness, and good manners disarm opposition. They throw a charm about a creed behind which few persons care to penetrate. "Religion," as St. Frances said, "consists in doing our work singing, in praising God from morning till night by gaiety, resignation and good humor." There is a philosophy in those words a thousand times profounder than the philosophy of those systems over which we grow so heated and angry. If Christians would seriously cultivate the amiability of Jesus for one year it is probable that at the end of that time we should not have a conscientious unbeliever in our midst.

At the recent Commencement of Hobart College, the Baccalaureate Sermon was delivered by Dr. McConnell. Needless to say, it was very much admired. To Dr. McConnell's other distinctions must now be added the degree of Doctor of Civil Law (D. C. L.) which was conferred upon him by the new President of Hobart, the Rev. Robert E. Jones.

At the same Commencement the Rector of St. Stephen's was honoured with the degree of Doctor of Sacred Theology. He was also gratified by the gift of a very beautiful hood in scarlet and gray. It seems to him, however, that academic distinctions of this sort are scarcely in keeping in the usual services of the House of God. There we all appear as sinners in great need of mercy, not as birds of paradise desirous to display our bright plumage. He will therefore excuse himself to the kind donors for not wearing his hood, which he values very highly, on ordinary occasions.

During the month of June Mr. Miller has been enjoying, we trust, a well earned holiday. When Mr. Miller is absent the amount he contributes to the smooth movement of our parochial machinery becomes very apparent.

The Rector wishes that all members of the congregation who occasionally think they would like to have a boy choir in order to be in the fashion, could have attended the service held for the graduating students of the University of Pennsylvania on the evening of Whit-Sunday. On that occasion, owing to an engagement of long standing, Mr. Wood was unable to be present. He was also obliged to take our usual choir to sing at the Commencement Service at Ogontz School, and we had a boy choir. For this choir and its organist we have nothing but praise, especially as they were good enough to come to our assistance at short notice, and to help us out of a serious difficulty. But we at St. Stephen's are accustomed to the singing of a choir of artists who have imbibed the ideas of a man of genius. If that makes us critical, it should also make us appreciative. While we have the light let us rejoice in the light.

Like most clergymen in charge of large churches the Rector receives a great many anonymous letters. Some of these are so interesting and so kind that he wishes he might know the writers and thank them for their generous appreciation. Some few are neither kind nor generous. It is this class of communication that usually finds its way to the public press. To write an anonymous letter of a derogatory nature betrays an illiberal mind. It argues that the author is ashamed of his own production, and judges it unworthy of his name. Such words are best left unwritten, but, if they are written, honourable persons know how to let them pass with the silent contempt they deserve.

SISTER ELIZABETH'S REPORT.

June is the month for Commencements and St. Stephen's Parish School was not behind the times. June the 18th proved a bright warm day, and by three o'clock a happy procession of children set out from the Parish House with smiling faces and cheerful voices. Soon a nearly empty car appeared in sight and was quickly filled and on its way to Fairmount Park; arriving there another car was found waiting, and the beautiful ride to Chamounix completed the journey. A scramble up the grassy hill to a long flat shady spot induced the elder members of the party to rest on seats under the trees and watch the children as they wandered off in little groups to gather flowers, chatter, roll on the grass, shout and sing to their hearts' content. Supper was served at 5 o'clock, followed by ice cream and cake; games were played, last bunches of daisies gathered for mothers and friends left behind in the city, and the all too short day came quickly to an end. Nine o'clock saw everyone safely at home.

Saturday afternoon another picnic party started from the 8th Ward Settlement House, chiefly composed of little coloured children, some not more than four years of age. The capacity for walking which these small tots showed was quite wonderful, and they kept well up with their elder sisters until the car at Market street was reached. East Park was their destination and much the same programme was gone through: games, races and prizes; then followed supper on the grass, sandwiches, strawberries, cake, candy, and plenty of sweet fresh milk. It is difficult for us to realize what such outings are to these children. One girl of fourteen said she had never been "on a picnic" before nor had she even seen the Park.

How fully repaid those kind friends would be who so generously gave the money for these fresh air excursions could they have seen the faces and heard the shouts of delight that I have seen and heard from nearly 100 children during the last three weeks! Two other parties are being arranged for, one for the mothers, (who need the little change and rest as much as their bairnes,) and the other for children. My best thanks to my kind helpers. Miss Malery, Miss Kate Lewis, Mrs. Wilder, Mrs. Crom and Miss Anna Bartley.

The first and one of the most enjoyable excursions the children have had was on June 26th.

Punctually at half past one o'clock you could see two cars at Tenth and Arch streets ready to take a party of 94 to George's Hill. Their bright little faces show what one of the children said after their fun was over expressing her pleasure, "A day of days."

Everything was in their favor as the weather was all that could be desired and everything was on time and all were happy.

On reaching George's Hill, hats were taken off and they were ready for a game of ball, London bridge, Chickens have Feathers, and many other games that children delight in, until it was time for ice cream and cake. There was yet another surprise for them, and that was a ride on the new Trolley road starting from George's Hill across the bridge to Dauphin street and back to Elm avenue. The ride was enjoyed much by all and the children were very much interested in the changing of the colors at the signal stations, and in going under the bridges shouting to hear the echo.

The members of this society feel very much indebted to the Glenwood Singing Society for this excursion, as the money they so kindly donated from their Concert paid entirely for this outing and made the little ones very happy.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS OF THE Whatsoever Circle meet July 7th and 21st, in the Parish House, at half-past seven o'clock. The members of this Circle wish to continue a little work all summer and to help those in want.

June 16th, the King's Daughters from the Church of the Holy Comforter spent a social evening with us, which was enjoyed very much by all.

THE PARISH DAY SCHOOL will open on Wednesday morning, September 8th, at 9 o'clock, in the School building.

THE REV. DR. WORCESTER started in July for his summer vacation. He will be absent from the parish until about the middle of September. A letter, lately received from him, states that he and his family are at Digby, Nova Scotia. He enjoys the climate and is getting neeeded rest after the earnest labors of the past year.

THE CHOIR WAS off on its vacation during the month of August. The regular services of the Church were held on Sundays at 11 o'clock. On the Festival of the Transfiguration, Friday, August 6th, the Holy Communion was celebrated. On Sunday, September 5th, the Choir will return, and once more the services will be all the more attractive by the inspiring music that the people of the parish have learned to love so well.

ON THE FOURTH SUNDAY of August, in the afternoon, the Rev. Mr. Miller was invited to the House of Refuge at Glen Mills to preach to the boys at their regular Sunday Service. There were 800 boys of all ages present, and with the many visitors the large hall was greatly crowded. It is always a pleasure to have the opportunity to preach to the boys there. They are so well behaved, and give such earnest attention to all that is said. The possibilities for good are infinite.

ONCE MORE THE CALL is for teachers for the Sunday School. Year after year the call is given, and has been responded to in past years by many faithful and earnest people. We open the school on the first Sunday in October. We shall need teachers for new classes to be formed and to take charge of classes whose teachers have moved away from the city. We want them to be communicants who can give their time and ability, and who will endeavor to be earnest, regular and punctual in their attendance. This is one of the most important departments of Church work. In a congregation so large as ours we can rightly expect to find many who will be glad to respond to this appeal. Let these offer their services to the Clergy early in the season that the School may be well organized at the opening sessions.

SISTER ELIZABETH IS AT present away from the parish enjoying it is hoped a well earned vacation. During the past year she has been actively engaged visiting the needy and sick, teaching in the Sunday School, having charge of a large and growing classs of young women. Though but a short time in the parish her influence for good has been greatly felt. She has endeared herself to all with whom she has come into contact by her helpful sympathy and Christian benevolence.

SISTER ELIZABETH'S REPORT.

In the June Report I spoke of "Outings" yet to be—now I am glad to be able to tell of fine bright weather for all three. The Mothers' Picnic to Fairmount Park was a great success; they were not at all above playing games, and after Tea the old English game of Johnny Nimble was thoroughly enjoyed. Johnny succeeded in capturing all the sheep, and the poor shepherd after some hard work in attempting to rescue them had to give up his flock quietly. One mother (I am not quite sure she is not a grandmother) said she felt ten years younger at the end of that day.

A few days after a number of little folks had a very happy time at the Zoological Gardens; they saw the lions and tigers feed, treated the elephants to peanuts, and with great delight watched the monkeys, seals, etc.; later on they went to the beautiful grassy slope by the ravine and played games. Ice cream and cake stopped play for a little space, but games were quickly renewed when the good things disappeared. Heavy clouds and thunder sent the little people home earlier than usual, but fortunately the storm did not break until all were safely housed. A modest request was made next day by one little fellow, "Please may I have one of the big cats out of Sister's yard?" The desired cat was a tiger, and my "yard," the Zoological gardens.

I wish all my readers could see the beautiful view before me as I write, the old Lake Seneca, blue and clear, with the tiniest of ripples playing in the sunshine, sloping fields golden with grain ripened to harvest, trees drooping their branches to kiss the smiling waters, and overhead a blue and cloudless sky.

MISS KATE LEWIS received a beautiful cake on the Fourth of July from the Mothers, to whom she sends her best thanks.

Clothing that has been given (a great help) from Miss Stevenson.

In 1887, two or three ladies, members of St. Stephen's Church, who were in the city most of the summer months, invited about a half dozen poor children to go with them to the Park for a ride. A lunch was provided them, and the children were all so happy and had such a good time that the ladies concluded to repeat the same thing the following Saturday, increasing the number.

Friends were asked for five cents to take a poor child a ride. So encouraged and interested were the ladies in the little ones that they kept on all summer. Others became interested and finally it was called the Children's Friend Society of St. Stephen's Church. It grew from a half dozen children's names to about four hundred.

Much good has been done, and the children have had many a good time, but the excursions enjoyed most of all and of most benefit were those to the Sea Shore. It is regretted very much that the large number of bathing suits presented by the members of the Church could not be put to good use before the naughty moth had a chance to devour them. It is hoped, however, that he will kindly leave them for the little ones to have a bath in next summer. However, kind friends have remembered the children, and nearly three hundred have had an outing so far this summer.

August 9th forty were taken to the Zoological Gardens. They very much enjoyed seeing the large elephants bathe; they asked many questions and were much interested in the animals.

Invitations are being given for another excursion to the Zoological Gardens this week.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the Whatsoever Circle meet September 1st and 15th, in the Parish House, at half-past seven o'clock.

Work has continued in this Circle all summer. Two dozen bibs were made and given to the Day Nursery, 4th and Pine Streets. Three dozen bean bags were made for the Children's Friend Society. Jelly was sent to the sick; clothing and three pairs of shoes were given to poor children, and an entire infant's outfit to a poor little baby.

Received for Shoe Fund from Mrs. H. H. Higham, one pair of new shoes.

CHURCH MUSIC.

There are two ideas of Church Music prevailing among musicians, one is to make it as elaborate as possible. They emphasize purely the musical side of the performance. They aim at musical display. They purposely exclude everything from the service that a moderately cultured congregation could take part in. Even the plain chants and hymn tunes are often of such a nature that the average person would find it almost impossible to sing. The other view taken by some musicians is to make the music extremely simple; so much so that they rule out everything which modern musical art has created in the way of expression. Some people hold that Church music should be entirely stripped of all emotion and sentiment. These people would take us back to the mediæval period when all music was a sort of rude chant, depending for its accent and rhythm on language and utterly devoid of the finer expression which is recognized as belonging to a later period. They would hear nothing in the Church but the old Gregorian tones. This seems to be in place and keeping with the character of the Roman Church but with the ideas brought in at the Reformation there is called forth a corresponding change in the music of the Church.

All music such as we know it is contemporaneous with Christianity. From all that we can gather the music of the ancient Jewish temple service would be to our ears a mere jargon, a confusion of sounds. Music was the last of all the fine arts that developed to any high degree. It was impossible for it to advance materially until man had reached a high state of moral and religious development. As we develope spiritually the masters of musical art give additional expression to the inner spiritual life. Between these two ideas, the elaborate and the simple,—the two extremes of musical art—there is a happy medium and here lies the proper course to pursue.

There is no lack of good sacred music from the pens of the best English, German and American composers sufficient to satisfy all diversities of tastes. There is abundant opportunity for the best choirs to display their skill in the rendering of these works, notably in the anthems and set canticles. Thanks to the conscientiousness of the musicians, the music is of such an order as to give no offense to any unbiased person. There is also scope for good congregational singing in the plain chants and hymns of the Church. No congregation should be deprived of its right to take part in the service simply because it may be the will or the whim of some pretentious director. There need be no clashing between the choir and congregation as is often the case. That each should receive due consideration at the proper time and place is a fair rule which certainly ought to be acceptable to all. In that part of the service which would seem to belong more especially to the congregation, the hymns, plain chants, etc., the choir masters would do well to consider the rights and feelings of the people taking part in the worship. It often happens a good congregational tune is utterly misused by the choir insisting on taking the movement too rapidly. Large bodies move slowly and this is as true in music as in the other things.

Any piece of music when sung by a large number of voices should be taken much slower than when rendered by a few. This principle is observed by the very best musical directors. Handel's Hallelujah Chorus when sung by a chorus of four or five thousand could not with any degree of musical propriety be taken with the same spirited tempo as when performed by a chorus of some twenty-five voices. The truth is in congregational singing it matters little whether the choir takes part or not, except perhaps for the matter of giving the people a start at the beginning where they naturally look for some one to prompt them. When the people are perfectly familiar with a tune they should be allowed to sing it pretty much in their own way. At all events any marked interference on the part of a choir is likely to result in confusion and often proves most disasterous.

Some years ago the writer was present at a large enthusiastic missionary meeting at the Academy of Music in this city where a grand opportunity was given for stirring congregational singing. The hymns chosen were all familiar and in perfect keeping with the occasion, and the tunes selected were equally familiar. The choir engaged to lead the singing started off at a break-neck speed which it maintained throughout the entire performance. The congregation after vainly struggling through the first verse or two gave up in despair and quietly allowed the ambitious singers to finish in their own way, and so the effect of the singing was spoiled and the meeting otherwise so inspiring was musically speaking a miserable failure.

In our own parish the congregational singing is deserving of the highest praise. Strangers attending the service in speaking of the worship express their delight and astonishment at the manner in which this part of the service is given. This is no doubt due to the fact that proper regard is always paid to the musical capabilities of the average church goer. He is a worshipper and though perhaps not a trained musician yet he is asked to take part in the singing and it is thought but courteous to give him a fair chance to do it if he is so disposed.

ON THE FIRST SUNDAY in October the regular hours of Church services will be resumed. Service in the morning at 11 o'clock and in the afternoon Evening Prayer and Sermon at 4 o'clock.

THE REV. DR. WORCESTER has returned from his vacation and will preach on Sunday, October 3rd.

ON THE THIRD SUNDAY in October, the annual offering will be taken for Domestic Missions. This is the offering asked for by the General Board of Missions. This Board carries forward the missionary work in nineteen missionary jurisdictions, and thirty-five dioceses; also among the Indians, and among the Colored people in our land. In its appeal the Missionary Society of the Church states that it needs money to pay the salaries of twenty-one Bishops, and stipends to 1368 missionary workers, and to support schools, hospitals and orphanages. $650,000 are asked this year. The Church relies upon the generous offerings of men, women and children in all parts of the Church. Our parish is asked to do its share.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOLS will open on Sunday, October 3rd, at a quarter before ten o'clock. The sessions last an hour, closing at a quarter before eleven o'clock, in time for the Church service at eleven o'clock. The former scholars and teachers will be gladly welcomed back after the summer vacation. We shall need several new teachers to fill vacancies and also to take charge of new classes that we hope to form. There is always need of teachers, but the chief thing is to have earnest Communicants of the Church who are capable of teaching and who will be regular and punctual in their attendance. It always is easy to keep a large and successful school if the classes are in charge of faithful and painstaking teachers.

The sure way to impair the usefulness of a school is to have the teachers irregular in their attendance. The scholars become indifferent. They go home with a sad tale of idle time spent, and the complaint is the cause of breaking up the class, and very soon scholars as well as teachers are lost to the school. We make our appeal for good teachers. Men and women who love children, who want to help the Church in giving solid religious instruction, are asked to aid in the Sunday School. Surely we have every right to believe that many such can be found in a congregation as large as St. Stephen's.

VERY SOON THE many active Societies for Church work in our parish will begin their work for the coming season. The Female Benevolent Society, The Altar Society, The St. Stephen's Aid Society, The Garment Committee, The Girl's Friendly Society, The Boys' Guild, The King's Daughters, The Children's Friend Society, these are the agencies for Church work in our parish. They all will make their appeal for helpers. Many of the earnest women of our parish have been actively associated with these Societies. Others are asked to look over the list and to select for themselves such departments of work where they can most profitably assist. If any feel ready to do so they can send in their names to the heads of the various Societies or speak to the Clergy and they will be gladly welcomed into the ranks of our Church workers.

THE BIBLE CLASS will meet next Sunday afternoon, October 3rd, at three o'clock, in the Guild Room, when we shall hope to see all the old members and be glad to welcome new ones.

THE GARMENT COMMITTEE will resume its work every Monday at the usual place and time.

Monday, Oct. 4th—Miss Cleemann, Mrs. Reinboth.
" " 11th—Mrs. Lammot, Miss Stoddard.
" " 18th—Sister Elizabeth, Miss Sanders.
" " 25th—Miss Sidford, Miss L. Bell.

BEST THANKS TO Mrs. Williamson for a very useful parcel of clothes, also to Mrs. Lineaweaver, whose gift was received some weeks ago, but through an oversight was not acknowledged in last month's NEWS as it ought to have been.

THE SUMMER WORK of the Children's Friend Society ended September 4th. Fifty Children were taken to the Zoological Gardens. They were much interested in seeing the animals fed and in visiting them. On their way home they were taken to Sedgely where they had Ice Cream and Cake and biscuits, afterwards they had a good play and got home about seven o'clock.

The question is now what shall we do for them this winter?

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the Whatsoever Circle meet October 6th and 20th in the Parish House half past seven o'clock.

The meeting September 15th was very much enjoyed, as a great many of the Members had returned from their summer vacation. All were busy sewing or cutting out, and each one had so much to talk about that half-past nine o'clock came too quickly.

THE BOYS' GUILD will begin its winter's work on the first Thursday in October, at 8 P. M. The membership includes young men and boys over thirteen years of age who have accepted the rules of the Guild and have been voted in by the organization. Any boy can become a member. Initiation ten cents, and dues five cents a month. The Guild has been in existence many years and has reached a great many boys, some of whom have now grown up into manhood and still keep their connection and interest in it. Literary entertainments are given, and there are Athletic Sports during the winter. Last year a Professor of Athletics was engaged by Dr. Worcester and his teachings proved of much benefit to very many members of the Guild.

BISHOP RULISON.

The Rt. Rev. Nelson Somerville Rulison, D. D., Bishop of Central Pennsylvania, who died at Bad Nauheim, Germany, on September 1st, was buried last Friday, September 17th, from the Church of the Nativity, South Bethlehem, Pa.

Church dignitaries from all parts of the country, nearly every clergyman in the diocese, and relatives and friends of the dead prelate crowded the spacious edifice in the afternoon, where the impressive services which the Church holds over its dead were solemnized. From the arrival of the remains on Thursday morning, the body had been lying in state within the chancel rail of the Church. The body reposed in a handsome black casket, over which was draped a purple pall. Palms and wreaths of flowers were placed on the the casket, and the Bishop's throne in the church was draped in purple.

Sixteen members of the Bible class of the church, in relays of four, had watched over the body as a guard of honor from the time of its arrival in the church, and hundreds visited the church during the two days. At eleven o'clock on Friday the Holy Communion was celebrated in the church, the rector, the Rev. Gilbert H. Sterling, officiating.

At 2 o'clock the funeral ceremonies were held. The clergy and active and honorary pall-bearers assembled at the parish house half an hour earlier. The clergy, vested in their robes, moved to the main entrance of the church in double rank and then opened ranks while the choir, officiating clergy, bishops and pall-bearers passed between them into the church.

The Opening Sentences of the Burial Office were read by Bishop Scarborough, of New Jersey; the Psalms were chanted impressively, and Bishop Coleman, of Delaware, read the Lesson. After the singing of a hymn, Bishop Whitehead read the Creed and Collects and pronounced the blessing. The other bishops present in the chancel were Bishop Littlejohn and Bishop Walker.

After the singing of the first verse of the Recessional the body was carried by the active pall-bearers to the hearse. The bishops, officiating clergy, pall-bearers, and clergymen followed the body to the cemetery. At the grave Bishop Coleman read the anthem and the committal services. The Rev. Dr. Elwood Worcester, of St. Stephen's Church, Philadelphia, son-in-law to the dead prelate, recited the closing prayers and Bishop Coleman pronounced the benediction. The singing of the funeral hymn brought the sad ceremonies to a close at the grave of a bishop whom clergy and laity had learned to love, honor and esteem.

In the same church, on the following Sunday morning, Bishop Whitehead preached a sermon commemorative of the late Bishop Rulison, taking for his text a portion of the Epistle, "The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance," etc. (Gal. v: 22), as outlining the character of the late lamented Bishop. He said as follows:

"As our minds go back over Bishop Rulison's career, and particularly over the too few years of his truly successful episcopate—years made shorter by this very quality of which we speak—how conspicuous all along is the first fruit of the Spirit—love. The clergy and people of this diocese can bear witness, who have noted with admiration, sometimes with amazement, latterly with dread, the unwearied activity which carried him over and over again through the ceaseless round of visitations, every year increasing, leaving his home for the greater part of the year that he might minister to others. What but the love of God and His Church could prompt so diligent and and persistant service? What but love to man could maintain a life so crowded with unselfish effort? You who have seen him so frequently arrive and depart, have been able to appreciate more perhaps than others who live elsewhere, how untiring and self-sacrificing that life has been, and can the better testify to its eminent devotion to a high ideal of service to both God and man. Nor was this devotion limited even by the wide confines of this great diocese. Far beyond your borders were the dear Bishop's face and voice familiar, as he stood forth to proclaim the words of eternal life, or to plead most ardently and eloquently for the missions of our Church in far-off portions of the United States. He was a preacher honored among our best, and an advocate for onward advance which few, if any, could surpass. Difficult as it will be to fill his seat as bishop of this diocese, more difficult still will it be to find anyone to take his place as leader and counsellor in the General Board of Missions. His knowledge of the field, his fervent interest in the work, his hopeful outlook for the future of our missionary enterprises—made his influence and power pre-eminent among our leaders. I venture to think that his impassioned and overwhelming appeal in behalf of Alaska, made with utmost rapidity of utterance and with clear ringing voice at the last General Convention, will long live as an example of almost unequalled eloquence in the history of our American Church. And you who have been blessed by so often hearing him preach, know full well how deep lay the source of that unction which characterized his words. He was a man of the Holy Ghost. In him the Spirit dwelt with power. The fruit of the Spirit in him was Love.—Church Standard.

SELECTIONS.

The Daily Chronicle announces that on Sunday, at a chapel in a squalid district of East London, Prince Max of Saxony, second son of the heir-presumptive to the Kingdom of Saxony, made his first appearance in the character of a Roman priest. In the afternoon a number of gentlemen waited on the prince, and offered him a hearty welcome on behalf of the large German colony in London After the evening service, Prince Max attended a meeting of one of the guilds connected with the church, and in the course of his address assured his hearers that he came into their midst, not as a prince, but as a priest. "I am a worker," he said, "and to my mind no honor is so great as that of labor." In response to a call from the prince, the assembly gave three cheers for the German Emperor.

Be patient a little longer. By and by in our hushed and waiting chambers, each in his turn, we shall hear the sunset gun.—Roswell D. Hitchcock, D. D.

That much ridiculed instinct which leads a crowd to collect without a clear idea of the reason for gathering, worked an unusual good at Tacoma, Wash., the other day. Somebody saw, early in the morning, a grief-stricken man walking toward the river with a small coffin. With him were his wife and a stranger, who bore the coffin box. Without knowing just why, a man fell in behind them, another and another followed until there was a goodly company. At the riverside strangers put the coffin into the box and placed it aboard the boat. A flower boy, who had just landed and joined the crowd, laid a wreath on the casket. All was done silently, and the father, as he embarked, turned and, in tears, returned thanks for having found friends in a city of strangers. —New York Sun.

Blessed are the peacemakers : for they shall be called the children of God.

THE RECTOR DESIRES to call the attention of the charitably disposed to the Sale in the Guild Room, No. 9 S. Tenth Street, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, November 11, 12 and 13.

"WHAT CAN I GET OUT OF IT."

One day the mother of James and John came to the Master with a singular request. She said to Jesus, "Grant that these, my two Sons, may sit, the one on thy right hand and the other on thy left in thy kingdom." Evidently a family conference had preceded this audacious demand. Mother and Sons loved Jesus, they believed in the future of his religion, and they wanted their share in it. No back places for them. They almost wished to divide the Lord between them. "Lord, that these my two Sons may sit, the one on thy right hand and the other on thy left in thy kingdom."

Our Lord's answer to this demand was very remarkable, and the more so because the request came to him as a complete surprise. "Woman," said he, "you know not what you ask." And then turning to the Sons, he in his turn, asked them a question. "Are ye able to drink of the cup that I shall drink of, and to be baptised with the baptism that I shall be baptised with?" They said unto him, "we are able." He saith unto them, "Ye shall indeed drink of my cup and be baptised with the baptism that I am baptised with, but to sit on my right hand and on my left is not mine to give, but it shall be given them for whom it is prepared of my Father."

The meaning of this saying is plain enough. The high places of the Kingdom of God go not by favor but by desert and achievement. We get out of the Kingdom of Heaven what we put into it, and those who covet distinguished positions on Christ's battle-field little imagine what a life they are laying up for themselves. The Apostles James and John gained at last what they wanted, at all events a place very near their Master in Heaven and in His Church on earth, but only by drinking of His cup of agony and being baptised with His baptism of martyrdom.

There are many Christians to-day who share the aspirations of the two Apostles, though not their generous willingness to earn their privileges. They enter the kingdom of God for the most part for what they hope to get out of it. In selecting a church to attend, they choose one of the highest social standing and respectability. They want the best music. They must have a pew in the middle aisle. The sermons must be uniformly interesting. The ritual, precisely that which commends itself to their aesthetical judgment.

Now there is in all this a great deal with which no reasonable person can find fault. But if this is all they want, if they do not interest themselves in the real purpose for which the church exists, which is not enjoyment but work, if they do not unite themselves with any of that church's organized efforts to extend the Kingdom of God and to do good, if they are stingy and mean in giving to the objects proposed to them from Sunday to Sunday, if they take no pains to beautify the service of the Church, at least by taking an earnest part in the responses and hymns, they not only make themselves an unmitigated nuisance, but they are sure to be bitterly disappointed.

As a place of amusement the Church is one of the poorest Institutions I know. The theatre or opera, or any good club is really very much better. That is what these people find out in a short time and then they become discontented. The congregation, after all, is not what their fancy painted it. There is hardly a well dressed woman or a man under forty in it. The baritone is losing his voice. As for some of the other singers, they never had any voices to lose. If the congregations are only moderately large, the Church is as empty as a barn, and I had better sell my pew before the price goes down to nothing. But if the congregations are large and overflowing it is really scandalous the way strangers are forced upon one. Even in ones own pew one has no privacy. Poor Mr. Blank's powers are certainly shattered. He bellows like a bull and makes my head ache; or else, he is losing his voice, and his mind, and had better retire. I have long since given up trying to guess what he is driving at. As for the ritual—it is either Romish or Methodistical, or else ours is one of those colourless churches, devoid of all principle, that stand for nothing. But I hear that St. A's has a new Rector who is making quite a sensation, or that St. B's is now the fashionable church par excellence, and I think I had better move on.

Fortunately St. Stephen's has had few of these wandering stars, or if we have had them they have made us little trouble. After all, we pity these persons more than we blame them, for they have not discovered the first law of happiness in the Christian life. The people we love always seem beautiful to us. The objects we earnestly work for always interest us. The Church to which we give ourselves becomes our home, and, therefore, a place unlike any other place whatever. The more we put into this Church, of love and devotion, of talent and wealth, the more the Church represents, the more she has to give to each one.

We are now at the beginning of a new year—a year that seems at present full of hope and promise. Whether that promise is to be fulfilled, and this year is to take its place among the grand years of concerted effort this old parish has lived through, depends largely on the response of the people on whose eyes these words may fall. At the present time there are several important places to be filled, and several improvements the Rector desires to see carried into effect this year, most important of which are the following;—

POSITIONS TO BE FILLED.

1. One or two Lady Associates for the Girls' Friendly Society, meeting Monday evenings.

2. A live man of ideas and ingenuity, to help instruct and amuse a fine body of boys in our Boys' Guild.

IMPROVEMENTS.

1. The Sunday offerings raised from ten cents per worshipper (our present rate), to fifteen cents. This would involve but a trifling sacrifice on the part of each one, while it would increase our financial efficiency fifty per cent.

2. A heartier service. Many of us found an inspiration and uplift in our Noon-day Lenten Services which we do not find in our far more beautiful and elaborate Sunday worship. What is the reason? The Noon-day worshippers were in earnest. They had come to worship God, and they did it heartily. Those services were enough to stir the dullest heart. But there is no reason why our Sunday services should not be equally stirring. It is true there are parts of the musical program in which the congregation cannot join. But the Hymns are almost always chosen with the wish and intention that they should be sung by the congregation, not by the choir alone. The Psalms and Responses are open to all who can read. Nothing attracts like a hearty congregational service, and few things are more chilling than a service in which men and women are afraid to lift their voices above a well-bred whisper.

3. A beautiful Chancel Window worthy of the Saint after whom this Church is named, and a perpetual delight to look upon.

After all, depend upon it, you will "get out of it" no more than you put into it.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON LECTURES.

On the first Sunday in Advent, the twenty-eighth of November, these Lectures will begin, taking the place of the afternoon sermons. The Rector was much pleased with the interest taken in these Lectures last year, shown by the large and attentive congregations which filled the Church in the afternoon during the winter months, and by many encouraging letters. This proves that the Bible is still the most interesting of all books, and that wherever it is simply and reasonably explained people are glad to come and listen to it.

Last year our course was largely on the Old Testament. The Rector prepared, and actually read aloud from the pulpit literal translations of the entire Book of Job, Solomon's Song, Ecclesiastes, Jonah, and the Book of Revelations, explaining these wonderful writings almost verse by verse. He confesses now to misgivings as to whether he was not taxing too severely the patience of his auditors. If they derived half the pleasure and profit in listening to these Lectures that he felt in preparing and delivering them, he is more than content.

This year the task he proposes will be a simpler one. The Lectures will be less literary, and, he hopes, more practical and personally helpful. Our subject might be called "The Founding of the Kingdom of God." We shall take up the history of the early Church soon after the point where the Acts of the Apostles takes it up, and pursue it (D. V.) to the death of the first generation of believers (about the year 68), that is to say, from the time when the Apostles returned with great joy to Jerusalem, to the deaths of St. Peter and St. Paul. Within this period of little more than thirty years, the Church as we understand it was created. Not one important feature was added after that date that was not either a natural development of an organism already in existence, or a deformity, that is to say, a radical change in the original programme. By a happy and providential order, these thirty years stand out in a perfect blaze of light. Comparing them with the thirty years that went before, or with the thirty years that follow, we are embarrassed by the wealth of our materials. We shall see pass in review the Acts of the Apostles, the Epistles of Paul, Jude, Peter and James, many curious and interesting writings of the Jewish Apocrypha, the allusions of the Roman historians and Josephus, the writings of Philo the Jew and the lurid pictures of the Book of Revelation. But to make a proper use of these magnificent sources, to reduce them to order, assigning to each part its place, to paint a series of clear and consistent pictures of this great edifice as it arose, to determine what Christianity meant to those who derived their views of it directly from Jesus, "Hic Labor, Hoc Opus Est."

It is only recently, following the immense sifting process of a hundred years, that the materials are at hand for such a work as this. Other men have labored, and we enter into their labors. And right here the Rector would repeat that he claims very little originality for the facts and ideas enunciated in these Lectures. Such a claim would be most presumptuous. There are in the United States possibly half a dozen men capable of doing such work as this strictly at first hand. Of these the Rector certainly is not one. His only claim is a careful putting together of the results obtained by great scholars, and a translation of the language of the learned into a language understood by the people. If you have the books, and know how to use them, you have almost all the means to knowledge at hand to which he can pretend. But the great majority of people do not possess these books, and would not know how to use them if they had them. Such books presuppose among other things some knowledge of French, German, Hebrew, Greek and Latin, besides that sixth sense which it was reserved for the Nineteenth Century to develop—the critical faculty.

There are probably few purer pleasures accessible to man than to make the past live again, to unroll the scroll of humanity. But how much that pleasure is heightened when that past is the past of our own religion, at the all-important hour of its birth. In movements of this kind the beginning is everything. Religions, like human beings, have their antenatal periods of intense activity, on which all that follows depends. The grown man, even the growing child, has ceased to put forth organs. The time for that has passed. If we would witness creation in the very act, we must descend to those subterranean chambers of Nature where God works amid the solitude in silence. But this descent is very fruitful; embryology is the mother of every science that has to do with life. It is not otherwise in the study of Religion. Religions, too, pass through their embryonic period, during which they manifest strange phenomena, seldom observed after they have emerged into the clear light of day. This is the time when miracles take place, and books are really inspired, and men speak with tongues. To judge this period by the cold canons of reason would be to apply to the unborn child the standard of conduct we exact of the grown man. Judged by this standard, this period may seem to be a mere tissue of absurdities, but for the future of the religion it is everything.

This is a truth that has not long been known. It has been the custom of Church historians of the old school to pass over this period very lightly, because it is so difficult, they not possessing the key to the door of that underground world. But to this one problem much of the best thought of our century has devoted its entire strength. In the grand temple of the Mind, which all nations have helped to rear, there is, perhaps, no stone cut with more care, or reflecting more traits of individual genius, than that which bears upon its face the name of Biblical Criticism.

THE LADIES will hold the Annual Sale at the Parish House of St. Stephen's Church, Tenth above Chestnut Street, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, November 11th, 12th and 13th, from 10 A. M. to 5 P. M.

The articles on sale will be, as heretofore, the handiwork of gentlewomen of restricted means, and will include fancy articles, needle work, preserves, jellies, etc. All expense is borne by the Committee, so that the full amount received is realized by the depositors.

The ladies in charge beg the hearty co-operation of the congregation and their friends in the carrying on this good work.

TWO RED STOLES, handsomely embroidered by the ladies of the Altar Society of St. Stephen's Church, were presented this summer for use in the chancel of the Church House.

A white and a green embroidered stole were given to Dr. Miel, Rector of the French congregation of St. Sauveur. Dr. Miel has many friends in our congregation who are much interested in his work and in the delightful little paper of which he is the editor.

IN VISITING THE people of the parish it is often found that families have removed. The Rector will be very grateful to all persons changing their residences if they will inform him of the fact as soon as possible, as it will save him many steps and frequent disappointments.

DONATIONS received by the Children's Friend Society in October:

From a Friend, $5 00; from Miss Louise Betts Edwards, $1.00.

The summer fun for the little ones ended the latter part of September. For fear they should be forgotten, many have inquired if it would not soon be time for Concerts or Entertainments, at the same time begging that they might not be forgotten with an invitation.

The ladies of this Society are very anxious to keep up the work, for they have seen the influence and what good comes from keeping a watchful eye on these poor children.

Will you not help us to make them have a bright Thanksgiving and a Happy Christmas?

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the Whatsoever Circle meet November 3rd and 17th, in the Parish House, half-past seven o'clock.

Donation received: Miss Elizabeth Stevenson, $1.00.

A very enjoyable evening was spent, October 6th, in the Guild Room, by most of the members of this Circle, for it had been decided that they would all meet together, inviting Sister Elizabeth to join them, and have a real good time, instead of their Annual Excursion.

Games of all sorts were played, all had a good time and enjoyed the ice cream and cake very much.

But with all this they did not forget their poor people. They donated some rags and partly paid for the weaving of a carpet for their invalid man, and did not forget Lizzie Weikle, of whom you have all heard.

The winter is coming, and our shoe bag is empty and funds very low, but the poor little feet come to us with their little toes out, with a bit of leather on top, a heel at the back. It is impossible to describe these shoes.

Will you not add your name to the list—25 cents a year—or send us old shoes or overshoes; anything will be acceptable and be made good use of?

THE ATTENTION of lovers of good music in St. Stephen's Church is called to the Seventh Oratorio Concert of "The Chorus of the Temple," by the production of Mendelssohn's Oratorio "Elijah." on Thursday evening, November 11th, 1897, at The Temple, Broad and Berks Streets.

On this occasion, the Chorus of one hundred and eighty voices will be assisted by an orchestra, fifty instruments; David D. Wood at the Grand Organ; and the following soloists:

Madam Emma Suelke, Soprano; Mrs. Maud Wilson Grove, Contralto; Mr. Leonard E. Auty (New York City), Tenor, and Mr. Charles J. Graf, Basso.

Second Quartette: Miss Alice M. Burdette, Soprano; Miss Alice Barnard, Contralto; Mr. Joseph Smith, Tenor, and Mr. M. Harmer Brooks, Basso; Prof. W. W. Gilchrist, Conductor.

No effort will be spared to make it as great a musical success as were the former concerts.

Tickets can be had at the door.

SAYINGS ATTRIBUTED TO BUDDHA.

A good action done in this world will be rewarded in the next, just as water poured at the root of a tree will be seen aloft in its fruits and branches.

A man who covers up his evil deeds by good deeds is like the moon rising out of the clouds on a stormy night.

If a man foolishly does me wrong, I will return to him the protection of my ungrudging love; the more evil comes from him, the more good shall go from me.

To feed one good man is better than to dispute about all things in heaven and earth, spirits and demons. All these things are not to be compared with the sacred duty we owe our parents. Our parents are very divine.

GAMBLING has an inherent baseness about it which not to feel shows a base soul. To carry in your pocket money which has come there by no use of your manly powers, which has ceased to be another man's by no willing acceptance on his part of its equivalent—that is a degrading thing. Will it not burn the purse in which you hold it? Will it not blight the luxury for which you spend it? Will you dare to buy the gift of true love with it? Will you offer it in charity? Will you pay it out for the support of your innocent children? Will it not be a Judas treasure, which you must not put into the treasury, because it is the price of blood?—Phillips Brooks.

SMALL COLLECTION.

Not long ago a London preacher indulged in a little bit of sarcasm over a small collection. He did it very neatly in a preface to his sermon on the following Sunday "Brethren," he said, "our collection last Sunday was a very small one. When I look at this congregation I say to myself: 'Where are the poor? But as I looked at the collection when we counted it I exclaimed: 'Where are the rich'"

NATURE has written a letter of credit upon some men's faces, which is honored almost whenever presented.—Thackeray.

OFFERTORIES FOR DECEMBER.

Second Sunday—Sunday School Christmas Festival.
Third Sunday—St. Stephen's Aid Society.
Other Sundays—General Charities.
Christmas Day--Aged and Infirm Clergy.

THE ANNUAL SALE held by the ladies of the Parish on November 11th, 12th and 13th, in the Guild Room, realized $448.28. This amount is given to the depositors; all expense incidental to the sale was borne by the Committee having the sale in charge.

THE SPECIAL CHURCH WORK FUND.

The Special Church Work Fund has now, for the most part, been gathered in. A few more contributions will probably be received from those who were written to late in the month. It was a question whether the publication of the PARISH NEWS should not be postponed a few days in order to make all our acknowledgments at the same time, but the Fund has already assumed such goodly proportions that this was not considered necessary. Hardly anything since he has been in the Parish has gratified the Rector so much as the responses he has received to his appeal in aid of this fund. These responses, without one exception, have been willing and kind. Several persons have been good enough to thank the Rector for giving them an opportunity to cooperate in this good work. Many of the letters have been so delightful that now it is all over he can echo the words of Victor Hugo, spoken of his work, "I take it up with dread, I lay it down with regret."

All this means a great deal to us. It means that persons of wealth, on whom the bulk of the work naturally falls, are willing to assume it; that persons who do not call themselves rich, but are in possession of comfortable incomes, are willing to do all that can reasonably be expected of them, and that all are interested in the Church and proud of its charitable and educational work and wish it to continue.

That, in the eyes of the Rector, is what constitutes the chief value of this fund. He cannot help believing that the blessing of generosity and good will lingers on this money. The sum itself is a generous one, and with economy it will enable us to carry on all our good institutions for another year. But he would not exchange it for five times the amount given grudgingly or in an ungenerous spirit. After the death of Mr. Anthony Drexel, the remark was made by a friend of his, "So and so many millions, and all clean money." Of our little church fund we can say, "So many hundreds, and all willing money." It is this thought which causes the Rector to regard with affection these cheques which bear so many honored names, and makes him all the more anxious that every cent shall be spent in work of which the kind donors would approve. It is said by those of little faith, only vices unite men, interests separate them. In this case, it is the interest that unites not only each one to the Church, but also each one to all the others.

OUR AFTERNOON SERVICE.

Probably the most striking feature of St. Stephen's Church is our Sunday afternoon service. At least it is that which most impresses the imagination of intelligent visitors. Our morning congregation is large, devout, attentive and composed unmistakably of people who represent much of the best life and thought of the city of Philadelphia. So far as the personnel of this congregation is concerned, its willingness to hear and its ability to appreciate the best one has to give, no man need ask more. And yet in this respect we are not alone. Other such congregations are to be found in a few favored churches both in this city and in other cities. But the afternoon congregation during the winter months is unique, at least, we do not know any other exactly like it. It is not merely that it is usually very large, though that in itself means a great deal in days when most people think one service a day quite sufficient. This congregation comes hoping to learn something. It would be an affectation of modesty on the part of the Rector to ignore or deny this. It is announced that on a certain Sunday the afternoon Lectures will begin. On that day the congregation is nearly doubled. On another Sunday the Lectures close. Two or three weeks later the congregation has shrunk to one-third of its former size. The Rector does not dream of claiming the credit of gathering this remarkable congregation. It was gathered by a remarkable man—his predecessor.

This congregation, as has been said, comes with the hope of learning something. Of course it comes to worship, too, and without our beautiful and affecting service we should not have it. Still it comes to hear Religion and the Bible reasonably explained, not to listen merely to ordinary sermons. For when we have the ordinary sermons it does not come. That in itself is a great responsibility to impose upon any man. These people have faith in his word. They believe at least he will tell them the truth, as he sees it, on matters of extreme importance. But that is not all. The Rector has had this duty and responsibility imposed on him before in lecturing to students in college. But in college, classes are carefully graded. There is, of course, a difference in ability, in preparation and in quickness of apprehension, but that difference does not depart widely from an easily ascertained average.

In the afternoon congregation, however, no such average exists. Here, literally, are all sorts and conditions of men, and that constitutes much of its charm. Scattered through the church are a number of prominent professional men—men of maturity of thought and ripe culture; physicians, barristers, professors and clergymen, and also not a few women, in point of culture and intelligence quite their equals. Here is a group of students from the University or from one of our professional schools, and beside them a number of clerks and young business men, whose bright faces and natty appearance are not to be mistaken. Look a little farther and you will see a large number of honest workingmen and their families, always our most welcome visitors. Then the experienced eye can discover quite a different group, which we can never see without gratitude to God—men and women won to Christ and a better life by the heroic efforts of a pure soul, a true minister of Jesus Christ, through the Theatre Services. Lastly, there is a large contingent of beloved faces who come simply because St. Stephen's is open for worship, and who would hesitate to leave the church if the Temple of the New Jerusalem were opened across the street.

Never can the Rector's eye range over this assembly without emotion, and yet never does he ascend that pulpit without a curious sinking of heart. Let me drop the third person for a moment, and speak as to friends. If you could stand beside me and look into that sea of upturned faces, each with its need, each hoping to receive something, you would know what I experience every Sunday. We have reached a point in our studies where it is necessary to elucidate some interesting problem of criticism, to determine the authenticity and authorship of some book, or to make an exact translation of some difficult passage. Some are evidently intensely interested. Others, hearing an old fact stated in new language, which probably they have not understood, look puzzled and possibly disturbed, while others still, not knowing or caring anything about such matters, look simply bored. Do you blame me for cutting these discussions short, and telling some little anecdote or making some practical application of the thought to the life of to-day, or telling a Bible story in new language, as simply and as graphically as my choice of words will allow, in order that no one, if I can help it, should go home unfed, unhelped?

Surely if any man deserves clemency and not criticism, it is a man placed in this position. If any man's words may claim a large, fair, generous interpretation, they are words spoken under these circumstances, frequently on the spur of the moment, to chain some attention, to answer some question as it arises on the face into which I am looking. I never prepare a lecture that I am not forced to leave out much that I have prepared with great labor and pains. I never deliver one without being compelled to say much that I had not thought of saying before I began to speak, and I may add, I never descend from the pulpit without the bitter consciousness that I have failed to do what I most desired to do.

Such lectures as these must be judged leniently. They do not represent pure truth sifted and refined for minds thoroughly prepared to receive it. They are only affectionate and earnest efforts to suggest truth to souls the most diverse, in forms in which they will recognize it and love it. Goethe once said, "If you give a piece, give it in pieces. Then everyone will find something to carry home." That is profoundly true. I cannot reiterate too often that, just as no two of us have the same duties to perform, so there are no two to whom truth reveals itself in the same manner. Thoughts full of blessedness for one may be dangerous and disagreeable to another. That is the doctrine of the Apostles, milk for babes, strong meat for men. But happily God preserves us evermore even from those truths which our souls are not ready to receive, and, even more happily, that which it is really important to know is always most easily understood.

GIRLS' FRIENDLY SOCIETY.

November 8th, a Service was held by the Girls' Friendly Society of St. Stephen's Church.

The girls marched in procession carrying their banner and singing "The Son of God goes forth to War" and took their places in the Church. After a short prayer by Dr. Worcester and responses by the girls, the Misses Sharp were admitted as Associates.

Then all those girls who had been members of the Society for five years and over, of good standing, were advanced to Senior Membership by the ceremony of presenting the Senior Pin. Dr. Worcester gave a short address on the responsibilities of the Senior Members, and the service closed with the G. F. S. Prayer. The girls marched out singing "Brightly gleams our Banner." During the service Miss Matchin kindly assisted by playing the organ, and the young men of the Guild filled the place of the Choir.

A SENIOR MEMBER.

DONATIONS RECEIVED by the Children's Friend Society in November:

From Mrs. A. F. Martin, $1.00; from a Friend, $1.00.

As will be noticed from the Report, the amount received was insufficient to give the children our usual Thanksgiving Entertainment, much to their and our regret.

"INASMUCH AS YE DID IT NOT."

As Christmas draws near many small hearts are anxious. The entertainments given throughout the year by the Children's Friend Society, and which the children classify under the one general head of "concerts," have for seven years provided cheer at Christmas, as well as at other seasons, for little ones whose stockings Santa Claus, that somewhat hypocritical respecter of persons, would otherwise pass by.

To these children of the poor the Society seems a miracle-working organization. To some of its old friends it must appear in the same light, since questions have been asked by others as well as the disappointed children: "Oh, why did you not have a Thanksgiving entertainment?"

The reason is a short, painful, but specific one: We had no money to give our little children their Thanksgiving entertainment. This Society is not a gold mine, as the children in their simple faith imagine, but an organization supported by voluntary donations. Of late the donations have come in more and more slowly, till just at Thanksgiving time they stopped. Unless some of our friends come to the rescue, Christmas time will find us in the same predicament. Nothing from the Children's Friend Society at Christmas time means nothing at all for most of these children; for we try to find only the destitute, who are all too easily found. Will not our friends, in their Christmas planning, remember some of "these little ones"?

A FRIEND OF THE SOCIETY.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the Whatsoever Circle meet December 1st and 15th, in the Parish House, half-past seven o'clock.

Donations received: Miss Elizabeth Stevenson, 10 yards of muslin, 20 yards of outing flannel and 10 yards seersucker; Mrs. N. G. Savage, 12 yards of outing flannel.

For Shoe Fund: Two pairs of overshoes from Friends; one pair from Miss E. Bell.

From Mrs. Savage,	$2 75
Miss Elizabeth Stevenson,	1 00
Mrs. H. F. Martin,	25
Miss Cleemann,	25
From a Friend,	1 00
Mrs. Joseph Clayton,	25
Miss Bessie Clayton,	25
Mrs. E. L. Bunker,	1 00
Miss M. J. Sidford,	1 00
Total,	$7 75

The King's Daughters did not forget to send their poor families Thanksgiving baskets. Tuesday evening they invited the young men of the Guild to join them in contributing some good things, and to come and help pack the baskets. Many thanks to those who helped. Four large baskets were well filled and carried to the houses of the poor, who were very much pleased and made very happy on Thanksgiving Day.

DR. S. WEIR MITCHELL'S EXPERIMENTS WITH THE MESCAL BUTTON.

Dr. Weir Mitchell has written so many beautiful things both in verse and in prose that it seems almost impertinent to call attention to a particular passage. We believe that many of his admirers, however, will thank us for printing the following paragraphs, which, having attracted attention all over the world at the time of their publication, now rest in the annals of the British Medical Journal. These pictures, probably unparalleled in beauty in scientific literature, were seen only by the inward eye of the great physician while he was experiencing the effects of the Mescal Button, taken, it is needless to say, for the purpose of scientific observation. They introduce us into a strange internal world of form and color, purely physiological, and yet all the more interesting as showing what beauty, what capacity of enjoyment lies concealed in the depths of the human soul. The Mescal Button, we may add, yields a strong intoxicating spirit, used by the Indians of Mexico and New Mexico.

"My eyes being closed, I began to see tiny points of light, like stars or fire-flies, which came and went in a moment. The star points became many, and then I began to observe something like fragments of stained glass windows. The glass was not very brilliant, but the setting, which was irregular in form, seemed to be made of incessantly flowing sparkles of pale silver, now going here, now there, to and fro, like, as I thought, the inexplicable rush and stay and reflux of the circulation seen through a lens. These window patterns were like fragments coming into view and fading."

"My first vivid show of mescal colour effects came quickly. I saw the stars, and then, of a sudden, here and there, delicate floating films of colour—usually delightful neutral purples and pinks. These came and went—now here, now there. Then an abrupt rush of countless points of white light swept across the field of view, as if the unseen millions of the Milky Way were to flow, a sparkling river, before the eye. In a minute this was over and the field was dark. Then I began to see zigzag lines of very bright colours, like those seen in some megrims. I tried to fix the place and relation of these tints, but the changes were such as to baffle me. One was an arch of angled lines of red and green, but of what else I could not determine. It was in rapid, what I may call minute, motion."

"When I opened my eyes all was gone at once. Closing them, I began after a long interval to see for the first time definite objects associated with colours. The stars sparkled and passed away. A white spear of grey stone grew up to huge height, and became a tall, richly finished Gothic tower of very elaborate and definite design, with many rather worn statues standing in the doorways or on stone brackets. As I gazed, every projecting angle, cornice, and even the face of the stones at their joinings were by degrees covered or hung with clusters of what seemed to be huge precious stones, but uncut, some being more like masses of transparent fruit. These were green, purple, red and orange; never clear yellow and never blue. All seemed to possess an interior light, and to give the faintest idea of the perfectly satisfying intensity and purity of these gorgeous colour-fruits is quite beyond my power. All the colours I have ever beheld are dull as compared to these.

"As I looked, and it lasted long, the tower became of a fine mouse hue, and everywhere the vast pendent masses of emerald green, ruby reds, and orange began to drip a slow rain of colours. All this while nothing was at rest a moment. The balls of colour moved tremulously. The tints became dull, and then, at once, past belief vivid; the architectural lines were all active with shifting tints. The figures moving shook the long, hanging lines of living light, and then, in an instant, all was dark."

"After an endless display of less beautiful marvels I saw that which deeply impressed me. An edge of a huge cliff seemed to project over a gulf of unseen depth. My viewless enchanter set on the brink a huge bird-claw of stone. Above, from the stem or leg, hung a fragment of some stuff. This began to unroll and float out to a distance which seemed to me to represent Time as well as immensity of Space. Here were miles of rippled purples, half transparent, and of ineffable beauty. Now and then soft golden clouds floated from these folds, or a great shimmer went over the whole of the rolling purples, and things, like green birds, fell from it, fluttering down into the gulf below. Next, I saw clusters of stones hanging in masses from the claw toes, as it seemed to me miles of them, down far below into the underworld of the black gulf.

"On the left wall was pinned by the tail a brown worm of perhaps a hundred feet long. It was slowly rotating, like a catherine wheel, nor did it seem loathly. As it turned, long green and red tentacles fell this way and that. On a bench near by two little dwarfs, made, it seemed, of leather, were blowing through long glass pipes of green tint, which seemed to me to be alive, so intensely, vitally green were they. But it were vain to find in words what will describe these colours. Either they seemed strangely solid, or to possess vitality. They still linger visibly in my memory, and left the feeling that I had seen among them colours unknown to my experience. * * * I was almost asleep, and then wide awake. In one of these magic moments I saw my last vision and the strangest. I heard what appeared to be approaching rythmical sounds, and then saw a beach, which I knew to be that of Newport. On this, with a great noise, which lasted but a moment, rolled in out of darkness wave on wave. These as they came were liquid splendours huge and threatening, of wonderfully pure green, or red or deep purple, once only deep orange, and with no trace of foam. These water hills of colour broke on the beach with myriads of lights of the same tint as the wave. This lasted some time, and while it did so I got back to more distinct consciousness, and wished the beautiful terror of these huge mounds of colour would continue.

"A knock at my door caused me to open my eyes, and I lost whatever of wonder might have come after."

IN MEMORIAM.

CRAWFORD ARNOLD,

Vestryman, 1879–1897.

Rector's Warden, 1886–1897.

Died, Christmas Day, 1897.

AT A SPECIAL MEETING OF THE VESTRY of St. Stephen's Church, held December 27th, 1897, the following preamble and resolution were adopted by common consent:

In the sudden and unexpected death of Mr. Crawford Arnold, for eighteen years Vestryman, and for eleven years Rector's Warden of St. Stephen's Church, we are conscious that we have sustained a double loss.

Of Mr. Arnold's general relations with the Church, it would be difficult to speak too highly. A sincere Christian, deeply attached to the Church in which he had worshipped for more than thirty years, he manifested his attachment by an unwearied interest in all that concerned the welfare of St. Stephen's parish, and the Burd Orphan Asylum. His relations with the two Rectors, whom he so ably served as Warden, were affectionate and intimate. Wise in counsel, conciliatory in spirit, a worthy example of the Christian virtues, he possessed the love and confidence of the entire congregation by whom his services will long be held in grateful remembrance.

Apart from our deep sense of the loss St. Stephen's Church has suffered, in Mr. Arnold's death, we desire to express our feeling of personal sorrow and bereavement. Mr. Arnold's relations with his fellow Vestrymen were characterised by the utmost cordiality, and the esteem in which he was held by them is attested by the frequency with which he was selected to serve on the most important committees.

Mr. Arnold was in every respect a noble example of Christian manhood. Of great personal charm and attractiveness, the soul of honour, cultured in mind, distinguished in person, he possessed even greater advantages in the treasure of a good heart. His character was simple and without guile. His childlike and unquestioning faith enabled him to bear with touching resignation many and heavy sorrows. His death was as sudden as it was painless. Having spent Christmas Day in Church and with his friends, he returned to his house in the evening, apparently in perfect health, and seated himself in his library to read. Thence, without a struggle, his spirit took its flight.

Contemplating his blameless and eminently humane and useful life, we can but express our gratitude to God for his long and faithful services to humanity, to religion, and to the Church whose doctrine he adorned, even while we lament the loss of our good friend and valued colleague.

Resolved, therefore, that this expression of sincere sorrow and affection be inscribed in the minutes of the Vestry. Further, that it be printed in the Public Ledger, The Churchman, and The Church Standard, and that a copy of the same be sent to Mr. Arnold's nearest relatives.

Mr. Crawford Arnold was born in Providence, R. I., in 1829, and was the son of George Ralph Arnold. For many years he was a member of the firm of Baker, Arnold & Co., but retired from business in 1877.

On the second of February, 1865, Mr. Arnold was united in marriage in St. Stephen's Church, by Dr. Rudder, to Miss Fanny Hollingsworth, a woman of great charm and ability, daughter of the late Thomas Hollingsworth. In 1893 Mrs. Arnold died. Two children had preceded her to the grave, and from this time Mr. Arnold lived much alone. He divided the year into two equal parts, spending six months in his town house at Thirteenth and Locust Streets, and six months in his beautiful place at Haverford.

Mr. Arnold spent most of his time, of late years in working for others. He was trustee of several estates, manager of the House of Refuge, which he frequently visited, trustee, as a Vestryman and Warden of St. Stephen's Church, of the Burd Orphan Asylum, in which he was deeply interested, manager of the Historical Society, Vice-President of the Pennsylvania Museum, etc.

In announcing his sudden death at the morning service at St. Stephen's Church, on Sunday after Christmas, Dr. Worcester said:

"I will break this morning the silence with which the good taste of the Church surrounds death, by telling you that St. Stephen's has lost one of its most valuable members in the death of Mr. Crawford Arnold.

"This is not the time to speak of Mr. Arnold's many virtues, his goodness of heart or his great services to this Church, with which he had been connected as Vestryman and Warden for more than eighteen years.

"But his death was so beautiful that I cannot withhold it from you. He had spent a happy Christmas. Yesterday at this time he was here with us apparently in perfect health. He received the sacrament. In the afternoon he was with friends; later he took dinner and spent the evening with members of his family. He returned home apparently well at 10 o'clock. He spoke pleasantly to the person who admitted him, saying, 'Well Katie, Christmas is over.' Those were his last words.

"Entirely unsuspicious of the change that was so near, he went up stairs to his study, sat down in his chair and began to read. Suddenly death stood before him in his most beautiful form. There was not a struggle; there was not even a sigh. The composure of his face was not ruffled. He died as he had lived—quietly and serenely. He also died as he had lived during the last few years—alone.

"For myself, for the Church I mourn. For him I do not mourn. He had lost those dearer than life. He lived in the anticipation of joining his noble wife and his children.

"At last the separation was ended. On Christmas night the glad release was given. The angel who was sent to bring him home did his work so well that our friend did not even hear the flutter of his wings. Blessed in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints. Do not fear, dear friends, that death breaks the bond that unites us. Death only breaks the bond that separates us."

ST. STEPHEN'S, WALBROOK.

Apropos of St. Stephen, it would be well worth the while of some of the members of our congregation, when next they visit London, to take a 'bus from Charing Cross to the city, and enter the Church of that name, when thousands of miles of water prevent their going to the more familiar building on Tenth Street in Philadelphia.

The Church of St. Stephen, Walbrook, a street still called after the unseen stream beneath, is situated near the Mansion House, and is considered one of Wren's masterpieces, ranking next to St. Paul's. Although small in size and shut in by offices and public buildings close up to it, as is the case with so many of these City Churches, yet the dimensions are so well proportioned that a view of the interior charms at once, and the eye rests with pleasure on the Corinthian columns, and graceful dome, rising from an octagonal base to a height of about sixty feet. The light from the lantern above and from the small elliptical windows, around the sides of the Church, produces the dim, religious haze almost always found in the atmosphere of London buildings, and renders it difficult to see in detail the dark picture of the martyrdom of the Saint, painted by Benjamin West, which hangs on the north wall. A modern mosaic pavement with a representation of the head of St. Stephen, in a large medallion, and some stained glass in the east window, showing the death of the Saint, constantly keep in mind the fact that this is the Church of St. Stephen.

It must be disheartening sometimes to the rectors of these city parishes to realize that they have not one parishioner, for business has crowded them out, and relentless taxes are so exorbitant that no one can afford to live within these parishes. The congregations are mainly made up of the few faithful who can always be depended upon in every country, despite distance or weather, a handful of tourists in the season, and the choristers and care-takers.

A pilgrimage of several days to these interesting old city Churches is heartily recommended by one who has recently made it, and been amply repaid by the wealth of historical data acquired, as well as by the development of that spirit of veneration which steals o'er one when surrounded by the relics of the past.

LAURA BELL.

THE CHRISTMAS FESTIVAL of the Sunday School was held in the School Building on Tuesday evening, Holy Innocents Day, at 8 o'clock. The tree was a large and shapely one very handsomely decorated by the committee of teachers, and was greatly admired by the scholars and all present. Mr. Wood led the children in the Carol service. The children sang sweetly. The address was made by the Rev. Mr. Miller. Miss Maud Taylor entertained the school with selected recitations. Boxes of candy, oranges and cake were distributed to the scholars.

THE RECTOR WOULD be glad to receive copies of the PARISH NEWS for November, 1890, and January, 1896, to complete file. Send to No. 9 S. 10th St.

As I look at the long list of people, who so generously helped towards making Christmas a bright and happy day for others, I wish with all my heart they could realize as fully as I do the pleasure, comfort and joy that came by their gifts, of money, food, clothes and toys. Our fifty dinners were distributed, every one receiving a chicken or turkey, fruit, vegetables, etc., and where there were known to be children, toys.

One old lady met me to-day and declared she had never in all her life "had such a good Christmas dinner." If this be true her former Christmas dinners must indeed have been scanty.

In each one of our gifts, however small, made to a sad, or needy brother or sister, the Father sees an offering presented to the Christ Child, more precious than the gold, frankincense and myrrh that were brought nearly nineteen hundred years ago to the infant Saviour, and as we listen we seem to hear the very voice of the Master Himself saying to each, "Inasmuch as ye did it unto the least of these my brethren, ye did it unto Me."

On New Year's Day a Tea will be given to fifty little children, between the ages of four and twelve, followed by a Christmas tree. In my next report I will speak of this more in detail. Several kind friends have generously provided for this treat, and a member of St. Stephen's, who is a very busy woman, (being a doctor), has offered to give up her time to dressing the tree in the old German fashion, which shall be fully described in the next number of the PARISH NEWS.

Before ending I should like to mention especially the great pleasure that was given to twelve children by the stockings filled with toys, etc., by Miss Van Dusen and Mrs. Lucas.

Most grateful thanks to: Miss Millie Jahn, Miss Ruth Snyder, Mrs. S. H. Hillman, Miss Virginia Zeilin, Miss Emily Bell, Mrs. Theophilus P. Chandler, Mrs. H. C. Atkinson, Miss M. J. Sidford, Mrs. Joseph B. Van Dusen, Miss Van Dusen, Mrs. Lucas, Miss Williamson, Miss Wilkins, Miss Sanders, Mrs. T. A. Reilly, Mrs. C. Billings, "A Friend," Miss Mink, Mrs. McMichael, Miss McDowell, Mrs. E. C. Hine, Mrs. A. G. Brunner, Mrs. Brunner, Mrs. Barclay, Mrs. Rowland, "From the Stratford Hotel."

DURING THE MONTH of December the Garment Committee received only 39 articles, and as they distributed 49, it will readily be seen that at this rate, their stock of clothing will be so diminished that it will not be possible to supply the demands made upon them. Will you who read this kindly send two garments of warm underclothing and the acknowledgement will duly be made in the next number of the PARISH NEWS.

Contributions are gratefully acknowledged this month from Mrs. Arrison, Mrs. Crawford, Mrs. Drysdale, Mrs. Fenton, Mrs. Judson, Miss Livingstone, No Name, Mrs. Joseph R. Smith, Mrs. Stratton, Miss Williams and Miss Van Dusen.

Monday, Jan. 3rd—Miss Cleemann, Mrs. Reinboth.

" " 17th—Miss Sanders, Sister Elizabeth.
" " 24th—Mrs. Lammot, Miss Stoddard.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT IS made of a box of dolls and picture books kindly sent for the Crippled Children in the Home of the Merciful Saviour by Miss Louise K. Holman, also a parcel of Home Journals for distribution in hospitals by Miss Goss.

THE PARISH SCHOOL held its closing exercises for the Christmas Holidays in the Parish Building, at half-past ten o'clock on Wednesday, December 22nd.

The carols were beautifully sung by the school, and a number of the scholars in turn recited the Sermon on the Mount, which Dr. Worcester in his address explained to them. Several recitations were given, and when the toys were distributed the school was dismissed for the Holidays.

Mr. Herbert Drew kindly played the organ, accompanying the children in their carols.

Miss Sally Grancell, Elocutionist, entertained them, and several other friends kindly assisted to make the evening a bright and happy one. Mr. Clegg made the evening most enjoyable for the children by exhibiting his Phonograph. An orchestra placed in the gallery was a pleasant feature of the evening.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the Whatsoever Circle meet January 5th and 19th, in Parish House, half-past seven o'clock.

Donations received: Miss M. J. Sidford, $1.00; Mrs. H. P. Hillman, $1.50; Dues from Miss M. J. Sidford, $1.00. For Shoe Fund: Mrs. A. F. Martin, 25c.; Mrs. Wigfall, 25c.; Mrs. Joseph Rowe Smith, 25c. Received from Mrs. Sidney Hoopes Evans a large box of new warm clothing for the King's Daughters to give to their poor.

The King's Daughters did not forget their poor families on Christmas. A committee was appointed, and met at the President's house on the evening of the 23rd to pack the baskets. Four families were well supplied with all sorts of good things.

Clothing and toys were given to the children, and a very pretty and warm comfortable was made and given to their invalid man, Mr. Steel, who lived just to enjoy it over Christmas and died very happy on the 26th.

THE MOTHERS' LOYAL CIRCLE, KING'S DAUGHTERS, held their annual fair the evening of Dec. 5th.

The Circle wish to express their thanks to Miss Stevenson, for the very generous contribution, which she again made to their fair.

The 15th day of December, the Mothers' Meeting observed the 11th year of the organization. They were given cake and flowers. Their work is to make aprons, when they are sold, all above the price of the gingham, is deposited in the Saving Fund, so that in case of sickness they will have a fund to draw upon.

The Mothers who have been quite regular in attendance were given a bountiful Christmas dinner.

WE ARE GLAD TO learn that in the midst of the many demands for money for charitable, benevolent and parish purposes, the ladies have not lost sight of the Missionary Society.

The amount received from the Mite Boxes for the united offerings of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Board of Missions is sixty dollars.

THE CHILDHOOD OF GENIUS.

[Andrew Lang in the North American Review.]

As far as I have studied the childhood of genius, it commonly shows itself less in performance than in character, and, alas, not agreeably! The future genius is often violent, ferocious, fond of solitude, disagreeable in society.

The great Du Guesclin, the scourge of the English invaders of France, was a most odious boy. His parents had to make him dine at a table apart. He was rude, furious, a bully; he beat every boy he could lay hands on; he ran away from home; he led companies of peasant children against other companies; he was the terror of the neighborhood, and the ugliest page, as he became "the ugliest knight in France." This was the boyhood of a great military genius; the boyhood it was of a little savage.

Scott's childhood was noisy. He yelled old poems at the top of his voice. He loved the lonely hills. He read forever, when he was not wandering alone, and he remembered anything that he read. He was a dreamer, a teller of romances to himself. He delighted in fighting, as did Keats. He studied everything except his books. His enthusiasm for poetry made a lady recognize him for a genius at the age of six, but his father thought he would end as a strolling fiddler.

Napoleon, again, was sullen, lonely, a dreamer, and always "spoiling for a fight," like Du Guesclin.

Unluckily, sullen, dreamy, pugnacious boys are not at all uncommon. They do not become Scotts (not that he was sullen), nor Du Guesclins, nor Napoleons, nor Byrons—for Byron, too, was a passionate, lonely, morbid kind of boy, with terrible fits of temper. His early poems were trash.

Shelley's early poems were trash; Scott's were as almost any cleverish schoolboy can write, and there is no promise at all in the Tennysons' "Poems by Two Brothers."

BUILT BY ONE MAN.

Dedication of a Unique Presbyterian Church at Hepburnville, Pa.

There was dedicated recently as unique a Presbyterian Church as exists anywhere in Pennsylvania. It is a beautiful stone structure, and the walls were not only built by one man, but he also hewed out the stones from great boulders on Brobat mountain. He labored more than six years, never drawing pay for his work, and when he died recently he bequeathed his unpaid wages to the Church. This heroic stone mason was named George Taylor. In the Church he reared, is a pretty memorial window erected by a grateful congregation for the aged and untiring builder. About a year ago, when he had just about finished the tower and his long labor seemed about to end, Taylor grew ill. His hammer and chisel were laid aside and they were never again taken up by him. He was about 70 years old and died of cancer.

IN MEMORIAM.

MARIA GOUVERNEUR MITCHELL.

Born, March 21st, 1876.

Died, January 24th, 1898.

IT IS PROBABLE that this great city was never so profoundly moved by the death of so young a person as when we learned of the fatal termination of Miss Mitchell's short illness. Thousands of hearts went out in unaffected sympathy to her bereaved parents and family, and it would not be too much to say that into hundreds of homes her death brought personal grief. If this is extraordinary, Miss Mitchell was not an ordinary person. It is true the setting of her life was worthy of the gem. She was the child of gifted and distinguished parents, her mind and manners were formed by the noblest traditions, by travel, by that which is best in art, in literature, and in society. Yet it is conceivable that in many young girls these very exceptional advantages might have produced pride, vanity and frivolity. In Miss Mitchell, they only added the last charm to a naturally pure and humble mind.

It is difficult for one who knew Miss Mitchell to speak of her as she was without incurring the suspicion of extravagance; but some, at least, will read these words who will feel only their inadequacy. Of her it is hard to tell the truth without appearing to tell more than the truth. It is not merely that her short life was immaculate, pure as a lily, sweet, gentle, and absolutely unselfish, that she was almost without pride, and, according to the testimony of those who knew her best, almost without sin. Such natures are rare at all times. But when to this are added the positive characteristics of a devout and ardent Christian, a faith living enough to make others believe, solicitude and tender consideration for all with whom she came in contact, wisdom beyond her years—it is plain we are in the presence of a remarkable personality, which affects us all the more because Miss Mitchell was unconscious of the least superiority.

That it is possible in this Nineteenth Century for one surrounded by wealth, luxury, and the temptations of the world, to reproduce with so much fidelity the life of Jesus Christ is certainly one of the greatest triumphs of our Religion. This young girl grew up like one of Christ's own lilies. Once (the tradition is preserved in her family) she lost her temper over a game of croquet with her governess. During her last illness, when the agony was too sharp to be entirely concealed, she was heard to whisper to herself, "Maria Mitchell, not another complaint."

The cutting short of a life of such promise, the severing of ties so sacred, the extinction of so pure a light, cannot but give birth even in the most religious minds to certain terrible misgivings in regard to the Providence of God. I believe that only one rational explanation can be offered of such a spectacle as this. Death, which appears to strike with such utter recklessness is after all but a little thing. The date of our second birth, is not a matter of so much consequence as we think. Our life, our perfect life, and the nature of the soul that lives, that is the all important thing. This thought I know does not mitigate one pang of the agony of parting. It is impossible for human words to dissipate the darkness that surrounds death, nothing but the light of Eternity can do that. But the pangs of birth are short; even the night of bereavement is not long, measured against the length of a day without a morrow.

And yet there are one or two things that may be said even here. Although Miss Mitchell's friends may well have anticipated for her a life of splendid usefulness, of reciprocated love, although they may well have looked forward to the brilliant fulfillment of the promise of her youth, let no one imagine that such a life as hers is without enduring fruit. The greatest lives are seldom long. Only those serve God perfectly who die young. Can anyone imagine that Jesus would have impressed himself more ineffaceably upon the memory of humanity if he had lived to be seventy years of age? Might not the awful burden of a divine vocation have been too heavy for even Him to sustain with failing human powers? To go up and down for a few years upon this Earth, to make a sweet and profound impression, to be loved infinitely, and to die very young; that was the whole life of the Son of God.

Of our friend's sufferings it is not easy to speak with resignation, and yet we should be false to the grandest principle of our religion, if we refuse to recognise that suffering born with sweetness and patience, not only reveals the soul but makes it absolutely sublime. It was His death, even more than His life that gave our Saviour forever the love of all good and tender hearts. Suffering added something even to the soul of Jesus Christ. We read that the Captain of our Salvation in bringing many sons to glory, learned obedience by the things that he suffered. Every sacrifice, every righteous act, brings us a little nearer the divine far off goal of perfection. Every battle won, is one less battle to fight. Every suffering worthily endured strengthens the soul and gives it just that much greater capacity for happiness. The mystery of pain remains a mystery, and yet its darkness is traversed by one ray of light that shines on it from the Cross of Christ.

Perhaps we can even echo the words of the good Shunamite when Elisha asked her of her dead son, "Is it well with the child?" And she said, "It is well." Alas, her prompt relief is not at hand. The grave has become inexorable. And yet if we could, should we wish to expose our friend again to the uncertainties of life, and compel her to descend a second time into the dark waters she has crossed? Who for sake of a few more days of this sad life would wish to break her sweet and profound repose? Nothing but her presence is lost to us. She lives in God a life a thousand times more real than ours, and she has left us a memory, an example of unworldliness, of purity and love that will bear its own bright blossoms and fruit ages after her name is forgotten.

A WORD FROM THE VESTRY.

The Vestry of St. Stephen's agree with the Rector in wishing to erect a simple memorial tablet to Mr. Crawford Arnold in the Church he served so faithfully and loved so much. Such a tablet will cost in the neighborhood of one hundred and fifty dollars. We feel that it would be almost a discourtesy to the congregation not to allow them to assist in this work, and to testify to their appreciation of Mr. Arnold's character and services by raising this little monument to his memory. The Rector will therefore receive and acknowledge contributions for this purpose until the amount necessary for a tasteful metal tablet is on hand. These contributions need not be large, as we would like as many of the congregation as possible to take part in this very appropriate tribute to a good man.

THE ANNUAL OFFERING FOR DIOCESAN MISSIONS will be placed on the Altar on Sunday morning, February 20th. This annual offering has come to be a well known and well approved institution in St. Stephen's. For the sake of those who have come to the Parish within the year, we will explain again, this year, the way it is done.

On Sunday morning, February 13th, from the pulpit, will be told more in detail the work of Diocesan Missions. During the week which follows, every family will be waited upon by a representative of the Parish, to receive the contribution. He simply calls to receive offerings of those who give. He will make no argument or appeal of any kind. The Rector will do all that publicly. Of course he will be courteously received by all our people, whether they can see their way to contribute or not. The amount expected, according to a tacit agreement which has been in force for a number of years, is equal to $5 from each person. This is what we have done heretofore, and nobody is any poorer, while many a poor missionary and struggling handful of people are much the better off.

Of course there are many in the Parish who cannot afford to give so much as the sum mentioned above, but there are many others who can, and heretofore have given far more than the amount, so as to make up for their poorer neighbors. There is no fear but that they will do so again. The whole amount gathered by the collector will be placed in the alms-basins, Sunday, February 20th.

The Rector asks that the members of the Congregation have their offering ready, so that the agent of the Parish may be able to receive it when he calls, without waiting and without being compelled to call several times.

CONFIRMATION INSTRUCTIONS will be given at the 5 o'clock services Wednesdays and Fridays during Lent. A Confirmation class will also meet in the Vestry room on Wednesday evenings, at 7.45 o'clock. We have spoken so often about the nature and obligation of Confirmation, that there seems little more to be said. In fact there is nothing more to be said. There is, however, something to be done. Any one who has come to mature age, and who wishes goodness rather than badness for himself and for the world in which he lives, is certainly called upon to join that society—the Church—which is the only organization in the world which exists for the sake of building up goodness. The requirements are very simple, as simple, indeed, as they could possibly be made. The door of Church membership is open to any one who can say that he believes the Apostle's Creed, and can further say that he wishes and intends, by the help of God, to lead a sober, righteous and godly life. If there be any such person who has not been confirmed, the question for him to ask himself is not "Why should I do this thing?" but "What possible ground of exemption have I from this duty?"

ON WEDNESDAY, February 23rd, Lent will begin. There will be services on Ash Wednesday at 11 o'clock, with sermon, and Evening Prayer at 5 o'clock. During Lent, beside the mid-day service at 12.30 o'clock, there will be said every day at 5 o'clock the Evening Prayer, with addresses on Wednesdays and Fridays. More will be said about the observance of Lent in the next issue of our Parish Paper.

Last Lent a daily service and address was held in the Church, beginning at 12.30 and ending promptly at five minutes before one o'clock. Those services were under the management and direction of the St. Andrew's Brotherhood of the Diocese. Those who attended them will remember both the numbers, and the interest which marked them last year. Thousands of people attended them last Lent. It is expected to repeat the same services this coming Lent. The arrangement of preachers and topics will be given later.

AT A MEETING of the St. Stephen's Aid Society and the Missionary Box Committee, held in the Parish House January 14th, it was voted to dissolve the connection that has existed for the past year between the two Societies, and to go back to the original status of two independent organizations.

St. Stephen's Aid Society will henceforth meet only during Lent, continuing their work of making garments for the poor, especially those in the hospitals in Philadelphia.

THE MANAGERS OF THE Benevolent Society will hold, on Friday, February 11th at ten o'clock A. M., in the Guild room of the Parish House, a sale of garments made under their direction by the poor women to whom they give sewing. These garments are especially suitable to be given to the poor and the charitable institutions of the city. It is to be hoped that the ladies of the congregation will assist by purchasing the articles the Society offers for sale.

THE ALTAR SOCIETY are ready to receive contributions of money and materials for Lenten Sewing.

AT A MEETING held in the Parish Building, on Thursday, February 3rd, presided over by the Rev. Dr. Elwood Worcester, the Missionary Box Committee was re-organized, and the following officers elected:

IN CONSIDERATION OF the fact that it required more than "the thirty-nine articles" of faith to clothe the poor, those interested in the Garment Committee and their work have responded most generously to the appeal made last month, so that 120 articles have been received during January, and 46 have been distributed.

Will you step back just one month with me, and peep into the Guild Room of St. Stephen's Parish House? It is New Year's Eve. How hard Kris Kringle's deputies are at work on that beautiful tree! Look at those soft, white, shining, snow-like wreaths, that hang from branch to branch. Surely they will melt and fall away in this warm room. Yes! they are indeed melting; for see the long, bright icicles glisten, now reflecting a thousand colors from those restless little lanterns that are chattering to each other in Japanese. Ah! the snow has fallen in two soft, white balls up there, and since you last looked the frost has gilded all those twigs. Was there ever such a wonderful tree?

If you listen you will hear what those whispering little lanterns are saying; evidently one of them has never been in such a position before. "What? do you not know what you are hanging up there for? then why did you come?" But before the little stranger can answer, they all shout at once, "We came because our master, Kris Kringle, says every one ought to do or give something at Christmas and New Year to make other people happy; and, as we have nothing to give, we come and hang ourselves up, and let those big people stick candles in us, and we try and hold them up, and give light for the little children to see the toys and good things other kind folks have sent. Sometimes we get burnt dreadfully, but are glad if it is at the end of the good time, as then we do not mind so much, for we have helped to make it."

So they talked on to each other through the long night, until the great clock struck 1898, and the New Year was ushered in. Soon the day wore on, and by and bye more deputies from King Christmas arrived. These bore Oranges and Apples, which quickly ran and hid under the tree. Then more messengers followed; these carried parcels of all shapes and sizes. Lastly a number of little boxes like beings walked in, all as sweet as sugar, dressed in white, with colored sashes. When they had all settled themselves, suddenly they received a great shock—a door seemed to fall from the ceiling, and they were all shut in! But some of the older Lanterns looked very wise, and began talking about "Surprise parties."

Now through the door they heard sounds of little feet, and a voice saying "You are such a little one, I must get you a cushion to sit on."

Then a sudden silence fell, broken only by questions such as these: "Will you have some more turkey?" or "Another cup of cocoa?" and presently an indignant little voice, "Why didn't you tell me there was ice cream, and then I wouldn't have had three times of turkey?"

The Lanterns all at once began settling their crinolines, and stopped talking, Whrr!!! Whrr!!! Whrr!!! up flew the door to the ceiling again, and what did those gossipy little lanterns see? At first they thought they saw over eighty beautiful shining stars, but no, they must be children's eyes: (a good man once said that the eyes of Children were like the Star in East, as they often led men to Jesus). But soon the little hands came to the front, and were quickly filled with the parcels, little box-like beings, and the Apples, and Oranges that had hidden themselves under the Tree for fear of being eaten, when they saw the bright eyes of the little ones, gladly yielded themselves up; with joyful hurrahs, the little feet ran home to tell of Kris Kringles beautiful Tree, of the big Turkeys, Ice Cream, cakes etc., and soon to bed to dream that the New Year that had begun so brightly must have many good things in store for them.

May their dream be realised.

Nothing but gladness came to those little ones that day, but since then tears have been shed from many eyes, and hearts are sad for one of their brightest "Messengers" who so lovingly cared for God's little ones here, has been called home to serve Him where "Their angels do always behold the face of the Father which is in Heaven."

No New Year's Day can come to many of us without her presence being with us, and helping and strengthening us in our work here below.

Very many thanks to all the ladies who so kindly gave their time, in preparing and assisting at the dinner; also most grateful thanks to, Miss Eisenbrey for the beautiful flowers, and holly that added so greatly to the decoration of the tables, and to Mr. Kelly for his most generous donation of milk, much enjoyed by the children.

ST. STEPHEN'S FARM.

About a year ago, an article appeared in THE PARISH NEWS on the advantages that would accrue to the parish from the possession of a suitable farm property near Philadelphia. A good many persons were interested in this scheme at the time, and have spoken very encouragingly about it since. After waiting a year for the plan to mature, and believing in it more than ever, the Rector thinks the time has come to bring it practically before the congregation.

As an initial step, the purchase of a suitable piece of property was laid before the Vestry at our last meeting. With its unfailing kindness, and interest in all that pretains to the usefulness of our work, the Vestry promptly approved of the plan, and consented to devote the Easter offering this year to this purpose. It may be said in passing, that the Endowment Fund will not suffer, as, by the will of Mr. Arnold, a thousand dollars will be added to it this year. A committee, consisting of Mr. Cleeman, Mr. Borie and Mr. Francis A. Lewis was appointed to report on available property and to assist in its purchase when the time comes.

So far, so good. The Rector now turns to the Congregation, feeling sure of its interest and support. Such a farm as we need will not cost less than ten thousand dollars. St. Stephen's has a reputation of doing what it does, well. We do not want a place in a malarial, mosquito-bitten neighborhood, nor an old ramshackle house ; but a substantial and commodious building in a pleasant and accessible location. We want shade trees and fruit trees, an athletic field for our boys, croquet and tennis for the girls, plenty of room for the children to play in and, if possible, a pond or stream to wade in. It is probable that we should have to make considerable alterations in any house we are likely to get to adapt it to our needs. Therefore we are looking for a farm to cost in the neighborhood of eight thousand dollars, expecting to spend about two thousand in putting it in order and in getting the work under way.

The amount we propose to raise, therefore, is about ten thousand dollars. Can we do this this year? Unquestionably we can if we want to. There are more than ten persons in our church who could give a thousand dollars apiece to such a purpose as this. We do not demand this, but we do ask the wealthy members of our church to give liberally. Here is an opportunity to give untold happiness to generations of children and young people at a very moderate expense. The last large sum of money this congregation was asked to give was for the Parish House, which has justified itself a hundred times over. The Farm will justify itself just as much. We have hundreds of children and young people to whom such a summer home, with the influence we should throw around it, would mean happiness and health, and some to whom it would mean life. We have experienced women on whom we can count for the wise and efficient management of this work, and we have a generous congregation accustomed to give, and to give largely.

All our large offerings have now been gathered in and the season will soon be drawing to a close. Thank God, it has been a happy and prosperous year. Judged either by the congregations that have filled the church, or by the offerings, it is a year worthy to rank with all the years that have gone before. Many of our people will soon be leaving town for the summer, but we hope no one will go away in search of rest and pleasure without leaving a substantial gift behind to give rest and pleasure to those who will stay right here all through the hot summer.

Before the next PARISH NEWS appears we shall probably have found the place we are looking for. We shall then describe more particularly the work we intend to do. The Rector now, sure of the response of the people, will open a fund to be called "The St. Stephen's Farm Fund," with a donation of one hundred dollars, in the hope that other gifts will follow. This Fund will be classified as follows.

First class : Gifts of one hundred dollars and over.

Second class : Gifts of fifty dollars.

Third class : Gifts of twenty-five dollars.

Fourth class : Gifts of less than twenty-five dollars.

In this way we hope that before Easter, enough money will be collected, with the help of the Easter offering, to make the purchase of St. Stephen's Farm an accomplished fact. The Farm, of course, will be vested in the Rector, Wardens and Vestry of St. Stephen's Church, and like the Burd Asylum and the Parish House, will be part of the property of the corporation.

THE RECTOR CANNOT HELP alluding with pleasure to the fine offering for Diocesan Missions just received, which is larger than he asked for. In raising this fund, year by year, we feel the pulse of the parish. From all indications, it would appear that the heart is beating strong and full.

WE ARE SO ACCUSTOMED TO OUR beautiful liturgy that we seldom think of the effect it can produce on minds who read it for the first time. A touching example of this was recently brought to the Rector's notice. A very able physician of this city was suffering profound grief. He had just lost the wife he idolized, to whom he had been married by the Rector, but seven months ago. At a time when human words and human sympathy were unavailing, a Prayer Book was placed in his hand. He read for the first time, those divine words of consolation contained in the Office for the Visitation of the sick and the Burial of the Dead. It was as if Christ himself had touched him and whispered Peace, be still. When nothing else could calm him, he could walk up and down and read those prayers. As one result, he will soon become a member of the Church which possesses that incomparable book.

THE RECTOR ASKS THE prayers of those who believe in intercessory prayer for a young man, who, last Saturday night, on his way, as he supposed, to suicide, paid us the compliment of stopping at the Rectory to talk the matter over. He thought he had reached the point in a downward existence, where the next logical step is death. We trust he is convinced that he is mistaken, and we pray that a happy life, and not a shameful death, is in store for him. But the Rector cannot help wishing that many other young men who are beginning to tread, with a light heart, the path this young man has trod to the bitter end, could have heard that honest confession. Such words rob vice of its last illusion. And yet, so long as the heart can repent and turn with sorrow from the sin it has committed, so long can God forgive, and though Cain, in his agony cry out, "My punishment is greater than I can bear," St. Augustine answers him, "Cain, thou liest, God's mercy is greater than thy sin." Some persons think it is not necessary to preach on the dark fears and agony that sometimes attack the soul. They are very much mistaken. I have the great happiness of believing that a certain sermon preached in St. Stephen's this winter has helped to save two men from suicide.

CAN ANYTHING FURTHER be said on the subject of confirmation that has not yet been said? If so, we wish God would inspire us to say it and you to believe it. He who lives without once experiencing the joy of communion with Christ in the Sacrament does not know what it is to be a Christian.

SISTER ELIZABETH'S many friends will be glad to know that she has almost recovered from the severe attack of grippe, from which she has suffered so much. Sister Elizabeth has been very much missed by her classes, the Girls' Friendly and especially by the poor. At present Sister Elizabeth is in Geneva, New York, her former home, where we trust she will not be killed by kindness, and that she will soon return to us in good health.

LENTEN SEWING.

The Committee has prepared work for the members of the Congregation, and hopes that all will be willing to help on the work, as there is always a great demand for the garments among the numerous charities.

Donations in money or goods will be gratefully accepted. There have always been over 750 garments distributed during Easter week.

It would be a lovely Lenten work if the number could be increased to 1000 this season. This could be readily done with the aid of our good friends, in work, money and materials.

A Lent well spent brings a true appreciation of the joy and hope of Easter Day.

THE GARMENT COMMITTEE has distributed ninety-four garments during February, and has received fifty-two only. During March the demands are apt to be many, as the clothing supplied in the early part of the winter has by that time been well worn.

Contributions are gratefully acknowledged from Mrs. Bunker, Miss C. E. Hutchinson, Miss Jamison, King's Daughters, Miss E. J. Magee, no name, Miss Florence Pancoast, Miss Rynard, Mrs. J. R. Smith, Miss Sanders, Miss S. Stevenson, and Miss Stratton.

This is a work the Rector wishes to enlarge. He has said, and we all know it, that the poor can manage to get some clothing and patch them together. But shoes are necessary for health, and are expensive and very hard to get. His idea is to help the poor to help themselves. Shoes for men, women and children have been bought, and every Monday morning, from 11 until 12 o'clock, Mrs. Vanderslice and one of the King's Daughters will be at the Parish House to give shoes to those in need, making them feel more independent by paying a small sum, say 25 cents. This was started Monday, 28th, and when asked if they would pay 25 cents, the reply was Yes mam, and also saying, It feels so good to get a new pair of shoes on.

Another woman said, I can't buy a pair for Georgie, if I buy for myself. She paid for her own, but Georgie's were given, as she had only 25 cents left to buy something to eat.

The King's Daughters will be glad to call for such old shoes as have a future before them and have them repaired. Send a postal to the Parish House.

Three pairs of shoes and two pairs of overshoes have been given out this month.

The Rector wishes to obtain a situation as salesman or clerk for a bright honest young man who has had experience in the drug trade and as a drummer.

ST. STEPHEN'S FARM.

During the past month the Farm Project has been moving quietly forward. The Rector, assisted by his good friend, Mr. Johnson, has investigated the merits of between forty and fifty pieces of property offered for sale in various parts of this State and in the State of New Jersey. Among all these farms, which it is not now necessary to describe, the farm of which we publish several photographs, is the one that seems on all accounts best adapted to our purpose.

This farm is known as The Emlin Institute Farm. It was once used for very much the same work as that which we propose to carry on. That in itself is a great point in its favor, since the house is large and commodious, and contains a large number of sunny and pleasant rooms; the ceilings are high, and there is a bath-room, advantages seldom found in a farm house. We will now give a description of this property.

Location: The Emlin Institute Farm is situated in Warminster Township, Bucks County, rest in a high state of cultivation.

Buildings: Main dwelling house of stone, with slate roof, twenty-one rooms, (thirteen bedrooms), bay-windows and porches, cemented cellar, nice lawn in front.

Other Buildings: One large wagon-house, three stories, one corn crib, one ice house, (full of ice), one spring house for milk and cream, large barn, seventy-five feet square, stable, straw shed, chicken house, etc.

There are several other advantages in this

Pennsylvania, on what is known as the Street Road, between the old "York" and Easton Turnpikes. The railway station, Johnsville, is on the North East Pennsylvania line of the Philadelphia and Reading railway, one mile and a half from the farm. The town of Hatboro is about two miles distant from the farm, and eighteen miles from the Reading Terminal.

Farm: The Farm, which is rectangular, consists of one hundred acres, eight of which are woods, eight orchard, one acre of vineyard, the property to which we would like to call attention.

(1.) A never failing stream runs through the farm. This stream can be dammed with little expense, which would give us a fish pond in summer, and a skating pond in winter.

(2.) Just beside the house lies a large level meadow, which, with a little work on the part of our boys could be converted into an ideal athletic field, suitable for base-ball, foot-ball, and lacrosse, surrounded by a running track.

(3.) There is an abundance of fruit on the farm, apples, pears, peaches, grapes and berries.

(4.) The location is high and wholesome, and the view very picturesque. From the house one can look off over a peaceful and charming country, without seeing anything that offends the eye. The neighbouring properties are either large farms or gentlemen's estates, and there are no objectionable features, no saloons, no malaria, and it is said no mosquitoes.

(5.) The farm is in perfect condition. The soil is rich and has been well fertilized. The fences are new. The important buildings are either new or in a state of excellent repair. Beyond running a piazza around the corner of the house, the place requires no improvements. The house, as it stands is admirably adapted to our purpose.

Price: The price at which this place is offered to us is thirteen thousand dollars ($13.000), or one hundred and thirty dollars an acre. Considering that the buildings could not be replaced for less than eight or nine thousand dollars, this can hardly be regarded as excessive. Moreover, situated as this property is, in a district already largely occupied by gentlemen's country seats, it is practically certain to increase in value in the next twenty years. If at any time it should be found that we have more land than we need, which we do not believe, it is highly probable, that we could dispose of part of it to advantage.

What we propose to do.

Although we have sketched the general plan of this undertaking twice in these columns, the Rector would like now to describe it a little more particularly. Such a farm as this offers a great many possibilities. It will be best, however, to keep the two sides of our work entirely distinct.

First. Charitable and Humanitarian.

The sole object we have in undertaking this large work is to benefit our people and make them well and happy. Most of us feel the necessity of leaving the city, at least for a few weeks, during the hot summer. The country not only refreshes us, it calms us, it teaches us many lessons that we knew once, but have forgotten, and we go back to our work with new strength and courage. The poor need this quite as much as we do, but they are not often able to satisfy their needs. We have in mind several classes of persons to whom our farm will be a great boon. At one time we shall have the little children of Mrs. Vanderslice's Society, the Sunday School and the Parish School. At another, the older girls of the Girls' Friendly, King's Daughters and many others belonging to the congregation. At another time, the boys of the Guild can go out for a week, and perhaps camp out in the woods. At any time they can go out for the day to play athletic games. We believe that the Farm will also prove a very attractive place to many of the older members of the Church. We shall enjoy a day spent out of doors in our beautiful country place, and it will do us good to see the children so happy.

Secondly. Farming.

All this will, however, cost money, and right here the advantage of the Farm comes in.

In view of the skepticism that prevails on the subject of farming, it seems wise not to be too enthusiastic. But it can be shown from the earnings of this property in past years that enough can be raised on it to pay at the lowest estimate most of the expenses of the work. We propose to place this part of the work under the charge of a practical farmer. The statement of the farm's products for the past year show a net profit of over three thousand dollars. It is true that though figures cannot lie, liars can figure, (we mean no disrespect to anyone). Yet with eighteen acres of wheat, forty acres of grass, seventeen of potatoes, seventy-five barrels of apples, not to speak of poultry, eggs and milk, in which we place much confidence, it will be hard if we cannot pay our way. We can either dispose of our products in the usual way to a commission merchant, or it is possible that there may be enough persons in the congregation who appreciate eggs more than "moderately" fresh, chickens, ducks and turkeys, still in the prime of life, and milk for whose purity the cow alone is responsible, to warrant us in setting up some young man in business.

The main point at present is whether we can raise the necessary funds to put this fine plan into operation. As we have said, the price of the Farm is $13,000. It will probably cost $2,000 to stock it, to provide necessary implements, and to furnish the house. We shall therefore have to raise about $15,000. Can we do this this year? That depends on you. At a special meeting of the vestry, held in Mr. Borie's office, on Wednesday, March thirtieth, at which the project was fully discussed, the vestry made the following proposition to the congregation: If the congregation will give one-half of the sum required (about seven thousand dollars) the Vestry will assume a mortgage for the balance until such time as the congregation is able to pay it off. That is certainly a fair offer, and it is on the strength of that offer and happy in the support and confidence of the Vestry that the Rector now appeals to his people. On Easter Sunday the offering will be taken for the purchase of the Farm. The only hope of success lies in making an extraordinary effort. Nothing of this magnitude has been asked of this congregation for years, and probably nothing will be asked for years to come. If we fail now we should hardly have the courage to take up the task again. It would be a confession to the community that St. Stephen's is no longer able to undertake large works. This we do not for a moment believe. If all will give liberally according to their means, and if the rich will give as our rich men and women alone know how to give, if we receive two or three donations of five hundred or a thousand dollars, the success of our undertaking will be assured.

We are not taking this step in the dark. Every feature of this plan has been carefully considered. We believe that within a year the Farm will be one of the branches of our great work of which we shall be proudest and that it will be the means of drawing many young people into the Church. Everyone who has had any experience in "doing good" knows that it is one of the hardest matters in the world to help people so as not to do them more harm than good. But in this work it is hard to see how any evil can ensue. "God Almighty planted the first garden, and indeed it is the purest of all pleasures."

To all this it is only right to add that at present we assume no obligation either to the owner of the Emlin Farm or to the congregation to purchase that property. It is on the whole the most available that has been submitted to us. But, should a better opportunity offer, or should our funds prove insufficient to warrant us in purchasing so fine a property, the Vestry reserves the right to negotiate for another farm at its discretion. We wish here to express our sincere thanks to Mr. J. Dundas Lippincott for the promise of several of his fine Jersey cows as the nucleus of our dairy.

MID-DAY SERVICES.

Under the auspices of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, Lenten Services for business people will be held at St. Stephen's Church, commencing at 12.30, closing at 12.55, punctually.

Addresses may be expected as follows:

HOLY WEEK, April 4-9.

Monday. Rev. G. H. Moffett, St. Clement's.
Tuesday. Rev. Jos. N. Blanchard, D. D., St. James.
Wednesday. Rev. Henry Anstice, D. D., St. Matthias.
Thursday. Rev. Sam'l Upjohn, D. D., St. Luke's, Germantown.
Good Friday. Rev. Elwood Worcester, Ph. D., St. Stephen's.
Easter Even. Rev. Herman L. Duhring, City Mission.

Services will be also held in the Church daily at 11 o'clock, at which time the Ante-Communion Service will be read. The Story of the Passion of our Lord is thus presented throughout the week in the Gospels.

Evening Service daily at 5 o'clock.

CONFIRMATION will be on Tuesday in Holy Week, April 5th, at 11 o'clock.

THERE WILL BE a celebration of the Holy Communion on Maundy-Thursday, at 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

THERE WILL BE Morning Prayer and Litany, with Sermon, and Offertory for the City Mission on Good Friday, at 10.45 o'clock.

ON EASTER DAY THERE WILL BE two celebrations of the Holy Communion, one at 8 o'clock, and later at 11 o'clock.

THE OFFERINGS ON EASTER DAY will be for St. Stephen's Farm.

Collections will be taken at all the services—8 and 11 A. M. and 4 P. M.

IT IS THE LAW AS WELL AS THE CUSTOM OF THE CHURCH that everyone who has been confirmed shall actually partake of the Holy Communion "at least three times a year, one of which shall be Easter Day." Of course it is a law without any penalty attached. It is a custom which any one has the power to disregard if he chooses to. It is a rule, however, which ought to be as binding as any which the art of man could devise. To disregard it is to do one's self an injury, and is also to do a wrong to the society with which one has identified himself, and, above all, it is discourteous to the Master.

ON EASTER DAY THE SERVICES will be at eight o'clock, eleven o'clock, and four o'clock. At the two latter services the pew-holders and regular members of the Congregation will be admitted as usual through the north transept door. The front doors will be opened promptly at the hour of the service itself, and the visitors will be provided with seats to the full capacity of the Church.

It seems rather an inhospitable mode of action, but upon reflection it will commend itself to all reasonable people. It is but right and fair that those who attend the services all the other days of the year should have an opportunity to occupy their own seats on the great high festival, and that those who only visit the Church upon such occasions should be asked to wait upon the convenience of the regular attendants.

THE EASTER CAROL SERVICE of the Sunday Schools, Parish Day School and Burd Orphan Asylum, will be held in the Church on the first Sunday after Easter, April 17th, at four o'clock. The offertory will be for the Home of the Merciful Saviour for crippled children, and also at that time will be presented the children's Lenten Offerings for Domestic Missions.

AS THE WHITE ALTAR CLOTH nears completion, and it is hoped will be used on Easter Sunday for the first time, the Altar Society feels that a few words about the work may prove of interest.

In 1890 several members started a fund for a white altar cloth, and the effort met with such success, that in 1892 the sum amounted to $227. In 1896 the Misses Magee presented the Society with handsome white silk, manufactured at Spitallsfield, in England, solely for altar use, and work was soon begun. The designs finally accepted for the Frontal were made by the Sisters, All Saints' Church, Baltimore, and those for the Super Frontal, Pulpit Fall and Litany Desk Fall by Miss Ross, who has instructed the class in its work. The Embroidery Class has worked faithfully and skillfully, and, though outside workers have been employed, the greater part of the Embroidery has been done by the class. We are sure all feel grateful for the devotion, time, skill and money that has given us so beautiful an altar cloth to adorn God's Sanctuary.

MARIA S. WILKINS, Secretary.

THE LENTEN WORK taken out by the ladies of the congregation is to be returned by Easter Monday morning. The Committee will then assort the garments made and prepare them for distribution where most needed.

MR. WILLIAM K. HOLMAN has presented to the Church a large Bible, handsomely bound in red morocco and gold to match the Prayer Books and Hymnals used in the Chancel. This large volume was made in the publishing house of A. J. Holman & Co. It has been given by Mr. Holman to St. Stephen's Church as a memorial of his father, Mr. William A. Holman, who died on December 6th, 1897. It was placed on the lecturn on Sunday afternoon, March 27th.

MANY THANKS are extended to the Misses Magee for the four cloth money bags they have made for the collections of the Parish.

THE LADIES OF THE BENEVOLENT SOCIETY will hold a sale in the Guild Room of the Parish House on Wednesday, the 6th of April, from 11 o'clock until 1, for the sale of household articles and garments suitable to be given to poor people, also to hospitals. These articles have been made by poor women, for whose work this Society pays, and in this way contributes to their support through the winter months.

It is earnestly asked that not only the working members of the Society aid by buying, but also that those who do not assist with the work come to buy as liberally as they can, and so help in that way. Please notify your friends of the sale.

This winter the Society has had unusual expenses, owing to pensions that are now paid to women who have worked for the Society for many years, and now are unable to serve by reason of age and infirmities. They ought not to be neglected in their helplessness.

THE DONORS TO THE GARMENT COMMITTEE during March are Mrs. and Miss Atmore, Mrs. B. Borie, King's Daughters, Mrs. Albert Pancoast and Mrs. W. C. Richardson. Twenty-four articles were received and forty were distributed.

" " 18th—Miss Sanders, Sister Elizabeth.

SELECTIONS.

You will find it less easy to uproot faults than to choke them by gaining virtues. Do not think of your faults, still less others' faults. In every person who comes near you look for what is good and strong, honor that, rejoice in it, as you try to imitate it, and your faults will drop off like dead leaves when their time comes.—Ruskin.

I will place no value on anything I have or may possess, except in relation to the kingdom of Christ.—David Livingstone.

ST. STEPHEN'S FARM.

May has been a very busy month on the Farm. So much work was necessary to get our farm into running order, and our house ready for occupancy, that as the days passed, we seemed to be accomplishing little. But now, in looking back over the month, we see that a good deal has been done. A good farmer, with his wife and two assistants, have been installed in their quarters, the vegetable garden has been laid out and planted and a fine field of twelve acres has been planted with potatoes. We regretted that we were so late in getting our principal spring crops into the ground, but the season has been so excessively wet that many farmers who planted their potatoes earlier, have been obliged to plant them over again, while our potato field is in a very encouraging condition. By the end of this week we shall have another large field planted with corn. Every inch of the farm will then be under cultivation except the meadows that are reserved for pasture. We have at present six horses and eight cows, about a hundred fowls, a flock of ducks, some beautiful bronze turkeys, three Toulouse geese, and a great many pigeons and the poodle, General Tilly.

The house we believed to be in excellent condition, but the ideas of farmers as to what makes a house comfortable do not altogether tally with our own. A few alterations and improvements were found to be necessary. These are not yet completed, but we have improved the drainage, provided the kitchen range with a forty gallon boiler, introduced hot water into several rooms, and, most important of all, we have placed a fine porcelain tub in the bath-room. It will be remembered that the house was practically without furniture a month ago, but thanks to the great generosity of our people, furniture has come in at such a rate that in a short time the house will be comfortably and appropriately furnished throughout. We thought at first that we should be able to carry all furniture out on our own wagons, and we sent the largest hay wagon to town twice and took it back so full that the youth who drove it was obliged to spend the night on the road. Since then we have decided to make use of the excellent facilities of the Reading Railroad, and for the last two weeks the little freight depot at Hatboro has been little else than a receptacle for our goods, and one of the amusements of the town is to see what new property has come for the Farm. We now have all our floors neatly covered with carpet, matting or linoleum. The bedrooms are nicely furnished with white enameled iron beds, while several of the larger rooms, thanks to the gifts we have received, are equipped in a very superior manner. So many donations have been sent directly to the Farm that we are almost afraid to enumerate our gifts lest some should be overlooked. We feel, however, that we must acknowledge the following articles and if any are omitted, we trust it will be understood that it is only through inadvertence: Miss Wilkins, complete set of furniture for large bedroom, matting, bedding, rugs, lamp, china, etc. Mrs. Austin, two fine bedsteads, washing stand and china, table, rocking-chair and linen. Mrs. Stratton, complete new service of blue china. Mrs. F. A. Lewis, dinner service, finger-bowls, glasses, etc. Mr. Joseph Van Dusen, complete set of wicker furniture for parlor, carpet, curtains, wall-paper, etc. Mrs. Parmalee, bed, chairs, and other furniture. Mrs. H. P. Taylor, medicine cabinet, fitted with every requisite for illness and emergency cases. Miss Stevenson, a quantity of agate ware, candlesticks, several hundred dolls, toys, games, croquet-set, a swing, books, towels, etc. Miss Snyder, an extension table, twelve dining chairs, rockers, porch seat, etc. Miss Sanders, writing desk, vases, candlesticks, etc. Mr. Harmon Robinson, wall paper for four rooms. Mrs. Taggart, large parlor table. Mr. and Mrs. Pancoast, complete set of parlor furniture. Mrs. Firmin, beds, chairs, table, etc. Mrs. Thropp, large chairs, table, etc. Miss Josephine Lewis, sewing machine, carpet, etc. Mrs. Crowell, rattan couch and mattress. Mrs. Lovejoy, child's bed. Miss Clarkson and Miss Walker, a quantity of books. Sister Elizabeth, complete set of bedroom furniture, curtains, etc. King's Daughters, complete furniture for one bedroom. Girls' Friendly Society, complete furniture for one bedroom. Besides these gifts, more than five hundred dollars have been received for the Farm Fund during the month.

Wants. After so many splendid donations, it seems ungrateful to want anything. Still, if there are persons contemplating further donations, the following articles will be very acceptable:

A plain substantial writing table, with drawers. Writing materials. A few porch chairs. Pictures of all kinds would be very welcome, as we have very few. Linen, especially towels, and china and glass are always useful. Last, but not least, we have not given up hope of a piano, which will enable us to have music at our religious services and will add greatly to the pleasure of our guests at all times, especially on rainy days and in the evening. Mrs. Bunker has placed ten dollars in the hands of the Rector toward the purchase of a piano, and if a few other persons will contribute, we can easily buy one.

The regular opening of our country home will take place on Wednesday, the fifteenth of June, at four o'clock. On that afternoon we shall raise our flag in front of the house, and if the piano is on hand, we shall try to persuade Mr. Wood and several of the choir to lead us in singing patriotic songs. We hope that a good many of our congregation who may be in the city at that time, will accompany us and give us the pleasure of showing them what we have accomplished. By the liberality of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad, the fare to Hatboro and return has been reduced to thirty cents for adults, fifteen cents for children. It will help us in providing conveyances if those persons who can be with us on the fifteenth will communicate their intention to the Verger. If there is a sufficient number, the Railroad Company will give us a car to ourselves. The first detachment of visitors, consisting of the Boys' Guild, spent Decoration Day on the Farm, and though the arrangements for athletic games were deficient, the boys seemed to have a very pleasant day.

During the summer, our regular guests will be girls and women, although we hope to make special arrangements for giving the boys a week in camp. Application blanks and a set of simple and wholesome house rules will be printed, and may be had from the Verger. From present indications the house will probably be filled most of the summer, hence it is advisable for those wishing to go to the Farm to make application soon. Guests will be received for two weeks or a shorter time, and we also expect to take a great many children out for the day.

In conclusion, the Rector thanks the congregation from his heart for their prompt and generous co-operation in this work, and he congratulates them on the possession of a property which is second to none for the purpose for which it is designed.

THE ALTAR SOCIETY desires to add to the annual report, that a set of Communion linen for private use was given to Dr. Worcester for use in parish visitation and administration of the Sacrament.

THE FOLLOWING COMMUNICANTS of the Girls' Friendly Society have kindly consented to take charge of the chancel during the summer months: Miss Emma Bartley, Miss Anna Bartley, Miss Eloise Charlton, Miss Jennie Tayman, Miss Minnie Wilder, Miss Bessie Wilder, Miss Lilla Wilder, Miss Amelia Whitaker and Mrs. Frederick Schmalzriedt.

Many of my readers will remember the "Birthday Party" given last year to eleven little children by Grace Putnam, who was then slowly recovering from a long illness. This year we are glad to say finds her well, and again she has provided for her Anniversary to be celebrated by twelve children going out to St. Stephen's Farm for a happy day. They are very grateful to her, and wish her "many happy returns of the day."

Last year many generous gifts were given me by those leaving the city, to provide for the less fortunate ones who were left behind, to go into the country on the hot summer days. This year St. Stephen's Farm is ready to open her gates to all such, and they will find a warm welcome awaiting them under the cool shade of the orchard. Will those good last year friends that have helped to buy the Farm, and furnish it for their benefit, now help to carry them out to its wide open gates?

Most grateful thanks to Mrs. Cooper, Mrs. H. P. Taylor, Mrs. Richardson, Miss Stratton.

ANNUAL REPORT.

From October, 1897, to February, 1898, Sister Elizabeth took charge of Bible Classes both morning and afternoon each Sunday, but was obliged to discontinue the afternoon class (much to her regret) on account of illness. Both classes were very steadily and satisfactorily attended. Miss Carryl most kindly took charge of the morning class while Sister Elizabeth was away.

The Communicant-Preparation Class has met regularly the last Friday evening in each month, in the Guild Room. We believe these short meetings have been helpful and appreciated. Every member of the class is now a regular communicant.

The members of the morning Bible Class met each Tuesday evening until Christmas, when the result of these meetings was shown in a number of most useful garments which were given to Miss Hall for distribution among the poor.

During the winter Sister Elizabeth has given a course on Botany to the girls in her G. F. S. Branch. An examination on Monday, the 23rd of May, showed that the girls had done good work and understood what they had been taught. A prize was awarded to Emma Bartley for the best paper.

Through the St. Stephen's Aid Society thirty-two little babies have been supplied with warm, comfortable and pretty outfits since last July. Every one of these little ones has kind and respectable parents; hard times only, and fathers being out of work, making these gifts necessary.

About $1.00 of this money was spent last summer on our "Fresh Air Excursions," that sum having been given for this special purpose.

In no single case has money been given or help rendered without the family being visited and the real needs known. This year fewer impostors have appealed to us for aid, only three giving false addresses, and having been searched for in vain.

THE DIOCESAN CONVENTION.

The annual convention of the Diocese was held at the Church of St. Luke's and Epiphany, on May 10th, 11th and 12th. The address of the Bishop showed gratifying progress in all branches of Diocesan work. His remarks on the war were singularly appropriate and eloquent.

A new Canon was adopted upon the requisition of communicants, and a new form of charter was discussed, but no definite action was taken upon it. The convention declined to reduce the number of city convocations.

Much of the time of the convention was consumed in balloting for Clerical Deputies to the General Convention, which meets in Washington in October. The following were elected: Rev. John Fulton, D. D., Editor of the Church Standard; Rev. Dr. Perry, Rector of Calvary Church, Germantown; Rev. Dr. Bodine, Rector of the Church of the Saviour, West Philadelphia; Rev. Dr. Harris, Rector of Grace Church. The Lay Deputies were elected unanimously: James S. Biddle, Esq., of All Saints, Torresdale, who serves for the sixth time, one of the best debaters in the General Convention; J. Vaughan Merrick, Esq., of St. Timothy's, Roxborough, who serves for the fifth time, while not prominent as a speaker, he wields a large influence because of his remarkably good judgment; George C. Thomas, Esq., of the Church of the Holy Apostles, serving for the fifth time, whose name is known all over the country, as the Treasurer of the General Missionary Board and a great Sunday School Superintendent, and Francis A. Lewis, Esq., of St. Stephen's, serving for the second time.

THE CHILDREN'S FRIEND SOCIETY report donations during May from Mrs. A. P. Martin, $1; Miss M. J. Sidford, $1.

Contributing members: Mrs. John Heyle, $1; Mrs. D. L. Hopper, $1; Rev. Charles Milnor, $1; Mrs. Charles Milnor, $1.

The children, in spite of the rainy weather, have been inquiring if we are going to have any excursions this summer. The answer has been, we hoped so; but to take them to the Farm, which is a very lovely spot, takes money, and it also takes money to give them something to eat.

It is quite a ride from the Station to the Farm, and, judging from their appetites at the Park and other places, they certainly will require as much feeding at the Farm. The trips to the Park cost at the rate of twenty-five cents apiece.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS, of the Whatsover Circle, will meet in Parish House June 1st and June 15th, half-past seven o'clock.

The proceeds of Entertainment given May 11th:

Sale of tickets,	$30 90
Expenses,	7 50
Balance,	$23 40

Half for Farm, $11.70.

Donations towards fund for furnishing room at Farm:

Mrs. H. Hollar,	$5 00
Mrs. Russell,	1 00
Mrs. H. P. Taylor,	1 00
From a friend,	5 00
For Charitable Work of the King's Daughters,	11 70
Total for Farm,	$23 70

Donations received in May for Charitable Work from Miss M. J. Sidford, $2.00; from Miss Stevenson, one dozen shirt waists, to be given to the poor.

The Whatsoever Circle wanted to do their part towards the new Home of St. Stephen's, so concluded they would furnish a room at the Farm, not for themselves, but to help and to feel they had done their part.

The $23.70 has bought the furniture, and in a very short time we hope it will be all in order, with new curtains and all its fixings.

The Circle feels very much indebted to the kind friends who aided in making the Entertainment such a success. It was enjoyed very much by all, thanks to Miss Julia C. Plantholz, Mrs. Angus Wade, Miss Anna S. Hair, Mrs. James O. G. Duffy, Mrs. Berrings, and, last but not least, Mr. Dibble.

And to Miss Louise Betts Edwards, for writing the Play for the King's Daughters.

The latter part of April, Mrs. Crombarger very kindly invited a number of the King's Daughters to go with her to the Church of the Epiphany, to see Munkacsy's Paintings—Christ before Pilate, and Christ on Calvary. All were very much impressed and interested in the sad but beautiful paintings.

Money received in May for Shoe Fund: Miss Lilly Wilder 25 cents, Mrs. H. P. Martin 25 cents, Miss Emily Dutilh 25 cents, Mrs. Jones, 25 cents, Miss Rynard, 50 cents.

Money expended, $4.

Shoes given out this month, fourteen pairs, to men, women and children.

Although closed for the summer, we have demands and are glad for second-hand shoes, or 25 cents to put in treasury towards winter work.

THE HOLIDAY HOUSE of the Girls' Friendly Society, at Cape May, will be opened on June 18th. During June and September the number of members who can leave the city is so small that the Society would be glad to receive a limited number of those who are not self-supporting at a very low rate of board, and can assure all desiring a short visit at the seashore, a most delightful home.

My Dear Miss Lewis:

The most excellent and valuable box sent me by the ladies of St. Stephen's Church has reached me safely. Its generous contents will help me very much in clothing my poor negroes, and most gratefully I thank you all, for remembering, pitying, and helping them and me also. It comes at a time of sore and great need—my Hospital is crowded with sick and dying people, and my means for taking care of them almost exhausted.

Praying God's blessing may rest on St. Stephen's Church, its Rector and people, for all they have done to help me, believe me, dear Miss Lewis,

Most sincerely yours,
PAINE BUFORD.

MRS. F. E. BUFORD.

ST. STEPHEN'S GUILD has been in active operation during the past year. The membership has increased to forty-four. These are mostly young men over seventeen years of age. During the winter months, Dr. Worcester kindly secured the assistance of Mr. James M. Bryans, who taught the members light gymnastics and many athletic sports. The honorary members, Miss Sanders and Miss Stratton have done much to keep the interest of the young men in their meetings. Basket Ball seems to be the favorite pastime. Reading matter is on hand, magazines, papers, etc., are sent by kind friends, games are played and debates on timely subjects are held.

Every Decoration Day the members of the Guild go for the day to the country for a picnic. This year they went by invitation of the rector, to St. Stephen's Farm. There they played football, base ball and engaged in athletic contests. They have their dinner in the open air protected from the sun by the roof of the wagon shed. They were taken over to the farm in large wagons sent for them to Hatboro Station.

ST. STEPHEN'S FARM.

The Farm, as will be seen by Sister Elizabeth's interesting report, is justifying its existence, and flourishing beyond our highest expectation. Thanks to the great generosity of our people, the house is now handsomely furnished throughout. Everything is running smoothly and harmoniously, and the house will be filled with guests during the entire summer.

The principal gifts we have received during the month are the following:

Mrs. John R. White—Towels and Linen.

Miss Pendleton—Kitchen Utensils, two Refrigerators, Tables, etc.

Mrs. Fell—Pictures.

Miss Sinclair—Pictures and Clock.

Mrs. H. P. Taylor—Hardware, etc.

Miss H. Subers—Pictures.

Miss Clarkson—Pictures.

Mrs. Walker—Pictures.

Mrs. A. Cooper—Stationery and writing material.

The money for the piano, desired so much, was promptly given by four or five kind friends. (As all gifts of money to the Farm have been anonymous, we withhold these.) Thanks to their alacrity, however, the piano was in place on the Fifteenth, and added greatly to the ceremony of the Flag Raising.

The day was perfect, neither too warm nor too cool. About one hundred and fifteen persons assisted in the formal opening of the house, and it was probably the nearest approach to a picnic that St. Stephen's has known for some time.

The journey to Hatboro was made without difficulty on two special cars provided by the railroad company, but there the fun began. In a small community, boasting of but few public conveyances, transportation for even one hundred and fifteen persons presents certain difficulties, and the assemblage of vehicles which greeted the eyes of "the spoiled children of civilization" on reaching the ancient borough must have convinced that they were indeed "in the country." The rolling stock of the Farm was out in full force, and several other farmers came to our assistance with spring carts, market wagons, buckboards, coaches, and other fashionable vehicles, seldom seen the Park, into which all managed to crowd with great good humor. The house, embowered in green, set off by the flag staff, and by long white tables spread under the trees on the lawn, looked very inviting as we drove up the long lane.

The programme was very simple. With Mr. Wood at the piano, and with Madam Suelke's sweet and powerful voice, the national songs went well as a matter of course. During the singing of "My Country, 'tis of Thee," a fine specimen of the most beautiful flag in the world slowly ascended the long and snowy staff, directed by the hand of Miss Bessie Clayton. Bessie's father had hidden away about a hundred tiny flags in the ample folds of the large flag in such a way that when "Old Glory" floated out on the breeze they were released, and fluttered down on our heads. Then followed a general scramble for a souvenir. After the songs, chairs were brought out, and supper was served on the lawn. Then those who were obliged to take the early train were reluctantly allowed to depart, while the others spent another hour in inspecting the house, which was found to be in "apple pie" order, and in wandering over the Farm, not even sparing the wheat field. Then we all returned home, well pleased.

The Rector is glad to see that a good many persons have begun to go out to the Farm for the day, and he hopes that a good many more who for one reason or another remain in the city will follow their example. He wishes the people of St. Stephen's Church to feel that this property belongs to them. They paid for it, and it is theirs. The officers of the Parish manage it only as trustees, and it is their wish to make it as useful as possible and that it may give the greatest amount of happiness to the greatest number. By writing to Sister Elizabeth, at Warminster, Bucks County, Penn., a day or two beforehand, our people will be met at the station and driven out. Those who care to take their own provisions can do so. Others will be served at the rate of twenty-five cents a meal.

HOT WEATHER RELIGION.

There is no doubt that our religious emotions, like our other feelings, are sensitive to the variations of the thermometer. The Church, recognizing this fact, celebrates most of her important festivals in cool weather. Fancy keeping Lent with devotion at the temperature at which I am now writing, which happens to be just ninety-five degrees in the shade. At such times the physical discomfort of Church going is apt to offset its spiritual advantages in the eyes of most persons. But is that any reason why we should cease to be religious, and lay aside our calm and steadfast purposes, our benevolent interest in each other, and become weak, petulant and irritable persons? Certainly that will not make us any cooler.

With most of us religion is far too closely associated with certain physical acts, such as going to Church, reading certain books, listening to sermons, etc. And so our religion has something artificial about it. It is not yet wholly our own, and when these external supports are withdrawn, we rapidly degenerate. Let us not forget that the final religion, the religion of Heaven as described by St. John in his wonderful Apocalypse, is to be a religion without a book, without a temple, without an altar. It is the religion of the soul which they shall enjoy who under the strange apparitions of this universe have succeeded in finding God, and who live continually in His presence. St. John says of the New Jerusalem, "And I saw no temple in it, for the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb are the temple of it." It may be to prepare us for this, to fit us for the hour when "Neither in Jerusalem nor on this mountain" we shall behold God and adore Him that God gives us these seasons of rest, and allows us to lay aside the tasks we have grown weary of, and to find Him anew in Nature. Certainly the religious life has many sides, and of these, contemplation, drawing near to God in thought, losing ourselves in His immensity, is not the least. Poor and sad indeed are those lives that are all effort, all struggle. Shallow and barren are those souls that know not the pleasure of yielding themselves to the Infinite, of calming themselves in the starry spaces and of letting God carry them where and how He will. This will readily be mistaken for laziness by superficial minds, but it is not laziness that prompts us to employ forces higher than our own. The Romans were at vast pains to lay their long aqueducts level but they never would have taken so much trouble had they been aware of the fact that water rises as high as its source.

A cheerful face is nearly as good for an invalid as healthy weather.

THE WAR.

During the last few weeks we have been making history rapidly, more rapidly indeed than most of us realize. Such efforts and sacrifices as we have been making since the present war was declared never leave a people exactly as they were before. Already certain definite results are plainly visible. In the first place we recognize with joy that the old American spirit which sustained our forefathers, gave majesty to Washington, and animated Lincoln's grim and marvelous countenance, is as alert and dauntless as ever. Thirty-three years of profound peace and of almost constant prosperity have not robbed us of our virility. The old sword released from its scabbard is seen to be as bright and sharp as ever. These thirty-three years have also healed the wounds of the South, and if any sense of alienation remained, it has vanised in the presence of the common responsibility and at the sound of the common call. But this is not all. The presence of enemies enables us to discover the disposition of our friends. The drawing together of the two great branches of the Anglo-Saxon race, the cordial recognition of our common heritage and common ideals, of which during the last ten years we have heard so much, is now an accomplished fact. At no time in our history have our relations with England been so cordial as they are at this moment, and though we do not expect to put England's friendship to any practical test, yet in the face of so much unjust foreign suspicion and hostility, it gives us a comfortable feeling to believe that we have one staunch and powerful friend abroad.

Certainly the ways of Providence are strange. The nation that needs and covets foreign possessions and dependencies less than any other is to have some of the richest and most valuable colonial possessions in the world thrust upon her. That is probably in accordance with the principal "To him that hath shall be given." In the course of the next few months we shall probably find ourselves in possession of Porto Rica and of the vast archipelago of the Philippines, with possibly the Canaries thrown in, and with "Free Cuba" at our gates almost in the position of an adopted child, her inexhaustible fields ready to blossom again at the magic touch of American capital and energy, and the liberty, she has struggled so hard to attain, protected by institutions modeled after our own. Little wonder that poor, overcrowded Germany, eager to find some outlet for her teeming population, and to check the steady stream of emigration to the United States, should view all this with jealousy, and should even be tempted to filch some of the chestnuts we have taken out of the fire.

All this is naturally gratifying to us in the highest degree—the more so because we at least are aware—it was not for extension of territory, or for the hope of conquest that we entered into this war. But at the same time we must not close our eyes to the fact that if these important foreign possessions are added to our domain, the old regime which has proved so enormously fruitful, and with it many of our old ideals of government will come to an end. We shall have to abandon our admirable policy of "fuge, tace, late." We can no longer avoid the entangling complications of European politics. We shall be drawn from our safe isolation, from our contented obscurity. We shall have to pay the penalty of having become one of the great powers of the earth. Having acquired great foreign possessions, we shall be obliged to defend them and to develop them. We shall be forced to maintain an army and a navy in some proportion to our importance. We shall again dispute with England the peaceful supremacy of the seas.

Is there, however, any reason why we should shrink from all this? Not if we have faith in ourselves. The foundations of our free institutions, laid in virtue, are strong enough to bear this vast superstructure provided we build as honestly in our day as our fathers built in theirs. We may hand down to our children the Republic, greatly increased, and yet as firm as iron. After all, society the world over is unifying so rapidly that we could not long resist the universal tendency of our times. Can we hope to take a hand in the world's game at a more auspicious moment? As a rule men's virtue increases with their responsibilities. The same is true of governments. Of all the fair and brilliant prospects now opening before us, the best would be that bad public servants having become too dangerous to be tolerated, we should insist on having good ones.

The "Crops" that the Rector was so anxious to see at St. Stephen's Farm have been planted since June 15th, and seem to be in a fair way of bringing forth the rosy cheeks, and sturdy brown limbs so much desired.

There are at present twelve guests at the Farm, old, and young. All agree that it is a "very good place to be in," and have no desire to leave it. The House Mother is quite sad when the time comes to say good-by to her children, but is ready to welcome each new brood as they come out. A favourite amusement of the family, is to get up early in the morning and go to the station with the milk cans; another, to go out with "Nellie Bly" who is so obliging as to allow all to drive her in turn, and to stand still, and patiently wait while wild flowers are gathered. Cherries are getting ripe, and very large birds are sometimes seen in the trees, and are even heard to remark "How pleasant it is up here."

The ducks and chickens were overheard talking to-day, the ducks started the conversation, they said, there were two things which they did object to, the first was, being called "Geese," and the second was, being driven into the stream, and made to stand on their heads on Sunday afternoon when they did not feel like it, but those new visitors at the Farm made them do it, and they should be glad when the time came for them to go away. The chickens symphathized deeply, and said with a sigh, "no chance for us to lay our eggs peacefully in the hayfields now without being discovered." The Geese too felt rather small when called "Ducks" but they only sneered, and walked on with their necks a little longer than usual. Strange to say, the cows are more contented and only stare sleepily as they see the visitors scurry past as far as possible from them.

The Warminster Post Office is a great attraction, and some one is always ready to "go and see if there are any letters." Another and perhaps a greater attraction is the piano, which sends forth its melody from about 6 A. M. until 9 P. M. One other continual joy is the swing, which like the piano is put in motion early in the morning and swings its pendulum steadily till night falls and all the earth is still.

Monday evening the moon rose clear and bright and the stars peeped out and invited "those who felt like it" to take a "straw ride," eight o'clock saw fifteen cosily packed into the large hay wagon, and with horns and shouts, songs and candy, they started gaily along the way to Willow Grove, here they stopped and bought peanuts (thinking nothing of the morrow): Eleven-thirty found everyone safely home again, cheers were given for St. Stephen's Farm, Dr. Worcester, the Driver, the Farmer, the good Cook, and many others. Crackers and strawberry jam were next on the programme; these quickly disappeared, the straw was shaken out of boots and other strange places, and good nights were said.

Only one sad thing has happened since our arrival at the Farm, and that is the tragical death of our pet rabbit. General Tilly, fancying, in a wild moment, that our little friend was a rat, quickly sent him to the rabbits' better land; the funeral was well attended and the grave is daily decorated with flowers. This Bunny was a very special pet, and so, much lamented; he would take crackers from his friends hands, nibble the Rector's shoes, and was most thoroughly at home.

The Parish School this year held its commencement at the Farm. Miss Lewis and twenty-four children came out on the twenty-fourth. Lunch was served under the trees. Games played, trees climbed, every corner and crannie of the Farm, stables, etc. visited, and at five o'clock the "Carry All" came to the door, and our friends said good-by to us, and offered to come again, which offer we warmly accepted.

DONATIONS RECEIVED in June by the Children's Friend Society:

From Mrs. C. P. Stratton $1, from Mrs. H. F. Martin $1, from a friend (through Dr. Worcester) $5, from Mrs. W. Williamson $2, Miss E. L. Williamson $1, from Mr. W. H. Hollar $5.

From Mr. Jackson Blank, for Excursion, ten dozen biscuits.

Saturday, June 25th, 100 children were invited to go to Sedgeley, Fairmount Park, for an outing. All were on hand promptly at one o'clock, and looked as happy as they could be, with balls, bean bags, etc., and were quite proud when they reached Eighth and Market streets to be the owners of the cars for the afternoon. The heat was intense, but in spite of it all they had a good time, and enjoyed their good biscuits which Mr. Blank so kindly donated. The cake and ice cream did not last very long.

The members of the Children's Friend Society, after consulting with others, decided, as it was nearly five years since they had taken any children to Atlantic City, and might never be able to take them again, the best thing to do was to present the bathing suits to some one where they would do good. Fifty suits were packed up, and the following letter received will show how much they were appreciated:

DEAR MRS. VANDERSLICE:

I promptly received your favor of June 20th, and since its receipt the box of bathing suits has arrived.

Will you please accept for yourself and the Children's Friend Society of St. Stephen's Church, our hearty thanks for this very generous donation. The suits will be of great service to our children. We were so short of them that it was with difficulty that we could make any provision for the children who came into our little cottages with their mothers. This donation will make it possible for all to bathe.

Very sincerely yours,

W. H. BENNETT,
Physician in charge.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the Whatsover Circle meet in Parish House July 6th and 20th, at half-past seven o'clock, as it was voted at last meeting they would continue.

Donations received from Miss Ella Kalbfleisch, Brooklyn, who is a member of the Circle, $10; from Mrs. McClennan, a rug for King's Daughters' room at the Farm; two pictures from Miss Stevenson; bows of ribbons for curtains, Mrs. Crombarger; Miss Dora Friedel, china pin tray; Miss Alice Kelly, china match safe; from May Jeffries (Parish School, twelve years old), a picture. She made dusters and gingham aprons, and sold them, took the money and bought a water color, she wanting to do her part, and it was appreciated very much by all the members of the Circle. Six towels from the Children's Friend Society, for the room.

OFFERTORIES FOR SEPTEMBER.

General Charities.

IN SEPTEMBER the Church Services will be held on Sundays at 11 o'clock, Morning Prayer and Sermon, and at 5 o'clock, Evening Prayer, without sermon.

THE REV. DR. WORCESTER and family have been spending the summer vacation in a cottage at Watch Hill, R. I.

THE CHOIR after a pleasant vacation during the month of August, will render the musical portion of the service on Sunday, September 4th, at both services. The services during August were held without music. The Choir will be heartily welcomed back.

THE SUMMER has about ended. It will not be long before the people are back to the city. Familiar faces will be seen in the pews again. Summer makes a most tremendous falling away of the congregation. It seems nearly everybody goes away and St. Stephen's Church is nearly empty. In winter we are accustomed to large congregations, and it will not be many weeks before the people will have returned to their accustomed places and duties.

IT IS TIME for the clergy then to direct the attention of the people of the parish to the work that is expected to be done by the congregation if this parish of St. Stephen's is to be of real use to the community in which it is placed.

The time has gone by for mere worship alone. It is of course our bounden duty that in God's House and before Him, "we should assemble and meet together to render thanks for the great benefits that we have received at His hands, to set forth His most worthy praise, to hear His most holy Word, and to ask those things which are requisite and necessary as well for the body as the soul." "With humble, lowly, penitent and obedient hearts" we should confess our sins before Him, but our conception of duty and service is more extended. We have come to feel that worship is not enough. Work is required. Service to God is to be rendered by doing service to our fellow men. So it is that side by side with the Church the Parish House is standing. It is a place for work. It is a witness of the obligation that rests on all the congregation to do some work of some good sort for the community about us.

THE CHURCH has many societies and agencies of work. To these societies the people are invited as active workers, or as money contributors, so that work by those able to give the time can be more efficiently done. Let us name some of these societies:

The Benevolent Society is one of the most venerable of our Parish. It does the work of what in many places was formerly called the Dorcas Society. It employs sewing women and gives them garments to make, and so extends a helping hand to many a poor creature who finds it so hard to keep shelter and find food. It helps the poor by assisting them to help themselves. It needs money for goods. It needs women to cut out garments, to distribute them and to see that they are collected and paid for by the society. There is room here for many good workers.

THEN THE Altar Society calls for young women to take charge of the Chancel, to keep the Altar linen and vestments of the clergy in good condition. It decorates the Chancel. It distributes the flowers of the Altar to the sick and bereaved. It makes the surplices and stoles, and helps feeble parishes to obtain fitting decorations for their services.

THE MISSIONARY Box Committee, the St. Stephen's Aid Society, the Garment Committee, the Girls' Friendly Society, the King's Daughters, the Children's Friend Society, all these have work to do and will gladly welcome to their membership those who will give their names to the Rector, and who intend to do what they can in the work as well as the worship of the Church.

IN THE BOYS' department a work most promising and encouraging has been done in St. Stephen's Guild. There are about forty-five members between the ages of fourteen and twenty-five. Some of these have grown up in the Church and some are communicants. Many more can be had and the influence of the Guild greatly extended. For this work we need men who can give their time in entertaining, in teaching, or in simply becoming friends and helpers to these young men. The Guild meets on Thursdays, each week, and has business meetings, drills, debates athletics, games, etc.

IN OCTOBER THE Sunday School will begin its winter work. The sessions are at 9.45 a. m. Teachers of the right sort are needed. Those who care for the young, who are capable of teaching, of interesting the class and who are willing to come regularly and punctually. It is useless for a person to give time to take charge of a class unless attentive and faithful. We have many of these faithful ones, but the school can be greatly increased in size and attendance if more such earnest teachers can be had. We put the need before the men and women, communicants of the congregation; we ask them to think the matter over and if they can come for work in this department please state the fact to the Rector or to the Assistant Minister.

ST. STEPHEN'S FARM, so generously started by the congregation, under the leadership of the Rector, has been a place of rest and happiness for many the past summer. Sister Elizabeth has been in charge, and by her faithful and able administration the house has been successfully maintained. It has been filled with girls and young women during the summer months. Many have stayed one, two and three weeks, and have returned to the city rested and ready for their active duties. There have been many visitors from time to time, and excursions by the Guild, the Girls' Friendly Society, and some classes of the Sunday School have been made, and all have come back from the Farm happy to have had such good and pleasant times.

SISTER ELIZABETH'S REPORT.

The summer days are fast drawing to an end, and with them many of us will have to shake hands with St. Stephen's Farm and say "Auf-wiedersehen," for Schools are reopening, busy times at stores coming, holidays ending, and winter work beginning.

We shall part with our last guests on the 10th of September, and the first Summer Season at the Farm will end on the 15th.

We have been singularly blessed with bright, fair weather. During the whole three months we have not had one wet Sunday, and so have been able to attend the little Episcopal Mission Church at Hatboro very regularly, and enjoyed its bright services. Each warm Sunday evening we have all gathered on the piazza and sung our hymns of Praise and Thanksgiving with only the music of young voices, which I think must be the sweetest music of all to the Father's ear.

Since we opened the Farm, on June 15th, one hundred and fifteen women and children have rested and enjoyed real Farm life (this number does not include picnic parties or visitors out for day). Their stay has been varied from a brief Saturday to Monday next, to one, two or three weeks, or, in exceptional cases, several weeks. The ages of our visitors, too, have varied from a little boy of two years to the dearest, I hardly feel like saying "old lady" (for she was as lively as many of the young folks) of seventy-five years.

As to amusements, we had feared possibly some of our city girls might find Farm life dull, but we have heard no complaints on that score. What with tennis, driving, croquet, straw rides, picnics, charades, book parties, night parades, concerts, the piano, swinging, singing, wax works, sewing, sleeping, reading, writing for the "Farm News," etc., etc., the days pass quickly, and when the week or two weeks is up we hear only sighs of "Oh! what a good time I have had, I don't want to go, do you?" and the invariable answer, "No, indeed."

We have had many kind friends, whose help and sympathy have strengthened our hands and hearts in the work this summer. Two specially have thought and worked for us in a most practical way. It will not be the first time that Miss Elizabeth Stevenson and Mrs. H. P. Taylor's names have been connected with good works. The numberless useful and generous gifts that have come through them it is impossible for me to recount here. I can only say that our gratitude is most sincere, and we count them true friends of St. Stephen's Farm.

If space would allow, I should like to give several of the letters received from the children after leaving the Farm, but must content myself with the following. It was written by a little child, eight years old.

"Dear Sister:

"I just thought I would write you a few lines and tell you I got home safe. I feel very lonesome without you and the little girls. Grandmamma and mamma do not know how to reward you for all your kindness. They say I look so well. When can I come again? A big girl I know would like to come too. We can only pray for you. Nobody made this up for me. I wrote it all myself.

"Your dear little friend,

"A—— ——."

Others write sending their love to all the horses, General Tilly, chickens, ducks, etc. Certainly the children have had a "good time" this summer.

The Rector, who has the welfare of the Farm very near his heart, paid us a visit in the middle of his vacation to see for himself that everything was going well with us, before leaving he made one or two alterations for our comfort. We hope he is having as good a holiday at Watch Hill as we are at the Farm.

DONATIONS RECEIVED in July and August by the Children's Friend Society.

From S. M. C., $5, Mrs. H. F. Martin, $1, Miss Elizabeth Stevenson, $10, Mrs. Anna Kelly, $2, Mr. Beauveau Borie, $25, Mrs. M. E. Sinn, $2, C. $10, Mrs. Edward Moody, $3, Mrs. J. P. Hillman, $3. Total, $61.00.

From Contributing Members, Miss Cleemann, $1, Miss Ford, $1, Miss H. F. Martin, $1.

Forty tickets for the Zoological Gardens, Mrs. Artzt. Box of clothing from Mrs. J. D. Thomas, Jr.

August 8th, the little folks had their Excursion to the Farm.

Their kind friend, Mr. Beauveau Borie, had donated $25 for this purpose, which paid for the tickets, biscuit, ice cream and cake, not only for the children, but all the guests at the Farm. Sister Elizabeth as her part of the party donated sandwiches, milk and tea. The ride on the train was enjoyed by all, but not as much as the ride to the house in St. Stephen's coach and hay wagon, as both were well filled with a very happy crowd. On reaching the house Sister Elizabeth and a number of young ladies met them at the door, who at once felt it their duty to give the little ones a good time. They were shown all the curiosities of the place, and as one little girl cried and wanted to go home when she saw a cow, you may imagine that many things were both new and interesting to them. Swings, hammocks, balls and games of all sorts were in use, one cannot say enough of the kindness shown the little ones by Sister Elizabeth and her guests, not forgeting the waitresses and the cook.

It was very nearly time to leave, which came too soon for many, when Sister Elizabeth brought out her camera and took their pictures, then each little girl had a doll baby given her, and the boys a wheelbarrow. Three cheers were then given for Sister Elizabeth, good-bye was said and thus ended a very happy day for the children.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the Whatsoever Circle meet in the Parish House September 7th and 21st, at half-past seven o'clock.

Owing to the extreme heat, this Circle did not meet in August as was voted, but for all that they did not forget their poor people. Ice was sent to their invalid girl for a number of weeks, Board was paid for three at the Farm for a week, fare was paid for a number to go to Atlantic City, and several outings given to those who were much in need of it.

Donation of clothing for the poor from Miss Alice Kelly.

For Shoe Fund from Mrs. H. F. Martin, 50c.

AFTER THE WAR.

We should be an ungrateful people did we not thankfully acknowledge the successes with which a kind Heaven has blessed our efforts during the past year. Six months ago we were rapidly nearing the outbreak of a great foreign war—a war which military authorities, both at home and abroad, anticipated might be protracted for years. That war, after a series of crushing Spanish defeats, was concluded in four months, with the good fortune which up to this time has constantly attended American arms. If the King of Spain had a beard, that beard would be singed. Had England, any time during the past ten years, shown as much spirit in insisting on the cessation of the Armenian atrocities as we have shown in this matter, the end of this century would see the only two persecuting nations remaining as harmless as kittens.

While it would be shockingly pharisaical of us to pretend because we have won this war that God is on our side and against our enemies, yet if we may not see the hand of Providence in the rise and fall of nations, in events that determine the course of the world for ages, it would be difficult to say where we are to look for that hand here below. Voltaire said "God is always on the side of the heaviest battalions," but we have learned that purely moral qualities are sometimes of more avail in the day of battle than mere weight of metal.

However all this may be, and whatever be the final disposition of the territory now under debate, we have accomplished the real purpose for which we took up arms. The barbarities practiced on the island of Cuba have come to a perpetual end; henceforth the inhabitants of the Spanish West Indies and the Philippines shall be free. If we were sincere in the purpose for which we professed to declare war, we shall be satisfied. Whatever be the outcome of the Peace Commission, we shall go back to our customary tasks with a glad mind, grateful for what the Lord has wrought.

And yet it would be a mistake to suppose that we can be again exactly what we were before. Through all these months we believe God has been leading us. He has brought us face to face with the great realities of things. - Danger, suffering, the sacrifice of earthly ties and blessings, the stern willingness to die, all these things bring us nearer to God, who alone is real. War shortens life, but it deepens it. Our country, too, means more to us than it meant a year ago. The splendid victories of Manilla and Santiago, give us new faith in the destiny of our institutions. The superb qualities exhibited by almost every soldier and sailor to whom the opportunity was granted gives a new and higher meaning to the word American. Good and solid people, firm in its grasp of this world and the next, prudent and scheming Yankee, romantic and chivalrous at heart, but never absurd, laughing at everything to conceal his natural seriousness, generous and great spirit, that incarnated itself once in Washington, and again, perhaps, more perfectly in Abraham Lincoln—we love you more than ever before.

The Farm ended its first season of usefulness on the twelfth of September. During the three months of this unusually hot summer more than five hundred persons enjoyed its privileges, of whom about one hundred and twenty were regular boarders; judged by the amount of happiness it has given and health it has restored, the Farm must be regarded as one of the most successful enterprises in which our Church has engaged, and the Rector feels sure that it will endear itself more and more to the people as the seasons roll by. To him it is a source of great pleasure to see the marked signs of physical improvement and vigor in those girls and women who were with us long enough to be benefitted by a wholesome country life. Sometimes people are not grateful for the most well intentioned efforts to do them good, but we have been overwhelmed with grateful letters, many of them charmingly naïf, and we have learned to love many of our little wards very much. In no single instance have we had reason to complain of anything worse in the conduct of our visitors than those little naughtinesses which are part of the imperfection of human nature. While we have naturally considered the claims of our own people first, we have freely admitted the members of other parishes as we could. The history of the summer's work has been preserved in the "Farm News," published by Messrs. Cow and Calf, and in a number of delightful photographs, taken by Sister Elizabeth, some of which we hope to reproduce in the PARISH NEWS during the winter. The Rector feels that the thanks of the parish are due to Sister Elizabeth for her untiring efforts and inexhaustible inventiveness in the management of the Farm, during the entire summer, and to Miss M. N. Potter, for her assistance, during the month of August. As a proof of the attention our work is receiving, even outside of the United States, we publish the following clipping from the journal de Genive (Suisse) of September third:

"L'Eglise épiscopale de St-Etienne à Philadelphie vient d'acheter à 35 kilomètres environ de cette ville un home d'été consistant en une centaine d'acres (l'acre représente 40 ares) de terre, sur lesquels s'élève une maison. Ce sera un lieu de séjour pour les mères et les bébés, ainsi que pour les jeunes garcons et jeunes filles de la paroisse en vacances. Pendant leur séjour les garcons aideront aux travaux de la ferme, et les jeunes filles s'initieront à ceux du ménage. Les promoteurs de cette entreprise espèrent arriver à lui faire couvrir ses frais.

Cette évolution des Eglises du coté du christianisme pratique est une des caractéristiques les plus réjouissantes de l'époque actuelle en Amérique."

This summer, as usual, we have been called on to mourn the loss of several old and beloved members of St. Stephen's Church. On the 1st of August occurred the death of Mrs. John Sanders, on the 17th of August, Mr. Albert Pancoast died, and Miss Catherine W. Thorn, whose legacy of one thousand dollars to the Endowment Fund of the Church we gratefully acknowledge, died on the seventh of September. While our hearts go out in earnest sympathy to the families of all our departed friends, we can only pray God to raise up hearts as true to take their places in the Church they loved and adorned.

"If thou givest a cup of cold water to a disciple in the name of a disciple, thou shalt by no means lose thy reward. But if thou givest that disciple a cup of water in despite, when thou perceivest him rather to need wine or a cordial, thy reward shall be to want that water to cool thy tongue."

BP. JEREMY TAYLOR.

AMONG RECENT GIFTS to the Farm, we acknowledge with thanks several valuable and useful pieces of furniture, kindly presented by Mr. and Mrs. Earl B. Putnam.

To the Rector, Wardens and Vestrymen of St. Stephen's Church:

GENTLEMEN:

I regret to announce the resignation of Mr. Geo. Roden, who for twenty-four years has filled the position of Solo Bass in the Choir of St. Stephen's Church. Mr. Roden's resignation has been tendered me several times during the past few years, and it is with the greatest reluctance that I now feel obliged to accept it. His worth as a singer, his faithfulness in the discharge of every duty, and his gentlemanly deportment, are qualities which combine to make him one of the most efficient members of our Choir.

I shall endeavor to fill his place at an early date.

Respectfully yours,

D. D. WOOD.

The above communication was received with regret by the Rector, Wardens and Vestrymen. Suitable action will be taken by the Vestry, at their regular meeting on the first Monday in November.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL was opened for the season on Sunday, October 2nd, at 9.45 A. M. There were a very good number of scholars in their accustomed places. Unfortunately some of the teachers have not as yet returned to the city. The appeal of Dr. Worcester for a few new teachers, has been promptly responded to. We gladly welcome these to our Sunday School for they are needed.

DONATIONS RECEIVED in September by the Children's Friend Society:

From Mr. W. H. Hollar, $5.00; from Mrs. W. S. Russell, $1.00.

The little ones have not had as many outings as usual this year, but it is hoped that they may not be forgotten and may have many pleasant evenings this winter.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the Whatsoever Circle, have their meetings October 5th and October 19th, in Parish House, half past seven o'clock. King's Daughters say, don't forget the Shoe Fund, we are told that this is to be a cold Winter, if so, there will be many little feet that will need looking after, help us to have a good store in our closet before the work commences in November. You can be a member for 25 cents. Shoes or overshoes are very acceptable.

Please send to Parish House marked for King's Daughter's Shoe Fund, with your name, that they may be acknowledged.

Donation of clothing for poor family, from Miss Bessie Kehl.

YOUR ATTENTION IS called to the eighth Oratorio Concert of the Chorus of the Temple, Thursday evening, November 10th, 1898, on which occasion the program will consist of two numbers, viz: Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise," and Schubert's "Miriam's Song of Triumph." The Chorus will be assisted by eminent soloists and accompanied by a full orchestra, with Professor David D. Wood at the Grand Organ. Soloists: Madame Emma Suelke, soprano; Mrs. Alice Burdette Wood, second soprano: Mr. J. Henry McKinley, (of New York City), Tenor.

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

Where is now St. Stephen's Farm House
I remember with delight
Sitting on the front piazza
Charming was the view in sight.
It has gone with summer sunshine,
Longer there we might not stay;
It has passed into the memory,
Fairer than the fairest day;
It has passed into the memory,
Fairer than the fairest day.

Where is now that old milk wagon
And our dear friend Nellie Bly?
Who so early in the morning
Told us not in bed to lie,
But to rise with her and carry
Milk to depot sure and slow;
Ah! she waits at Johnsville Station,
Nothing now can make her go;
Ah! she waits at Johnsville Station,
Nothing now can make her go.

Where are now those golden Cookies
Made by Crommies' clever hand;
Where those pies and tarts and puddings
Never equalled in this land;
Where those biscuits, cakes and muffins,
Where that best of home made bread?
All have gone from us forever,
Now we're not by Crommie fed;
All are gone from us forever,
Now we're not by Crommie fed.

Where is now our Bunny Rabbit,
That so soft and shy and sweet,
Came to us on Easter morning
In a box to Locust Street?
Ready was he for the country
And most gladly did he eat
Hay and grass, and pretty flowers,
Rather than the Rector's feet;
Hay and grass and pretty flowers,
Rather than the Rector's feet.

He has gone to a great distance
And with Bunnies made his home,
In that paradise for rabbits
Where no naughty doggies come;
But his grave we cherish duly
And we think with saddened heart
Of the hour when Tilly caught him,
And from us he had to part;
Of the hour when Tilly caught him,
And from us he had to part.

Where is now the big hay wagon
And the horses drappled grey?
That upon the first bright Moon night
Carried us for miles away;
In the barn the wagon silent
Waits for June to come again,
And the horses eat their heads off
Sighing for that time in vain;
And the horses eat their heads off
Sighing for that time in vain.

Where is now our faithful Bow wow?
Gyp we called him for a name.
Oh! we loved him deeply truly
And to part us was a shame.
He has gone away to strangers
And with others made a home,
But we advertise him daily
And we trust that he will come.
But we advertise him daily,
And we trust that he will come.

Where is now the Station wagon?
And that fine large Carry-All?
That the Hatboro station haunted,
Always ready at a call.
It is dusty, sad and lonely,
Only chickens in it stay,
Thinking what a heaven the Farm is
When the guests are gone away;
Thinking what a heaven the Farm is
When the guests are gone away.

Where is now the clear spring water
And those water cresses green?
Where the old tin cup we drank from
When beside the running stream?
Tad poles live within its shelter
And with chickens do agree
That St. Stephen's Farm's a fine place
When the guests are gone to sea;
That St. Stephen's Farm's a fine place
When the guests are gone to sea.

Where is now the old House-Mother?
That was ever day and night
Giving doses, pills and potions
From the cupboard on the right.
She has gone to Timbuctoo,
Longer here she could not stay,
For her limbs were growing shaky
And her hair was turning grey;
For her limbs were growing shaky
And her hair was turning grey.

So Fare-well she breathed one morning
And with very smiling face
Said, "she guessed her day was over,
Some one else could fill her place."
And she crossed the threshold gently
And a whisper from her came;
Oh! I'm glad my reign is over,
Sure as Lizbeth is my name;
Oh! I'm glad my reign is over,
Sure as Lizbeth is my name!!

There are still some folks remaining,
Greenshields is their proper name,
And they till the land and make it
Ready for the next year's fame.
They will have a little peace now,
And with live stock will exclaim:
Yes! we're glad you came to see us,
But don't come too soon again;
Yes! we're glad you came to see us,
But don't come too soon again!!

To the Clergy and Vestrymen of St. Stephen's P. E. Church, of Philadelphia:

DEAR SIRS:

In behalf of the Pennsylvania Women's Emergency Relief Association, I return thanks for the use of your Guild room, during this past summer. Said room was a wonderful help for us in cutting out Pajama's for our country's sick soldiers. Your kindness enabled us to help many a soldier, (in his hour of suffering) and will ever be remembered by the members of our organization.

Respectfully,

WITH THE FIRST of November the winter's work begins in earnest. On the whole the congregations, during October, have been excellent, but now we shall hope to see the Church well filled except on rainy Sundays. The various societies and organizations will enter upon another year of useful activity, and soon the old parish will be as full of life as ever.

To a stranger there is something alarming in the way everything seems to come to an end as summer draws near. For many weeks the Church stands bare as a tree stripped of its leaves and the stranger wonders if it will ever again be clothed in its former beauty and dignity. But those who have had experience, know that the old Church is as reliable in its periodic changes as the seasons themselves. Only while nature chooses winter for her long sleep, Grace takes her nap in the summer. No sooner are the trees of the forest bare than our beloved leaves come fluttering back to us from all directions, complicating our figure a little it is true, but attaching themselves firmly to their old places, all the better and more interesting for their temporary absence. Every season also brings us new leaves, and alas, every season reveals bare branches whose leaves will never return.

That is the saddest outlook for St. Stephen's at the present time. Already an old parish it necessarily contains many persons past middle age, who, by a law that seems to us cruel, cannot remain with us forever. In the nature of the case when these persons are removed by death, it is impossible to replace them with persons of the same sort, because the number of such persons in the community is strictly limited and they have long since found other church connections. This however, melancholy as it is to contemplate, is not necessarily a sign of weakness. To tell the truth the whole city is undergoing a precisely similar change. The old Philadelphia is passing away slowly year by year and a new city composed of different elements and actuated by different ideals of life is taking its place. For reasons not difficult to discover, remembering the Rectors with which St. Stephen's has been blessed, in its formative period the Church attracted to itself some of the gentlest, noblest people to be found in any community. Other congregations in this city are certainly wealthier than ours, some may be larger, but none is more generous or more intelligent. It is a well known principle that like draws like, and in looking foward to the future the Rector places far more reliance on the attractive energy of the congregation we still have than on his own efforts. At the same time the Church, taken in its ensemble presents certain features which we cannot help hoping will appeal to minds of the better class in the future as they have appealed in the past. Our service, while free from affectation or singularity, is dignified, reverent and always the same. Those who love music and who understand it, find at St. Stephen's, music of the highest order, that is to say, the music of the great Masters, interpreted by one who is himself a Master. In doctrine the Church has always claimed and still claims the liberty of the children of God, liberty that is not used as a cloak of maliciousness, but that joyfully recognizes all that is good in modern thought and life. Lastly on the side of its charities St. Stephen's stands almost alone. There is no other church with which we are acquainted that gives all its offerings away. While, then, we lament the losses of the past we are thankful for the blessings of the present, and we look forward with quiet confidence to the future.

The time will soon be at hand for the Rector to send his personal requests to certain good men and women for contributions to the special Church Work Fund. In spite of the great kindness with which these requests have been met, the Rector feels this to be the hardest duty he is called upon to discharge. On the other hand our many admirable Societies depend on this money for the means of continuing their useful work. And every year, as the work increases, they need more money. On looking over THE PARISH NEWS of last December, the Rector discovers with sorrow that four of our largest contributors have died since that time. He, therefore, trusts that the remaining friends, who have faithfully stood by him during his rectorship will continue their kind assistance. If it is found necessary to appeal to new members for subscriptions, they will understand the situation and no doubt will respond in the spirit with which reasonable appeals are met at S. Stephen's. Nobody need feel left out in not receiving a letter as unsolicited gifts are always doubly welcome.

The parish and many outside the parish are under great obligation to Mr. Wood and to the Choir for the delightful musical services we have been enjoying during October. There has always been a gap in our afternoon services before the lectures begin, which Mr. Wood has enabled us to fill most happily, and we hope that these October musical services will become one of the traditions of the parish. In spite of the fact that absolutely no effort was made to advertise these services the church has been filled with reverent worshippers every Sunday since they began. Good wine needs no bush.

The Afternoon Lectures will begin a little earlier than usual about the middle of November. The subject for this winter will be "The Book of Genesis in the Light of Modern Knowledge." There is probably no portion of the Bible on which more light has been thrown by recent discoveries and research than on this ancient and perennially charming book. The truths with which Genesis deals are truths of the first order. The traditions preserved in its pages are among the most venerable that have come down to us. Its narratives are forever fresh and interesting and we hope that these studies, which are undertaken in a most serious spirit will be of benefit to many persons.

SPECIMENS OF ARABIC WISDOM.

The following sayings, some of which perhaps for the first time appear in English, are ascribed to Lokman, a famous Arabian sage, of whom all we can say with certainty is that he lived before Mohammed, since he is mentioned in the Koran. Lokman is one of those characters, the despair of historians, of whom the most contradictory things are related. He has been identified with Balaam on account of the similarity of the meaning of their names (he who swallows). We are told that he was the son of Terah, the father of Abraham, though he is also represented as the nephew of Job, and a Judge of Israel. According to one tradition he was king of Nubia, according to another, a black slave with thick lips. Mohammed is said to have related that God gave him the choice of becoming either a prophet or a sage, but that Lokman, dreading the hardships of a prophet's life, chose wisdom, and the Lord thereupon bestowed the gift of prophecy on David, and made Lokman a composer of proverbs. It is possible that none of these little sayings is his, and yet, whoever wrote them, they are worth reading. They reflect the conscience of an enlightened Arab who, though without the Law or the Gospel, was certainly a monotheist. Some of them are wise, some, beautiful, and some, merely shrewd.

My Son, if the Good be but of the weight of a mustard seed, if it be hidden in the rock, or in the earth, or in Heaven, God will make it manifest; for He is subtle and experienced.

I have left behind me the painful "Oh! if I might," "Oh! if I had."

My Son, the world is a deep sea, and many are drowned in it. Thy ship is the fear of God, thy cargo faith in God, and thy sails are trust in God.

My Son, be trusty and you will be rich, but do not act before men as if you feared God if your heart is wicked.

My Son, sit with the learned so near that your knees touch theirs, but do not strive with them or they will turn you out. Learn from them when they give instruction, but be tender in asking them questions or you will make yourself disagreeable to them.

My Son, if you are well educated in your youth you will be valued in your old age.

My Son, do not assume a disguise, for by day it will make you peculiar, and by night, suspicious.

My Son, do not exhort men to piety while yourself neglect it, or you will be like a lamp which in giving light to others destroys itself.

(With this we may compare Buddha's saying—"He who teaches the law to others but does not practice it himself is like a cowherd counting another man's cattle").

My Son, do not hold small things in contempt; tomorrow they will be great.

My Son, do not sink your soul in care, and fill not your heart with anxiety for the fulfilment of desire; but be content with your fate, and satisfy yourself with what God has given you, so will your walk be pure, your life happy, and your disposition cheerful. But if you desire to be independent, root out the longing for what men possess, since what prophets and righteous men have attained they attained by eradicating the desire of that which men possess.

(Compare with this Carlyle's "Make thy claim to wages naught, and thou hast the world beneath thy feet.")

My Son, Time is short, and of it thy life is but a small fragment, and little from little leaves little.

My Son, the envious person is recognized by three characteristics—he belittles the absent, he flatters those present, and he rejoices in misfortune.

My Son, when you hear an evil report, bury it in hour heart, and do not bring it to the light; otherwise it will become a brand and burn thy tongue.

My Son, do not remain in a house where there is much scolding—scolding brings hatred and enmity in its train.

My Son, do not tell your friends the state of your circumstances. If you are rich they will envy you, and if you are poor they will forsake you.

My Son, never act as match-maker for a woman. If she is good her husband will not thank you, and if she is bad he will curse you.

My Son, the half of wisdom consists in doing what is necessary in a noble manner, half of intelligence consists in ability to deal with men, but the better part of prosperity consists in freely giving.

Send a wise messenger, but give him no instructions; and, if you cannot find a wise messenger, go yourself.

My Son, be not angry when men knock at your door, but thank God that you are not forced to knock at the door of strangers.

My Son, sell the world to buy eternity, and you will gain both, but if you sell eternity to buy the world, you will lose both.

(Cf. Thomas a Kempis' "Purchase not length of life temporal at the cost of life eternal.")

HERE IS AN EXCELLENT opportunity to do a little work for Foreign Missions at our very door. The Rector has under his wing at present, a young Persian Christian, who is a member of the old Nestorian Church. This young man, who is highly recommended, came to this country to obtain a medical education with a view to serving in Persia as a medical missionary, where medical science is practically unknown. He is without resources but he is very intelligent and speaks the English language perfectly. Believing that there are kind hearts in Philadelphia, willing to encourage so good an undertaking, the Rector advised this young man to go ahead. At present he is studying in the Jefferson Medical College, but he will not be able to remain there long, unless he receives some substantial assistance. Two hundred dollars would enable him to live and keep at his books for a year. Does any one care to help this young man into a useful ministry?

THE GENERAL CONVENTION.

The General Convention adjourned October 25th, to meet at San Francisco in 1901.

By general consent the meeting at Washington was in every way a success.

Party spirit seems happily pretty much to have died out, and the House of Deputies contained about four hundred intelligent men, having no personal ends to serve, but gathered together to serve the Church.

The principal work done was the adoption of a new constitution, which must be finally ratified in 1901 before it can become operative. The new constitution contains provision for three new and much needed things: 1. Courts of Appeal. 2. Provinces. 3. The taking under the spiritual oversight of our Bishops of congregations not yet prepared to become Episcopalians.

Propositions looking toward the change of name of this Church were received with scant courtesy. A feeling seemed to prevail that it would be unwise to change our name until the proposition commended itself to our people with practical unanimity.

The Divorce question was left in statu quo. No extreme legislation could be carried in the House of Bishops, and in the House of Deputies would have been snowed under. The truth is that this Church is not yet ready to legislate on the Divorce question. Three years more discussion will clarify the atmosphere, and the Committee of Thirteen, appointed to report at San Francisco, may succeed in reporting something that will prove acceptable.

Four new missionary Bishops were elected for Sacramento, Boise, North Dakota and Asheville, all excellent men.

Upon the whole we have every reason to be satisfied with the General Convention of 1898.

F. A. LEWIS.

ONE OF THE MOST interesting events of the Triennial Convention of the Church was the service at which the United Offering of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Board of Missions was presented.

Every Diocese in the United States was represented. The amount received was $81,000.

Of this sum nearly $14,000 was given by Pennsylvania, almost twice the amount given by any other State.

The amount received from St. Stephen's Parish was $295.19.

So great has been the increase during the past three years, that it is confidently believed that at at the next Triennial Convention the contributions will reach the sum of $100,000.

The Treasurer of the Mite Box Committee desires to say that the same boxes can be used for the next three years, and that she hopes that many more will be distributed among the congregation this year. The boxes can be obtained from the Verger or Miss E. J. Magee, Treasurer.

THE ANNUAL SALE of articles which have been made during the year by gentlewomen of reduced means will be held at the Parish House, Thursday and Friday, November 17th and 18th.

These articles are made by those who are trying to eke out a livelihood, and who are not strong enough to compete in the struggle for employment with younger and more vigorous women. They are the most helpless people on the face of the earth. They can make dainty and useful things, but they cannot find a market for them.

The Managers of the Sale gather their work and annually expose it for sale, giving the makers every penny of the proceeds. They are worth buying, being in taste and quality far above that of corresponding articles to be bought in shops.

Managers—Mrs. R. E. Griffith, Miss Cleemann, Mrs. Edward Rowland, Mrs. George L. Crawford, Mrs. Russell, Mrs. Stratton, Miss Eliza Magee, Miss McAllister.

There is little to report so early in the season, but what little there is, is good.

The Bible Class has commenced with an increase of three new members, and with a good attendance of the old and faithful ones that have been in the class since its beginning. One evening each week they have decided to meet and sew. The garments that are made are to be given to some poor family at Christmas. The members of this Bible Class, last winter, besides making garments, etc., on several occasions visited and relieved the sick and sorrowful, under Sister Elizabeth's direction, and their visits are remembered with pleasure. Outing flannel and warm dress material for children would be most useful, and help us very nicely in starting our winter sewing. If any of our numerous friends will send us a few yards, kindly address to Sister Elizabeth, 251 S. 8th street.

A glance at the financial report above will show that the exchequer at present is not equal to large demands!

Though early in the season, several sad cases have been brought to notice, which will need more or less help during the winter.

Tuesday evening, October 25th, the first Farm Reunion was given by Mrs. H. P. Taylor in the Guild Room.

Thirty-two guests were invited, and only one refusal was received.

The room was very prettily decorated with flags, bunting and flowers.

Supper was spread on several small tables as well as on one long table. All were most daintily arranged, and beside each place was a little bouquet of chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Whitney, Miss Anna Russel and Sister Elizabeth received. Supper was served at 7.30, and justice done to all the good things.

Music and dancing followed, and was kept up most energetically until 10.30. The violin solos by Mrs. Worcester, accompanied by Mrs. Carryl, were greatly appreciated, and all were most grateful to Miss Carryl for her kindness in playing for the dances.

Most grateful thanks to Miss M. Wilkins and Miss M. Swift.

Sister Elizabeth will be most grateful for coal tickets.

THE GARMENT COMMITTEE quietly resumed work in October and now wish to remind those interested in its well-doing that the gift of two new articles of clothing from every one who may read this notice, will be gratefully acknowledged in the next number of THE PARISH NEWS, and before that is even printed, the clothing will probably have been distributed where it is known to have been needed at the time of writing.

If any mothers do not know what to do with the outgrown clothes of their ten year old boys please send a package of them to the Garment Committee of St. Stephen's Church, and good use will be made of them at once. Clothing for women and children, suitable for cool weather, will also be most appreciated.

Contributions received since last account, from Sister Elizabeth, Mrs. Heed, Mrs. T. P. Chandler,

THE SPECIAL Church Work Fund again has been gathered in. To our great satisfaction we find it is about as large as ever. On taking up this work the Rector was saddened and rather discouraged to find how many of our most generous contributors in the past, have been taken from us since this time last year. He could not help fearing that this important Fund, which represents so much in our church life, would suffer, and that the work would have to be planned on a smaller scale in consequence. But not only have the old friends who are still with us, responded with the greatest kindness, but several new friends have come to our assistance. This means, we believe, not only that our work is going to be sustained, and that instead of falling off it will gather strength from year to year, but also that God has heard our prayer and is raising up true and devoted hearts to take the places of the noble men and women we have lost.

If the ordinary offerings are not as large as usual for the month of November, it can safely be charged to the weather. Last year we were singularly lucky as far as Sundays are concerned. During the entire season we had only two or three really bad days. This year, however, promises to restore the balance and leave something over on the wrong side. During November we have not had a single fair Sunday morning. Thanksgiving Day was intensely disagreeable, which is the more to be regretted, as judging from the excellent offering for the Episcopal Hospital given by the few persons in church, the Hospital would have received an old time Thanksgiving gift had the day been fair. On Sunday the twenty-seventh, (after the great storm) walking was difficult and dangerous, and last Sunday, December the fourth, rain fell in torrents off and on all day, in consequence of which we were surprised and gratified to see so many persons out at both services. In the morning 155 persons received the Holy Communion. In the afternoon the storm had become so severe that the Rector thought it would be unadvisable to give his lecture, but on seeing how many persons had come, some from a distance, he decided to give it, and was well repaid by the interest displayed.

The Rector would like to call the attention of those interested in Biblical studies, to these afternoon lectures on Genesis. He has prepared them with a good deal of care, and after months, or he might say years of study, he believes that he has read and digested the best that has been written in English, French, German and Dutch, on this wonderful book. The length of time at our disposal will enable him to make this a very comprehensive and thorough course. It is his wish to present this great subject so plainly and sincerely that it will produce a lasting effect on the minds who do him the honor of following him. The book itself, with all its antiquity, is still as fresh and mysterious as are all God's beginnings. In studying this book of Origins, we come face to face with all those problems in which our age is most interested. Such a study can never be without religious fruit. The world of effects, of nature, of orderly progress has its charm and its value, but the world of causes and of origins is the peculiar domain of God and of those great intellects who endeavor to penetrate the secrets of God.

The season of the year for anonymous letter-writing has come again. In this connection the Rector would like to say, that while he is intensely interested in many of the letters he receives, and not seldom derives important hints from them, yet he does not approve of the habit of writing anonymous letters, and he would appreciate all such communications much more if an honest and reputable name were affixed to them. If a man is praised, it makes some difference who praises him, and if he is blamed he would like to know who blames him.

THE CHRISTMAS SERVICES on Sunday, December 25th, will be as follows: Celebration of Holy Communion at 8 a. m., Morning Prayer, Sermon and Holy Communion at 11 o'clock, and Evening Prayer and Sermon at 4 o'clock.

THE CHRISTMAS CAROL Service of the Sunday School will be held on Holy Innocents' night, Wednesday, December 28th, in the Sunday School building, at 7.30 o'clock.

It is a matter for thankfulness that this year we were able to send out almost twice as many dinners as last year.

Those who will look at the list of names above will find a new one among them, one that has never appeared before in our PARISH NEWS, Miss Katherine Putnam. This maiden is but four months old, and the generous offering of $50.00 given in her name was the means of increasing our list of dinners so largely.

As each turkey, basket of vegetables, fruit, and in some cases groceries, were packed, her tiny card was attached and sent off to a family where there were children, and in many cases babies. How little our smiling, rosy baby Katherine knew of the thanks and good wishes that were showered upon her on Thansgiving morning, or of the real and practical help her little life has already been to many other children. Certainly she has begun her days with good works, and we feel sure as she grows older, and is able to understand what was done in her name, she will realize the true blessedness and joy of giving to those who need, and be one of St. Stephen's most willing helpers.

Gifts of coal tickets will be most thankfully received.

A good Christmas dinner can be given to a poor family for $2.

Most grateful thanks are due to Miss Elizabeth Stevenson, Mrs. Dunne, Miss Eisenbrey, Mrs. Sinn, Miss Lewis, Miss Olden, Mrs. Stratton, Mrs. Cooper, Miss Bright, Mrs. Hillman, Mrs. Heed and Miss Van Dusen.

Special thanks from the members of the Bible Class for outing flannel and cambric to Miss Stevenson, Miss Olden and Mrs. Sinn.

THE BISHOP OF THE DIOCESE made his regular visitation to the Burd Orphan Asylum, Sunday, November 27th, and confirmed a class of fifteen. Notwithstanding the very inclement weather a large congregation was in attendance.

IT IS ALWAYS a surprise in making up the monthly account of the Garment Committee, to see how many articles have been kindly donated, and sometimes it is a surprise to find that the regular contributors, on whom the Committee relies, have not responded to the appeal for clothing.

Now is the time when contributions are most welcome, as the cold weather has begun so early, and it may be as well to mention just here, that a number of our Parish school children have been absent from their lessons from lack of sufficient outside clothing for inclement weather, and the inability of the Garment Committee to supply their needs. Warm underclothing and jackets may be sent any day to No. 9 South Tenth Street, marked for the Garment Committee, St. Stephen's Church.

During November seventy-seven articles were received and fifty-five distributed. Grateful thanks are due to Miss Christopher, Mrs. George L. Crawford, Mrs. Cooper, Miss S. Eisenbrey, Mrs. Heed, Mrs. Hillman, Mrs. Mansfield, Mrs. D. E. Mutchler, No Name, Mrs. Parmalee, Mrs. Richardson, Miss Sidford, Miss Wilkins, Miss Maria Wilkins and Miss M. J. Lewis.

Monday, Dec. 5—Miss Cleemann, Mrs. Reinboth.

DONATIONS RECEIVED in November by the Children's Friend Society: Mrs. H. F. Martin $1.00, Miss Elizabeth Stevenson $5.00.

The members of this Society hope that Santa Claus will find an entertainment of some kind that will give the little ones plenty of fun this coming Christmas, as they did not have any treat on Thanksgiving Day. Even grown people like to be amused occasionally. So it is with the little ones. They miss our monthly entertainments.

In the midst of our plenty let it be remembered, many of the children in whom this Society is interested, have but little. These entertainments mean so much. Joy and gladness of heart ought to be shared in by all. Make this Christmas a merry one.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the Whatsoever Circle have their meetings December 7th and December 21st, in Parish House, half-past seven o'clock.

Donations received, Mrs. H. P. Taylor, $1.00; Miss M. S. Wilkins, $1.00.

A number of the King's Daughters met Thanksgiving Eve in Parish House, to bring their gifts for the Thanksgiving baskets.

A committee of eight started down town with all sorts of good things in their arms for the sick and poor.

The first house they visited there were five little motherless children. Grandmother takes care of them. So that they would not go to bed early, they were told we were coming, which made the children very curious. They said: "Grandma did you ever see a King's Daughter? Will she have diamonds in her ears and on her fingers?" We fear had it not been for the bountiful supply of all sorts of good things, they would have been disappointed.

The oldest child said afterwards: "We had such a nice Thanksgiving; it was just like when mother was alive."

Lizzie Weikle, who is an invalid, and one in whom the King's Daughters have been interested for a number of years, was very much pleased with her good things, but especially with the white grapes which Mr. Clayton had given the King's Daughters towards their baskets from the Church decorations.

SHOE FUND: Dues received in November, Mrs. James Arrison 25 cents, Mrs. H. P. Taylor 50 cents, Mrs. H. F. Martin 25 cents, Mrs. H. Heed 50 cents, from a Friend 25 cents. Money expended for shoes and mending $1.50. Three pairs of shoes and one pair of over shoes given out this month.

Will you not look in your closets and see if you have not some second-hand shoes that will aid us in our work. We do not object to new ones, over shoes or money.

Now that the cold weather has set in, the Rector is anxious for us to begin our work, during this month, for the winter.

SELECTION.

"What the man is, determines largely what his intellect thinks about God. When the heart is narrow, harsh and rigorous, its theology is narrow, despotic and cruel. When the heart grows kindly, sympathetic and of autumnal richness, its emphasizes the sympathy and love of God. The man paints his own picture of God. The heart lends the pigments. Souls full of sweetness and of light, fill the Divine portrait with the lineaments of love. For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness. Happy, indeed, our age, in that the heart is now beginning to color our civilization. Vast, indeed, the influence of library and lecture hall, of gallery and store and market-place, but the most significant fact of our day is, that sympathy is baptizing our industries and institutions with new effort."

The season of church activity has opened this year very slowly. For this we believe the weather has been largely responsible. The powers of the air seem to have entered into a conspiracy to keep people from going to church. The unusual mildness of the season has tempted many of our friends to remain in the country longer than usual. Besides that a kind of fatal cycle seems to have been established in the atmosphere which causes it to rain every Sunday. These conditions have had a depressing effect on our congregations, and speaking for myself, I may add, on the clergy. Only a clergyman knows how discouraging it is, having worked hard to prepare himself for the duties of the day, to look out Sunday morning on a steady drizzle or a pouring rain. (Query: Why is it that rain on Sunday is so much more dangerous to the constitution than on week days?) As so many of our congregation come from a distance we imagine that we feel the effects of stormy Sundays more than other churches. We have however our "regulars" who are superior to weather, and we console ourselves with the thought of the general equilibrium of nature which in the long run produces a kind of average everywhere. After many misfortunes it is time to look for a little happiness. After the flood came the rainbow, and after the gloomy days of this melancholy autumn we may have a fine winter.

For the past two years many departments of our Church work have felt the inspiring presence of Mrs. Glendinning who came to us to do us good. One of Mrs. Glendinning's last benefactions has been the complete renovation of our large Guild room, which after years of constant service had begun to look rather dingy. The varied uses to which this room is put, which range all the way from à market garden to a ball room, forbid elaborate furniture. But the pleasant tones of the walls, the charming pictures, and the pretty curtains have transformed our hall, in which perhaps as much work is done as in any similar room in the city, and all our societies will appreciate Mrs. Glendinning's kind thought for them.

On account of the backwardness of the season the Rector postponed his appeal for the Special Church Work Fund. The prompt and most kind response his request has met with has given him again the deepest pleasure. When all our friends have been heard from we hope that the Fund will be about as large as ever. One of the most difficult aspects of any large work is to keep it up year after year to a high standard. It is in human nature to begin good works with enthusiasm, and it is also in human nature that enthusiasm flags. The obligation begins to grow heavy and we begin to look around for some one on whose shoulders we may deposit our burden. Death also, alas, does not spare the most useful, the most beloved. And yet the work must go on. We are pledged not only by our allegiance to the Master, but by our obligation to our faithful friends, living and departed, not to let it decline. Every permanent work is done under these conditions. Hence the necessity arises of making new friends and especially of interesting the young.

The congregation will learn with sincere satisfaction that at the last stated meeting of the Vestry Mr. Clayton F. McMichael was elected a vestryman of St. Stephen's Church in the place of our lamented friend, Mr. Seth Caldwell, Jr. Although this is not the place to eulogize the living, Mr. McMichael's long connection with the parish, the ability he has displayed in all his undertakings, and his innumerable good works render him peculiarly worthy of this honor.

THE SUNDAY AFTERNOON SERVICES.

A slight change has been introduced into our Sunday afternoon services which we hope will meet the approval of the congregation. For the past two years, before the afternoon Lectures began we have had a series of musical services. That these services have been appreciated goes without saying. Although no attempt was made to advertise them the Church at times was scarcely able to contain the persons who thronged to listen to our great organist and his delightful choir. This year, however, Mr. Wood felt hardly able to undertake the enormous labor that so many consecutive musical services imposed on him. When we recall the character of these services, and remember that the music in the morning was never allowed to suffer, and also that Mr. Wood has another elaborate service in the Temple at night, it will be evident that the task was too great for any man. We have therefore decided to try the experiment of having one musical service a month. On that Sunday (the Second) there will be no lecture or sermon.

The winter course of lectures will begin as usual on the First Sunday in Advent, December Second. We believe that these lectures have justified themselves, and we should be sorry to see them interfered with. In these days when it is becoming constantly harder to induce people to go to church more than once a day it is something to gather so many persons together at a second service for the serious study of the Bible and the things of God. Some persons may think that our time might be better employed in what they regard as "practical preaching." We do not agree with them. In the first place we manage to gather in a great many men, young and old, who for some reason do not come to church when regular sermons are preached, but who will come to hear lectures. Among these is a considerable body of newspaper men some of whom are among our most regular attendants. Secondly, we believe it to be above the power of any ordinary man to prepare two original and effective sermons a week. In the third place, it is our opinion that in a free and enlightened church like ours, serious study of the Bible, of God, and of the higher life of man is as important as preaching. This is above all a reading, critical, thoughtful age, in which, to say the least, not all the best and most admired books are written for the purpose of strengthening faith. Whatever one's ability to deal with great questions, it is something, especially to the young, to hear those questions discussed reverently and sympathetically from the side of Christian belief. Let us remember that in the Jewish Church the expository lecture was the father of our modern sermons. "Give heed to teaching" was the advice of the chief Apostle. The sermon has its great uses, and also its limitations, and we believe that the value of the lecture as a supplement to the sermon will be recognized more and more.

The general subject of our lectures this year might be called the Fundamental Beliefs of the Christian Religion. Of these, the first and most fundamental is belief in God, and to this subject we shall devote a good deal of time. In this connection we may say, to those interested, that our lectures on the Book of Genesis will appear in book form with illustrations about Christmas time. The lectures on the Book of Revelation have also found a publisher and will appear as time can be found to put them in order.

THE Services on Christmas Day will be as follows: Holy Communion at 8 a. m. Morning Prayer, Sermon and Holy Communion at 11 o'clock. The offerings will be for the Aged and Infirm Clergy Fund.

THE Sunday School will hold its Christmas Festival on Friday, December 28, Holy Innocents Day, at 8 o'clock. The doors will be open at half past seven o'clock. The Tree will be handsomely decorated and the Carols, under the direction of Mr. Wood, will be sung by the children. Mr. McMichael is making arrangements for a happy bright evening, so that the Festival may be enjoyed by all present.

Those of my friends who will take the trouble to read the above financial statement and compare it with the same time last year will see how far short we come this season in donations for Thanksgiving. My Rector tells me it is my own fault because I made no request in the November PARISH NEWS. As I usually find he is right, I accept the accusation and at once determine to correct my fault by making known my present and Christmas "Wants:"

For the present day needs—I shall be most grateful for money to meet the requests for groceries, coal, warm clothing and shoes that so frequently come to me.

For Christmas—Warm shawls for women, Christmas Dinners, Coal Tickets, Toys for the Children, especially dressed dolls.

The members of the Young Ladies' Bible Class met last Friday evening for the first time this winter. It has been their kindly custom now for several years to devote one evening a week to sewing for some poor family. The garments made on these evenings are given at Christmas with a good dinner. This year a most worthy old lady well known to us is to be the recipient.

The Mothers' Meeting Society has now ninety members on the roll. And an average attendance of sixty-five each week. When we consider this Society has only been running a little over a year, as a separate society from the Mothers' Loyal Circle we may be thankful and take heart.

For the benefit of those who are not acquainted with the workings of the M. M. S. I may say none but respectable married women are received as members, and no one belonging to any other Mothers' Meeting. We urge all who have similar societies in their own church to join them, but none are refused on account of difference of creed. Connected with the M. M. S. are Coal Clubs, Provident and Saving Funds. The meetings are held every Thursday evening at 7.30 p. m. until 9.30 p. m.

THE Mothers' Meeting Society will hold their Annual Sale of Fancy Articles, Toys, Garments, Cake and Candy, in the Guild Room, December 6th, from 3 o'clock until 10 p. m. The proceeds of the sale to be for the "Mission of the Good Shepherd," Morganton, North Carolina.

Most grateful thanks to Mrs. Beale, Mrs. S. Weir Mitchell, Mrs. Boyd, Mrs. George Fullerton, Miss Cornelia Parker, Miss Boos and Mrs. Kehl, for gifts of clothing all most acceptable.

THE GARMENT COMMITTEE report that 53 articles were received during November and 29 were distributed. There is particular need of children's dresses to be given to little girls who would like to look neat and clean every day at school, an impossibility when owning only one dress; also there are several babies whose parents would probably have them christened if suitable clothing could be provided. Will you who read this kindly further godliness and cleanliness by sending a package containing such things as are requisite and address it to the Garment Committee of St. Stephen's Church, No. 9 South 10th Street. All articles so sent will be acknowledged in the next number of the PARISH NEWS, and it is earnestly hoped that a good many readers will feel like contributing two articles of any kind of clothing for all sorts and conditions of men, women and children.

Grateful thanks are due to Miss L. Bell, Mrs. T. P Chandler, Miss Christopher, Mrs. George S. Fullerton, Mrs. A. M. Kelly, Miss Magee, No Name, Mrs. M. M. Parmalee, Mrs. Richardson and Miss Sidford.

THE Embroidery Class of the Altar Society is about being re-organized. A teacher has been engaged, Miss F. C. Davis. Any members of the congregation who would like to be taught to do silk embroidery, or white work on linen, or who would be willing to do plain work, as lining and finishing altar cloths, stoles, mending altar linen, surplices, &c., will please hand in their names to the Rector, or meet the Committee on any Friday morning from 10.30 to 11.30 o'clock.

THE FEMALE BENEVOLENT SOCIETY began its work for the winter season on the first Tuesday in November. The Officers and Managers were elected for the year.

MRS. EFFINGHAM PEROT gave a most interesting talk to the G. F. S. on Monday, November 19th. Her subject was "Personal Influence." Christian life gives both by its external activities and by its quiet influence, usefulness to others.

THE Theatre Service will be held this winter at the Star Theatre on Eighth street below Vine street, under the direction of the Rev. J. Edgar Johnson. Several young men of our parish have kindly offered their services as ushers.

SISTER ELIZABETH will be at the Parish House on Wednesdays and Fridays from 11 to 12 o'clock.

THE Christian Social Union will, by the consent of the Rector, hold meetings in the Sunday School Building, during the winter season on the second and fourth Tuesday evenings of the month, at 8 o'clock. The meeting will be under the direction of the Rev. Kemper Bocock. Young men of the Parish and neighborhood are most cordially invited to be present. The first meeting was held on November 27th.

DONATIONS received by the Children's Friend Society in November:

Mrs. H. F. Martin,	$1.00
Miss M. J. Sidford,	.50
Kind Friends,	10.00
Miss Elizabeth Stevenson,	2.00
Total,	$13.50

Sixty children had a good old fashion Thanksgiving Party, Wednesday, Nov. 28th, in the Sunday School Room. Games of all sorts were played, recitations, music and singing, but best of all was the cake, fruit and candy.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the Whatsoever Circle have their meetings Dec. 5th, and Dec. 19th in the Guild Room of Parish House, half-past seven o'clock.

Nov. 21st, a Poverty Party was given by this Circle, the proceeds to be used for their charitable work among the poor and sick in hospitals.

Proceeds from Party	$14 63
Donation Mrs. Hillman	1 00
Dues Miss M. J. Sidford	1 00
Dues Miss Marie Wilkinson	1 00
Total,	$17 63
Expenses,	3 97
Balance,	$13 66

The evening was a very enjoyable one, as Miss Guillmine, Miss Plantholz and Mrs. McGill, had very kindly consented to sing several of their very sweet, pretty songs.

Mr. McGill also gave them a recitation.

Mr. John Simpson aided in singing, and Miss Bessie Wilder, Miss Lilly Wilder and Miss Bertha Walshe gave some recitations.

The "fining" made quite a good deal of fun, as you were fined if you came too early, too late or on time, but the guests were not much alarmed, as the fines were only one and two cents, unless they came in full dress or wore a great deal of jewelry. In that case there were twenty-five and ten cent fines.

SHOE FUND.

Balance,	60

Three pairs of shoes were given out during the month of November.

A LARGE BOX, containing 1200 garments, has been prepared and sent to Bishop Kinsolving of Texas, for the benefit of the Galveston sufferers.

THE program of the Musical Service held on Sunday, November 11th, was as follows:

TO THE CONGREGATION OF ST. STEPHEN'S CHURCH.

One of the advantages of vacation with its cessation of duties, its rest and change of scene, is the ability it gives us to judge of the trend of our lives. To some persons these long weeks of comparative idleness seem a sad waste of time, but men whose professions demand thought, mental toil, the production of ideas, judge otherwise. The mind like a spring whose waters are constantly drawn from it, becomes depleted. It is necessary at times to cease giving out, and to receive inspiration and consolation from other minds. Wandering amid strange scenes often enables us to see our own life in a new light. It is especially useful to the clergyman for a time to become a layman and to appreciate the trials of the laity of which he is often the unconscious cause.

As I look over our common work from this distance, my deepest desire is that our Church life with its rich opportunities and privileges may enter more deeply into our thoughts and affections, and play a larger part in our daily lives. Toward those who are without the Church and the religion of Jesus, we have but one duty; to exhibit that religion in so attractive a light that they may be drawn to it. But to my fellow-Christians and beloved parishioners I may surely suggest that in such a church as ours there are opportunities of realizing the divine life, of revealing Jesus Christ in this world, and of blessing and helping our fellow men for which we shall some day be called to account. The real value and effectiveness of any church is determined—I will not say by the number of persons who love it and believe in it—but by the depth of love and devotion it is able to command. We speak of "church workers" as if they were a peculiar kind of people, freed from the ordinary demands and distractions of this world. But every Christian believer is pledged by his belief to hand on the light he has received, to do something to spread abroad the name and the influence of Jesus, and to make this world a better dwelling-place for the children of men by his having lived in it.

On the eastern shore of this beautiful lake (Seneca) there lives a woman whom I have known for many years. She lives where she was born, on a poor little farm wrested from the primeval forest by her grandfather more than a hundred years ago. About twenty-five years ago she conceived the idea of converting to the church the whole neglected and irreligious countryside in which she had grown up. The greatness of such a task must be measured by its difficulty. For a quarter of a century her mind has been filled with this one thought. During all these years her enthusiasm has never flagged for an instant. Coming back to her from time to time, I have found her always the same, as much on fire with zeal for Christ as was St. Paul on the day after his conversion. She has worn out one old horse after another, driving thousands of miles from farm to farm, and from town to town. She has nursed the sick, instructed the young, consoled the dying, entertained strangers and fed the hungry. A poor woman, she has built three churches and at the present time her God-children number three hundred and seventy, almost all of whom were brought to baptism by her instrumentality. There is not a house within a radius of twenty miles in which she is not known and loved, not a prison or an almshouse where her name is not blessed even by the wicked. Her own home is an asylum for those whom friends and even almshouses will not receive. And in that strange society, surrounded by the former companions and clients of Jesus, she is happy as He was happy in beholding the manifestations of the grace of God.

I mention this woman with gratitude because she has taught me what a Christian life may be, how beautiful, how wholly given to the noblest of all ideals. I feel more keenly every year that one of the great objects of the religion of Christ is the alleviation of the sorrow and misery of this world, and that another object is the welding together of society by inducing the happy, the intelligent and prosperous to labor for the unhappy, the ignorant and the miserable. Acting upon this belief, and depending, as always, on your sympathy and support, I am thinking of adding a new department to our church work. I hope to have a comfortable house on a respectable street near the church, presided over by religious women, where all members of our congregation may feel themselves at home. I cannot set forth here all the purposes for which this house will be used, but here are a few of them: If we have ladies who are willing to devote their time to good works we must have a quiet and pleasant home for them to live in. We have now a large number of persons in modest circumstances who look to the church for a large part of the pleasure of their lives. I want to increase the number of those persons and to make their ties to the church closer. Owing to our rather cramped quarters it is difficult to make our parish house home-like and attractive, This new house (which will be called St. Stephen's House) will largely remove the difficulties under which we have been working. Here we can meet on Sunday evenings and at other times for a fraternal meal. Here we can talk, sing, have lectures and social gatherings. The chief difficulty in the way of this excellent plan has been obviated in advance by the offer of a lady of our congregation to furnish such a house completely, and to provide for most of its running expenses. The only burden that will devolve upon the parish will be to provide the rent of the house with its heating and lighting, which, if the price of coal ever goes down, will not be more than a thousand dollars a year. I may add that I expect to have more voluntary assistants to Sister Elizabeth this year, and I fully believe that this work will take an honorable place among the charitable enterprises of this great city.

I have written a long letter, but there is one other matter I should like to touch upon. If I meet with any encouragement I should like to begin an informal morning class this year for the study of the Bible. There are probably few churches in this country in which the Bible receives more serious study than in ours. But there are certain advantages in an informal class which a lecture from the pulpit lacks. The chief reason however why I wish to have a week-day class is that I have made a study of the Gospel of St. John in the course of which I have made certain discoveries which I believe are not generally known or recognized. If such a class can be formed my purpose is to devote this season to the study of this noble Gospel.

Affectionately yours,

ELWOOD WORCESTER.

Geneva, N. Y., September 25, 1902.

SISTER ELIZABETH'S REPORT.

It is with much thankfulness that I can again report a most successful summer at St. Stephen's Farm.

The house opened as usual, the middle of June, and was filled (and often over-filled) through the whole season. Five new bedsteads were bought and even with these additions sleeping was very tight at times.

Our numbers so far have increased each year, this year reaching two hundred and eighty-five (in the house) and five hundred and eighty-three altogether, counting the picnic parties from the city, which with only one exception came every Thursday while the Farm was open. Miss Lewis first brought out the parish school children. Mrs. H. P. Taylor, a party from the Home for Aged Couples, the deaconess from the Church of the Crucifixion, came with two parties of colored children; Mrs. Colesburry, from St. Martha's House, with twenty; Mrs. Price, from the Eighth Ward Settlement House, brought two happy parties of little Hebrew and colored children. All the members of the Mothers' Meeting Society, were united, and the majority eagerly availed themselves of the pleasure of a day in the country. It would have done your heart good to see the way both children and women enjoyed these days in "God's out of doors." Free from care they wandered everywhere through the woods, barns, house, carrying off at night many strange souvenirs, among them birds' nests, stones, sticks, frogs, turtles, flowers, ferns, corncobs, a little rabbit, but decidedly not least, apples. These latter were carried anywhere and everywhere in paper bags, flour bags, newspapers, handkerchiefs, but the favorite and most secure place from robbery, in shirt-waists.

We had many things to be thankful for this season. The new bath-room greatly added to our comfort. The house was acknowledged by all to be much improved by the pretty new papers and paint, and the telephone made life much easier for the House Mother.

No serious illness or accident of any kind occurred to sadden us. Those who came from the hot city pale, thin and tired out, I believe without one exception, returned to it in better health and spirits. Mother Nature has a wonderful power of restoring her children when they come to her for help.

About the way we amuse ourselves at the Farm there is need for me to say little, as I think it is pretty generally known that long rides in the country, picnics, "parties" of all and every description, croquet, swings, tether-ball, have been the order of the day ever since we first opened the house five summers ago.

One most delightful and never to be forgotten picnic to Willow Grove must be specially mentioned, when thirty-four of us tucked into the carryall, and hay wagon early one warm morning in August (carrying plenty of provisions with us) and spent the livelong day in doing exactly as he liked, shooting the shoots, riding on the scenic railway, listening to the band, etc., etc. The friend who gave us this happy day is such a good and constant friend of the Farm that we have many things to thank him for, as indeed we do most sincerely.

The Fourth of July was a gala day, one of the brightest and happiest we have ever spent. Dr. Worcester was with us, which added not a little to our pleasure. Through the kindness of another of our special friends fine fireworks were sent off in the evening, a splendid cake, ice cream and souvenirs provided for all the guests. The piazza was decorated with lanterns and flags; the evening was an ideal one for the Fourth, warm and still, and when the lanterns were all lighted it would have been difficult to find a prettier scene than was presented at St Stephen's Farm.

Miss E. W. Stevenson, though far from well herself this summer, has been just as thoughtful for the comfort and happiness of others, several times sending (beside other gifts) money and car tickets for the use of those who could not leave the city long enough to visit the Farm.

Many thoughtful and useful gifts were given us from friends new and old—gifts of clothes, money, ice cream, candy, toys, games, tents, croquet, pictures, books and a very nice sewing machine. For all gifts and kindness shown to me personally, and to my "large family" I ask you to accept most grateful thanks.

SISTER ELIZABETH,
Deaconess.

The regular services of the parish during the coming season, beginning on the first Sunday of October will be on Sunday at 11 o'clock, Morning prayer, Ante-Communion and sermon, and at 4 o'clock, evening prayer and sermon.

Dr. Worcester returned from his vacation on Wednesday, October 1st, and will preach on next Sunday, October 5th.

The Sunday school will begin on Sunday, October 5th, at 9.45 a. m., when the teachers and scholars will be greeted with a hearty welcome.

POTATOES FROM THE FARM.

St. Stephen's Farm will have a plentiful crop of excellent potatoes this Fall which may be ordered at once by members of the Parish. The fine quality of the Farm potatoes will be remembered by all who were fortunate enough to secure them last season. The prices this year will be as follows:

HOW SISTER BELL'S DUES WERE PAID.

After a long prayer by Brother Berry, the "Pisgah Church evenin' meetin'" was declared ready for business, and Sister Scott, who was Secretary and Treasurer of the "Daughters of Harmony," rose to "explain to the meetin' the condition of the Treasury and 'nounce to the Brethren and Sisters present and those kept away by illness and other dispensations of Providence that the sum total of de possessions of the 'ciety was a balance of two dollars—back dues—owed by Sister Bell, now lyin' at the point of death, thereby onable to taken washin' which was her regular business and revenue for dues."

For over 20 years Sister Bell had been an active paying member of "The Daughters of Harmony," active in "monstrating" with the blacksliders and those who had never experienced religion, active in her shouts for those who "jined meetin'." Now, "Sister Bell was laid low by frequent attacks of rheumatis, caused by the want of carbogen in her system," said Dr. Green. "Doctor" because he had dispensed to the Pisgah members. "Herbs and docterin" at a much lower charge than the regular out and out white doctor who kept a buggy and of course must charge each patient a little more for that style, but his medicines did not kill or cure any more persons than "Doctor Green's",—they had all decided that at Pisgah long ago. A deep silence reigned after Sister Scott's speech, when Sister Juna, a near neighbor of Sister Bell's, said, "I would like to rise to my feet and to perpose to the dear members a Christian way to despose of Sister Bell's dues, and thereby render the last days of our 'linquent member, not worritin, as the debt certainly is pressin' sore on her spirit. All those in favor of contributin' a potion of Sister Bell's dues, please explain how much they will give, right here to-night. Contrairy minded will not leave this buildin' 'till the remnant of the 'mount is collected from them by the Secretary and Treasurer."

Proud of this "matter" which she had laid before the society, Sister Juna began to adjust herself to the wide space now made for her, on the front bench, not unmindful of the many eyes resting upon her—expressing different degrees of envy and all uncharitableness. Without a word further the motion was declared carried by Brother Berry, who passed round the hat, and after a laborious count of the collection, said, "Owin' to Sister Juna's far-sightedness, "The Daughters of Harmony" is out of debt, and Sister Bell's dues is paid, with a lef-over of eighty cents to be carried to the sufferin' member."

TO THE CONGREGATION OF ST. STEPHEN'S CHURCH.

I take up my work this year with a deep sense of bereavement. We have again met with irreparable losses. In June, Mrs. Glendinning was taken from us, and in September we gathered around the coffin of Miss Wilkins, in Atlantic City. Of neither of these noble women do I feel myself worthy to speak. Mrs. Glendinning's connection with St. Stephen's Church had not been of long duration, but during the four or five years we were blessed with her presence. her Christian character and her boundless charity were felt in every department of our Church life. Devoting herself principally to the young and the poor, no effort was too great, no sacrifice too costly for our dear friend to make in carrying out her wise plans. Mrs. Glendinning not only gave constantly and cheerfully to all our undertakings, but she also, in the fullest sense, gave herself, her time, her labor, her love. Remembering all she has been to us, and all she has done, I cannot realize that she is dead, or imagine how our work will go on without her.

Miss Wilkins was one of the old and stable members of the Church, and one of those lovely characters on which St. Stephen's name and fame have rested, and which it is its chief glory to have helped to form. Noble-minded, aristocratic in the best sense, tender, compassionate, absolutely unselfish, she accomplished more, especially in her later years, by what she was than by what she did. The influence of such a woman in her family, among a large circle of friends and connections, and in the Church in which she regularly worshipped, can hardly be estimated. With a mind singularly well informed, her kind and just judgments charmed those whom she admitted to her intimacy. On only one subject was she habitually and proudly silent—herself and her sufferings. The news of her death was, therefore, a more painful surprise.

Recalling all that I owe to these two saintly women, I thank God for the benefits I have derived from their friendship. As remorseless Death thins our little band, we who survive should be drawn nearer and nearer together, and far from despairing we should take courage from the examples of those whose good lives we have been permitted to share.

Affectionately yours,
ELWOOD WORCESTER.

A SUMMER'S DAY.

The long night of deep and delicious sleep was drawing to a close. For several minutes I had been dimly conscious of sounds—the leap of a salmon, subdued voices, the crackling of fire; then the door of my tent was opened and a kind face appeared. "Sorr," said Mike, "it's four o'clock and a fine day, and your breakfast's nigh ready." A few moments later I stepped out into the cold pearly morning. The sun was beginning to dispel the mist. A compact fire was blazing cheerily, and a most comfortable aroma of coffee and bacon was diffusing itself on the air. Mattie, the great Micmac Indian, as happy as a child at the prospect of a day of adventure, was bestowing our lunch, axe, kettle and rifle, in the canoe. Breakfast eaten and pipes lighted we embarked, and were soon rapidly shooting down the swift river. Mattie, apparently seeing nothing, yet unerringly choosing the safe water, and avoiding every jagged rock in the dangerous rapids, having settled himself comfortably to his paddle, opened the great unending, unwritten book of Indian tradition. "Dere was old Injun man, and when de people say dey see de bear here, and plenty trout, dere he go self and shoot de bear and catch de trout. Den he say, 'Now I b'lieve, 'cause I see for myself.' You see dat mountain, 'bout twenty miles 'way, hanging over de sea, dat's where de whale's bones is at. I see um self plenty times, and he big whale, too. Dey lie dere in woods, on top of de mountain 'bout half mile high. How he get dere? I doan know, but he's dere all right. Old people say big flood once. All de mountains covered. I 'blieve dat's de time de whale get dere, and de waters go down an' he can't get off again." [I may say that the object of our journey was a sight of these very bones. I had heard the story so often of a gigantic skeleton lodged in the woods on top of a lofty mountain, that I determined to go and see for myself, and although I was unfortunate in not reaching the spot, I firmly believe in the existence of those bones, which I hope yet to see. On such subjects, Indian tradition is seldom at fault.]

After a few minutes silence, as we slipt through a particularly bad piece of water, Mattie began again. "See dat piece sandy beach dere, front of de big pines? Long, long time 'go, when I was little boy, I came 'long here wid me fadder. Plenty Red Injuns [the aborigines, now totally extinct] here den, an' dey make war on our people. We been huntin' beaver and have big pack skins hid in de bushes, and we come out here to make canoe an' go home. We come out on dis beach an' make little fire dry sticks, an' bile de kettle. Bum bye, me fadder he look down the river an' he see two Red Injuns comin' up. He got big rifle loaded, an' he cocked de gun an' lay her down in de sand. I want to pick her up an' say, 'Fadder, we take de gun an' shoot de Injuns' He say: 'No boy, you leave de gun be, an' Injun, shoot selves.' So we wen' an' hid in de bushes. Pretty soon Injun come up an' dey see de fire, an' dey run behind tree an' dey look roun' every way [acting it all in pantomine] As dey doan see notin', so dey come on. Big men and fine lookin' men, too, an' dey painted all over, an' notin' but skin apron on, an' bow an' arrow an' de tomahawk by dere side. An' dey come 'long side de fire, an' take piece of beaver tail off de coals an' eat him, an' dey drink de tea out of de kettle. An' bum bye, dey see de rifle. An' first dey 'fraid; den dey pick him up, an' dey jabber one to 'nudder, an' one man he put his eye to de muzzle an' he look down, and while he lookin' de udder he pulls de trigger, an' blew de head off de chief. An' he gin a bawl an' drop de gun an' run. Den we come back an' eat our dinner, an' me fadder say; 'Dat's best way, boy, to let Injun kill his self.'"

"What kind of people were the old Red Indians, Mattie?"

"Dey fine, big people, an' dey warn't bad people nudder. But dey warn't Injuns at all. Dey white people painted red wid ochre. Least ways, dat's what all de old people say. [I mention this tradition for what it is worth. It is certainly a curious one.] De head place for dem was Red Indian Pond, near where we go de first time you come here. Dere dey fought big battle in old times, an' lots bones an' skulls an' arrows lying 'round yet. Leastways dey were de las' time I go by."

Thus pleasantly chatting, we glided over six or eight miles of swift, clear water, scattering innumerable salmon from their pools. Having reached the trail to the mountains, we ran our canoe into the bushes, and loading ourselves only with absolute necessities, we began our long march. By this time the sun was high and the day promised to be a hot one. Before us for the space of about two miles, lay a typical Newfoundland barren. Imagine a low, swampy plain of thick black mud, covered with coarse grass, dotted here and there with pools of dark water of unknown depth. At nearly every step we sank to the ankle, and as the soil was soft and clinging, it was no easy matter to extricate our feet. Sometimes the whole bottom quaked so alarmingly as to threaten to give way altogether, and for an inexperienced traveler the risk of a peculiarly disagreeable death would be considerable. Mattie, however, cautious and agile as a deer made his way swiftly from one safe hillock to another, and I being fresh, had no difficulty in following him. It was a different matter on our return ; but in going the chief inconvenience was the intense heat Right glad was I then to reach the firm, rocky bottom of the foot hills, and to plunge into the cool forest. Immediately I found myself on one of the most beautiful paths I have ever followed. Above, the great spruces and birches arched over our heads. Beneath our feet was a superb carpet of ferns and mosses. Around us, the cool, shadowy mystery of the deep forest. It was a path where one would like to sit for hours watching the forest folk, as it was one of their silent thoroughfares from the sweet lake pastures to the safe haunts of the mountains. Every few steps we would encounter a little rill or a spring of water clear as crystal, cold as melted snow, bubbling up from its deep, black cavern. Resting beside one of these pleasant oases, we witnessed a forest tragedy. A fat brown rabbit was playing a few score yards away in a quiet glade. Suddenly he began to tremble as if in mortal fear, but made no effort to escape. Then a swift tawny something glided by as silent as a breath. Was it the shadow of a drifting cloud, or a substantial form? We knew the next instant, for with a pounce and a fierce snarl, the great grey lynx had thrown himself on Master Bunny. One shrill scream, the flash of a pair of big green eyes, as the lynx turned an angry face on us, then he apparently melted into thin air, leaving me wondering whether I was waking or sleeping.

So for several hours we pressed on, always ascending, but for the most part by an easy slope, that permitted us to breathe. At last we reached the edge of the timber line, and the real struggle began. The rise now was steep, the ground rocky, and on emerging from the woods we were assaulted by swarms of stinging insects, that made resting impossible. So there was nothing to do but to struggle onward and upward. The day was intensely hot. Not a breath of air reached us. I was suffering from breathlessness and from intense heat, and began to be sorry I had come. Sinking to the ground, I was instantly covered with mosquitoes, black flies, and other stinging scoundrels which God in His goodness allows to dwell in the finest places. So up I got, and dragged my tired legs on, not daring to look up to see how much farther we had to go, and content to lift one foot wearily above another. Mattie in the meantime, taking the mountain with the easy stride of a moose, had disappered. At last, when it seemed to me that I could hold out no longer, I felt a steady, delicious cold breeze blowing in my face. No more fear of mosquitoes. They could not withstand that wholesome blast. Throwing myself on the ground I experienced a moment of pure physical happiness and well-being worth coming a thousand miles to enjoy. When I got up again I was strong, well, equal to any effort. A big snow ball fell beside me, and looking up I saw Mattie's dark figure outlined on a great field of snow half a thousand feet above my head. In a few minutes I was beside him, or rather as near the snow as I dared to go in my heated condition. I looked around me and saw one of those marvellous panoramas which live forever in memory. Lifted so high, we seemed no longer of this world. I could imagine the pleasures of birds, of superior beings who look down on us from heavenly heights. Far below were the deep blue waters of the sea, smiling in the golden sunlight, dotted here and there with white sails and glistening ice-bergs. For many miles the eye could follow the winding coast in either direction, distinguishing the mouths of rivers, harbors and villages. Plainly visible across the straits were the rough broken crags of Labrador, white with snow and ice. In the other direction rose peak on peak ; while beneath were dark shaggy forests ; lonely, unknown, nameless lakes, from which flowed long silver ribbons of water. And over all rested the sense of absolute solitude, the stillness, the silence that is so full of the voices of God.

For a long time I sat on the heather, living only through the eye. When an acute sense of thirst recalled me, I walked over to the great snow field, twenty or thirty feet deep in July and more than two miles long. It was a rare opportunity to experience the heat of summer and the cold of winter side by side. When the breeze failed or the sun's rays became too warm, a few steps transported us to the chilly air of February. I was old enough to know better, but the temptation was too strong to be resisted, and I ate a piece of snow. Having eaten once, my thirst of course increased and I ate again and again, my thirst steadily increasing. The result was I was sick for several days and I hope learned a lesson. Snow water is more dangerous than whiskey.

We had now reached the top of the mountain and the hard climb was over. We had however a distance of more than eight miles to traverse in order to reach the place where the famous bones are said to repose. Feeling somewhat spent, we kindled a fire, boiled our kettle and ate our dinner. It was nearly noon when we set out again. For several miles we walked over a most singular formation. The rocky peak of the mountain, under the action of frost, had been broken into countless cubes of granite very regular in shape and from six inches to a foot square. These blocks had been packed against one another for so many ages that they had assumed at last permanent positions, a fact which when discoverd, greatly aided our progress. We could leap without fear from one stone to another as the stones never moved under our feet. As I looked around me, I realized how largely the problem of civilization is a problem of transportation. Here were millions of tons of superb blocks of granite, cut by nature's hand and admirably adapted for building purposes, on the top of a mountain where they had lain for ages and where they will lie for ages to come unless some enterprising builder inspired by these words goes and gets them. As we quietly wended our way along these solitudes, from time to time we encountered little herds of shy graceful caribou, a mother with her fawns, a noble stag, his horns still encased in their summer velvet. Unless our scent happened to reach them they appeared to be quite fearless and indifferent to our presence. The most charming sight we saw that day was a mother ptarmigan with a brood of nine chicks. She was lying outstretched on a sunny bank of heather, her little ones playing around her, and we nearly stept on the lovely gray and white bird before we saw her. Instantly she set up the most violent protest against our intrusion, displaying the pugnacity and fearlessness of a game hen, flying in our faces pecking at us, striking us with her wing, clucking angrily, then pretending to be lame, very much hurt, limping and slowly dragging herself away in hopes of leading us from the sacred place. At her first word of warning, the little striped chickens flew for cover and remained concealed. I stooped down and carefully picked up one of the fluffy little fellows to look at him. At that the mother's anger knew no bounds and she flew right in my face. I put the chick down again but that did not satisfy her and she followed us scolding and declaiming for nearly half a mile, when judging her flock to be safe she took wing and swiftly rejoined them.

So we walked on mile after mile exhilarated by the keen stimulating air, and enjoying every minute some sublime or interesting sight. At about three o'clock I called a halt. The better part of the day was gone, and we still had the long, long walk to camp. Regretfully I gave up all hope of seeing the bones that day, and we turned our faces homeward. Mattie, whose marvellous instinct for direction causes him to scorn paths, proposed that instead of retracing our steps we should strike directly to the spot where we had left the canoe. To this I assented, knowing that he was well able to find his way, but I soon regretted that I had not consulted my own physical limitations. When the walking was good I was fairly able to hold my own, but when it came to leaping from rock to rock, sliding down steep places and landing feet first, forcing my way through impenetrable jungles, crossing ravines, on a single slippery log, I was no match for the Indian, and the two hours we spent in scrambling down the mountain in this agreeable manner exhausted me more than the whole previous day's work had done. At last I stopt, fairly used up intending to remonstrate with Mattie for having brought me by so bad a way. The Indian merely indulged in one of his silent laughs, and looking around I saw that I had stopt on the very edge of the good path up which we had passed in the morning. This fact encouraged me so much that for the next two hours I fairly flew down the easy descent, giving Mattie all he could do to keep up with me. Alas! I had forgotten the cruel ordeal still in store for me. In consequence of my efforts I arrived at the e ge ot the marsh nearly exhausted, and quite unfit for another severe exertion. And yet there was nothing else to do. It was nearly seven o'clock and we still had the long paddle up the river which could not well be done after dark. Having eaten but a mouthful since early morning we were famishing, and the mosquitos were more savage than ever. So, setting my teeth, I began the terrible march across the swamp. For about a mile I held out, though it seemed that each step I took must be the last. Then I began to reel, my ears sang, my sight was dim. The next thing I knew I found myself lying on my back in a pool of water. A few moment's rest and the effect of my involuntary bath brought me to my senses, and I looked around for Mattie, nor was I wholly sorry to see that he too had fallen. That however was the last difficulty. A short spurt brought us to the river and the canoe. How soft were the cushions and how good it felt to be sitting down! The paddles seemed like little feathers and paddling and poling in silence we shot swiftly up the river, thinking only of the supper in store for us, and wondering what Mike had prepared. Pretty soon the tidy camp, with its white tents, its cheerful fire and its piles of logs shone out of the darkness. Faithful Mike was on hand full of solicitude, with my slippers and a comfortable change of garments. And as the good fellow pulled off my wet heavy boots, my nose informed me that of all woodland dishes he had prepared my favorite, which in a modified form the patriarch Isaac loved almost as much as his life—namely a succulent and satisfying caribou stew—of which for the benefit of housekeepers I here give the recipe: First: get your caribou. Cut the meat into cubes of moderate size. Chop up good marrow bones, put in potatoes, onions and carrots and plenty of water. Hang your pot over a slow fire early in the morning and let it simmer gently all day, having taken the precaution to season it well with butter, pepper and salt. Toward evening you will find in the pot a thick delicious mass which will give off such a charming mell that if you are a man you will be tempted to eat it all yourself. On this noble dish, flanked with boiled salmon and birds we feasted and forgot our sorrows. My only regret was that before I had had nearly enough I was overcome with sleep, with such sleep as comes to many of us poor mortals only a few times a year, and as I lay down in my good bed I thanked God for a day of innocent and pure happiness, a day to compensate one for many of the sorrows of life. We had been on our feet and in the canoe for seventeen hours and had traversed at least forty-five miles of difficult land and water, and we had earned our repose.

MORNING AND NIGHT.

Of all we see and forget, it is strange with what photographic exactness some impressions persist in memory. Among the interesting objects I have witnessed this summer I most distinctly recall the emotions inspired by these two scenes which I may call Night and Morning.

Morning: After a rather anxious night at sea off the most northern point of New Foundland, the day dawned calm and still. A dry, milk-white haze hung over the water. The swell of the sea gently heaving under the impulse of a vanished wind, shone in the morning light with the soft fires of the opal and the pearl. As the mist moved and shifted, the forms of huge icebergs appeared and disappeared, now fearfully looming apparently thousands of feet into the air, then vanishing as if the depths had swallowed them, groaning, sighing, uttering strange voices as their bases rocked in the flood. As an effect of the strange atmospheric conditions—above the mastheads of neighboring vessels could be seen the inverted sails of ships apparently sailing upside down with their hulls in the clouds. Suddenly out of the shadows came the sound of a terrible groaning, then a report like the explosion of a park of artillery, then a swift wave swept over us that threatened to engulf us. An iceberg had foundered.

Night: We were sailing up a deep, and to us, unknown bay. All day we had drifted idly in a dead calm. At sunset a steady breeze had sprung up, producing a change of conditions which on a sailing vessel may be likened to the change from death to life. Hour after hour we slipt swiftly on our way. The afterlight of sunset had disappeared from the water, the dim young moon had set and we were lighted only by the glorious heaven of stars, so brilliant as almost to dissolve the milky way. The water in our wake blazed with phosphorescent animalculae. The dark, heavily-wooded shores drew nearer and nearer together threatening to cut us off on either side. Anxiously we listened for the sound of the rapids that marked the entrance of a river off which we meant to anchor. Through the silence of the night we heard the solemn heavy war of waters apparently just off our bow. Apprehensive and perplexed, we sought to make out the shore, but it constantly retreated as we advanced. Then we correctly conjectured that the noise we heard was the thunder of a cataract many miles up the river. We sailed on and heard at last the tinkle of the rapids where the river entered the bay. As we cast anchor, the rattle of the chains awoke a great flock of wild geese asleep on the water which flew all around us uttering weird discordant cries.

SISTER ELIZABETH'S REPORT.

It is with a heart full of gratitude that I am again permitted to work in the Church, and with the people I have learned so sincerely to love.

It would be impossible to express adequately my appreciation of the many and great kindnesses shown during my illness, but believe me not one of them is forgotten, or ever will be. I am sorry it has not been in my power to acknowledge and thank all individually, but that I do thank them from my heart I trust no one will doubt.

The Mothers' Meeting Society will D. V. hold its first meeting Thursday, November the Fifth, in the Parish House at the usual time.

The Women's Bible Class will meet Sunday, November the First, at 3 o'clock in the Guild Room.

The girls in my G. F. S. Branch will continue their study in the History of Philadelphia this winter.

The Young Women's Bible Class meets every Sunday morning at 9.45 in the Sunday School building, and is continuing the study of the life of S. Paul. New members will be welcome.

The sixth summer of the Farm is past and again we can speak with thankfulness of the blessing it has been to many. Those who found rest and peace in "God's out of doors," returned strengthened to take up life's battle once more with a braver heart, stronger in body and mind. "Can we come again next summer" (the little children's last words as they wait for the wagon to take them to the station) testify beyond a doubt what they think of the Farm, as well as the brown fat little faces testify what the Farm as done for them.

The house was filled all the summer, the number of Picnics not so large as in some years, but as the season was unusually cool the necessity was not so great.

Miss Thompson took charge this summer, and was ably assisted by Miss Emma Bartley, all went smoothly and well. I received many letters while I was away speaking of the good times that the girls were having and the kindness shown them.

I cannot close this brief report without thanking most sincerely the many friends who remembered the Farm guests and sent generous gifts to add to their comfort and enjoyment. Two of our truest friends have been taken from us this summer, whose loving interest will be sorely missed. From the first year of the Farm's existence they helped us with unremitting kindness, and generosity, and it is hard to imagine the work going on without them, but their memory will always live in our hearts.

SISTER ELIZABETH,
Deaconess.

POTATOES.

The Farmer of St. Stephen's Farm wishes us to announce that he has about twelve hundred bushels of excellent potatoes and a good supply of apples ready for delivery after October Twentieth. Prices for October: Potatoes, eighty cents a bushel, and apples two dollars a barrel, delivered. Orders should be sent to Thomas Greenfields, St. Stephen's Farm, Warminster, Penna.

We desire to make acknowledgment of the two large and handsome Brass Vases that have been given to the Church and placed on the Altar. They have been presented by Mrs. N. G. Savage in loving memory of her sister, Miss Nellie E. Grant, who entered into rest February 8th, 1889.

We also express the thanks of our Parish for the bronze hand rails that have been placed on the front steps of the Church, by the kindness of Mr. Edward Shippen.

Thanks are given to Miss Sarah Stroup, Miss Christopher and Miss Jamison for packages of clothing that have been sent to the Parish House.

The Sunday School opens on Sunday, October 4th, at 9.45 A. M. The regular scholars and teachers will be gladly welcomed back. There has been a long vacation and from the many questions asked as to the time and date of opening for the season we have reason to feel that the school will be attended by all those who have grown to love it and that many new scholars will be added to our roll. Last year was a happy and prosperous one. The School room, since the repairs of a year ago, has greatly helped to brighten up the school. The attendance increased notwithstanding the rainy and bad weather. The missionary offerings both at Easter and during the Advent season were liberal and greater in amount than for several years. Our children are not immediately around the neighborhood. The rush and drive of business have taken both the large and small streets for stores, offices and workshops so that there is no room or place for family habitations. Notwithstanding this St. Stephen's has been able to gather a fair sized school and to maintain a good and regular attendance. Some of the scholars come from great distances showing that the school has found a warm place in their affections. All will be most gladly welcomed to the School on Sunday, October 4th, at 9.45 o'clock.

If there are teachers of last year who do not expect to take up this work of the Parish this season it is asked that they inform Dr. Worcester or Mr. Miller, so that their vacant classes may be supplied with teachers.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS of the the Whatsoever Circle have their meetings October 7th and October 21st in the Guild room of Parish House at quarter of 8 o'clock.

It is hoped that after such a long vacation that all will report and be ready to do whatever their hands find to do, "In His name."

It has got to be an old story, the children's outing to the Park, but they are always ready and keep asking about the excursions as soon as the weather is warm.

Owing to the want of funds we were not able to give quite as many an outing as in other years, but those who were fortunate enough to go, had a good time and it was made more enjoyable by a number of kind friends, who joined the ladies on each excursion in helping to entertain the children and in playing their games. The bean bags that were so kindly made by the King's Daughters, were put to good use and enjoyed very much by the children. Strange to say, instead of being lost as in other years, with one or two exceptions they are still ready for use. The members of the Society take this opportunity to thank those who so kindly helped in any way for the little ones' outing this summer.

The Sunday School.

We had a happy Christmas in the Sunday School. The Christmas Story, as a lesson, being illustrated with beautiful lantern slides, on both the Sunday before and after Christmas. Our Christmas Festival, which we feared, owing to the sailors' occupancy of our building, might have to be side-tracked, was held on the evening of December 27th, being probably as good as ever, in spite of our few rehearsals.

The room was so crowded that our good friends the marines and sailors, were not able to get in to any large extent. One fine fellow of the Navy, Samuel LePan, of Quebec, came heartily to our rescue and helped us trim the tree and arrange our stage, besides taking the character of Kris Kingle's big monkey. We are indebted to him and to the Sailor and Marine who posed with our Nich. Schulgen as "Uncle Sam and His Armed Forces." The children's singing of the carols, the Rector's address, the motion pictures and the thoughtful gifts of mits from a friend for all the scholars, were all most happily received.

Miss Nodine's musical numbers, with the tableaux of Belgium and the Allies, represented by scholars, not forgetting the Burd School fairies, all met with hearty approval. Santa Clause came as usual with his Esquimaux and wonderful acrobatic toy, and the candies—Oh, how delicious!

We are all very grateful to our kind friends of the Church who by their generous donations made possible again our Christmas merrymaking. We have entered the New Year with new hope, studying the Life of Christ (in the third quarter of the Blakeslee system), and will appreciate any one, young or older who will visit us, study with us or assist in our work. We miss many of our young men and older boys who are in the Navy and Army. Our united prayers go up for them and may God help us all to be good true and faithful, both at home and abroad, in camp or on the sea.

Superintendent.

TO THE CONGREGATION OF ST. STEPHEN'S CHURCH.

The Vestry is rejoiced to announce that Dr. Warner has accepted the invitation to become the Rector of this Parish. It seems fitting to say that the Vestry believes it would have been difficult to have found another so amply qualified as Dr. Warner to conduct the administration of this noble Parish, to maintain its best traditions, and to broaden its scope and influence. Dr. Warner is a churchman of notable distinction: an author, a scholar, and a preacher of established reputation. But more than all of these, Dr. Warner is a noble, Christian gentleman. He is beloved by his people in New Orleans, where he has labored devotedly for eleven years. When the invitation came to him from your Vestry, the people of New Orleans appointed a committee of twenty representative citizens, who made an urgent appeal for him to remain. This was an extraordinary testimony of popular esteem. That Dr. Warner has finally decided to come to St. Stephen's Church must be accepted as a high tribute to St. Stephen's Church. Dr. Warner's recent visit as the guest of your Vestry, was for the purpose of better acquaintance. The splendid loyalty of this Parish was never better attested than by the magnificent congregations which welcomed him. He was deeply impressed, and carried with him back to New Orleans the assurance of a devoted, faithful people—and to such only has he been accustomed. It is expected that Dr. Warner will occupy the pulpit for the first time as Rector of St. Stephen's Church, on Sunday morning, February 19.

DR. BEVERLEY WARNER.

Something About the New Rector of St. Stephen's Church.

Dr. Warner is married and has three children—a daughter and two sons. The eldest boy is in business in New Orleans and will not come to Philadelphia at this time. Dr. Warner went to New Orleans from Bridgeport, Conn. He was born in Connecticut. He was a classmate in the Divinity School of Dr. Snively, now Warden of the Burd Orphan Asylum. He is an intimate friend of Dr. McConnell. Both Dr. McConnell and Dr. Worcester wrote very strong letters to Dr. Warner, urging him to accept the rectorship of St. Stephen's. In New Orleans Dr. Warner is a member of the Board of Administration of Taulane University, President of the Kingsley House Association, originator of the Trinity Woodyard and Lodging House, a member of the Standing Committee of that Diocese, and is connected actively with almost every charity known in that city. He has been rector of Trinity Church for eleven years. Trinity is one of the largest and most fashionable Parishes in New Orleans. The Church has more than once supplied the Bishop's chair. Dr. Warner is chaplain of the Orphan's Home in New Orleans.

He is an author of national reputation. He has written several novels and many works on religious subjects. One of his novels, "Troubled Waters," was published in 1885, and is out of print. There is also a notable contribution to classic and historical literature in his "English History in Shakespeare's Plays," and an excellent book, "The Facts and the Faith Contained in the Rationalism of the Apostle's Creed." Two of Dr. Warner's books, "The Young Man in Modern Life," and "The Young Woman in Modern Life," have been published within the past two years. Dr. Warner has delivered addresses on all sorts of public occasions, the two most recent having been before the New Orleans Parish Medical Society on "Some Problems of a Great City," which was reproduced in at least one Northern medical journal, and an address before the New Orleans College of Pharmacy commencement on "Conflicts of Civilization With Its Own Waste," which deals with the housing problems of the poor. He has delivered numerous baccalaureate sermons and commencement addresses in every Southern city, and he has just been appointed special preacher at the University of Chicago next June for three weeks. He has frequently lectured on Shakespearian subjects, on which he is an authority.

ALL ABOUT THE PARISH.

The new heating plant is now complete, and so far its operation is most satisfactory. An intensely cold wave will afford a good test, as a temperature of 70° is guaranteed in zero weather.

The Embroidery Class held its first meetiug on Friday, January 13. A teacher has been secured and the Class will meet regularly every Friday morning at ten o'clock, to continue work on the pall and to make stolls and surplices for the Church. Members of the congregation are earnestly invited to join this Class.

The Church Work Fund has reached a larger total than last year. Christmas Dinners were given to about one hundred and sixty families —more than ever before. The "New Year's Dinner"—a beautiful custom inaugurated by Miss Maria Mitchell, and continued in loving memory of her—supplied nearly seventy little ones with a substantial meal. "The Infant School" celebration was the brightest and best in its history. The whole spirit of Christmas good cheer has never been more enthusiastic in the Parish. And in another month Dr. Warner will be the Rector of St. Stephen's Church!

Dr. Warner spoke to the Sunday School on January 1st: "I am very glad to meet you all," he said, "and I am very glad to be introduced to your Parish in this way—through the children. Yesterday I saw your Infant Class celebration. To-day I meet the Sunday School, and presently I shall be standing before your congregation, so I feel as though I was almost growing up with you! New Orleans is seventeen hundred miles from Philadelphia, but the difference in time seems to me about the only difference, because you have made me feel so much at home. You have opened your arms to me, and I feel it very deeply, and appreciate it very truly. If it should come to pass that I should come to live among you, and work among you, I hope you will open your arms to me still wider."

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL FESTIVAL.

December 28th was "red letter night." The Sunday School never seemed more happy. Scholars and teachers turned out in force to make the occasion gay and cheerful. It is doubtful whether we ever had a larger gathering at a Festival. The programme was arranged on familiar lines. There were the opening exercises, the prayer and the lesson, the singing of the carols, and a magic lantern entertainment, showing many pictures of the dear old Farm. An interesting feature was a series of scenes and pictures of the celebrated Mask and Wig Club, of the University of Pennsylvania. The School enjoyed them immensely. There were a great many funny pictures, too. Mr. Miller delivered an address, and Mr. McMichael gave the School a "Message from Santa Claus." He said that Santa Claus had been very busy this year, and instead of giving each member of the School a little remembrance, he (Santa Clans) had asked him (Mr. McMichael) to invite the School to attend a little play that was soon to be given at the Mask and Wig Club. And it really seemed as though the School liked that "Message from Santa Claus" very much. There was the usual distribution of cakes, candy and oranges, under the skilful care of Mrs. Vanderslice, and the evening was in every way a merry one. But even in the midst of our joy, old friends were not forgotten, and Dr. and Mrs. Worcester, and Sister Elizabeth were constantly in our thoughts. It seemed so very strange without them.

The Rt. Rev. O. W. Whitaker, Bishop of Pennsylvania, has sent word that he will visit St. Stephen's Church on Tuesday in Holy week for the purpose of administering the Rite of Comfirmation. This service will be in the morning at 10.30 o'clock.

The Rev. Mr. Snedeker will preach in St. Stephen's at both the morning and afternoon services during the month of January.

Most grateful thanks are given to the many generous givers of money, turkeys, etc., for the Christmas Dinners and also for the baskets sent containing bountiful provisions for special dinners. Many words of gratitude and earnest letters of acknowledgment for the good things received have been sent to the Parish House. Many homes were made happy on Christmas Day by this good custom of our people. Among the contributions of money sent in for these dinners there was a most generous sum from one who a few years ago herself gladly received a dinner at Christmas time. Now in her prosperity she has freely taken a share in giving and has helped us greatly in this Christian deed.

On Monday, December 12th, Miss Anne N. Sanders entered into rest. Her death came suddenly and is a great bereavement to those who were associated with her in the various activities of St. Stephen's Church with which she has been connected for the most part of her life, for that life was quietly and faithfully passed within this Parish. Her influence was exerted for good and attracted many earnest and warm friends. Ever attentive to her home cares and demands she yet found time and opportunity to do what she could in her Church's work. For many years she was actively interested in the Female Benevolent Society and Missionary Box Committee and her place was seldom vacant in the services of the Church which she dearly loved. She was ever kindly, sympathetic and helpful.

Because of her quiet, unobtrusive temperament she was not known to many of those who worshipped with her within the Parish, but those who were associated with her knew well her worth and felt the influence of her fine Christian spirit and the sweetness and beauty of her character. Such women are not only helpful to those with whom they come into relationship but give a power and uplift to any Parish with which they may be connected. St. Stephen's has been blessed with many such noble women and not least of these was our friend for whom we mourn. We shall miss her and earnestly give our sympathy and prayers for those near to her in the home circle and in the Parish with which she was connected and which she so dearly loved and for which she so faithfully worked.

Also the five cases of shoes and overshoes sent by a kind friend, as well as the toys, dolls, candy and milk sent by Mrs. S. Weir Mitchell, Mrs. Noblit, Mrs. Taylor, Miss Van Dusen, Mrs. Staley, Mrs. Colket, Mrs. Mutchler, Miss Mansfield, Miss Williamson, Master Tristam Coffin Colket, Miss Corrigan, Mrs. Burley, Mr. Kelley and Mr. Robert Boyd.

Through the kindness of Rev. J. E. Johnson, the "Mother's Meeting" again had the pleasure of listening to the colored quartet at their Christmas entertainment on January 5th. The attendance, including the outside guests, was a large one. Mr. Miller was present and Miss Plantholz sang.

The Young Women's Bible Class which met on Saturday evenings during Advent to sew, finished a number of little garments, which they presented to the Children's Ward of the Women's Hospital as their Christmas offering. The receipt of same has been gratefully acknowledged by Dr. Alice Seabrooke.

On New Year's eve the Infant Class of the Sunday School and the Little Girls' Friendly had their Christmas entertainment together. There were about one hundred children present, who were much entertained by a performance of Mme. Jarley's Wax Works, gotten up by Miss Graham. The latter impersonated Mme. Jarley in an admirable manner, while the small children of the Infant Class made capital wax figures. This was a notable occasion, as it furnished an unexpected opportunity for meeting our new Rector. Rev. Dr. Beverley Warner said a few words to the children, and we were pleased to have so distinguished a guest.

Once again this New Year's Day "The Maria Mitchell Memorial Dinner" brought joy to many little ones. At noon about seventy children were making their way into the Guild Room of the Parish House, and quickly filled up the seats of the long table, which was decorated from top to bottom with green plants and scarlet flowers. After a carol had been sung and the little heads were bowed for a moment's silence, Dr. Beverley Warner pronounced the blessing. When the children refused to eat any more turkey or ice cream and cake, the presents and boxes of candy from under the tree were distributed, and with many exchanges of good wishes for the New Year, the little ones were taken off to their homes.

I hesitate to insert a discordant note into this report of our festivities and thanksgiving, but I cannot close without a plea for my suffering families who are out of employment, and often for no fault of their own. Some coal or coal tickets would be thankfully received, and warm dress skirts are much needed.

IN MEMORIAM.

ANNE N. SANDERS.

At a meeting of the Benevolent and Missionary Societies of St. Stephen's Church, the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas—it has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from her earthly labors, our faithful associate and much loved friend, Anne N. Sanders.

Resolved—we desire to second our sincere appreciation of the beauty of her Christian character.

Gentle, benevolent and pure of heart and life, she exemplified to her friends the beauty of holiness.

Singularly unobtrusive, amiable and loving, she inspired affection by the beauty of her life.

Years of constant intercourse with her in the performance of her many Church duties, endeared her to all and now that God has taken her to Himself, our hearts are filled with sadness for our great loss, but with thankfulness for the bright example she has left us.

MOTHERS' MEETINGS.

These meetings have been held weekly during the winter, and have been unusually well attended. The Mothers held their Annual Sale in the Guild Room on the afternoon and evening of Thursday, December 8th, and, although receiving very little outside help, were able to present to Miss Colesberry, of St. Martin's House, a check for $56.33. Miss Colesberry was present on the 15th and explained to the Mothers the work done by the Mission, after which the members suggested that their contributions should be used to purchase books for the Library. The officers will be glad to receive any second-hand clothing, to dispose of among the Mothers. Any clothing sent, please address to the care of the Mothers' Meeting.

Santa Claus is a very good old gentleman and very thoughtful, for he did not forget the little children's cold feet. We received through Miss Neidhard a large box of Children's Shoes and two boxes of overshoes. Very many thanks to all kind friends. Perhaps in looking over your closets you may find some large size shoes for women, which if sent to the Parish House for the SHOE FUND will be very acceptable.

Given out in December to Women and Children 14 pairs of shoes and 18 pairs of over shoes.

TO THE CONGREGATION OF ST. STEPHEN'S CHURCH.

The history of Trinity Parish in New Orleans during the ten years of Dr. Warner's association there, is a record of noble progress in the widest scope of charitable undertaking. The reputation which Dr. Warner will leave behind him in the South is one of which the highest ambition might be justly proud. His people have loved him, have earnestly supported him, and have received the news of his going away with manifestations of keenest sorrow. In a private letter to a member of your Vestry, Dr. Warner has expressed himself as being more humbled than elated by the extraordinary testimonies of esteem which have come to him with spontaneous enthusiasm from those among whom he has lived, since his decision was made known to accept the rectorship of St. Stephen's Church.

The fidelity of St. Stephen's Parish is proverbial, and it is pleasant to think that this fidelity is prompted by a high spirit of loyal devotion. The past of St. Stephen's is eloquent of noble traditions. The present is pregnant with peace, and harmony, and good will: and the future is radiant with pure and lofty promise. St. Stephen's Church is on the threshold of a mission of blessed usefulness, the ultimate good of which can be scarcely estimated. Dr. Warner is coming to us full of hope, and strength, and confidence. The best years of his life are before him, and his constant purpose will be to make them helpful, fruitful years for St. Stephen's. In the consummation of that forward effort, so devoutly to be wished, your Vestry has pledged to Dr. Warner the devoted loyalty of a loving Parish. Nothing more is necessary; nothing less will suffice. Thus, with abundant faith in the new Rector of St. Stephen's Church, let us put our whole trust and confidence in him.

TWO LETTERS.

Published in "The Parish News" by Resolution of the Vestry of St. Stephen's Church.

235 Gowen Avenue,
Mount Airy, Phila.

To the Warders and Vestry
St. Stephen's Church,

Gentlemen:—In severing my connection with your parish after a period covering so many years, I want to thank you for the kindness and consideration that I have at all times received from you and from the members of the congregation, as I have passed in and out among them in their joys and sorrows. Entering upon my work in St. Stephen's Church on the first Sunday in October, 1885, I can scarcely realize that over nineteen years have passed away, and yet many have been the changes. Of the twelve Vestrymen that extended me a cordial welcome but three are now upon your board, Mr. Cleemann, Mr. Borie and Mr. Caldwell. I need not to say I dearly love St. Stephen's Church, where so many active and pleasant years have been passed. In saying goodbye it is with the earnest wish and sincere prayer that God may ever bless the Parish, and so make it ever in the coming years, as in the years that have gone, a power in the community for good, and in building up his kingdom. My connection with the Church will end at the close of the month. Dr. Warner has asked me to be with him till then, that some details may be clearly placed before him.

Thanking you again for the aid you have at all times given me, I am, ever,

Yours sincerely,
(Signed) JOSEPH LYONS MILLER.

Feb. 6th, 1905.

February 6, 1905.

Rev. JOS. L. MILLER,
Minister in Charge
St. Stephen's Church,

Dear Mr. Miller:—As the time approaches for your voluntary withdrawal from the service of St. Stephen's Church, we become deeply conscious of the loss which this Parish is about to sustain. Your determination to retire from the work here, announced at the time Dr. Worcester accepted the invitation to become Rector of Emmanuel Church Boston, would, if then carried into effect, have caused serious embarrassment to the Vestry, and at the unanimous consent of the Vestry, you agreed to remain in charge of the Parish until a successor to Dr. Worcester had been chosen. For that generous consideration we thank you, and for all your loyal, loving service during a period of nearly twenty years we thank you, in the name of the Church you have honored so long and loved so well. To attempt to convey to you in conventional phrase an adequate expression of gratitude would seem as unnecessary as it would be impossible. But for your fealty and devotion, for your unfailing gentleness and discretion, for your noble self sacrifice and unselfish interest, and for your honourable example at all times, which has maintained in the conduct of our beloved Parish the highest standard of christian character and christian teaching, we thank you. And in the separation which you have voluntarily deemed it well to make, the fondest hope we may cherish for St. Stephen's Parish is that it may be constantly inspired by the noble spirit of loyal devotion which has illumined your every service as our friend, counsellor and guide. With admiration and respect, we affectionately subscribe ourselves:—

(Signed) L. C. CLEEMANN,

GEORGE L. CRAWFORD,
RUSSELL DUANE,
ROLAND S. MORRIS,
CLAYTON FOTTERALL MCMICHAEL,
Vestry of St. Stephen's Church.

At the urgent request of Dr. Beverley Warner, Mr. Miller will remain in the service of the Church until the last Sunday in February.

CLAYTON F. MCMICHAEL,
Secretary to the Vestry.

TO THE CONGREGATION.

In severing my connection with St. Stephen's Church after a period covering so many years I want to thank the people of the Parish for all the kindness and consideration that I have so greatly received as I have endeavored to work among them and as I have passed in and out in times of joy and sorrow. Entering upon my work October, 1885, at the invitation of Dr. McConnell, and continued at the request of Dr. Worcester, during his rectorship, I can scarcely realize that nineteen years have passed away and yet many have been the changes. Of the twelve vestrymen who extended me a cordial welcome but three are now in the Parish. The people have come and gone. Many have entered into rest. The children have grown up. Sunday School scholars have married and their children have taken their places and teachers have retired and scholars have graduated and some of them, we are proud to say, have now classes of their own. I need not say I dearly love St. Stephen's Church where so many active and pleasant years have been passed. In saying goodbye it is with the earnest hope and sincere prayer that God may ever be pleased to bless and prosper the Parish and that it may ever continue to be not only prosperous but uplifting and helpful to the people who look and may look to it for inspiration in their daily living. My connection with the Parish will end at the close of February, for Dr. Warner has asked me to be with him till then that some details may be clearly placed before him. He will find a loyal people ready to respond to his leadership. May his rectorship be blessed and may it prosper in the Parish.

Yours sincerely,
JOSEPH LYONS MILLER.

The Rev. Dr. Beverley Warner will enter upon his duties as Rector of St. Stephen's Church on February 15th and will preach on Sunday the 19th at both morning and afternoon services. Dr. Warner will be the sixth Rector of the Parish. The first Rector was Rev. Dr. James Montgomery, from 1823 to 1834. Then came the Rev. Dr. H. W. Ducachel, from 1834 to 1865. He was followed by Rev. Dr. Wm. Rudder, from 1865 to 1880. After him came Rev. Dr. S. D. McConnell, in 1881, who left to accept the rectorship of Holy Trinity Church, Brooklyn, in 1896. After this, Rev. Dr. Elwood Worcester became Rector in 1896 and resigned in 1904. The first three Rectors continued in charge until death. The last two resigned to accept duty in other places. The Church is ready heartily to welcome Dr. Warner and to wish him a useful and happy rectorship. The people are loyal and will gladly co-operate with him in his work.

THE ANNUAL OFFERING FOR DIOCESAN MISSIONS will be placed on the altar on Sunday morning, February 19th. This annual offering has come to be a well known and well approved institution in St. Stephen's. For the sake of those who have come to the Parish within the year, we will explain the way it is done.

On Sunday morning, February 12th, from the pulpit, will be told more in detail the work of Diocesan Missions. During the week which follows, every family will be waited upon by a representative of the Parish, to receive the contribution. He simply calls to receive offerings of those who give. He will make no argument or appeal of any kind. Of course he will be courteously received by all our people, whether they can see their way to contribute or not. The amount expected, according to a tacit agreement which has been in force for a number of years, is equal to $5 from each person. This is what we have done heretofore, and nobody is any poorer, while many a poor missionary and struggling handful of people are much the better off.

Of course there are many in the Parish who cannot afford to give so much as the sum mentioned above, but there are many others who can, and heretofore have given far more than the amount, so as to make up for their poorer neighbors. There is no fear but that they will do so again. The whole amount gathered by the collector will be placed in the alms basins, Sunday, February 19th. This will be the first offering received by the Rector, the Rev. Dr. Warner, in this Parish. It is earnestly asked, that the members of the Congregation have their offering ready, so that the agent of the Parish may be able to receive it when he calls, without waiting and without being compelled to call several times.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

There is something about the Sunday School of St. Stephen's Church that imparts a stirring vitality to all of its work and the "something" is a healthy, loyal "Spirit." The Sunday School is growing—not a spasmodic, rushing growth, but a steady determined growth—the kind that lives and endures. There are more scholars and more teachers than at any time for several years, but there is always room for more: room, opportunity and welcome. Instead of three hundred in the School it would be pleasant to see six hundred, and if that happy period ever comes, we shall be prepared to provide accommodation for them all. Meanwhile the Sunday School is content in the assurance of a sentiment of universal helpfulness. Not many nights ago the entire School enjoyed a most pleasurable entertainment as guests of the Mask and Wig Club. A delightful little play, "The Arabian Nights," was delightfully given in the quaint little home of the University of Pennsylvania Dramatic Organization on Quince Street. The occasion was one of the "Preliminary Performances" of the Mask and Wig Club and the members of St. Stephen's Sunday School exclusively comprised the audience. It was a real treat and the School is very grateful to the young gentlemen who so generously volunteered such a pleasure. If it depended upon the vote of the Sunday School no doubt every student of the University who took part in the "Arabian Nights" would be selected for the regular Mask and Wig Entertainment in Easter Week.

In answer to the appeal for coal, we are glad to acknowledge the orders sent us through Miss Henrietta Sanders, as well as the funds received for that purpose. We are also grateful to those who have given us the privilege of getting coal at reduced rates.

We here gratefully acknowledge garments sent by Miss Laura Bell, Miss Fernley, Mrs. McDowell, Mrs. John T. Lewis, Mrs. Clayton, Mrs. Joseph Smith, Miss Maulsby, Miss Emily Bell, Mrs. Kelley, Miss Cleemann, and a friend.

The newly fitted up rooms in the Parish House are now ready for use. They were dedicated January 13th, when a small party was given there in honor of Sister Elizabeth. Mr. McMichael and the members of the Girls' Bible Class were also present. All seemed pleased with the rooms and found them cozy and comfortable.

It is rather an unfortunate coincident that the dullest season should also be the coldest time of the year. Fuel and food are hard to procure, but it is even harder to find employment. In talking with a fine young man the other day, I found he was employed in a ship-yard, in order to reach which he had to start off at five o'clock in the morning. He received $12.00 a week when times were good, but being often laid off, his earnings amounted to but $6.00 a week the year round. With this small sum he was struggling to support a family of eight. Two of the children (his step-sons) were consumptives. The house was neat and clean and the people brave. They asked for nothing, but the man kept telling me how he had searched and tried in vain to find a steady job, and I wished with all my heart I could have given him one. This is only one of many pathetic cases.

We wish to thank Mrs. Louis E. French for toys and children's furniture for distribution among the children of the poor.

A LETTER FROM SHANGHAI.

When Dr. Pott was at St. Stephen's some time ago and told of the work increasing so at St. John's College, Shanghai, that a new building was needed and had come to America to raise funds for its erection, I little thought that I should some day in the near future, have the pleasure of visiting the College and seeing that new building nearly completed and having a glimpse of the fine work so splendidly carried on in this prosperous mission field. The College and adjoining buildings stand within a large enclosure like a beautiful private park at Jessfield, five miles out from Shanghai, overlooking the Soochow Creek, along which curious craft, distinctively Chinese in construction, constantly pass, a slow procession of junks and house-boats, patiently poled along by the natives, who in many cases have no other home than in these cramped and dingy quarters.

Within the College grounds however, all is modern and attractive, the black and red brick buildings, the Church already twice enlarged and still too small, the school for two hundred and fifty boys, the one for eighty girls and that for the forty wee orphans walled off in accordance with oriental custom, the museum and drill ground all bespeak the care bestowed upon the enlightenment of the younger generation of that yellow race which is so often regarded as a peril and menace to Western civilization.

The Chinaman is imitative and quick to learn, and in business, as an accountant, is unexcelled, but the working of his brain is inscrutable to the mind of the white man; his patience and industry never abate, yet the poverty, disease and dirt in the walled cities appall one

Despite the many efforts of missionaries and other philanthropic people to have the practice of binding the women's feet abolished, it is not a popular innovation, and it is surprising to see the number of young girls and even children painfully hobbling along the streets; the older women totter on a three or four inch basis only, leaning on the arm of a servant and also having the support of a substantial cane. As Chinese men admire these pitifully deformed feet and will not marry women with large ones, therefore, the women continue to suffer by bandaging the offending members, and the higher the rank of the woman, the smaller her feet and naturally she rarely walks in public, but she has the choice of the following modes of transportation. The wheel-barrow is the cheapest conveyance, whilst a riksha drawn by an active coolie has the pleasantest motion and is most reliable, for a closed chair borne on the shoulders of two or three men who do not always keep in step is a trifle shaky, and the light carriages are very often broken to pieces by the vicious kicks of the unbroken ponies.

Driving out to Jessfield however, recently, with a comparatively good-tempered little animal, it was most interesting to attend a meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary at St. John's, where there was a goodly assemblage of Chinese women, who made their reports and listened attentively to the addresses made in their tongue by the Bishop and Dr. Pott and afterwards were served with tea on the lawn, an unique group of well dressed people, in all shades of blue silk, real "China blue." I say well dressed doubtfully, for it takes a good while to get accustomed to seeing women always wearing wide trousers and long shapeless coats; in some provinces, however, they wear a gauze skirt in addition, their hair is oiled to a shiny smoothness and ornamented with jade pins and combs, and a covering for the head is never worn.

After watching them sip their national beverage, seated at tables on one portion of the lawn, we stroll to another quarter to see the boys at dress parade, marching to the music of the College band, with colors flying, the Chinese flag, blue dragon on yellow ground and the College one with motto, "Learning without understanding is dangerous." And then we bid farewell to this pleasant spot in far-away China, grateful to those conscientious Christians who are trying to ennoble the lives of their brethren by setting them an example of such qualities that it would be good for all to emulate and praying that their work may continue to bear fruit for many years to come, and also that more young men and women may feel impelled to turn their faces toward China to assist the handful of active workers at our missions not only in Shanghai, but at Hankow and Wuchang as well.

TO THE CONGREGATION OF ST. STEPHEN'S CHURCH.

GREETING:

In addressing you for the first time through the columns of THE PARISH NEWS, as your Rector, I desire to respond as warmly as words may to the exceeding kindness and friendliness of your welcome. I feel that in coming to St. Stephen's I am coming among friends whose chief desire is to be friendly. The novelty of strange surroundings and the difficulty of at once adjusting oneself to new conditions, are lightened by the cordial goodwill of the people.

My first effort will be to get about through the congregation and to know its members in their own homes. But this cannot be done until the Parish List is corrected and brought down to date. We are working upon this now, and again ask the co-operation of those of the congregation who have changed their residence within the year to send a card with their new address to the vestry room.

It is too early to set forth plans of working. There is much to be done, but much is being done of a practical value, which is a hopeful augury for the future. There are some things I would like to put before you relating to the efficiency of the parish machinery as it now exists, and to the extension of work beyond the present limits. These will keep, however, until I have a knowledge of the people and conditions better than a fortnight's residence can well afford.

Lent, which is now upon us, will give me this opportunity, and I hope that by Easter Day we will have a fair acquaintance with each other. Meanwhile, in order that I may know the parish by at least a bird's-eye view, as well as to secure the necessary data for any effective and systematic work, I will send out very soon to the head of every family connected with the parish a Family Blank, the form of which will explain itself. It will have spaces for the names of all in the family, whether baptized, confirmed or communicants, and when filled out according to the simple directions which will be printed on each blank, will provide the Rector with a complete census of the parish. With this in hand he will be able to systematize and intelligently undertake the pastoral work which must, in his judgment, be the basis of all other work and the source of its efficiency.

The problem of getting settled in a Rectory has yet to be dealt with, and is in process of solution. There does not seem much prospect of such a settlement until after the summer holidays, however. Meanwhile, the Rector and his family are located at the "Colonial," 11th and Spruce streets, where they will be very happy to see and welcome the people of St. Stephen's.

Until Easter the Rector will be at his room in the Parish Building (9 South 10th street) between the hours of 11 A. M. and 1 P. M. daily (except Saturdays).

It would be ungracious to pass over the invaluable service and faithful help received from Mr. Miller in the first fortnight of my residence. His long term of ministration in St. Stephen's, his intimate knowledge of all that pertains to its work and worship, added to his exceeding kindness in the answering of many questions and throwing light upon many problems, has made the way much easier for the new Rector, and placed him under a heavy debt of gratitude.

In conclusion I beg to ask my friends and parishioners to bear with the inevitable awkwardness of a stranger, and to give the necessary time for adjustment with an indulgence of which I feel quite assured. I should in no sense attempt to fill the place of my immediate predecessors, Dr. McConnell and Dr. Worcester. I shall try to make my own place among you, doing the work after my own fashion; preserving, I hope, the splendid traditions of St. Stephen's, and not disturbing the old foundations.

Your well-known and well-tried loyalty will support me in this, and I enter upon the privilege of ministering among you with hope.

Faithfully yours,

BEVERLEY WARNER.

A TRIBUTE TO MR. MILLER.

The Sunday School Presents the Retiring Minister with a Golden "Loving Cup."

Mr. Miller has been associated so long and so intimately with the Sunday School that it seemed only natural for a spontaneous demonstration of affection to come from the Sunday School to Mr. Miller at the time when he was retiring from a life-long, loving service. On the morning of February 26th, the entire school—Infant Class, Bible Classes and all—assembled in the schoolroom, for it was known that Mr. Miller would come that day to say good-bye. At the request of the school, Mr. McMichael presented to Mr. Miller the "loving cup" toward which every scholar, every teacher and every officer of the school had made some contribution. Mr. McMichael said that the gift was intended as a token to Mr. Miller of the Sunday School's love and loyalty to him "for the golden deeds he had done, and for the golden seed he had sown, and for the golden harvest which had rewarded him in the strength and growth and united heart of the school today." Mr. Miller was much affected. He spoke feelingly of the tribute from the school and of his high appreciation. He dwelled a little upon the history of the school, referred enthusiastically to its splendid condition, and wished scholars and teachers every blessing and happiness in the future. Then Mr. Miller pronounced the benediction, and then the Sunday School having adjourned, they all gave three hearty cheers for Mr. Miller, and then everybody laughed and cried, and cried and laughed, and Mr. Miller passed out of active service in the Sunday School of St. Stephen's Church—but not out of a single heart. The inscription upon the loving cup was as follows:

Presented to
JOSEPH LYONS MILLER
In Loving Testimony of Affection and Esteem from the Scholars, Teachers and Officers of
of
St. Stephen's Church.

The Rector being new to the parish, with no knowledge of the unconfirmed and unacquainted with the conditions that obtain, must trust to the spontaneous coming forward of young and old without personal seeking on his part.

Perhaps it might be a good opportunity for god-fathers and god-mothers to assume a responsibility, or undertake a privilege and bring their god-children, as they promised to do, that they may receive the proper instruction.

There are probably men and women, as well as children, of the age of discretion who, for one reason or another, have put off their confirmation. Why?

At all events the Rector will welcome any one to the weekly instruction, whether proceeding to confirmation or not.

PARISH NOTES.

The Rector announces that he has appointed Miss Neidhard to continue her services as Parish Worker until further notice.

The members of St. Stephen's congregation will remember that the Vestry, with the Rector's approval, have given the use of the Church for the mid day services during Lent to the St. Andrew's Brotherhood. The Clergy of St. Stephen's will have charge of the service each day, but the preachers will be appointments of the Brotherhood. According to custom and courtesy certain portions of the Church will be reserved for the business men and women who can only arrive at the last minute before 12.30.

During Lent the Holy Communion will be administered immediately after the 11 o'clock service on Sundays. In accordance with the Prayer Book directions, the morning service will be shortened so as not to unduly prolong the services.

Any one having knowledge of corrections to be made in the list of names attached to parish organizations will kindly send the same to the vestry room.

			$85.49

We gratefully acknowledge the garments sent to us by Mrs. S. Weir Mitchell, Miss Christopher, Mrs. Joseph Smith, Mrs. Atmore and a friend.

A number of tons of coal have been distributed, and, I am glad to say, in most cases have been paid for by our people at the reduced rates at which we were able to sell it.

Also we have been enabled to give the sick from time to time much needed delicacies through the kindness of a generous friend.

The ladies of the Garment Committee report that its shelves need replenishing. We hope that all those who have pledged themselves to contribute two articles to this society during the Winter will remember their pledges. There has been a constant demand made this month for clothes on account of so many working people being out of employment. Any half-worn clothing or undergarments would be thankfully received.

I beg to call your attention to the following notice:

No clothes will be given out in future without a printed card is presented signed by a responsible person.

The ladies in attendance for the following month will be 1st Monday—Mrs. Crombargar and Miss Atmore.

2nd Monday—Mrs. Knight and Mrs. Wood.
3rd Monday—Miss Lammot.
4th Monday—Mrs. Howard Butcher.

The St. Stephen's Aid Society will have its first meeting for Lenten sewing on Friday, March 10th, at 10 o'clock, at the Parish House. All who are interested in this work are requested to be regular in their attendance.

Two or more sewing teachers are very much needed in the Saturday morning candidates' class of the G. F. S. We have thirty-five children, all under fourteen years of age. They are taught the Drexel Institute sewing system under a trained teacher, so that our helpers have an opportunity of learning the method while lending us a helping hand.

The King's Daughters had a very successful sale on Friday evening, February 17th. Also the "Conundrum Tea," on February 27th, given by the G. F. S., and gotten up entirely by the girls themselves, was a grand success. Nearly two hundred persons were present. Every hole and corner of the Parish House was filled. About $50 was raised, $30 of which goes to the support of Fatima, a little orphan girl living in India whom we have helped for a number of years.

A HALF-PRICE SALE,

The housekeeper's articles in the closets of the Benevolent Society will be reduced to half price after March 15th on Tuesday and Wednesday mornings.

Candy Table	13.67
Lemonade and cake	7.50
Total,	$58.42
Expended,	17.19

The Sale was a success both financially and socially. Mr Miller remarked, on entering the room: "It is like Fairy Land."

The electrical display of colored lights, with the King's Daughters Cross and the word Welcome to greet Dr. Warner and family, was considered very fine. It was put up by Mr. Charles Moore and his brother, Mr. William Moore, who worked the greater part of the day to help make the Sale a success.

We are also indebted, through Mr. Charles Moore, to a friend of his for the printing of the tickets. We return thanks, not having had the opportunity before.

At nine o'clock, Miss Bessie Miller, 11 years old, started the music by playing very beautifully on the piano. Mrs. David Wood then sang four very pretty and taking songs, "Who'll be my Lavender?" "Japanes Love Song," "If no One Ever Marries Me" and "The Maybells." Mr. Wood accompanied her. Miss Tillie Steine was also one of the soloists. Miss Bessie Wilder, pianist. The music was enjoyed very much by all.

SHOE FUND.

Miss Elinor Kalbfleish	$ .50
Mrs. H. F. Martin	.25
Received for shoes given out	1.75
Total,	$ 2.50
Expended for Shoes	1.70
Balance,	.80

Received from Miss Graham, 4 pairs of shoes.

Have given out during February, 16 pairs of shoes and 18 pairs of overshoes.

It might be well to state here that owing to the hard Winter, much sickness may have been saved by the warm shoes given out. Many children came who had what one would call a sham of a shoe actually on the ground.

Infant School, Sunday School and Parish School have all been looked after, and many women, but for the past week or so we have not had any women's shoes to give out, and have only a few children's. March is a hard month; will not some one help that we may yet be able to keep up the work just a little longer and keep La Grippe away.

For the first time in several years, the Board of Missions has recently been obliged to borrow money in order that the appropriations may be paid promptly, and the missions saved from serious setback. On the other hand, the work in the field at home and abroad grows apace. Each month opens up new opportunities, shows new depths of human need, makes new calls upon the Church's faith and love. The income, while it increases steadily, does not keep pace with the growth in the field. Under such circumstances, what is to be done? Shall the Board of Missions say that the new work must be delayed or abandoned entirely? Or shall it venture to assume new obligations as the growing needs unfold? The people of the Church have money enough and to spare for all the enterprises now on foot or projected. Of that, there can be no doubt. To call a halt would be to do great damage to the mission everywhere. To tell young men and women, ready to go to the field and qualified for missionary service, that they cannot go because there is no money, would be one of the surest ways of killing the missionary spirit. That would mean untold harm to the life of the Church.

IN MEMORIAM.

WHEREAS, We, the Vestry of St. Stephen's Church, have heard with profound regret of the sudden decease of our late member, J. DUNDAS LIPPINCOTT, ESQ.;

AND WHEREAS, for a long period of time the deceased was an active and valued member both of St. Stephen's Church and of this Vestry;

RESOLVED, that we wish to place on record this expression of the high esteem in which all the members of our Vestry held Mr. Lippincott, and of our unanimous feeling that his untimely removal has left a vacancy in our ranks which can never be filled, and that we hereby express to the members of his family our sincere sympathy with them in their sudden bereavement.

RESOLVED, that the Secretary of this vestry be instructed to forward a copy of these resolutions to the family of Mr. Lippincott.

TO THE MEMBERS OF ST. STEPHEN'S CHURCH.

The Vestry having asked me to take charge of the Parish during the present vacancy in the rectorship, I have again come to the Church, and will endeavor to do all that I can to fulfill the duties and meet the responsibilities that may be required of me. I want every one of the congregation to help me by loyal co-operation and by earnest prayers. I have not forgotten the help of past years, nor can I ever fail to lose sight of the kind words and loving tokens of friendship given me, when a few weeks ago I went out from you, thus closing, as I thought, a service of nearly twenty years.

The Bishop of the Diocese will visit the Parish for the purpose of administering Confirmation on Tuesday in Holy Week. I am now busy getting a class prepared for this service. The time is short. The Instruction is given on Friday evenings at eight o'clock in the Vestry Room. You can help me by placing this matter before those of your friends who have not as yet been confirmed. Parents can speak to their children. Teachers can lay the subject before their scholars.

On Easter Day the Vestry have asked that the offerings shall be devoted to St. Stephen's Farm. There is needed to keep the Farm open this Summer Fifteen Hundred Dollars at least, and I am sure the good done by this charity is more than worth while.

The notices of Holy Week services and arrangements for Easter Day can be found in this number of THE PARISH NEWS.

JOSEPH LYONS MILLER.

TO THE CONGREGATION OF ST. STEPHEN'S CHURCH.

The abrupt termination of Dr. Warner's Rectorship has naturally thrown the Parish into some bewilderment; but with the fealty and devotion for which it is noted, the congregation has rallied to its support, and having recovered from its first shock of pained surprise, the Church remains steadfast and resolute. It seems unnecessary to make any comment on Dr. Warner's resignation, other than to assure the Parish that it was most unexpected, and that it must have been prompted by motives wholly personal and entirely outside of the Parish. Dr. Warner had made a good impression here, his preaching was much liked, and it seemed to the Vestry that he would presently become very popular. His resignation found the Church totally unprepared. The Vestry unanimously requested the Rev. Jos. L. Miller to return and assume temporary charge of the Parish, and Mr. Miller, with the best good of the Church always at heart, agreed to accept the trust. With no further delay than is consistent with the grave responsibility of such an action, the Vestry will proceed to the selection of another Rector. Meanwhile every effort will be made to have the pulpit occupied from Sunday to Sunday by preachers of ability and note.

The necessity of carrying on the work of the Parish was never so urgent as it is to-day. In every respect the Church is abundantly prepared to go forward, and for most of the charitable and benevolent purposes of the Parish ample funds are in hand. The Farm, however, is one department of Parish effort which must make its appeal for support at this time, and that support must be considerable. The Easter Sunday collections will, as usual, be for this purpose, but the collections alone will not be sufficient. The Farm is in good financial standing. It has no important indebtedness, but it has no surplus. Its treasury is empty. It contemplates another season of usefulness with the certainty of several essential repairs. The Farm is unique in Church charitable work. There is nothing quite like it anywhere else. It is a living monument to the greatheartedness of St. Stephen's congregation. The Farm was Dr. Worcester's pride, and the child of his benevolent enterprise. It occupies one hundred acres in the valleys of Bucks County. It is far enough away from the railroad to seem sequestered and remote. It is near enough to be accessible.

In Summer the Farm is a garden spot for our Parish, and for others who are not of the Parish. It is open from June 15th to September 15th. It gives health, recreation and life to many who are desolate and distressed. Last season, Miss Lyon, with her gentle kindness, brought happiness into many hearts where happiness does not always dwell. Miss Lyon has again agreed to take charge. Last Summer four hundred persons altogether—or more, perhaps, were benefited. During the coming Summer the number could be raised to six hundred. The Farm needs funds. It will require twenty-five hundred dollars to make the repairs and keep this mighty charity in commission for another year. The congregation is appealed to very earnestly to supply the means. Let the offering on Easter Day be an Easter gift commensurate with the spirit of the season, and the loving loyalty of the Parish. Checks may be drawn to Clayton F. McMichael, Treasurer, and mailed to the Church.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Vestry on April 3, Mr. J. Hunter Ewing was elected a member of the Vestry to succeed the late J. Dundas Lippincott. Mr. Ewing has accepted the election.

During Lent services are held daily in the Church. Short service and address at 12.30 o'clock, and Evening Prayer at 5 o'clock.

Confirmation will be as usual on Tuesday in Holy Week, April 18th, at 10.30 in the morning, by Bishop Whitaker.

On Thursday Before Easter Holy Communion will be celebrated at the evening Service at 5 o'clock.

On Good Friday there will be Morning Prayer, Litany and Sermon at 10.30. Mid-day service at 12.30 and Evening Prayer at 5 o'clock. Offerings for City Missions.

During Holy Week there will be a service at 11.30 A. M., when the story of our Lord's Passion as contained in the Gospels of the week will be read.

On Easter Day Holy Communion will be administered at 8 A. M. Morning Prayer, Sermon and Holy Communion at 11 o'clock, and Evening Prayer and Sermon at 4 o'clock. Offerings for St. Stepen's Farm.

The Easter Carol Service of the Sunday School, Parish School and Burd Orphan Asylum will be held on Sunday after Easter, at 4 o'clock. The offerings of the year will be received for Missions and placed on the Altar.

On Easter Day the services will be at eight o'clock, eleven o'clock and four o'clock. At the two latter services the pew-holders and regular members of the Congregation will be admitted as usual through the transept door. The front doors will be opened promptly at the hour of the service itself, and the visitors will be provided with seats to the full capacity of the Church.

It seems rather an inhospitable mode of action, but upon reflection it will commend itself to all reasonable people. It is but right and fair that those who attend the service all the other days of the year, should have an opportunity to occupy their own seats on the great high festival, and that those who only visit the Church upon such occasions should be asked to wait upon the convenience of the regular attendants.

We here gratefully acknowledge the garments sent us by Miss Cleemann, The King's Daughter's, Miss Magee, Mrs. E. S. Vanderslice, Mrs. T. P. Chandler, Mrs. Beauveau Borie, Miss Graham, and a friend. The appeal made in behalf of St. Stephen's Aid Society received a warm response. On Friday mornings with our increased membership, large pieces of goods are being rapidly turned into attractive little garments for infants.

The "Little Girls' Friendly" is to have an exhibition of its work on Saturday, April 15th, at eleven o'clock. All who are interested are cordially invited to be present.

On the 21st of March the Women's Bible Class met in the Parish Club Rooms for a social evening. We had some music, and Mr. Hall told a number of very funny stories.

Some of the young people belonging to the other Bible Classes are having rehearsals in the Club Room on Wednesday evenings for the purpose of getting up Charades, to be given on Wenesday of Easter week.

I am very anxious to secure work for a willing errand boy, should any person in the Parish be in need of one. Also we would like to find employment for women who can clean, launder and sew, or help with the waiting at entertainments. Last week we succeeded in getting employment for a woman in a small shop, and thereby saved her from being turned out of house and home. Also secured a position for a most worthy woman in great distress, at one of our large department stores. We also got a job for a "line man" out of the city at $2.50 a day. The family, consisting of six young children, were being supported by the eldest child, a girl of fourteen, who was doing errands at a dressmaker's establishment. This kind of relief is often most difficult to give, but it is the only kind that is real and lasting.

The officers of the various Societies of the Parish will please send to the Rev. J. L. Miller, Minister-in-charge, the annual reports of money received and expended, and also account of work done from May 1st, 1904, to May 1st, 1905. Please have these reports sent in not later than May 1st, for publication in next copy of Parish News.

A LENTEN MEDITATION.

The earliest believers in the Christ beyond the boundaries of Judea found themselves entangled at every step in peril of betraying their faith. Society was penetrated by pagan beliefs which had become personal and public customs. The old poetic religion, which had inspired poets and sculptors and filled the little classic world of the time with beautiful images of gods and men, had become a mass of forms, and those forms confronted the Roman Christian at every turn. He could not marry, christen his children, bury his dead, observe the festivals of the State, without making himself accessory to an idolatry which was not the less offensive because, unlike the idolatry of the East, it was saturated with beauty and expressed in terms of art. The Christian became, first of all, a protestor against the religious order in which he was involved; at every step he was compelled to place himself in antagonism to the beliefs and customs of the society in which he lived. That society had become shamelessly corrupt: the ancient sanctions of the Olympian religion and the old-time authority of noble moral ideas had lost their power. Nameless crimes against nature were practiced without reproof; marriage had become the subject of satire and ridicule; personal purity, in great and influential groups of people, was a rustic superstition outgrown by all who knew the world and had learned its wisdom. In such a society a man who believed in Christ could not escape contamination unless he set himself boldly against the whole movement of his time, or escaped to the desert or to lonely places and became on anchorite. The long and honorable roll of the martyrs registered the decision and fidelity of those who had seen the vision of the Christ and set their hearts to do His bidding. And a little later, when the evil in the world became intolerable to many of the pure in heart, tens of thousands turned their backs on the world and lived in prayer and meditation in the valley of the Nile, in lonely places among the hills, in the solitude of deserts. Believing the world hopelessly corrupt and lost, they saved their souls by escaping from it into the pure air of remote and solitary places uncontaminated by the vileness of man's corruption. They were filled with so great a horror of sin that they fled from it as from a plague. They did not find the perfect peace for which they longed, because there was evil in their own natures as well as in the world about them; but they chose, in a spirit of true self-sacrifice, to keep their purity and their faith at the cost of all intercourse with their fellows. It was the evil penetrating society and defiling all its relations and functions which crowded the arenas with men and women who were not afraid to die for the truth, and sent a host into voluntary exile. This was the first revolt of believers in Christ against the evil in the world; the first struggle between sin and holiness in the history of the non-Jewish church.—The Outlook.

CROWDED OUT.

As the years go by, most of us are increasingly conscious that many things are being crowded out of our lives. At the close of the day we look over what we have done and find that, compared with the plans of the morning, it is far from complete. The end of the year rolls around and we see that, somehow, things that seemed important have been crowded out.

Why is this so? Why do some things find a place while others do not? Is it a mere matter of accident that some things were left undone rather than others? This may seem to be true, but I am persuaded that it is seldom the case. Sometimes we say of one, "There is method in his madness," so I believe that there is method in what we are sometimes disposed to look upon as merely accidental. Perhaps, at the beginning of this present year of your life, you said, "I am determined that before another year is added to my life, I will read a certain number of good books, or master this or that branch of study." You are telling the truth when you say that the reading and study are crowded out. You simply could not have put more into your days than you did put into them. The question is, did it "just happen" that this was crowded out and that was not? There were moments—yes, hours—not occupied by the regular routine of duty; why did you give these to fancy work or visiting or playing baseball? Because these latter things seemed to be more desirable than intellectual exercises. In other words, the things that were crowded out of your life were first crowded out of your interest and affections.

Some people tell us they are not active in the Church, or are not religious at all, because their time is wholly taken up with other things. They probably state the case correctly, but it might be interesting to know why it is the service of God, rather than some other things which are crowded out?

A young woman had been arranging her books in the case. Her friend, who had been watching her, noted that several of the books, instead of being put into the case, were being piled on the floor. "There was no room for them," she explained.

"Why no room for these rather than for some of those which went in?"

"Oh, well," was the reply, "when there is only so much room, one has to make a choice, and I suppose I left out the ones I thought least of."

So one might reason concerning many things. We leave out tenderness and courtesy and consecration, because there isn't room for everything, and down in our hearts we esteem these as least important.—Selected from the Parish Visitor.

TO THE CONGREGATION.

It is with great pleasure we announce to the congregation of St. Stephen's Church that the Rev. Dr. S. D. McConnell will be the Special Preacher during the month of May. He will preach at the Eleven o'clock service each Sunday. This will give his many friends in the parish an opportunity to give him a hearty welcome. It has been a long time since he preached here.

This copy of THE PARISH NEWS is important to the variour Societies of the parish for it contains the report of the work done through the year, from May, 1904, to May, 1905. It is gratifying to find that although the rectorship has been vacant, yet the work has gone on, and that it has been done faithfully and well and has also been sustained by the generous aid of the congregation.

It must be most gratifying to the friends of St. Stephen's Farm to learn that the offerings on Easter have been so generous. The work for the coming summer can now be begun with the sure confidence that it will be entirely sustained. We already have received $2,046.98, and feel confident that before the farm is opened for the Summer we shall have the full amount needed, $2,500.00 thus, enabling the vestry to pay the necessary expenses and to make the repairs required.

The services on Sundays will be (from May to October) at eleven in the morning and five in the afternoon.

JOSEPH LYONS MILLER.

The Easter Carol Service of the Sunday School, in conjunction with the Burd Orphan Asylum, was held on Sunday, April 30th in the Church. Addresses were made by Dr. Snively and Mr. Miller. The carols were sung with great spirit, and the service was impressive and beautiful. The presence of the goodly "family" from the splendid institution at Sixty-third and Market streets was an inspiration to all, and the large congregation which completely filled the Church, followed every moment of the service with interest and attention. This annual re-union of the children of St. Stephen's—the Sunday School and the Burd Asylum—is one of the most delightful ceremonies in the life of the Parish.

Thanks are due to Mrs. Austin, Mrs. Chandler, Mrs. Hillman and Mr. Miller for contributions in money and material. Also to Mrs. Erenil for cutting out the garments, and to Mrs. Hall for her aid by the machine.

We are leaving an ample supply of slips, skirts, wrappers, and sacques, which will be distributed among the new born strangers coming into St. Stephen's Parish.

We much regretted the loss of Miss Shoemaker as Treasurer and thank Mrs. Austin for taking her place.

The "Little Girls' Friendly" Sewing Class has met every Saturday morning since October 1st. The membership includes some 40 children. They have been regular in attendance and attentive and interested in their work.

With our competent pupil teacher from the Drexel we have been able to accomplish much. We are also grateful to Miss Lowrey for her capable assistance, and also to Miss Hewson and the others who have helped us from time to time.

On the closing day the children had an exhibition of their finished work, of which they were justly proud. The neatly finished sample books and the practical application of the principles in some useful article of clothing spoke well for the method adopted.

Of the two prizes awarded for the best finished work, the 1st was given to Frances Reese and the 2d to Maggie Furman. After singing some Easter carols the children had luncheon and then we "broke up" for the long vacation.

As usual this Easter season, our invitation to the breakfast was warmly responded to. The table, which extended almost the entire length of the Guild Room, was prettily decorated with Easter lilies, but even these were not one whit more attractive than the happy young faces of our smiling guests. We were about 40 in all, and Mr. Miller and Dr. Snively were also present.

On Wednesday evening of Easter week, Miss Farrar Smith's Bible Class and my own had a very delightful reunion. We received our friends in the "Parish Club" room, of which we all have grown fond. Then retiring to the Guild room we had music and some recitations. Mr. Martin's character sketches were most amusing. Also Miss Marian Wood was charming in some darky stories, and the dialogue between Anna Allen and Lulu Wilder was very well done. The boys initiated us into the mysteries of "The Full Moon Society" by a most excellent performance. Supper was served in the Club room, and with more music and a little dancing we ended up a very enjoyable evening.

By this issue of the PARISH NEWS I will be some thousand miles away from Philadelphia, and my good friends of St. Stephen's Parish, but from the many promises of letters which I have had, I shall still hope to keep in touch with them.

I take this opportunity of wishing you all a happy summer at the "Farm," as I am not able to do so individually.

	Total,	148

The interest of the members has been maintained during the winter, and the Senior Members have been active. They arranged and carried through a Conundrum Tea, for the mission work, which netted $50.00, and sick Members have been visited. Three Members with an Associate visited The Sheltering Arms, one evening a week, taking charge of the music and games. With few exceptions, a religious service has been held the first Monday of each month, Rev. Joseph L. Miller and Rev. J. E. Johnson officiating. Stimulating and interesting talks have been given by Miss Susan Wilson and Mrs. Butcher, and a delightful lecture on Raphael was given by Miss Winslow. Classes in literature, current events, reading, cooking and embroidery have been carried on by the Associates. The Christmas entertainment was successful. The Members brought a number of very poor children to the festival, contributing money towards presents for them, which were distributed by Santa Claus. Music, recitations, ice cream and cake completed the entertainment and a happy group of children said good-night. During Lent, the Associates and Members have made over fifty garments for the G. F. S. Diocesan Missionary Box.

The Candidates meet Saturday mornings, and have been taught plain sewing and at their last meeting made a creditable exhibit of their work.

Thirty-seven endowment cards have been taken by the members.

HANKOW, CHINA.
American Church Mission.

My Dear Miss Bell:

We have heard from a number of friends that you have spoken of various features of our work in China, such as our great need of additional workers. I am glad you remember us, and our difficult but encouraging mission work and glad that you have mentioned it to persons who have not been able to see it with their own eyes. We recall your visit with real pleasure, and wish that you could have seen still more of the mission activities. Such visits as yours cheer us up greatly, and carry back to America first hand impressions of mission work.

I am sure that your words have helped arouse interest in the China mission (for Philadelphia friends of yours and ours have written saying so) and therefore I feel that I may write to you about a particular feature of the work, and a pressing need in connection with it.

One of the seven places I am in charge of is the capital of the next Province Huron, the enormous city of Changsha. It is as far from Hankow, as Albany is from Philadelphia. (Imagine the Rector of St. Stephen's having charge of a church in Albany, and that church the only Episcopal one in the city!) But such are the exigencies of our work, that if I were not in charge at this distance, some one still farther off would have to be. Fortunately there is an able Chinese assistant on the spot, and, by his efforts, the work is growing splendidly. We are sending a catechist to help him, annd a school teacher, this month, so that we are making a decided step forward. But our difficulty is to find a place large enough to hold all the work. We have been renting heretofore, but our landlord wants his house now and we cannot find-a suitable house, without paying an exorbitant rent. This is due to the great boom Changsha has taken. It has just been made a Treaty Port, like Hankow, and foreign business firms are rushing in to open trade, and are gobbling up land and houses. Besides it is the chief city on the line of the new Hankow-Canton railroad (now happily in American hands again.) For these reasons, prices are leaping up. If we are ever to become firmly settled there, and secure on Mission property, now is the time; a little later we may have to pay double prices.

It is the part of wisdom to take opportunities as they come, and I am face to face with an opportunity to buy a substantial, large house with land, for future growth, at a reasonable price. The chance may not last a month, as the offer is limited in time. After long consideration and consultation, I am borrowing, on my own responsibility, the whole of the necessary $2,000, in order not to let this chance go. I have seen so many great opportunities slip through our fingers here because we lacked everything needed for seizing them, that I cannot bear to sit still and see this one go unused. The Board in New York has not any funds for securing equipment for our new work, so I must rely on friends of the mission to help us out. Changsha is a key to a great section of Southern China. Our work there is the only station we have in a province of twenty-five millions of souls. It is our first, but not our last, for we shall yet claim that vast district for Christ and His Church, only we must put our work there on a permanent footing. We cannot afford to throw money away in high rents—nor can we afford to wait several years and pay double or treble the present price. Therefore, I have gone ahead, having faith to belive that the Church at home will not fail to show interest, and to give help at this time. (Did you see the pictures of Changsha I took, in the November number of "The Spirit of Missions"?)

As soon as I decided that it was right to secure the place I speak of in Changsha, I thought of you, and of your interest in our work, and wondered if you would be able to find any individuals or organizations in St. Stephens which could be enlisted in interest and help in this undertaking. I thought of you because you have been here, and know the conditions and achievements of our work better than others can know who have not been, and can tell them.

In case anyone, or any society, should like to make an offering, the same should be sent to the Treasurer, Church Mission House, New York, marked for me, "Special for Changsha."

Believe me,
Very sincely yours,
S. HARRINGTON LITTELL.

OFFERTORIES FOR OCTOBER.

Third Sunday of month—Domestic Missions.
Other Sundays--Charitable and Benevolent Work.

DURING THE MONTH of August St. Stephen's Church was closed for necessary repairs and cleaning. The Church is now in readiness for the fall work. The outer walls of the building have been repainted and so also have the front doors, windows and railing. The interior has been thoroughly cleaned, and the ceiling, where necessary, has been repaired and recolored, and the floor tiling where loose has been reset. The wear and tear of a year of constant use made it necessary to do this work. The large congregations of the Lenten season alone would require this, not to speak of the daily and Sunday services throughout the year.

THE PARISH DAY School was opened for the season on Monday, September 11th, the same day that the Public Schools of the city began their work. The School is under the direction of Miss Kate Lewis, who has faithfully taught the scholars for many years.

SOON THE PEOPLE will be back to their accustomed places. Business will then revive and the schools for the youth of the land will be in active operation. Familiar faces will once more be seen in Church. Ministers and congregations will be again united. Then the work of the Church calls for those who with a will and heart can help to meet the demand. Money will be needed, as always, to defray expenses, but money always is offered when interest is aroused and the claim is just and worthy. But the work is calculated to do more than nourish, cheer, educate or uplift those for whom the effort is made. It helps the worker. He himself is nourished, cheered, educated and uplifted. There are those who come to our Churches as strangers, and they find the Church so cold and forbidding. They know no one and nobody manifests a particle of interest in them. There is a tremendous truth in the saying that he who would have friends must show himself friendly. So also is it true that when we try to help the Church in her various departments of work, the Church itself becomes more real and alive to us. If one feels that in the Church he is left too severely alone, let him look quietly around to find where he can be of help, and he will find an interest not only aroused within himself but others will begin to care for him. Be this, however, as it may, the Church calls for workers. The response to that call may require sacrifice of some sort, but if it is a right call our sacrifice will be amply rewarded.

ON SUNDAY, OCTOBER 1ST, the winter hours for the services will begin. Morning Service at 11 o'clock and Evening Service with Sermon at 4 o'clock.

The Sunday School will begin on Sunday, October 1st at 9.45 A. M. All the scholars and teachers are asked to be on hand at that time. A cordial welcome awaits them. The School last year was in a splendid condition, and with its band of earnest and faithful teachers, we have every reason to look forward to a happy and prosperous season this year.

TO THE CONGREGATION OF ST. STEPHEN'S CHURCH.

The Vestry has elected Rev. Carl E. Grammer, S. T. D., the Rector of this Parish. Dr. Grammer has accepted and will enter upon his service at St. Stephen's almost immediately. He will occupy the pulpit on Sunday, October 8.

Dr. Grammer comes directly from Christ Church, Norfolk, Va., where he has been Rector for seven years. He will bring to St. Stephen's Church the fruits of a noble experience in the Church of God. Dr. Grammer has been in the ministry for nearly twenty years.

He is married and has three daughters, all comparatively young. The Vestry has secured No. 1024 Spruce Street, and Dr. and Mrs. Grammer will presently take possession of the new Rectory.

Dr. Grammer visited the Parish as a guest of the Vestry early in September. Mrs. Grammer accompanied him. He made a thorough study of the records of the Church, and a careful inspection of the whole "plant." A day was spent at the Burd Orphan Asylum, and another day at St. Stephen's Farm. Dr. Grammer was noticeably impressed by the scope of St. Stephen's work, and by the many useful activities of the Parish.

The Vestry has searched with diligent care for a Rector to succeed Dr. Worcester. It was necessary to proceed without haste, as the responsibilities involved were grave. Nevertheless the Vestry did not countenance delay, and informal conferences have been held almost every week since the pulpit became vacant. Many names were suggested and several volunteer candidates appeared. The vote which elected Dr. Grammer was unanimous, with every member of the Vestry accounted for, excepting Mr. Caldwell, who was in Europe. The Vestry has assured Dr. Grammer of a devoted, united Parish—and the Vestry feels satisfied that Dr. Grammer will eloquently fulfill the highest aspirations of this noble Church.

THE REV. DR. CARL E. GRAMMER.

Dr. Grammer is the son of the Rev. Julius E. Grammer, D. D., and Elizabeth Sparrow, the daughter of the Rev. William Sparrow, D. D., for many years dean of the Theological Seminary of Virginia. After taking his B. A. at the Johns Hopkins University and a course at the Law School of the University of Maryland, he entered the Theological Seminary of Virginia. On his graduation in 1884 he took a charge at Hancock, Maryland, and later one in Cincinnati.

In 1887 he became the professor of church history and canon law at the Virginia Seminary, and continued in this chair till he accepted a call to his present charge, Christ Church, Norfolk, in 1898.

The degree of Doctor of Sacred Theology was conferred on him by Trinity College, Connecticut, in 1894, and he has been a delegate to three general conventions.

WE WISH TO thank Mr. W. L. Ramson for the clothing so kindly sent last June to the Parish House for distribution to the needy.

MR. MILLER'S SUCCESSOR.

It has been of course known to the Vestry and to the congregation that Mr. Miller, who returned to the Church when it was without spiritual guidance, at the earnest request of the Vestry, would relinquish his charge as soon as a new Rector had been appointed. Dr. Grammer has asked Mr. Miller to remain with him for a little while—in order "to unite the rectorates through him"—and it is hoped that the spirit which has always been so unselfish in its devoted service to St. Stephen's may prompt him, at some personal sacrifice, no doubt, to accept Dr. Grammer's invitation. In any event, however, the association will be briefly temporary, and the Vestry is glad at this time to make further acknowledgment of its grateful obligation to Mr. Miller for his faithful, loving service to the Church and Parish.

It is pleasant to be able to add the announcement of a successor to Mr. Miller, so that the Church will be prepared to resume her sphere of active usefulness with renewed zest and vigor. Under date of September 22, Dr. Grammer writes: "You will be gratified to know that I have secured the Rev. Mr. Ewell as Assistant: single, between twenty-five and thirty, at least two years in the ministry, athletic, of fine presence, and a good reader. His present charge is Hancock, Md., and he will come to us by November 1." So the future spreads out before dear old young St. Stephen's, full of strength and hope and promise.

ST. STEPHEN'S FARM.

At this time it is only possible to state briefly that the Farm has just concluded the most successful season in its history. The Summer has been a happy and helpful one, and about five hundred persons—mostly of this Parish—have been benefited by the noble charity of which St. Stephen's may be justly proud. There were times when the "family" at the Farm reached sixty, and very few times when it was below forty. To keep this big household in good health and good spirits, and to minister to their comfort and welfare, was the task discharged with unfailing credit by Miss M. Argyle Lyon. Miss Lyon has been "House-Mother" now for two seasons, and visitors at the Farm have learned to deeply appreciate her tender kindness and her gentle tact. This Summer Miss Lyon has had the assistance of Miss Katherine Fetzer, whose gracious co-operation contributed largely to the general happiness. So the curtain descends for another year, upon the Farm's blessed usefulness, with the comforting realization of "a good work: well done."

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

The Sunday School will enter upon a new era with vigor and hopefulness. The coming of a new Rector will give renewed zest to the efforts of scholars and teachers alike—and before the year is very old it may be expected to record a further steady increase in the membership of the School. This may be best brought about by the active interest of those already in our family. The Sunday School aims to maintain a warm personal relation among its members, and it is this sentiment which has given to the School such a spirit of "good-fellowship" in its best sense.

VERY SOON THE many active Societies for Church work in our parish will begin their work for the coming season. The Female Benevolent Society, The Altar Society, The St. Stephen's Aid Society, The Garment Committee, The Girls' Friendly Society, The Mothers' Meeting, The King's Daughters, The Children's Friend Society, these are the agencies for Church work in our parish. They will make their appeal for helpers. Many of the earnest women of our parish have been actively associated with these Societies. Others are asked to look over the list and to select for themselves such departments of work where they can most profitably assist. If any feel ready to do so, they can send in their names to the heads of the various Societies or speak to the Clergy and they will be gladly welcomed into the ranks of our Church workers.

Summer has gone, and many little hearts have been made happy by the kind help of their friends of St. Stephen's Church, for which the members of the Children's Friend Society wish to thank you all.

Last Saturday was the last excursion, the whole Parish School was invited, and many poor little tots in the small streets in the city. Half-past one they started for the trolley car, all eager to reach the Park. Then bean-bags and balls were unpacked and the fun commenced.

But the empty tables in the Park had a tendency for many to sit around them, in expectation of something coming. Sure enough, a shout, and Mr. Jackson Blank's wagon is seen; all sit waiting until each in turn is served with ice cream, cake, buns and candy.

After that they were ready for all kinds of fun, story telling and singing, and just before leaving for home every one had a ride on the caroussel, which delighted them very much, "saying it was nice and thank you." So ends the Summer's work. The members thank the King's Daughters and a Kind Friend who have done so much on all excursions to help make the children have a good time.

KINGS' DAUGHTERS OF THE WHATSOEVER CIRCLE will have their first meetings on October 4th and 18th, in the Guild Room of the Parish House at quarter of eight o'clock.

Very glad to have new members who wish to work In His Name.

FROM SEPTEMBER'S SPIRIT OF MISSIONS.

This issue goes to press before the treasurer's books have been closed for the fiscal year ending August 31st. It is impossible, therefore, to give final and accurate figures for the year's offering. We can say, however, that the increase in gifts over last year has been well maintained, amounting on August 15th to $81,000. This means that the offerings from congregations and individuals for the year September 1st, 1904, to August 31st, 1905, far surpass the offerings for any previous year in the history of the American Church. It means, too, that the offerings from congregations and individuals during the last fiscal year, are just about double the offerings from the same sources four years ago. A gain of one hundred per cent. in four years from living donors is a fact so significant as to reqire no comment. It is full of promise for the years to come. It is no rash statement to predict that within the next five years the congregations and individuals in the Church will be giving at the rate of a round million dollars a year, and thus providing in full, with the offerings of the Woman's Auxiliary and the Sunday-school Auxiliary, for what are likely to be the necessary appropriations at that period; while legacies may be set free for use in extending and improving the mission plant. It is satisfactory to note, by the way, that the income from legacies applicable at the discretion of the Board, is likely to amount to $40,000, or more than twice as much as the income from the same for the previous year. The Sunday-school Auxiliary has again outdone itself by giving, at the last report, $119,612.02, from 3,508 schools. It seems certain that more than $120,000 will be given, since 100 schools are still to be heard from in order to bring the contributing number up to last year's record.

So much for some of the notable features of the year's giving. When so good a record has been made it is a pity to be obliged to say that even with these increases, the income will hardly be sufficient to meet the year's appropriations, so that a further deficit, the amount of which it is impossible to state accurately now, must be added to the existing deficiency. While this is undeniably disappointing, it should cause no discouragement. Marked as has been the gain in offerings, the increase in appropriations as compared with the preceding fiscal year has necessarily been even greater, amounting in all to $130,000.

SELECTIONS.

THE OBJECT OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Remember that the Sunday School is not, in any respect, to take the place of the Church. It is simply one of the means or instrumentalities used by the Church for the purpose of teaching the young the principles of Christian Faith and Duty. It must never be regarded or employed as an institution separate from and independent of the Church. It properly exists solely as a help to the ministers of the parish in discharge of their duty in feeding the Lambs of the Flock.

Therefore as soon as your children are old enough to understand and take part in public worship, see to it that they attend and do so. If they are permitted to set aside this duty, one great object of their instruction in the Sunday School will be defeated. You know that the time will soon come when your children will leave the Sunday School, and if now, the exercises there are permitted, as I fear they often are, to take the place of the appointed service in the Lord's house, they will have formed a habit of neglect that will bring to naught our best endeavors.

A SALUTATORY.

There was, in my time, a metaphysician at college, a post-graduate student, who was currently reported to have spent a whole year considering the two subjects of time and space. Certainly there is nothing more difficult to comprehend. Take, for example, time, who can estimate the swiftness of its flight? Here I am seated at my desk writing a salutatory for the PARISH NEWS, which will come out in a few days, and will bear the date of November, and it seems only the other day that I walked for the first time into the Church past the Burd monument and knelt at the prayer desk by the lecturn. By the time that this is in your hands, I shall have been Rector of St. Stephen's a month! It is inconceivable; a month, a twelth of a year. A month, and there are only nine months, perhaps hardly that many, in which the work is conducted with full energy. It is clear that our first duty is to begin to work with all our might. It may be that in time new methods, and new organizations will suggest themselves, but just now the first duty is to "seize the moments as they fly." We must not let the Winter find us still preparing to work. The Sunday School scholars ought to be looked up at once, the members of the various societies and guilds ought to make a point of attending the opening meetings, and like a well trained orchestra, the full energy of our force ought to be at command at once. What a sign of harmony and energy, of loyalty and leadership, it would be if our guilds could open in that cheering way. Perhaps, however, my words are wasted, and this is the fashion in St. Stephen's. There have been many pleasant discoveries connected with the parish, but there could be few pleasanter than this.

Let me remind the secretaries of the various organizations that I shall be much obliged to them if they will notify me of their opening meetings, as I desire to attend them all.

This first month has necessarily been much occupied with dometic and personal matters, but I hope to make a real beginning in visiting the parish in November. Of course this will take time, and I shall be much aided in my efforts to be a pastor, if the friends of those who are sick will let me know of such cases. Joseph rebuked his brethren for doubting his knowledge of the cup in the sack, saying: "Know ye not that such a man as I can certainly divine?" But whatever claim the prime minister of Pharoah might jocularly make to secret sources of knowledge, the rector of a parish is far from possessing any such power. Unlike Joseph, it is his difficulty often that people suppose him to know by inspiration of their illness and troubles. In many cases they fail to tell him for fear of making undue demands upon him. But that is a mistake. By this mistimed modesty, they make it difficult for him to exercise his pastoral functions. Under these circumstances we must look to friends to relieve the situation, and inform the rector of those who need his services. It is well to remember that there are reciprocal obligations. No minister can be a true pastor without the co-operation of the flock, and a people who call upon their minister in time of trouble will find that they are not really detering him from his studies, but are in fact helping him to deliver a living message to real needs.

I hear on all sides that the Rector of St. Stephen's is supposed to fill a special place in this community ex officio, but this first Winter my great aim must be to become acquainted with the congregation.

The music of our Church is widely famed. It is one of our sources of power. It is a great comfort to find in our Organist, an accomplished musician, who has so true an ideal, and aims to develop a congregational singing of the hymns. The Processional and Recessional are intended for the congregation as well as for the choir, and all ought to join in them. There is a story that is widely told about Bishop Temple, when he was in the See of London, which has always seemed to me far-fetched. The story runs that the Bishop dropped in at an evening service at a down-town parish-church and was so delighted with the hearty, congregational singing that he ventured to join in with his great, rough voice. Whereupon the next man in the pew, who had not, of course, recognized the visitor, thrust his elbow into the Bishop's side, and exclaimed, "I say, Governor, you spoil it all." The story has been widely told, but has every sign of being an invention. Any one would know an English bishop by his dress; a true Englishman would discern him "by instinct." Besides it is very improbable that a singer, even if defective in ear, would so miss the note, if there were a great volume of sound. Hearty singing, if it be not strained, is apt to create true singing. The clearly sounded notes control the wavering voices. The story was clearly invented to discourage congregational singing. The most serious danger to church music lies in another direction. I hope that St. Stephen's will be famous for the hearty manner in which the congregation sings the hymns, as well as for the exquisite harmony and sweetness of its chants and offertory anthems.

In the morning it is well to remember that there are non-musical as well as musical people in a large congregation, but in the afternoon I shall give the choir a larger scope. Is there anything more uplifting than the sound of "sweet and warbling voices out of tuneful choirs" in the twilight hours of a holy day of rest? The afternoon service will be followed by a sermon, and will be a time for teaching as well as for prayer, but it will also be a season when religion will be helped by the melodious art that Luther thought ranked next to theology in dignity.

But I must not say too much in my first editorial. I must not, however, omit to say that I shall value this little paper as a means of communication with the congregation. I hope that it will be widely read, and be a real power. The chief work in connection with it will fall upon the assistant, but I shall always have an article in it.

I trust that the Vestry in calling me, and that I in accepting the call, were both alike under Divine guidance, and that this association that means so much to both the parish and myself has been formed according to the will of God. Our only means of discovering His will in such matters is through a careful, conscientious use of our reason, and after we have done our best to find the course that leads to the largest usefulness, it is our duty to cast behind all fears and to move forward. Such must be the temper of the congregation and the rector. I shall, I doubt not, discover many things that need to be done in this great city, and it is probable shall find that even in loyal St. Stephen's there are difficulties to be overcome, and problems to be solved. And the congregation will find, as I doubt not they have already found, many limitations in their rector, and frailties that call for their charity and sympathy. You must be patient with him. It may be that he will learn. It is absolutely certain that it is only by mutual forbearance and large charity that any church can be kept together. It is a great aid to this end to keep steadily in mind the goal that we have in view in our association. If we are really in earnest, all will turn out for the best. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things will be added unto you'' is eternally true. If we are really trying to lead Christian lives, seeking to be conformed to the spirit of Christ, and asking for aid from the Father of spirits, we will assuredly grow in grace together, and in this city, that has been shown to be so dreadfully cankered by corruption, be enabled to lift up a standard, to bear a witness and to extend the Kingdom of God. May God grant it. Amen.

CARL E. GRAMMER.

OUR NEW ASSISTANT.

Before this paper will come out, the Rev. John E. Ewell, who has accepted the call to be the Rector's Assistant, will have officiated in St. Stephen's. St. Thomas, Hancock, his present charge, is undergoing repairs, and as he could hold no further services in it, he anticipated the date of his connection with St. Stephen's in response to the urgent appeals of the Rector, and came to Philadelphia on Saturday, October 28th. Mr. Ewell is a Baltimorean, like Dr. Grammer, and their careers have some striking points of similarity. Each graduated from the Johns Hopkins University, and the Theological Seminary in Virginia, and had St. Thomas, Hancock, for a first care. Mr. Ewell is under thirty, and was ordained to the deaconate in 1903, and advanced to the priesthood in May, 1904. He has declined some inviting calls to be Assistant in some of the leading churches of Baltimore. We have a good hope that he will prove the man for the place. The impression that he made in his first parish can be gathered from the following extract from a notice of his departure in the Hancock Advocate:

''The Rev. John Edward Ewell, rector of Saint Thomas' Protestant Episcopal Church, of Hancock, after due deliberation, has accepted the call extended him over a month ago, by St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Philadelphia, and will leave for his new field of labor about November 1.

''Mr. Ewell came here by appointment of Bishop Paret, on July 26, 1903, when yet a member of the Order of Deacons. For a man so young in years as well as experience, Mr. Ewell has not only accomplished a great work here, but has laid the foundation for still greater achievements. During his rectorship, which has covered the brief period of two years and three months, some twenty new members have been added to the church. The Sunday School has been vitalized by a spirit of progressiveness, while the kindergarten department, a new feature inaugurated by this young clergyman, is doing a noble work, and is a source which will undoubtedly prove fruitful to the church in years to come. The choir has been augmented and greatly stimulated by his untiring efforts and a handsome pipe organ adorns the choir-loft as a result of his labors. But this is not all, as one of his greatest undertakings is the work of thoroughly renovating the church, which is now going on and will be completed before his departure.

''He graced the pulpit with dignity and tranquility, and his sermons and addresses denoted careful preparation, at all times furnishing food for thought.

''Mr. Ewell has not only endeared himself to the members of St. Thomas parish, but his civility among men has made him popular with the people in general, and especially is this true among our young folks. His labors for good were not restricted to the confines of his own parish, but much has been done through his efforts to improve the moral standing of all classes of men. His presence will be missed in the wholesome pastimes indulged in by our young people as well as in the pulpit, and by his departure the social world of Hancock will lose a young man who had become a favorite, admired by all.

THE congregation of St. Stephen's ought to feel an interest in Christ Church, Norfolk, from which they have taken two rectors, Rev. Dr. Ducachet and the present rector. They will, therefore, be gratified to know that the Vestry of Christ Church has already found a successor to Dr. Grammer. He is the Rev. James W. Morris, D.D., of Leesburg, Va. Dr. Morris was one of the founders of the Mission in Brazil, where he labored for seven fruitful years. The ill health of his child compelled him to return to this country about three years ago. He is a man of unusual consecration and literary gifts. There is every reason for believing that the work in Christ Church will prosper under his zealous and sympathetic ministry. He visited Norfolk November 1st, and the people of Christ Church are hopeful that he will accept

A SUNDAY SCHOOL LIBRARY.

A library for the Infant School has been inaugurated by Miss Graham. Any contributions of suitable juvenile books would be much appreciated. Magazines will also be acceptable. A small library was collected last year, and it was found so useful that it is desirable to enlarge it.

THE GARMENT COMMITTEE.

It appears that this Committee is without a President and needs reorganization. For the present those who are accustomed to send clothing to it for distribution are requested to send their garments to the Parish House, as usual. Miss Bessie Graham will be in the Sunday School building every Tuesday at 11.30 A. M. to give out the clothing.

POTATOES FROM THE FARM.

Potatoes from St. Stephen's Farm will be delivered to members of the Parish during the month of November for 90 cents a bushel. The potatoes are the very best in the market. Apples will be sold for 60 cents a basket—good, eating apples. Orders may be sent through Mr. Joseph Clayton, Verger, or direct to Mr. Greenshields, St. Stephen's Farm, Warminster, Bucks Co., Pa.

CHILDREN'S FRIEND SOCIETY.

The excursions are now over, and the little tots will be looking forward to Thanksgiving and Christmas. It is hoped they will not be disappointed.

THE KINGS' DAUGHTERS OF THE WHATSOEVER CIRCLE have their next meetings November 1st and November 15th, in the Parish House, at quarter of eight o'clock.

It was a great disappointment to many, at the last meeting, to be absent when Dr. Grammer made his first visit to the Circle. Several were sick and others had special engagements, but it is hoped when he next visits the Circle that all will be there.

Work was started but little done, as Dr. Grammer's stories were more interesting than sewing. This week a friend and Sunday School scholar was sick, and was visited in the Jefferson Hospital by several members, and flowers were sent by the Circle.

SHOE FUND.

Received through Dr. Grammer from

Church Fund	$30.00
Miss Elinor Kalbfleish	.50
Mrs. Hand	1.00
Total	$31.50

This work will open on Monday, November 6th. Mrs. Vanderslice will be at the Parish House every Monday morning, from 11 until 12 o'clock.

Any shoes sent to the Parish House in care of Kings Daughters will be very acceptable.

GIRLS' FRIENDLY SOCIETY.

On Monday evening, October 30th, the Rector and Assistant visited the Society and spent part of a very social evening with the girls. Dr. Grammer made an address, pointing out that the religious part of the Society should not be overlooked, and continuing in a very happy vein, he spoke of his interest in his hearers, wishing them a most prosperous year, and promised his hearty co-operation and help in all the Society's undertakings. Mr. Ewell was then introduced, and spoke briefly of his coming relation and work with the Society.

THE MISSIONARY THANK OFFERING.

There was a meeting of the Church Club at the Church House on the evening of October 30th, in the interest of the "Men's Missionary Thank Offering of 1907."

Mr. Frank Lewis, of this parish, who is President of the Club, presided. The Assembly Room was crowded and great enthusiasm was manifested.

Bishop Whittaker's address was earnest and inspiring, and cannot help but arouse the men in their duty to this cause.

George Wharton Pepper, Esq., followed the Bishop in a clear, business-like and vigorous talk. Altogether the meeting impressed one as a missionary rally among the churchmen of the Diocese.

St. Stephen's has its part to do in this offering, and may it, as of old, arise and do its duty magnificently.

ADVENT.

In the first centuries, before we find any trace of the observance of Christmas Day, the great festal season of the year was the fifty days between Easter and Whitsunday, when all fasting was interdicted and the attitude in prayer was standing. But in our land and age the great festive season is undoubtedly the fifty days that follow Thanksgiving, or to speak more ecclesiastically, the days between Thanksgiving and Epiphany, the ancient Twelfth Night. With the National day of thanksgiving and feasting, the football season comes to an end and parents experience the relief from anxiety that comes to the family of the soldier when peace is declared. The joys of the Thanksgiving feast and holiday are all enhanced by the sense that the greater pleasures of Christmas are yet to come, and the whole period is dominated by the anticipations or the memories of that happy season. For the greater part of December the children will rise every morning with the joyous assurance that Christmas is one day nearer, and will go to bed every night with imaginations filled with the starry light of the Christmas candles. Those who have been taught that the true joys of Christmas can only be experienced by those who are givers as well as receivers, are carefully saving their weekly allowance and diligently scrutinizing the bargains in the stores. In happy homes there are many presents being fashioned in secret corners by industrious little hands. The volume of shopping is so great that thoughtful people begin early in the month in order that the clerks and delivery boys may be saved as much as possible from the excessive burdens of the closing days of the month. Entertainments are planning for visitors and friends, and sociability and friendliness are demanding that the activities of the world be either suspended for a season or devoted to their manifestation. Who does not rejoice in all this, or who could wish it otherwise?

Yet some one may ask: "How is all this in conformity with the idea of Advent as a penitential season, a kind of lesser Lent?" We may be reminded, too, of the Bishop of our Church who advised his clergy to discourage marriages during the Advent season—a piece of advice, by the way, which must greatly lessen his influence with the President, if our chief executive should ever learn of the Episcopal admonition. The Ecclesiastical New Year is at our doors and demanding a change of colors in our hangings, and giving us new themes for our sermons and the thrilling chapters in Isaiah for our lessons. How are we to establish harmonious relations between the observances of Sundays and of the week-days? The housewives are doing all they can to inhibit fasting. Are we to understand that the Church expects it? For my part I do not so understand the duty of the season. There is no lesson that religion teaches more universally or insistantly than the duty of moderation, and of carrying our consciences with us everywhere and into everything. Whether we eat or drink we are to do all to the glory of God. That is a lesson that is especially needed at this season, and that lesson the solemn truths of Advent may well bring home to us. But there is also a great deal in the Scriptures about rejoicing. This is a joyful and not a penitential season. It is only a penitential season so far as penitence is necessary to any real and deep joy. No one can really rejoice while his conscience is weighted with guilt, while he is living in sin, or drugging his nature so that its higher aspirations may not call out and disturb his peace. Advent calls to such sleepers to awake. It arouses them in order that they may really live and know the joys as well as the duties of life. Its key-note is energy, wakefulness, preparation, and above all the thought that in God's wonderful love we may look forward to meeting Him whose first coming at Christmas was the beginning of one era and whose second coming is always spoken of as the opening of a still greater epoch, when the splendors of eternity shall be unrolled before our eyes. The part of the Advent message in this festal time is to raise our thoughts from lower joys to higher joys, to carry us up the shallow streams to the deep fountain-head and to remind us that a season of peace and happiness among men should also be a time for rendering glory to God in the highest. The real joys of this season can not be tasted by the mere secularist, the kind of man who sends for a Christmas card, a picture of a table heavily laden with good things, roast beef, puddings, pies, wines and fruit, with the motto: "Christmas comes but once a year." No man can observe Christmas in this spirit. His feast is simply the old pagan feast of the winter solstice, the Saxon Yule. The true Chistmas is a day of holy joy, a day when we think of God's love in sending Jesus Christ into the world, and the true happiness of all this festive season must be grounded upon our harmony with the great duties and principles of religion and morality. This season calls, "Come, be happy," and Advent chimes in like the bell upon St. Stephen's tower, among the bells of the time-pieces around it, "To be truly happy, you must walk in the way of the Lord." C. E. G.

THE CHURCH WORK FUND.

It has been the custom of the Rectors of St. Stephen's for a number of years to send out an appeal about this time, usually in November, asking their parishioners to contribute a fund to enable the Rector to conduct successfully the philanthropic and charitable work of the parish. Out of this fund the salary of the deaconess is paid, and by its aid our various enterprises are equipped and maintained. It meets the necessary expenses of administration which are incurred in our charitable and other work, and which extend beyond the engagements of the Vestry. The treasurer and distributor is the Rector of the Parish. The amount contributed last year for this purpose was about $1600.

The Rector sends out this week a note to those who have hithero subscribed to this fund, informing them that the work is being done on the lines laid down in the past, and needs the money that was given in the past. Eighty dollars have already been placed in his hands for this purpose, and he doubts not that former contributors will continue their gifts.

It would be a mistake, however, to limit this appeal either to those who have already given, or to those who can give largely. The Church of Christ can never fulfil its functions and unite men in a fellowship of service if some do all of the giving and others all of the receiving. Every member of the Church ought to aid according to his ability in every good work. This makes him a full member. In the New England churches they had a custom at one time of bringing people in under what was called "the half-way covenant," and so making them half-way members. There are a great many half-way members in every church. There are even quarter members and hemi-demi members. It is just as important to round these fractional members into full-orbed brightness, as it it is to bring in new recruits. Indeed the waning lustre of some of these "lights of the world" keeps back recruits by making them distrust the power and permanence of religious impressions, or rather convictions. The best way of gaining recruits is to kindle the zeal of our present members. Now no one can be greatly interested in a work in which he has no active part. If, therefore, there are people in St. Stephen's who find it cold, and are uninterested in its activities, here is their remedy. Bear a hand, take part in the work, and make a beginning by contributing to the Church Work Fund. The Rector will feel that this fund fails of part of its efficacy if it is made up by only a score of people. The contributors ought to run up into the hundreds, and it ought to represent the interest and generosity of the whole congregation in support of the common work. He begs the congregation to regard it in this light, and try to unite in giving, that they may unite in praise, and in the joy of the season.

"This I say, He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly: and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully. Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give: not grudgingly, or of necessity; for God loveth a cheerful giver."—2 Cor. 9: 6, 7. CARL E. GRAMMER.

THE only contribution of Juvenile Books for the Sunday School library, made in answer to the appeal in last month's PARISH NEWS was some books from Miss Fitz Gerald. It is hoped that further contributions will be made.

CHRISTMAS DINNERS.

It has been the custom for a number of years in St. Stephen's Church for the congregation to provide the poor of the Parish with dinners at Christmas time. In this way nearly one thousand persons have been taken care of and relieved of want at a period when our thoughts turn naturally to joy and good cheer. Although it is not easy to exactly determine the pro rata cost, it can be safely asserted that a good dinner can be supplied to a family of four or six for two or three dollars. The season of rejoicing is at hand. The country is prosperous. The nation is at peace. The love of men for their neighbors is constantly expressing itself. The poor we have with us always. Let us remember them this year with generous hearts and generous hands. Contributions for the Christmas Dinner Fund may be handed or sent to the Rector, Mr. Ewell or Mr. Clavton. The system of distribution is well organized. There is no waste and nothing goes where it is not deserved. We can feed fifteen hundred persons, two thousand persons this Christmas time, if you provide us with the means. Care is taken that the gifts go to the deserving poor. All contributions should be received no later than December 22d.

ON Christmas Day the services in the Church will be at eight o'clock, celebration of the Holy Communion; at eleven o'clock, Service and Holy Communion, with Sermon by Bishop Mackay-Smith.

The offerings at these services will be for the Aged and Infirm Clergy Fund of the Diocese.

THE Sunday School Christmas Festival will be held on Holy Innocents' Day (Thursday), at 8 o'clock P. M.

The Infant Class will have its festival on Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock in the Sunday School Building.

CHILDREN'S FRIEND SOCIETY.

Donations in November:

Received through Dr. Grammer from Church Fund	$50.00
From Mrs. H. F. Martin	1.00
Total,	$51.00

The children will have their treat some time the beginning of December; the time has not been decided yet.

THE KINGS' DAUGHTERS OF THE WHATSOEVER CIRCLE have their next meetings on December 5th and December 20th, in the Parish House, at quarter of 8 o'clock.

Donations received towards the Thanksgiving baskets:

Mrs. M. M. Parmalee	.75
Miss Josephine Lindenmayer	.50
Miss Alice Kelly	1.00
Miss Elinor Kalbfleish	.50
Mrs. Charles Moore	.50
Miss Lizzie Haas	.50
Total	$3.75

Groceries received from Miss Minnie Wilder, Miss Bertha Walshe, Miss Crom, Miss Kehl, Miss Goss, Miss Jefferies, Miss Taggart, Miss Lindenmayer and Mrs. Vanderslice. This Circle expects to help three or four families and put all sorts of good things in their basket for Thanksgiving.

SHOE FUND.

Donations received in November:

From Mrs. H. F. Martin	.25
Mrs. M. M. Parmalee	.25
Miss Bessie Graham	5.00
From those receiving shoes	7.00
Total	$12.50

This work was started November 6th. $30.60 has been expended and over forty pairs of shoes given out to the poor of the Parish, Infant School and Parish School and a few others.

Donations of shoes partly worn have also been received from Mrs. E. Brown, Mrs. E. L. Williamson, Mrs. E. L. Stovell, Miss. M. J. Vanderslice, Miss M. S. Wilkins, Kind Friends and Miss M. C. and Miss M. Jeffries.

One can hardly realize what it is to many of these poor people, both small and large, to have a new pair of shoes. Some weeks ago, on trying on a pair, the foot was turned first one side and then the other. After waiting a few minutes she was asked, "Why don't you put the other on?" "Oh! I was so happy that I forgot; it has been so long since I had a new pair." The work is increasing more and more in our own Parish.

Miss Fetzer very kindly offered to assist. Any donations in shoes or money (especially shoes for small children, as they are particularly high this year) sent to the Parish House in care of Miss Fetzer or Mrs. Vanderslice marked for Shoe Fund will be very acceptable and will be put to good use.

The Garment Committee acknowledges with thanks donations of clothing from Miss Christopher, Mrs. Parmalee, Mrs. Chandler, Miss Cleemann, Miss Goss, Miss Woodward, a basket of toys from Miss Fitz Gerald, $1.00 from Miss Cromparger, also 41 garments from the Needle-work Guild.

WILLING WORKERS

There are tremendous possibilities of work to be done in this Parish. When a need presents itself it would be a splendid advantage to the clergy to know on whom to call. How helpful it would be for members of the Church to volunteer to be on a list of "Willing Workers." This would greatly expedite efforts made to bring the right worker and the proper place together. This is what now is being done, and every one who is not engaged at present in any Parish activity is urged to volunteer, and the need and supply can soon be brought together. Such an enthusiasm would add tremendously to our usefulness and more of a needed warmth felt in the work

A Happy New Year to All.

THE THREE ARTS CLUB.

On the last Saturday of the old year Deaconess Hall, who was at one time connected with St. Stephen's, explained to the Rector and some of the women of the congregation the nature of this club, and expressed the hope that such work might be undertaken by St. Stephen's Church. The Deaconess spoke with all the weight that comes from a successful experience. She is the founder and adminstrative head of such a club in New York City, and has seen her work grow until it promises to become the starting point of a movement that will eventually reach all our chief cities. The Three Arts Club is an Association, under the fostering care of our church, of young women studying to equip themselves as professional musicians, painters, or actresses. Students of these three great arts of expression have common interests, common perils, and all alike, though in various degrees, lead a somewhat Bohemian life in their student days. The first successful effort to gather these classes into an organization where they are sheltered to some extent from the perils of social Bohemia, was in Paris in the well-known American Girls' Club, which was founded by an American woman of wealth, and affords a residence for about 30 young women. This Parisian Club has become a social center for hundreds, and a meeting place for American traveling women. The daily 5 o'clock tea is now a celebrated institution.

The Three Arts Club, of New York, is patterned upon this successful Club. It began in connection with "St. Mark's Church in the Bowery," but speedily out-grew the accommodations of its Parish House, and has now taken a seven-room apartment at 325 West 56th Street, conveniently near the Art Students' League, Carnegie Hall and other haunts of art and music students. There have been in residence 72 different members and the outside membership numbers 157. A second house has also been rented at 8 Lexington Avenue. All of its rooms also are taken, and there is a large waiting list. The honorary President is Bishop Greer, and the acting President Mrs. John H. Hammond.

By reason of its location and its traditions, St. Stephen's is peculiarly qualified and equipped to undertake this work in Philadelphia. Although there may not be many students in this city preparing themselves for the stage, there are many actresses who would be glad to become non-resident members in such an organization and who would welcome the social relaxation of its afternoon teas. The members of the Three Arts Club, of New York, would avail themselves of the courtesies of the sister organization on their visits to this city. There are, moreover, numbers of girls from the country, members of the Episcopal Church, who come to this city and never attach themselves to any church or form any Christian friendship outside of their own wandering tribe of art students. The plan is to begin by having an afternoon tea for students of the Three Arts in a suitably furnished room in the third story of the Parish House. Some form of social entertainment will also be provided for Sunday night from 8 to 10, particularly lonely hours for girls, especially when they have gone to afternoon service and feel the need for society and friendship rather than devotion at the close of the day. A committee of five ladies, with Miss Cleeman and Mrs. Carver at their head, has been appointed by the rector to consider the feasibility of this scheme. It is hoped that they will make a favorable report and that the first Three Arts Club in Philadelphia may be established under the auspices of our church.

There are two classes that make a special and peculiar appeal to Christian benevolence. The first class includes those whose perils arise from their deficiency of equipment or their lack of opportunity. The poor, the maim, the halt, the blind, the imbecile, the leper, and the unfortunate are peculiarly dear to the church of Jesus Christ, who came to seek and to save that which was lost. But there is another class whose perils arise from an entirely different direction that must not be overlooked. When the rich young ruler came to Christ with his splendid equipment of character and wealth, we read that Christ loved him. The beloved disciple was the gifted John. The Apostles were picked men, and for the sake of the world Christ felt it necessary to restrict his ministrations to the highly gifted Jews. The highly gifted and the richly endowed have their special peril and their peculiar claim upon the love and the care of the church. It is well to provide for the poor lepers, and it is also well to save, if we can, highly endowed natures who are endangered by the very abundance of their gifts and the emotional wealth of their endowment. The Three Arts Club is designed especially for this latter class.

The congregation will be informed of the decision of this committee, whether they decide to undertake the work and of the measures proposed.

AN IMPORTANT ORGANIZATION.

St. Stephen's Branch of The Woman's Auxiliary.

In response to the call from the Rector between twenty and thirty of the women of the Congregation gathered in the assembly room of parish house on a Tuesday in December. After some brief opening remarks by the Rector and a short service of prayer, Mrs. Perot explained the value of a parochial branch of The Woman's Auxiliary and gave some helpful advice and suggestions. It was generally realized that such an organization could give unity to the missionary work of St. Stephens. The delegates who go to the Diocesan meetings would go as representatives of the parochial branch and the impetus and information of the Diocesan meeting could be extended by reports rendered to this parochial society. It was agreed that all the delegates and Missionary Box Committees should be considered as commissioned by this Parochial Woman's Auxiliary. Miss Fanny Magee, was elected president, Mr. Howard Butcher and Miss Julia MacAlister, secretaries. Mrs. Boyd was elected treasurer, but declined and that important office is as yet unfilled. It was determined that there should be four meetings in a year, to be summoned at the call of the president, at some convenient date in Advent, Epiphany, Lent and Easter-tide. The next meeting will be on Thursday, January 18th, at 11 a. m. It is hoped that every woman in the Congregation who can possibly connect herself with it, will join this organization.

These gatherings will be for conference, information, prayer and an increase of missionary zeal. Collections will not be taken, although it was the general sense of the first session that it would be wise to have some annual pledges from the members. The amount of the pledge would be left entirely to the individual and would be known only to the collector or the treasurer. The primary object is to secure attendance and interest. It is thought that a small pledge will add toward this end.

CHRISTMAS IN THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

The Sunday School reflects the gladness of Christmas in its best sense every year, and this year was no exception. The growth of the Primary Department has been so pronounced, that it was necessary for the first time in St. Stephen's history to hold the Primary Festival in the large room, and there, on Wednesday evening, December 27th, did all the little scholars and their friends assemble in gleeful anticipation. Dr. Grammer was present, and Mr. Ewell and Mr. McMichael. Miss Graham made a very happy opening address, in which she referred to the gratifying increase in numbers, saying that there were more than one hundred names now on the list of the Primary School. After the usual exercises were concluded, Miss Graham introduced the surprise of the evening, the tea table scene from "Alice in Wonderland," cleverly acted by four little pupils, who played Alice, the Dormouse, the March Hare, and The Hatter. The entertainment was thoroughly enjoyed. Miss Goss accompanied the children at the piano. The only drawback from the full pleasure of the evening was Mr. McMichael's failure to sing his third song.

On Thursday evening, December 28th, the Main Sunday School celebrated its Festival, and it was voted an emphatic success. The presence of Dr. Grammer, Dr. Snively, Mr. Ewell and Mr. Wood added greatly to the pleasure of the occasion, and when our dear friend, Mr. Miller, was escorted to the platform by Mr. McMichael, the School burst into enthusiastic applause. Mr. Miller came by special invitation, and his welcome must have convinced him that the affection of St. Stephen's Sunday School for him is as earnest and as genuine as ever. Dr. Grammer, Dr. Snively, Mr. Ewell and Mr. Miller all spoke briefly, Dr. Grammer being peculiarly happy in his address. The carols were sung with good spirit, and the pictures shown were much enjoyed. But the most delightful feature of the entertainment was a little "interlude" in which half a dozen attractive young girls and two boys very skillfully impersonated

"animated dolls," which were supposed to arrive from Kriss in a great, mysterious packing box. This box was carried on to the platform and opened with hammer and hatchet in front of the audience, and the "dolls" were then lifted out by Mr. Clayton and Mr. Michael. Mr. McMichael read a letter from Kriss, and then the "dolls" were wound up and became very original and entertaining. They talked and sang and danced, and everybody was delighted. Mrs. Vanderslice had charge of the distribution of cakes and candies, and the evening closed with the beautiful carol: "Silent Night, Holy Night."

The Entertainment of the Girls' Friendly was held on Friday, December 29th in the Sunday School room. Miss Wilkins and the girls gave a very pleasant evening to the members and their friends. The shadow pictures with their romantic stories were much enjoyed, but the hit of the evening was the scene between the two girls who discussed the witless but wealthy young man in whom they thought they possessed a victim of their bright eyes. With the distribution of presents and the invariably popular ice cream and cake the evening came to a joyous close.

The Epiphany Meeting of the Women's Auxiliary will be held in the large hall of the Witherspoon Building on January 24th, at 8 P. M.

Mr. Talcott Williams will preside and speak, also the Rev. Mr. Sherman, of Hankow. The Rev. J. Thompson Cole will make an address, illustrated by stereopticon views, on our Mission Work in China and Japan.

The colletion will be for Foreign Missions.

There were one hundred and thirty-eight dinners distributed on Saturday before Christmas. On thet morning the scene in the Parish House was a very animated one, with the "empties" coming in and the baskets well supplied going out. The efficient way the affair was handled did away with all confusion. The spirit of Christmas was truly there amid all the good cheer.

Sixty little ones were made very happy on New Year's Day at the "Maria Mitchell Memorial Dinner." They marched two by two into the feasting room, singing one of the processional hymns. After a blessing had been pronounced by Dr. Grammer, there was not a moment's delay in the scene of disappearing turkey and other good things. It was a strange sight to see the children, after a while, refuse more ice cream and cake. Joyously and content they departed with a box of candy under one arm and a present under the other.

AN APPEAL FROM THE LITTLE GIRLS' FRIENDLY.

The Little Girls' Friendly, or Candidates Class, meets in the Parish House every Saturday morning for an hour and a half sewing instruction. There are forty names on the list, and every week new pupils are being added to the Class. With the new year we are planning a system of work modelled on that taught at the Drexel Institute, and especially important for the smaller children and beginners.

In order to carry this out successfully, there should be a teacher for every six or eight girls. We are badly in need of assistance.

On December 19th about 250 children had their Thanksgiving and Christmas entertainment in the Sunday School room. It was an exhibition of Cloward's New Moving Pictures. The Chicken Thief amused them very much; also a picture which was called "Wanted, a Dog." A lady had advertised for a dog, and had forgoteen to state what kind. Imagine dogs of all sizes and kinds, until the poor lady was nearly frantic and started to run, and all the dogs after her. The children got quite excited, and roars of laughter filled the room. The poor lady ran and ran until she reached the Insane Asylum gate, when the keeper, supposing she was crazy, took her in, but she was soon let go again, much to the children's delight. The life of the Miners and the Cow Boys and the Indians interested them very much.

Mr. Reynolds, seeing the children's delight, kept the pictures moving until ten o'clock, instead of half-past nine, and many have said since, "that they dld not want to go home at all."

THE CHRISTIAN YEAR

Advent tells us "Christ is near."
Christmas tells us "Christ is here."
In Epiphany we trace
All the glory of His grace.
Sundays three that preface Lent
Will prepare us to repent,
That in Lent we may begin
Earnestly to mourn for sin.
Holy week and Easter then
Tell Who died and rose again;
On that happy Easter Day
"Christ is risen again," we say.
Yes; and Christ ascended, too,
To prepare a place for you;
So we give Him special praise
After those great forty days.
Then He sent His Holy Ghost
On the day of Pentecost,
With us ever to abide;
Well may we keep Whitsuntide.
Last of all we humbly sing,
Glory to our God and King—
Glory to the One in Three
On the feast of Trinity.

ST. STEPHEN'S FARM HOUSE

A MEMORIAL Window has been placed in the transept by Miss Maria Wilkins in loving memory of her Aunt, Miss Henrietta C. Wilkins, who was identified for many years with the parish. The subject of the window is an Angel presenting the scroll of a faithful witness. Its bright colors lighten as well as beautify that portion of the Church, and the memorial speaks of one who gave the Church her affection and her time and energy. The memory of the just is blessed.

The Parish Day School will have its closing and Christmas Festival exercises on Thursday morning before Christmas, at 10.30 o'clock.

THE Accounting Warden, Mr. Ludovic C. Cleemann, reports that Miss Anna J. Magee has given $3,000 towards the Endowment Fund of the Church. It is hoped that this important fund will be borne in mind by the members of the congregation. The income of these gifts will be added to principal, and is not available for the expenses of the Church until a specified amount has been raised.

POTATOES FROM THE FARM.

Potatoes from St. Stephen's Farm will be delivered to members of the Parish during the month of December for 90 cents a bushel. The potatoes are the very best in the market. Apples will be sold for 60 cents a basket—good, eating apples. Orders may be sent through Mr. Joseph Clayton, Verger, or direct to Mr. Greenshields, St. Stephen's Farm, Warminster, Bucks Co., Pa.

THE members of the Mother' Meeting would be very glad to have donations of second hand clothing. Black skirts and women's coats always desirable. Direct all packages to Parish House, care Mrs. Taylor, Mother's Meeting.

Annual Sale by the members of the Mothers' Meeting, at St. Stephen's Parish House, on Thursday, December 7, 1905, from 3 o'clock to 9.30 o'clock, for a special donation to St. Stephen's Farm. Useful and fancy articles, ice cream, home-made cake and candy, tea and rolls. Tickets, 10 cents.

TO MY SHUT-IN PARISHIONERS.

The Sunday's task is over, and I find myself thinking to-night of the members of St. Stephen's who could not come to church to-day. Some of them, it may be, have not been able to occuy their seats for many a day. With some, it may be, this can now be only an infrequent privilege, on bright, sunny days, in mild weather, when the spring-time is awaking the flowers and birds to life, or in the grateful freshness of the early Fall. Some, it may be, are confined to beds of feebleness and pain, and never expect to hear

"The storm the high-built organs make,
Or thunder-music rolling shake
The prophets blazoned on the panes."

I wonder how the time passes with you these Sundays—this past Sunday. Those who were regular and conscientious worshipers in health, have, I doubt not, to-day turned to our invaluable hand book of devotion. At eleven o'clock they began the Morning Prayer, and read the chants, psalter, lessons and prayers, while the sweet associations of the past blessed and sweetened their devotion with a sense of unity with the great congregations all over our land, and especially with the people of St. Stephen's who were hearing the same words. It may be, that they have added to this a sermon by Phillips Brooks, F. W. Robertson, Lidden, or Geo. Hodges, or it may be, if they love the English classics by "the younger lips or mimes, Taylor, the Shakespeare of divines," as Emerson calls him.

A sermon, in print, loses half of its power, so it is well to get the best. As a rule, the best sermons are not found in the newspapers. It is well to have on hand a good book of sermons for such days. It may be that you keep some good biography for Sunday reading. The lives of such men as Coleridge Pattison, John G. Paton, Norman McLeod, Dr. Chalmers, Dr. Thomas Arnold, Charles Kingsley, Phillips Brooks, David Livingstone, Lord Lawrence, Sir Henry Lawrence, Joseph Hardy Neesima, and Lord Shaftesbury are all full of moral and spiritual uplift.

But it may be, that some have not had strength for such books, and have turned to the pleasant Sunday fiction of their youth. What a peculiar pleasure there is in reading over again a book that one has not opened since one's early youth. The tender grace of a day that is dead, seems to come back as we open the pages. We recall the days when we poured over the simple story; the scenes as we first conceived them in all our childish simplicity of imagination come before us, and we feel as if we had been revisiting some playground of our childhood.

Then, too, if we have been fortunate enough to have had some supervision in our reading, we realize as never before, how deep and true those simple lessons were, and how much better we shoul be, if we had been guided by them.

As you read, you think, doubtless, of those who were beside you when you last read that story, the brother or sister who sat by you, and with arm over our neck, read off the same page. The old home, the familiar voices—the loved voices all come back. Or you may think of your children once treading on your dress, or sitting on your knee and placing their sharp little elbows on your chest, and now far away, in other homes, or scenes, or it may be on another sphere of existence, and you cannot read long. Your thoughts wander, and your eyes fill with tears. It may be that you feel especially lonely to-day. Yet this is the day for thinking of the great Friend, who knows all the secrets of our hearts, realizes all the needs of our nature, and will never leave or forsake us. Sunday's best name is the Lord's day, the day above all others for thinking of God.

It may be, that as you see the throngs pouring along the street, you feel especially to-day the chains of weakness or sickness that confine you to your room. It may help, if you think of yourselves as on the Mount of Intercession like Moses, Aaron and Hur, while Joshua fought with Amalek in the valley beneath. You may be shut in to prayer. May I ask you to remember the people of St. Stephen's and your new Rector. Ask that we may have earnestness of spirit. If religion is to have any reality, it must be earnest. Ask for us the spirit of courageous service. To be followers of Christ we must serve and must be brave.

Who can measure the power of prayer? The Apostles turned away even from helpful ministrations to the poor, that they might have time for prayer and the ministration of the Word. God has appointed our shut-in members to a special ministry of prayer and intercession.

It would be hard to magnify too highly the importance of your office. Who can point out the sources of spiritual power in a congregation? Many a hymn, or sermon, or chapter in the Bible may gain all its weight for some listener through the interpretation, the reality that is given to it, by the patient suffering of some christian invalid, some aged saint, in whom as the outer man wasteth, the inner man is renewed day by day. The minister is only the interpreter, rendering into common speech the higher language of such lives.

On visiting the home, the other day, of a lady whose children have all married and left her, I noticed that she had hung up, in a conspicuous place, some lines from Tennyson, which are filled with high resolution and a dauntless purpose to make the most of life. They run as follows:

Though much is taken, much abides: and though
We are not now, that strength which in old days
Moved heaven and earth: that which we are, we are,
One equal temper of heroic hearts
Made weak by time and fate, but strong in will
To strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield.

That is surely the right spirit in which to meet the gathering infirmities of years, and it is made more attainable if we keep close by faith and prayer to the source of all power and courage, and remember that the testimony of the closing years is essential to the full power of Christian witness and example.

I hope, in time, to know my shut-in members, although my progress in making visits is slower than I had anticipated. I send you this as a message to-night to show you that I have not forgotten you, and am not unmindful of the help of your prayers, nor the power of your lives.

Sincerely your Rector,
CARL E. GRAMMER.

THE LENT SCHEDULE.

ASH WEDNESDAY there will be the Litany, Ante-Communion and address by the Rector at 10.30 A. M. First St. Andrew's Brotherhood Service at 12.30 P. M. Address by Bishop Whittaker. Evening Prayer at 5 P. M.

CONFIRMATION will be administered on Tuesday in Holy Week at 10.30 A. M.

Confirmation Instruction.

Instructions to the Confirmation class will be given at the Vestry Room on Wednesday evenings (beginning Ash Wednesday) at 8 o'clock. Those who are ready and desirous to be confirmed are earnestly invited to be present.

The Rector being new to the parish, with no knowledge of the unconfirmed and unacquainted with the conditions that obtain, must trust to the spontaneous coming forward of young and old without personal seeking on his part.

Perhaps it might be a good opportunity for god-fathers and god-mothers to assume a responsibility, or undertake a privilege and bring their god-children, as they promised to do, that they may receive the proper instruction.

There are probably men and women, as well as children, of the age of discretion who, for one reason or another, have put off their confirmation. Why ?

At all events the Rector will welcome any one to the weekly instruction, whether proceeding to confirmation or not.

LENTEN SERVICES

The Mid-Day Services will be held as usual this Lent under the auspices of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew. Speaking more accurately, though, these services are under the joint-auspices of the Rector and the Brotherhood, as the speakers are jointly chosen and invited by both parties. MOTHERS' MEETING JUBILEE

On the evening of Thursday, January 4th, the Mothers had their holiday treat and entertainment. The Parish House Hall was most tastefully decorated with flags and flowers. A good word was spoken by both the Rector and Assistant. Miss Plantholtz and Miss Graham sang beautifully, and Miss Fetzer's recitations quite delighted the audience. Alice and her friends, the March Hare, the Door Mouse and the Hatter, appeared again in Wonderland and had anew their tea party. Their keen conversation caused much merriment.

The evening ended auspiciously with cream and cake. The Mothers' Society is a most important organization, and Mrs. H. P. Taylor and her assistant are to be heartily felicitated on their splendid work.

"THE PARISH NEWS."

It is hoped that the parishioners will make it a point to carry home THE PARISH NEWS, and read it carefully, and keep it for reference at least for a month.

THE NEW ORGANIZATION.

On Thursday, January 18th, according to the notice in the last number of the PARISH NEWS, the Woman's Auxiliary met in the Parish House. The President, Miss Magee, and the Vice-President, Mrs. Butcher, were in their places. Miss Julia McAlister, the Secretary, read the minutes, and Miss Headman was elected Treasurer. The brief preliminary service of song and prayer was conducted by the Rector. The principal business of the meeting was hearing the reports from the different delegations to the diocesan society. Miss Laura Bell made the report for Foreign Missions and explained the pledges made by it. Miss Wilkins spoke for the Colored Work. The contributions to Domestic Missions were explained by Miss Magee, and Miss Margaret Miller told of the work of the Box Committee. It was the general feeling that it was pleasant for each delegation to know what the others were doing, and for the members to learn in this way of the work of all the delegations. The meeting closed with an admirable and inspiring address by Miss Clara Neely, of Japan. Miss Neely has been in the interior in Japan, and the interest of her valuable work was deepened incalculably by the intensity of her earnestness and the heroism of her life. All felt that it was good to feel the powers that controlled such a life. Promptly at 12 o'clock the meeting closed. While the attendance was not quite thirty, and fell short of anticipations, there is a confident hope that the Lenten meeting will be much larger. The ladies of the congregation are asked to remember these meetings as the great meetings of the Parish for women. There will be only two more this year, one in Lenten, in March, and the other in Easter tide, on some Thursday in May.

THE ANNUAL OFFERING FOR DIOCESAN MISSIONS will be placed on the altar on Sunday morning, February 18th. This annual offering has come to be a well known and well approved institution in St. Stephen's. For the sake of those who have come to the Parish within the year, we will explain the method in use.

On Sunday morning, February 11th, from the pulpit, the work of Diocesan Missions will be presented. During the week which follows every family will be waited upon by a representative of the Parish to receive their contribution. He simply calls to receive offerings of those who give. He will make no argument or appeal of any kind. Of course he will be courteously received by all our people, whether they can see their way to contribute or not. The amount expected, according to a tacit agreement which has been in force for a number of years, is $5 from each person. This is what we have done heretofore, and nobody is any poorer, while many a poor missionary and struggling congregation or mission are much better off.

Of course there are many in the Parish who cannot afford to give so much as the sum mentioned above, but there are many others who can, and heretofore have given far more than the amount, so as to make up for their poorer neighbors. There is no fear but that they will do so again. The whole amount gathered by the collector will be placed in the alms basin Sunday, February 18th. This will be the first offering for this purpose received by the Rector, the Rev. Dr. Grammer, in this Parish. It is earnestly asked that the members of the Congregation have their offering ready, so that the agent of the Parish may be able to receive it when he calls, without waiting and without being compelled to call several times.

Representative of St. Stephen's on the Board of Managers of the Bishop White Parish Library Association

It is well for those making arrangements fo baptisms, marriages, funerals and other services, needing the presence of a clergyman of the church, to see one of the clergy before fixing the time.

LENT AT ST. STEPHENS.

According to the usage of former years, the Rector has entered into a partnership with the Brotherhood of St. Andrew for the maintenance of the Noonday services. It is hoped that at these services the Church will be filled with men, and that they may be as useful and largely attended as they have been in the past. But it is worth noting that there is also a special provision made for people who prefer a quiet service, where the pressure of life is less in evidence than in the sharp brevity of the devotions and addresses at the Noonday service. At five o'clock on every afternoon, except Saturday, there will be evening prayer, which will be followed by a brief address on Friday by Dr. Grammer, and on Wednesday by Mr. Ewell.

It is hoped that this service may be generally attended. It is true that many of the congregation live at a distance from St. Stephens, but if they are business men, they may be able to drop in for this service one or two afternoons of the week on their way home. It is probable that the great work of shopping will not be suspended even for Lent, and here is a service waiting for the shoppers at the close of their worries and strivings. They will go back home strengthened and refreshed by a half hour of devotional thought and prayer. Then, there are a great many St. Stephen's people who live within pleasant walking distance; many within sound of its bells. If they would make a point of attending some of these five o'clock services, we should find that we had quite a band of worshippers. Friday afternoon is the time when the young school children have an opportunity to come. The keynote of these services is struck in a sonnet by Archbishop Trench:

Lord, what a change within us one short hour,
Spent in Thy presence will prevail to make,
What heavy burdens from our bosoms take
What parched grounds refresh as with a shower?

We kneel and all around us seems to lower,
We rise, and all, the distant and the near Stands forth in sunny outline brave and clear,
We kneel how weak, we rise how full of power!

Why, therefore, should we do ourselves this wrong
Or others—that we are not always strong,
That we are ever overborne with care,
That we should ever weak or heartless be,
Anxious or troubled, when with us is prayer,
And joy and strength and courage are with Thee?

We must not in our great, crowded services with addresses by popular preachers, lose this ideal of a Lenten service as a time for stealing away from every 'cumbering care, and communing with God in prayer and meditation.

These lines of Archbishop Trench remind me that the fame of Trench as a learned scholar, equally at home in the uses and charges in the meaning of English words and in the synonyms of the Greek Testament has obscured to some extent his merits as a religious poet. We are so apt to think of learning and genius as dissociated, that the average lover of poetry would hardly care to open a book of poems by a writer, who had won his fame by philological or historical studies. Yet if we should overlook Trench's poems, we should miss a real treasury of devotional literature. Let me give another specimen. It will come home to some who have either faced or gone through a great bereavement:

Who that a watcher doth remain
Beside a couch of mortal pain
Deems he can ever smile again?

Or, who that weeps beside a bier
Counts he has any more to fear,
From the world's flatteries, false and leer?

And yet anon and he must start
At the light toys, in which his heart
Can now already claim its part.

O heart of ours! so weak and poor
That nothing there can long endure
And so their hurts find shameful cure.

While every sadder, wiser thought
Each holier aim which sorrow brought Fades quite away and comes to nought.

Oh Thou, who dost our weakness know,
Watch for us, that the strong hours so
Not even us from our wholesome woe.

Grant Thou, that we may long retain
The wholesome memories of pain
Nor wish to lose them soon again.

Trench's poems have been published in two volumes, and the gifted F. W. H. Myers has reviewed them with especial commendation of their classical culture. This quality is best seen in some of his more ambitious poems, but his real sincerity of feeling is seen in these verses. It may be that these quotations may find a place in some scrap or note-book, or send some lovers of poetry to the library for the complete collection.

I will close with one more selection:

Lord, many times and oft I aweary quite
Of mine ownself, my sin, my vanity,
Yet be not Thou, or I am lost outright,
Weary of me.

And hate against myself I often bear
And enter with myself in fierce debate,
Take Thou my part against myself nor share
In that just hate.

Best friends might loathe us if what thoughts perverse
We know of our ownselves, they also knew.
Lord, Holy One, if Thou who knowest worse
Should'st loathe us too!

C. E. G.

THE LENT SCHEDULE.

ASH WEDNESDAY there will be the Litany, Ante-Communion and address by the Rector at 10.30 A. M. First St. Andrew's Brotherhood Service at 12.30 P. M. Address by Bishop Whittaker. Evening Prayer at 5 P. M.

☞ ALL OTHER WEEK DAYS in Lent the Noon Service of the Brotherhood at 12.30, and Evening Prayer at 5 o'clock (except Saturday), with an address by the Rector on Fridays, and Mr. Ewell on Wednesdays.

CONFIRMATION will be administered on Tuesday in Holy Week at 10.30 A. M.

Confirmation Instruction.

Instructions to the Confirmation class will be given at the Vestry Room on Wednesday evenings (beginning Ash Wednesday) at 8 o'clock, by Dr. Grammer. Those who are ready and desirous to be confirmed are earnestly invited to be present.

The Rector being new to the parish, with no knowledge of the unconfirmed and unacquainted with the conditions that obtain, must trust to the spontaneous coming forward of young and old without personal seeking on his part.

Perhaps it might be a good opportunity for god-fathers and god-mothers to assume a responsibility, or undertake a privilege and bring their god-children, as they promised to do, that they may receive the proper instruction.

There are probably men and women, as well as children, of the age of discretion who, for one reason or another, have put off their confirmation. Why?

At all events the Rector will welcome any one to the weekly instruction, whether proceeding to confirmation or not.

LENTEN SERVICES.

The Mid-Day Services will be held as usual this Lent under the auspices of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew. Speaking more accurately, though, these services are under the joint auspices of the Rector and the Brotherhood, as the speakers are jointly chosen and invited by both parties. The services open at 12.30 and last precisely twenty-five minutes. They will be conducted by the Rector or Mr. Ewell.

The preachers will be as follows:

February 28, Ash-Wednesday, Bishop Whitaker.
March 1, Thursday, Bishop-Coadjutor Mackay-Smith.
March 2, Friday, Bishop Coleman, of Delaware.
March 3, Saturday, Rev. Norman VanPelt Levis, Church of the Incarnation.

ST. STEPHEN'S BRANCH OF THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY.

This important Society, which, it is hoped, will eventually contain all the women of the congregation, will have its third meeting on Thursday, March 22d, at 3.30 P. M., in the Parish House. The different Committees will make their reports, and a brief address will be delivered by an invited speaker. There are only four of these meetings in the year. If every one who has promised to come, fulfils her promise, and all who were present last time will bring a friend, this next meeting will be so large that we shall move into the Church. Let us unite to make this Society a comprehensive gathering of our women to learn about the work being done by our Church for the cause of God.

C. E. G.

The Garment Committee held a most profitable Rummage Sale on Tuesday, February 27th, at which was netted $26.65. Grateful acknowledgment is made to Miss Dutilh, Miss Cleemann, Mrs. Grammer, Miss Fernley, Miss Bell, and Miss Maury, for garments sent to this Sale. The Committee reports itself in a most prosperous condition and acknowledges its indebtedness to Miss Fetzer for her very active assistance.

DR. FRANKLIN'S TESTIMONY.

The following familiar remarks by Dr. Franklin ought to be known by every child in our Parish. They are worth cutting out and pasting in the fly leaves of our Bibles or Prayer Books. Our whole country is commemorating just now in this Centennial year of Franklin's birth, the talents, philanthropy, patriotism, and wisdom of this great American sage. He lived in a century of much coldness in religion, and was thrown, both in England and France, much into the company of the so-called "free thinkers." Yet it is clear from this address that he was a firm believer in a Providential government of the universe and in the power of prayer. This testimony found utterance in the deliberations of the Convention for the formation of the Constitution of the United States, which met in Philadelphia in the Spring of 1787. The Convention had made little progress in its important work on account of disagreements on essential points when Franklin introduced a motion for daily prayers with the following words:

"In the beginning of the contest with Britain, when we were sensible of danger, we had daily prayers in this room for the divine protection. Our prayers, Sir, were heard; and they were graciously answered. All of us, who were engaged in the struggle, must have observed frequent iustances of a superintending Providence in our favor. To that kind of Providence we owe this happy opportunity of consulting in peace on the means of establishing our future national felicity. And have we now forgotten that powerful friend? or do we imagine we no longer need his assistance? I have lived, Sir, a long time; and, the longer I live, the more convincing proofs I see of this truth, that God governs in the affairs of men. And, if a sparrow cannot fall to the ground without his notice, is it probable that an empire can rise without his aid? We have been assured, Sir, in the Sacred Writings, that 'except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it.' I firmly believe this; and I also believe, that, without his concurring aid, we shall succeed in this political building no better than the builders of Babel; we shall be divided by our little, partial, local interests, our projects will be confounded, and we ourselves shall become a reproach and a by-word down to future ages. And, what is worse, mankind may hereafter, from this unfortunate instance, despair of establishing government by human wisdom, and leave it to chance, war, and conquest. I therefore beg leave to move, that henceforth prayers, imploring the assistance of Heaven and its blessings on our deliberations, be held in this assembly every morning before we proceed to business; and that one or more of the clergy of this city be requested to officiate in that service."—(Spark's Life of Franklin.)

TEACHERS' CLASS.

Mr. Ewell will conduct an instruction class for the Sunday School teachers and others who wish to attend every Friday evening at eight o'clock. The first meeting will be on March the second. It is hoped that such a class will be a stimulus to the Sunday School work.

A meeting under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary, the Cuban Guild, the Clerical Brotherhood, and the Church Club, will be held at the Church of the Holy Trinity, Nineteenth and Walnut Streets, on Tuesday evening, March 20th, at 8 o'clock. The Rt. Rev. O. W. Whitaker, D.D., will address the meeting and give an account of his recent trip to Cuba. Just now all that concerns Cuba is full of interest to the American people. Members of our Parish are cordially invited to be present.

ST. STEPHEN'S AID SOCIETY.

The members of St. Stephen's Aid Society meet in the Parish House every Friday morning at 10.30 during Lent. The Society is in great need of more workers, and here is a splendid opportunity to volunteer for some positive work during the Lenten season. This is the society that provides clothing for infants. Any ladies who would be willing to work at home could secure materials at the first meeting on Friday, the second of March.

"THE PARISH NEWS."

It is hoped that the parishioners will make it a point to carry home the PARISH NEWS, and read it carefully, and keep it for reference at least for a month

Meetings attended	4

Sincere and grateful thanks are given to Miss Sanders for coal tickets; Miss Van Dusen for shoes and nice, black skirt; Mrs. H. P. Taylor for blanket; Mrs. R. T. Boyd for clothing; Miss Neidhard for coal ticket; Mrs. Crombarger for clothing; Mrs. Vanderslice for donation for sick child; a kind, personal friend for large bundle of clothing, and to "A Friend" for permission to purchase and have charged to his account at Blank's, delicacies for the sick, whenever and in whatever quantity needed.

I should like to add further that "cast-off" articles of either clothing or household effects are most useful to me in my work and would be most gratefully received. An article must be dilapidated, indeed, if I cannot make some use of it. At present a carpet-sweeper is the thing "greatly to be desired." A crippled lady, a "shut-in" who finds it impossible to use a broom, can push a "sweeper" easily and derive both benefit and pleasure from the exercise. If you have an old sweeper and wish to get it out of the way, I shall be most glad to relieve you of it, and more than pleased to help this heavily handicapped woman to "help herself."

The attention of the ladies of the congregation is called to a Sale that the managers of the Benevolent Society will hold in the Guild Room on March 8th and 9th from 11 to 1 o'clock. The articles are those used in every household, such as towels, aprons, etc., and also garments suitable for the Needlework Guilds. Everything will be sold at greatly reduced prices.

It is hoped that there will be a full attendance, because the stock on hand is large, and at the end of the season's work money is needed to pay off all accounts.

Representative of St. Stephen's on the Board of Managers of the Bishop White Parish Library Association
MISS EMILY BELL

[In the annual report for 1905, this Society acknowledges $17 from St. Stephen's through Miss Bell. This is less than we should give to this useful agency for spreading good literature among our poorer clergy.]

Communications can be sent through the Verger, Joseph Clayton, No. 225 S. 11th St., at any time. The Rector's days will be Tuesday and Friday.

It is well for those making arrangements for baptisms, marriages, funerals and other services, needing the presence of a clergyman of the church, to see one of the clergy before fixing the time.

LENT AT ST. STEPHENS.

During Lent services are held daily in the Church. Short service and address at 12.30 o'clock, and Evening Prayer at 5 o'clock, except Saturday.

Confirmation will be as usual on Tuesday in Holy Week, April 18th, at 10.30 in the morning, by Bishop Coadjuter Mackay-Smith.

On Thursday before Easter Holy Communion will be celebrated at the evening Service at 5 o'clock.

On Good Friday there will be Morning Prayer, Litany and Sermon at 10.30. Mid-day Service at 12.30 and Evening Prayer at 5 o'clock. Offerings for City Missions.

During Holy Week there will be a Service at 11.30 A M., when the story of our Lord's Passion as contained in the Gospels of the week will be read.

On Easter Day Holy Communion will be administered at 8 A.M. Morning Prayer, Sermon and Holy Communion at 11 o'clock, and Evening Prayer and Sermon at 4 o'clock. Offerings for for Stephens Farm.

The Easter Carol Service of the Sunday School, Parish School and Burd Orphan Asylum will be held on Sunday after Easter, at 4 o'clock. The offerings of the year will be received for Missions and placed on the altar.

On Easter Day the Services will be at 8 o'clock, 11 o'clock and 4 o'clock. At the two latter Services the pew-holders and regular members of the congregation will be admitted as usual through the transcept door. The front doors will be opened promptly at the hour of the Service itself, and the visitors will be provided with seats to the full capacity of the Church.

It seems rather an inhospitable mode of action, but upon reflection it will commend itself to all reasonable people. It is but right and fair that those who attend the Service all the other days of the year, should have an opportunity to occupy their own seats on the great high festival, and that those who only visit the church upon such occasions should be asked to wait upon the convenience of the regular attendants.

THE GARMENT COMMITTEE

Acknowledges with thanks the receipt of garments from Miss Maulsby and Miss Magee.

THE THREE ARTS CLUB

In the January number of THE PARISH NEWS, the Rector presented to the congregation of St. Stephen's Church a proposition to establish a Club to be known as "The Three Arts." The object of this Club, as well as the sketch of the origin and growth of the parent Clubs in Paris and New York, he explained at length, and the result was the appointment of the Committee to consider the feasability of such an enterprise.

This Committee, being ultimately reduced to four members, harmoniously elected themselves to the following four offices:

Mrs. Charles Carver, President
Miss Emily Bell, Vice-President
Mrs. Edward R. Fell, Treasurer
Miss Bessis Graham, Secretary

Miss Graham and Miss Bell went to New York to confer further with Deaconess Hall, who is in charge of the Club House at 803 Lexington Avenue, and their visit having inspired them with the belief that a modest beginning of a similar enterprise might be undertaken in Philadelphia, a favorable report was made to the members of the Committee. A circular was prepared, copies of which were placed in the various Art and Music schools through the city, as well as at the one Dramatic school, and in some cases a personal explanation was given to the students. The immediate purpose of the circular, as may be seen from the one posted in the Parish House, was the opening of the Tea Rooms in the third story of that building on Friday, March 16th.

About a hundred young women, students and lovers of the Three Arts, responded to the invitation, and after a few words of welcome from Miss Bell, followed by a short explanation of the object of the Club, she entrusted its success to the interest shown it by the young women students of the arts specified. Mrs. Edward H. Coates gave some original and other recitations, and tea table talks with a musical accompaniment completed the opening of the Three Arts Club.

During the past two weeks fifty-six names have been enrolled as members and ten have been secured from four until six o'clock. A musical entertainment, interspersed with dramatic recitations, was given on Friday afternoon, March 30th, at 4.30 o'clock, and on Sunday evening, April 1st, at 8 o'clock, Mr. Clayton F. McMichael gave an illustrated talk on Tissot's "Life of Christ," to which each member was allowed the privilege of bringing a friend.

At a later date, when the stability of the Club is sufficiently assured, it is proposed that the dues of the student members shall be $1 annually.

In submitting this report, one thing remains to be said—the Committee of Four who have launched this new enterprise wish to have it clearly understood that they have done so at the request of the Rector, that they are not a close corporation, and that they desire to depend upon the co-operation of all the congregation.

The officers of the various societies of the Parish will please send to the Rev. John E. Ewell, No. 9 S. Tenth Street, the Annual Reports of money received and expended, and also account of work done from May 1, 1905, to May 1, 1906.

Please have these reports sent in not later than May 1st, for publication in the next copy of THE PARISH NEWS.

MID-DAY SERVICES

The services are being well attended, and the remaining services will have the following speakers:

THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

The Lenten Meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Stephen's Church was held in the Parish House on Thursday afternoon, March 22d, at 3.30 o'clock. There were about thirty members present.

Dr. Grammer opened the meeting with a short Service. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the Secretary, and the Treasurer reported $8 in the treasury. The delegates to the Diocesan Auxiliary told of the proceedings of the Diocesan meeting, and gave reports of the money given or pledged by these since the last meeting. The Committees were represented by

Mrs. Grammer—Foreign
Miss Wilkins—The Colored People.
Miss Josehine Lewis—Indian
Miss Magee—Domestic

Miss Magee also read a report of the United Offering, telling of its growth and its objects.

Mrs. Grammer made a special plea for the work in Mexico, and also asked for donations of dolls, gingham aprons for children, and Easter cards for Miss Neely, who wants such things for her work in Japan.

Dr. Grammer introduced Mr. Honda, of Japan, who is a Professor in the Higher Normal School of Tokio. Mr. Honda read a very interesting paper on Japanese customs and the education of the women, dwelling particularly on the great need for more schools for the higher education of girls and women.

In closing, Dr. Grammer spoke to the Society of the need of voluntary pledges of money, to be paid yearly or quarterly, and asked all the ladies present to enroll themselves as members of the Society by giving their names to the treasurer and stating the amount of their pledges.

GIRL'S FRIENDLY SOCIETY.

A very successful entertainment was given by the members of the Girls Friendly Society, assisted by the St. Stephen's Literary Club, on Monday evening, February 26th, for the benefit of "Fatima," the little girl in India, who has been supported by the Society for several years past. A letter from Fatima, telling of her progress, was read by the Rev. John E. Ewell. Mr. Landreth organized for the occasion a Glee Club of eight men, mostly members of the Orpheus Club, who rendered two very pleasing numbers. "The Cool Collegians" was very cleverly performed by the Misses Roberts, May Elliott, Maud Johns, and Messrs. Harry H. Bush, Charles H. Moore, D'Arcy Davis and William Kuhn. "His First Case," which was executed by Miss Maud Johns and Mr. Roy Morrison, was very bright and amusing. Some of the members, dressed to represent nations, sold lemonade and cake for a very small amount during the evening. A table with some fancy articles also added to the proceeds; and the candy, which was all made by the girls, judging from its quick sale, was very much appreciated. The amount cleared was $57.80.

The Girls Friendly Society wish to take advantake of this opportunity to thank each one who assisted them in making the evening a success.

TEACHERS' CLASS

Mr. Ewell will conduct an instruction class for the Sunday School teachers and others who wish to attend every Friday evening at eight o'clock. It is hoped that such a class will be a stimulus to the Sunday School work.

DR. WOOD'S 42d ANNIVERSARY. AND THE NEW ORGAN.

On Sunday, March 25th, Dr. David D. Wood completed forty-two years of service at the organ of St. Stephen's. When he took his seat at the organ-bench for the first time Dr. Rudder was the rector, and was drawing by his eloquence a large congregation. Dr. Wood has lived through two rectorships since that day, and has both welcomed and said farewell to Dr. McConnell and Dr. Worcester. It is impossible for a new comer to tell all that his playing must mean to the olde[r] members of St. Stephen's. He has made their hearts beat high with the thrilling strains of the wedding-march as the blooming bride's-maids have trooped up the aisle before the blushing bride, and he has given voice to the majesty of grief in the solemn requiem at the funeral.

Sunday after Snday he has caught them up on the wings of music and carried them up to some high mountain of feeling to make them realize, that the earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof, the round world and they that dwell therein, and called on them to sing "Te Deum Laudamus." A hymn would hardly sound properly played in St. Stephen's without his graceful opening chords, his transitions, his enrichment of the accompaniment, the swing that he gives to the congregational singing.

It is a source of pride to us that he is a composer as well as a conductor and skilful performer. When the music seems to be peculiarly close to the words of the psalm, and the waves of sound seem to well up and intermingle from some deep central fount, crossing and re-crossing one another until all the air thrills, like the surface of a pool in which the waves from the center meet the waves coming back from the shore, so that the whole surface is tessilated with the dancing, flashing, charging wavelets, when the fugue-movement is especially rich, then, we say to ourselves, "Dr. Wood is giving us one of his own compositions to-day." Just now his music can be heard nowhere but at St. Stephen's, and it doubtless draws many to our services, but we hope that the time will not be long before he will publish some of these chants, that they may be the possession of a wider audience.

Nor should we fail to remark on the unusually sympathetic relations that exist between Dr. Wood and his choir, nor the hearty support and welcome that he has given to the new rector. Something of this was said by the rector in a few remarks that he made on Sunday, March 25th. But some members have given a more substantial proof of their appreciation of Dr. Wood, by coming forward and giving one thousand dollars as their subscription towards a new organ. It has long been felt that St. Stephen's ought to have a better organ, and they who are in a position to know tell us that no hand except one that had such seeing fingers as Dr. Wood's could get music out of our old instrument. If we had a new organist (and may that day be long distant), we would undoubtedly be obliged to get a new organ.

The Misses Magee, however, feel that this movement ought to begin at once, and have offered to give one thousand dollars towards it. Others have so warmly seconded this suggestion, that a new organ for St. Stephen's clearly appeals to the congregation. After Easter the matter will be taken up more definitely, and probably a committee will be appointed. If the Latin motto, Bene inceptum, dimidium facti, holds good, and "Well begun is half done," then we may look to see the organ builders at work in our choir-loft this summer.

It would undoubtedly be a great addition to our equipment, and a valuable aid in our work next winter. Let us see if we cannot secure the money this spring.

Palms will be distributed at the doors of the Church to the congregation at both services on Palm Sunday.

A MEMORIAL TO MISS ELIZA J. MAGEE.

On April 20th, one of the most devoted and faithful members of St. Stephen's Church, Miss Eliza J. Magee, was taken from us. She was at the service on Good Friday morning, but was taken ill that afternoon, and after a brief and severe sickness, died early on the following Friday morning,

When the sun in all his state
Illumed the eastern skies,
She passed through glory's morning gate,
And walked in Paradise.

The last service that this loyal member of St. Stephen's rendered the Church of her constant love was a contribution toward the new organ.

And now her brothers and sisters have come forward and asked to have the privilege of presenting the organ to the Church as a memorial to their sister. The Vestry has gratefully accepted their offer. The Church has many memorials to this loyal family, and now the rich strains of the organ will ever call to the mind of those who knew Miss Magee, the qualities that made them love her, and the undying affection of those she left behind.

"I heard a voice from Heaven, saying unto me, Write, From henceforth blessed are the dead who die in the Lord; Even so saith the Spirit; for they rest from their labors."

AN ENDOWMENT FOR THE MUSIC.

It was generally agreed on the 42d anniversary of our organist, Dr. Wood that an effort should be made to raise the money for a new organ. As it is mentioned in a former paragraph, the Misses Magee began the movement with the gift of $1,000. Other contributions came in and the Vestry were contemplating a canvas of the congregation when the entire cost of the organ was given as a memorial. It would be a great pity if all this energy and liberality should be lost to the cause. The rector therefore ventures to suggest that the money which would have been given to the new organ be devoted to the endowment of the music. St. Stephen's has always been famous for its music, and provision ought to be made that for all time it should be able to provide an uplifting service. Such a fund would be a real aid towards the maintenance of the Church, and would enable the lovers of music to show their appreciation of this side of our worship. Every one to whom the rector has mentioned this plan has cordially acquiesced in it, and Miss Garrett has started the new fund with a contribution of $1,000. It is hoped that those who have contributed or made pledges to the Organ will authorize the treasurer to transfer their subscriptions to this fund, and that the whole congregation will bear a part in raising $15,000, the amount that the organ will probably cost, as a fund to maintain our music. It would be a great mistake to raise this endowment from a part of the congregation. It ought to be built up by offerings from all our members, small offerings as well as large ones, and be a common fund for the maintenance of our common praise.

THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

The last meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary for this season was held in the Parish House on Thursday morning, May 10th, at eleven o'clock. In the absence of the President, Miss Magee, Mrs. Howard Batcher, the Vice-President took the chair.

Dr. Grammer opened the meeting with a short service. This was followed by the reading of the minutes of the last meeting and the Treasurer's report. The following delegates gave reports of the work of their Committees:

Miss Laura Bell and Mrs. Grammer—Foreign
Mrs. Arrison—Colored People
Mrs. Butcher—Domestic
Mrs. Lewis—Diocesan

Miss Lewis being adsent, the report of the Committee on Indian Missions was read by the Secretary. Miss Wilkins made a special appeal for money for a clergyman in Arkansas whose son is unable to complete his course at the State University without assistance. A motion to take $20 from the treasury for this boy's support, was carried. It was also decided to divide the balance in the treasury between the Domestic and Foreign Committees. Mrs. Grammer's motion that the Society should hold its next meeting the first week in November, the day to be decided on later, was carried.

Dr. Grammer made a few closing remarks and announced that the Church is to have a new organ through the generosity of the brothers and sisters of Miss Eliza Magee, who have given it in her memory.

Miss Bell made the motion that a resolution of sympathy be sent to Miss Magee from the Society. Dr. Grammer also read a report of the expenditures of the Church during the year.

Some new members were enrolled, and the auxiliary closed an interesting meeting with high hopes for its success next autumn.

THE OFFERING FOR THE SAN FRANCISCO SUFFERERS

On April 29th, the second Sunday after Easter, an offering was taken up in St. Stephen's, at the morning service for the relief of the sufferers at San Francisco and the vicinity. A notice that the offering would be devoted to that purpose had been printed and sent out to the congregation with a brief appeal to use the Church as a channel for the distribution of relief.

The Treasurer sends in the following report:

"The names of the persons who contributed for the San Francisco sufferers and the amounts contributed were as follows:

THE THREE ARTS CLUB.

During the past month thirty five more names have been enrolled and with a present membership of ninety-one girls the Three Arts Club seems to have answered a need, and to have assured its own success.

The club room has been open every day from four to six with a hostess to welcome the girls. On some days the girls themselves have volunteered to act as hostesses, and pour tea, but usually one of the ladies of the congregation has presided.

The Club has been most delightfully entertained at different times by Miss Helen Ferguson, Miss Dwight, Miss Margaretha Jones, Miss McCormick, Miss Clayton, Mr. Crowell, Miss Fetzer, and Miss Clara Hutchin, who have given their various talents.

The Club will have its closing meeting on Friday May eleventh.

The Garment Committee acknowledge with thanks the receipt of garments from Mrs. Perkins, Miss Goss, Mrs. Cooper, Miss Christopher.

MOTHER'S MEETING.

The Mother's Meetings have been held every Thursday since the first of November, and have been very well attended, considering the amount of sickness among the members and their families. Miss Fetzer has been very helpful in visiting them, and attending to their wants. Miss Van Dusen and Mrs. Farmer have faithfully assisted in the conduct of the meetings, and helped encourage the work of their departments, the Saving and the Provident Funds. It has been customary on Thursday evening of Holy Week to hold a service in the Church; the administration of the Holy Communion, and an address by Dr. Snively. The service was unusually well attended this season. Dr. Grammer and Mr. Ewell visited the meeting on several occasions, and talked with the workers. The Annual Sale was held on the first Thursday in December, the proceeds to be used for St. Stephen's Farm, to put wire screens in doors and windows, and to furnish certain household articles. They realized $77.32, which will be expended before the opening of the Farm. The St. Stephen's Coal Fund had 74 depositors; 138 tons of coal was delivered by the Fuel Savings Society of the City and the Liberties of Philadelphia at a cost of $663.00.

The Girls' Friendly Society donated to the Mothers' $5.00, to purchase some prizes to be distributed at the Farm.

Dr. Grammer contributed $25.00 for the work of the meetings. There was a balance from last season of $14.25. Expended for Gospel Hymns, Printing Saving Fund Cards, Blank Book, Sugar, Tea, Milk, Cakes, and Ice Cream for closing night, $33.60, leaving a balance of $5.65.

MISS H. P. TAYLOR.

ST. STEPHEN'S AID SOCIETY.

The St. Stephen's Aid Society held its usual meetings during the Fridays in Lent. The meetings were well attended, and much work accomplished for the babies, who are supplied by this Society with the clothing necessary upon their arrival in the world. A number of small garments, amounting to one hundred slips, flannel skirts, wrappers, etc., were left in the Parish building for distribution, according to the discretion of Miss Fetzer. Thanks are due to many members for contributions of flannel, money and work.

If there is any member of the congregation who desires the services of a reliable and energetic elderly woman as care-taker of his house during the summer months he could probably be suited by applying to me as I know a good woman whom I should like to recommend.

In these days of "house-cleaning" and general rearrangement for the summer season there may be old furniture to be discarded. It would be most useful to me, and I should be so glad to have it as, just at this time, it would answer a special need.

The amount of use that can be gotten from cast-off things that are supposedly of no further account whatever is astonishing. Some of the people I visit are past-masters in the art of "turning and twisting," and making something out of nothing! Every article given me has been used with satisfactory results. This is especially gratifying, because in many cases the articles were sent to me with apologies for their worthlessness.

The meetings during the winter have been well attended and the members have entered into the duties and recreations with interest. A number of evenings religious services have been conducted by Rev. John E. Ewell. An associate, with a member, has visited the Sheltering Arms one evening a week. The Senior members have assisted the Secretary in visiting, and have been efficient housekeepers. They also arranged the Christmas entertainment to which the mothers of the members were invited. We were ably assisted by St. Stephen's Literary Club and members of the Orpheus Club in the entertainment given for our Mission Work, which netted $58.75. Our social evening was made a very pleasant one, with music, recitations and simple refreshments. An interesting lecture on The Passion Play was given by Miss Emily Bell, and an instructive and helpful lecture on Emergencies by Dr. Rahtes. The Admission Service was held on April 23. Two Associates were admitted as Working Associates, three members as Seniors, and fifteen Probationers as Members. Dr. Grammer officiated and made the address. The Branch has sent 89 garments to the G. F. S. Diocesan Missionary Box Committee. The Candidates meet Saturday mornings, and have been instructed in plain sewing, and will make an exhibit of their work May 12. The Physical Culture Class has been most successful under Miss Fetzer's direction. The Millinery Class has been of practical value to its members. The work carried on by the Associates has been in literature, travel study, the library, embroidery, and reading.

SUMMER READING

One of the problems on leaving home for the summer is to determine what books are to be taken along unless some books are carried, the traveler may be dependent entirely upon magazines and local libraries.

Huxley confesses in one of his controversies that he was shut up during his stay in the Alps, to the novels in the hotel library. This seems a poor way of securing mental refreshment. A judicious person who selects with care his associates, his hotel, and the material comforts of life ought to provide with some forethought for the demands of his mind. Every one agrees with Dr. Quincey that the youth who learnt to play on the violin, because he inherited a fine instrument had a most inadequate reason. Life conducted in such a fashion must indeed be a hap-hazard affair. And reading controlled by the mere accident of finding certain books. accessible is similarly choatic and fruitless. Most travlers will aggree that some books ought to be carried along. The debatable and difficult question is what books should be selected.

On this point our first suggestion is that they should be few. It is preposterous to carry many books. They are too heavy and the railroads are growing stricter and stricter about "excess weight" in baggage. They will not be read. I had a friend who used to carry immense loads of books and carefully unpack them and place them on his table, and that was usually the end of the whole matter. Indeed they ought not to be read. Summer is not the time for reading. Its bright hours should be devoted to rest, to nature, to sport, to adventure, and to friendship. The first rule is clearly that the books should be few. But those few books should be worth the reading. There are so many great books that it is a pity to waste time in ephemeral literature. The trouble especially with our younger people is that they are anxious to read the last books instead of the books that last. It is possible while one is seeking to keep up with the age to fall behind the ages. Let us then carry along some standard literature. Our third suggestion is that some good reading for Sunday be taken.

The poorest part of a summer's outing is usually Sunday. Where all the days are given up to pleasure, the first day loses much of its value as a time of rest, and most people look upon it as simply the most colorless day of the vacation. The religious privileges are often meagre, and the day is one of comparative vacuity. This can be avoided by carrying along books suited to the day, especially good biographies, the lives of earnest men and women by whom the world was made better, and in whom shined something of the glory of God. We ought to bring back from our holidays not only bodies refreshed but also minds cooled of the fever of our materialistic civilization. Much as the grandeur of nature helps to rid us of our excitement, we are persuaded that the seers, sages and saints are still more powerful. It is true what Wordsworth sang:

> "One impulse from a vernal wood
> Can teach us more of man
> Of moral evil and of good
> Than all the sages can."

But it is only in the case of a great seer like Wordsworth that his verse is true.

It is the limitation of most of us, as Browning points out with his rare discrimination in the meditation of the dissolute painter Fra Lippi, that we only realize the full beauty of nature when it is revealed to us by the art of a master. We need some human mediator to manifest to us the divine. It is a mistake to attempt to dispense with the aid of the great priests of the temple of Nature. Carry along then some poets, and take some biographies of men who have been lights in the world. Let them be your special Sunday reading and by their aid our vacation-Sundays will be times of devotion and spiritual refreshment.

C. E. G,

MISS FETZER

On the first of June Miss Fetzer's resignation of her position of Church Worker in St. Stephen's took effect according to her own wish. Miss Fetzer came to us last Fall, and although she had had no special training for the position, displayed unusual energy, thoroughness, and efficiency. Her gifts as an elocutionist, and physical trainer were of much service in the Mothers Meetings and the Girl's Friendly, and as a visitor among the poor she showed tact, judgment and assiduity. She has resigned to accept an important position in one of Philadelphia's large and famous schools and carries with her the good wishes of many friends in St. Stephen's. It is a pleasure to think that she will still worship with us and will not let the friendships formed in these last months pass out of her life.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL OUTING

On Decoration Day the annual excursion of the Sunday School was made to the grounds of the Burd Orphan Asylum. The weather was propitious, the attendance was fair, and the children were in the best of spirits. A regular programme was made out by Mr. Streaker, and the sports were heartily entered into by the boys and girls. A former celebration and an episode in which eggs were broken, had left upon Dr. Snively a rather unfavorable impression of the behaviour of our Sunday School, but all the past was entirely blotted out by the uniform good conduct of the boys and girls. The School established such a good name, that we are sure that it will be doubly welcome in the future.

THE EXECUTIVE BOARD OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATION OF THE DIOCESE OF PENNSYLVANIA

Philadelphia, June 13th 1906

My dear Mr. McMichael:

Will you please give to your Sunday School, both teachers and scholars the most hearty thanks of the Executive Board of the Sunday School Association of the Diocese of Pennsylvania, for their participation and co-operation in the last Easter and Lenten Offering of the Sunday Schools of this Diocese. You will be more than pleased to announce that the offering already amounts to over $34,000, and may almost touch $35,000. There has been nothing like it in the history of the Diocese. The Sunday Schools, Rectors, Superintendents, Teachers, and Scholars have all worked together so harmoniously and earnestly for the attainment of this most magnificent result. Will you also inform the Sunday School that in view of the fact that $2,000 now will be worth $5,000 next December, we have decided to advance that amount of money and have done so from the Sunday Schools of the Diocese to Bishops Nichols and Moreland for work on the Pacific Coast. This advance is in the name of the next Advent Offering of this Diocese, and it has already been paid over to the Board of Missions to be forwarded to California. It is thus we give this early notice that the next Advent Offering will be for assistance to Bishops Nichols and Moreland in California.

With best wishes, I am,

Yours most truly,

HERMAN L. DUHRING.

Your offering of $271.88, makes your Sunday School, No. 26, in the list.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

This summer the Sunday School will be kept open. There are many children who do not leave the city during the warm weather, and it is a pity that their Sundays should be left colorless and profitless. The co-operation of the teachers in this experiment is desirable, but is not essential, as the Superintendent will teach the lesson to the whole school from the desk. The Bible Study Lessons, in which work is demanded from the scholar at home, has been adopted, and the first lesson according to the new system will be given on June 17th by the Rector. The course will be on the Apostolic Leaders or Heroes of the New Testament. Children and teachers are cordially invited to co-operate.

This month Mr. Ewell is taking his vacation on the Maine coast, where so many of our congregation spend the summer. He will not return till after the first Sunday in July. After that date the Rector will leave and Mr. Ewell will be in charge until the latter part of September. It is hoped that he will come back from his outing greatly refreshed and strengthened for the summer work.

DIOCESE OF CALIFORNIA

BISHOP'S CHURCH RELIEF FUNDS

Bishop's House, 2515 Webster St.

San Francisco, May 17, 1906.

My dear Dr. Grammer:

Your favor has been received, and I beg to thank you for your thought of us and for the kind gift of Medical Supplies and Clothing from St. Stephen's Church, Philadelphia.

The sympathy and help of our brethern in these days of trial are most helpful and cheering.

I am, yours sincerely,

WILLIAM F. NICHOLS,
Bishop of California.

Carmel, Montgomery Co., Cal.
May, 14, 1906

Rev. Carl E. Grammer, D.D.

My dear Brother:

Will you kindly convey to the vestry and congregation of St. Stephen's the expression of our deepest gratitude for their splendid offering in aid of the sufferers of stricken San Francisco. They will be glad to know that never was keen suffering and positive agony faced with so much patience and endurance. Not a cry of complaint was heard, even when hunger and thirst came on those awful days, between the 18th and 22d of April. Your people will be glad to know that everything that human energy, impelled by human sympathy, could do was actually done, and we are once more ready to face the normal duties of life. To those of us who have lost home and all that home includes, comes the consoling thought that the lives of our wives and children were mercifully spared. God bless St. Stephen's for the noble and prompt action.

Believe me your sincere friend,

FRED'K W. CLAMPETT.

FROM ONE OF THE REFUGEES IN CALIFORNIA

The following written on a postal card was received a few days ago by one of our congregation who had contributed to the sufferers in California.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 7, 1906.

Your white hat bought at Stetson's April 9th, when "Sue" was along, duly turned up here and fell into the hands of a refugee. Give my best wishes to "Sue" and accept my thanks. We need about everything we can get. I will wear this "tile" in memory of you and endeavor not to get arrested, for with that brand on the hat it might prove inconvenient to you. I am roosting in a tent.

Gratefully yours,

LINCOLN E. SAVAGE.

Station H.

THE NEW ORGAN

The Music Committee and our organist, Mr. Wood, have not been idle, and we shall soon be able to announce their decision. It is probable, however, that we shall be compelled to wait many months for its erection. While this will be a disappointment, still the chief consideration is to secure a fine instrument that will last for generations.

KING'S DAUGHTERS OF THE WHATSOEVER CIRCLE

Have just finished and given a nice bundle of clothing to the Children's Homœpathic Hospital, also a bundle which will be given to St. Stephen's Farm.

June 20th will be the last meeting of the season.

From Mrs. H. F. Austin for Shoe Fund, 50 cts.

THE FARM

The usual arrangements have been made for opening the farm. Miss Lyon who had charge last year will be in control this year also, under Mr. C. F. McMichael as the representative of the Vestry. From the applications that have begun to come in, it is clear that the farm means much to many people.

Inquiries are being made by the children, are we going to have any Excursions this summer and it is hoped that their kind Friends wont forget them when they are away enjoying the Country or Sea Shore air whilst they are in the sultry courts and small houses and rooms where many are crowded together.

A trip to the Park of a warm afternoon is a great treat to them, and who would not feel better by helping to brighten those poorer than ourselves and who can not get away.

The Bishop of Ripon may be credited with some sense of humor, and so we read with a grain of salt the cable despatches which tell of his speech at one of the May meetings in London, advocating the establishment of a training home for engaged couples. It is said that he regretted that while immense pains were bestowed upon training for law and medicine there was no care exercised in training of those who were about to undertake far more responsible duties in life. No benevolent millionnaire has yet been induced to endow such a preparatory school of matrimony, but we read that in France they do things rather nicely, for after the civil service of marriage is performed there the official who conducts it passes to the newly-wedded pair a little book as the wedding gift of the French Government. The most important feature of this small volume is contained in about six pages that are devoted to special instructions which the Academy of Medicine has prepared on the care, feeding and clothing of infants. Some one has suggested that the Bishop of Ripon's plan might be given a start here in America in the establishment of seminaries for the training of young women as wives of the clergy. How would it do to have in connection with our theological schools such training instutions for young women, and then by canonical regulation provide that no candidate for orders should marry any except a graduate of one of these seminaries? For the wives of the rural clergy a necessary part of the instruction, of course, would include lessons in cookery, sewing etc.

THE CHURCHMAN.

At a certain church in an English couutry town there was an aged verger, who, to save the exertion of conducting persons to their seats, used to take his stand in the center of the church, and when any incomers appeared beckoned to them. The urchins used to pop their heads inside the church door and mimic his action by beckoning to him. One Sunday morning he nearly caught one of these boys, but the boy rushed away from the church and ran into the arms of a policeman.

"What have you been up to?" said the policeman.

Thought the boy, "I'm caught," but he said, "Oh, sir, there's a disturbance at that church, and they have sent me to fetch a policeman."

"Very good" said the officer, "I'll step in and see about it."

So he opened the door, and, taking off his helmet, entered. The moment the verger saw him he beckoned to him, and motioned him to a seat next an old gentleman.

Immediately he was seated he touched the old gentleman and said "Come quiet."

The old gentleman replied, "What do you mean?"

You know what I mean, and I don't want no chat. Come quiet, or I shall have to take yer by force."

By this time the congregation was looking at the pair, and wondering what was the matter, so the old gentleman said, "Very well, I have not made any disturbance, but to save one I will go with you."

When they had passed out of the church the verger followed them, and the policeman, turning to him, said:

"Now then, you have got to make your charge."

"Charge," said the verger, "there ain't any charge; all the seats are free!"

The Law of Progress.

Browning begins his masterpiece, "The Ring and the Book," with a description of the process whereby an Italian goldsmith makes the soft gold, "mere oozings from the mine," into an exquisite and highly-finished ring. According to Browning, the smith combines with the gold some harder metal, which makes an alloy that is capable of "bearing the file's tooth and the hammer's tap." After he has worked this harder substance into an artistic and beautiful form, expressive of his idea, and serviceable to the wearer, then, by a "spirt o' the proper fiery acid," he removes the foreign metal, the copper or the silver, and

"The shape remains
The rondure brave, the lilied loveliness,
Gold as it was and shall be evermore:
No carat lost—and you have gained a ring."

As I understand the processes of Church history, they are not unfairly typified by this process of the goldsmith. To the pure gold of the simple truth various metals of human philosophy have been brought, and thereby alloys have been formed which have been worked up by theologians, doctrinal artists, so to speak, into doctrinal systems which have had a beauty and use for their age, but whose union of the temporal and eternal, of the divine and human, has been dissolved in time, and the pure gold has been left, in the case of the truth (for here the analogy fails), to be employed in new combinations of a similar transiency. For example, to the simple truth of the Sermon on the Mount and the Gospels, to the essential teachings of Jesus Christ, St. Paul brought Judaism, rabbinical modes of thought and Jewish conceptions, and worked them up in his great Epistles into an artistic whole. As a necessary preliminary to this union of the Old with the New, he was obliged to separate the essential and the incidental in the Old Testament, to distinguish the letter that killeth from the spirit that giveth life and to break up the old amalgam by a destroying criticism, as the prerequisite to the new synthesis, and those larger statements which make St. Paul the second founder of the Christian Church. Hardly had the task passed out of his inspired hands, before it was taken up by the Greek Church. In the fires of those early controversies. Greek philosophy was fused with the essential truths of our faith, and the whole was worked up by the great theologians into the Catholic theology of the early centuries—eloquent, artistic, serviceable, wonderful.

Then came the Roman, and under the influence of his passion for rule, and his crasser imagination, a new alloy was formed. A union of gold and iron, perhaps, would correctly typify it, such as existed in the iron crown of Lombardy, where the pure gold was united with an iron nail under the delusion that the iron nail had gained sanctity from piercing the hand of Christ. The great truths of the duty of service and self-sacrifice were kept, but with them were combined many materialistic, pagan and barbaric conceptions. Grace was no longer Xaris, the divine favor, but became (gratia,) a sacred electrical fluid transmitted (ex opere operato.) Metanvia, a change of mind, gave place to poenitentiam agere do penance; and in all departments in place of the freer and larger conceptions of the Greeks, there prevailed harder, cruder, firmer notions, mighty instruments, considered from one point of view, for conquering and subduing the heathen tribes of northern Europe, but instruments that also became, in course of time, engines of oppression to the awakening intellect of a differently constituted and enlightened people. The result was the Teutonic era of the Reformation, which resembled the first century and the conflict between Judaism and Christianity, in that in this era the struggle against the old was conscious, whereas the Roman and Greek seemed to have failed to appreciate that in forming their combinations they were, to a certain extent, disintegrating earlier conceptions. With the reformers, the dissolving acids of criticism were freely used, the old conceptions of the Church and the Sacraments were dissolved, and the Teutonic sense of personal responsibility and freedom were joined with Christianity's essential teachings, to give, as a result, under the manipulation of the theologians, new statements of truth in reformed articles and catechisms, and new modes of worship in Prayer Books and Directories of Worship.

Then came the nineteenth century, with its science and democracy, and in spite of our attachment to the dear old ring in its beautiful and sacred sixteenth century form of workmanship, we have been obliged to see the old process go on, perhaps have felt compelled, by an inward law, to take part in it, and have marked the destroying acids of criticism break up the old formation. Our conceptions of the Books of the Scriptures, for example, have widely changed, and we have come to understand more and more that the treasure of the eternal truth has been placed in every age in earthen vessels, and that the things that are shaken must be removed that the things which cannot be shaken may remain.

But it is often asked, usually with a tremor of fear, What will be the outcome? In my judgment, the result will be the proper emphasis upon the fundamentals of the faith, in the first place, and in the second place, the formation of another synthesis. The great truths of science, philosophy and life, that have been revealed through the experience of the race, through science and new departments of study, are seeking admittance to our minds, and once admitted are bound to make with the gold of the old Gospel a new alloy, which under the laws of thought will be wrought up into a new and more splendid ring for the adornment of the Bride of Christ. This is the task upon which the Church is now engaged. At first, it seems a mere work of destruction, for every new synthesis requires a resolution of the old combination, a breaking up of the old parts, and a reduction of Christianity to its more fundamental and essential elements, a repristination of the faith. But it is also a real step forward. We have only reduced our baggage because we are going on a journey to amass new treasures. We have broken up our old statements, only that we may build larger and higher.

But what will be the final statement? Who can say? We must not expect the process to stop with our civilization, or our race. Not only the Jew, the Greek, the Roman, and the Teouton, but the metaphysical Hindoo, the ethical Chinese, the artistic and progressive Japanese, will surely combine their philosophies, so far as they contain any elements of truth, with the Christian truths, and make systems of their own, and the process will ever repeat itself—

"The cycle of a change sublime Still sweeping through."

But it would be wrong to imagine that because in one sense we leave the old, therefore, the old is entirely lost. No history will prove to have been unmeaning, and no good thing will be left behind. Knowledge will grow from more to more, and new truths break forth out of Nature, out of history, out of the soul of man, but the old Bible will always have its lessons, the old creeds will always have their truths and will ever gain deeper meanings. The old statements will always have their peculiar value, and while much will be changed, we shall carry all that has life and power into the new synthesis.

C. E. G.

Our New Parish Worker.

The Rector counts himself fortunate in having secured for our Parish Worker this year Miss Bessie Graham, a member of the congregation who is already active and well-known in the work of St. Stephen's. She has been unusually successful as head of the Primary Department of the Sunday-school, and has also had a helpful Bible class for women. Last year she was especially active as one of the Committee of Four who managed "The Three Arts Clubs." Besides this practical experience she has had a two years' course of study in the Training School for Deaconesses.

As the Parish Worker she will aid the rector in the care of the sick and poor, and it is particularly hoped that she may be able to secure helpers from among the women of the congregation. One of the most important functions of the Parish Worker is to find out helpful fields of work for those who would like to work in the vineyard. She will continue her activity in the Three Arts Club.

Our Summer Sunday-School.

We feel justified and take pleasure in calling it a success. It was new to St. Stephen's. It had the old habit of four months of annual summer closing to overcome, and the experiment was not plain sailing.

The attendance was left to personal choice. No teacher or scholar was urged to be present, so that the average attendance each Sunday during June, July, August and September, of about 100, was very encouraging.

It was Dr. Grammer's desire to have it tried, and it must be gratifying to him to have it succeed, with good prospects for a still larger success in future summer seasons.

The Course of Lessons—The Apostolic Leaders or New Testament Heroes—was taught until the third Sunday in July by our Rector, and the following Sundays by Mr. Ewell and the writer alternately. These lessons being explained from the Superintendent's desk to the whole school as one big class, allowed teachers and scholars to come and go as their vacation times and summer outings required. The loyalty of the large number who took short vacations and then returned to our summer school was most gratifying. We are particularly indebted to Miss Graham and Miss Goss for their constancy and excellent results in the management of the Primary Department; and to Miss E. Bertha Yocum, the faithful organist of the main school; and to Mr. Kirkpatrick, our loyal secretary.

Our studies were made, not only from books and lesson-leaves, but also by monthly, all-day Saturday visits to God's great out-of-doors, where as successfully our Master, Jesus the Christ, taught by the sea, by the river, on fields and hills, by wood and farm. And truly we found "Tongues in the trees, books in the running brooks, Sermons in stones, and good in everything!"

On May 30th, "Decoration Day," at the Burd Asylum, some 150 of the school thoroughly enjoyed the regular annual outing. Then, Saturday, June 20th, the first of the Summer-school's excursions went by steamer Lord Baltimore down the river as far as Fort Delaware, and from thence through the locks by the Chesapeake Canal to Lorewood, where we happily picniced and lunched for two of the noon hours, returning to the city by the steamer Penn. About 100 altogether, from the Primary Department, Main School and Bible Class, enjoyed this day upon the water. It had its sad note though, most keenly felt by Mr. Clayton and the faithful ones who nursed Mrs. Cooper in her illness. Later all hearts were saddened when it was learned that on Sunday, July 1st, this faithful teacher in our Sunday-school was called to her Eternal Home, and many eyes were tearful at the service held in the church by Dr. Grammer on the following Tuesday.

On Saturday, July 28th, an outing to Cape May to study God's wonder-world by the sea, was heartily enjoyed by a goodly number of our scholars and teachers. Here, after a jolly time in the surf under Mr. Ewell's merry and athletic leadership, a visit was made to Cape May Point Lighthouse. Captain Woolson cheerfully admitted all and kindly explained its saving purpose to those who were able to climb to its towering balcony and examine its wonderful beacon light. Captain Eldridge, of the near-by life-saving station, also cheerfully entertained us with stories about the apparatus and lives of his heroic crew of coast guards. Hunting for Cape May diamonds and a look into the geology of the old cape and bay shore closed the afternoon. As we stood by the sea and realized its perils we understood why Christ selected Andrew, Peter, James and John, men of the fisherman's heroic courage, to be the founders of his church.

Photograph by Miss Bessie Kehl

Our next field study was on Saturday, September 8th, which we called "Harvest Day of St. Stephen's Sunday-school at St. Stephen's Farm."

The Primary, Main School and Bible Classes, to the number of 125, went by trolley through Willow Grove on to Neshaminy, thence by hay and farm wagons (straw-riding) over the ruts and far away to our farm, merry as bees at blossom-time. Forty more there as guests and helpers increased our numbers to the largest company the farm has ever entertained at one sitting.

We assembled on the lawn at noon and our American flag was raised while Miss Dale, of our choir, sang "The Star Spangled Banner." Of course she was jostled by the scrambling children catching at the falling little flags in the shower of flags and confetti; but her clear strong voice rose musically above the racket and the older scholars joined her in the chorus. Then little Elsie Wood, our organist's daughter—on this her fifth birthday, by the way—hoisted and unfurled to the breeze for the first time our new Sunday-School flag of blue and white and gold. (This beautifully and artistically-made flag is largely the work of Miss Bessie Kehl, of our school.) All present then joined in singing our recently-composed Sunday-School hymn, to the tune of America:

St. Stephen's Sunday-school,
Teaching the Golden Rule,
For thee we sing;
Long may our school be bright
With God's pure, holy light,
Keeping Christ's truth in sight,
His praise we ring.

St. Stephen, martyr, bold,
Loved, fearless, Saint of old,
Be thou our guide;
May we teach in Christ's name,
May we add to His fame—
Loyal to death, the same,
Be this our pride.

Each teacher, scholar, all,
With hymn and prayer, we call—
God hear our cry;
Keep every heart so true,
That we may live and do,
Joyously, all for you,
Great God on high!

Of course our appetites were lusty for the dinner-hour—"then and there!"

Next came "Life on the Farm," and after "Our Infants" had painted the barn, swam the creek and hunted field and wood and orchard we had our "Farm Lesson." This was taught from the porch, in the shade of the house, and again are we indebted to Miss Lyon and those who so charmingly decorated the portico with corn, grain, vegetables and fruits, from which we drew our lesson. The subject was "Truth," and many of our little ones proved by their apt answers that we have many hopefuls among us. "False Faces" closed this part of the program, with little Elsie, John, Marion, Anna and others adding their bright young faces of Truth, behind the false faces of a Bear, Fox, Lion and other wildlings, to illustrate our lesson that St. Stephen's School is endeavoring to remove false faces and reveal the Gospel Truths.

Those who were not there after the lesson to enjoy our big-hearted cook's delicious ginger-cake and the ice cream, or to ride in Mr. Greenshields' straw-cushioned hay wagons, or go homeward in the farm wagons out to the trolley and enjoy the long September ride back to the city over the hills of Bucks and Montgomery Counties have much to regret.

And we are happy that God smiled with cheering sun-lit days on all our outings. Shall we not hope for a continuance of His blessings on our Sunday-school work? Will not more of the able men and women of St. Stephen's Church volunteer a portion of their talents and time to this large opportunity for Christian teaching through this department of our loved church?

The fall season is at hand. Our beloved Superintendent, Mr. Clayton F. McMichael, will be back on the 8th of October to welcome the regular members of the school as well as new helpers, teachers and scholars to the Fall and Winter sessions. We hope for a large attendance to give him a hearty greeting.

George H. Streaker.

The Farm.

After a very successful season the farm was closed on the 15th of September. The number of applications was overwhelming during the midsummer weeks, and the full capacity of the house hardly met the demand at times.

Mr. Ewell visited the farm every week and oversaw generally what was being done. The house needs a general overhauling. Recommendations pertaining to this matter have been made.

Each Thursday Mrs. Taylor, of the Mothers' Meeting, would send parties of the mothers for the day to get a breath of the good air up in Bucks County. One hundred and twenty-five of the Sunday-school were most successfully entertained the 8th of September.

Altogether there were 405 guests.

The road has been piked to Johnsville, and in the future the friends and guests of the farm will be met at that station. Attention is called to the back of this paper to the change in the picture of the farm.

The donations were as follows:

Ice cream and cake for Sundays, Mr. Samuel Moore, Jr.

Ice cream for July 4th, Mr. Clayton F. McMichael.

$5.00 for prizes, G. F. S.

Four pillow cases, two shams and towels for the King's Daughters' room, King's Daughters Society.

Odd dishes, Mrs. S. A. Jordan.

One basket sweet potatoes, Mrs. M. Martella.

Blankets, Mrs. Fell.

Fruits for preserving, medicines, bandages, etc., Mrs. H. P. Taylor.

From the Mothers' Meeting—5 linen tablecloths, 6 dozen napkins, 2 dozen long huck towels, 1 dozen tea towels, 1 dozen wash rags, 3 dozen Turkish towels, 2½ dozen short huck towels.

From George B. Evans—500 paper napkins to use for picnic parties and day excursionists.

From Lenten Sewing Society—5 pillow cases, sets blocks, 2 sets pastry boards, 4 dolls, 1 dozen balls, 4 sets blocks, 1 drawing slate, 6 plates, 6 fans, 1 Japanese fan, 1 Japanese parasol, 2 dolls, 2 pin trays, 1 drinking cup, 4 trays.

Through Mothers' Meeting—Books given as prizes

Miss Petticoat, Graustark, Gold Elsie, Won by Waiting, Cousin Maud, Darkness and Daylight, English Orphans, History of England, Swiss Family, Two Thousand Leagues Under the Sea, Leopard Spot.

From Some Young Friends—A "Poverty Progressive Euchre."

Six pocket handkerchiefs, 3 sets pins, 2 tin buckets, 2 balls, 1 table.

Potatoes From the Farm.

Potatoes from St. Stephen's Farm have all been gathered and will be the same price as last year, 90 cents per bushel. Orders may be sent through Mr. Joseph Clayton, Verger, or direct to Mr. Greenshields, St. Stephen's Farm, Warminster, Bucks County, Pa.

On Sunday, October 7, the winter hours for the services will begin. Morning service at 11 o'clock, and evening service with sermon at 4 o'clock.

The winter session of the Sunday-school will begin on Sunday, October 7, at 9.50 A. M. All the scholars and teachers are asked to be on hand at that time. A cordial welcome awaits them. The school last year was in a splendid condition, and, with its band of earnest and faithful teachers, we have every reason to look forward to a happy and prosperous season this year.

A Piano Needed.

Last year a piano was rented for use in the Three Arts Club, but this is such an expensive procedure that it is hoped that the money can be saved to the Church by the gift of a piano this year. There are so many pianos that are lying unused in houses that it may be that some of their owners will be moved to present one to the church. What better use could be made of an instrument consecrated by tender associations, which sacred memories prevent the owner from selling? The piano once touched by the fingers of some departed daughter or sister can continue her ministrations to others by helping along the parochial activities. In our third story it will be useful for a Bible class, as well as for the Arts Club.

There will hardly be room for any other than an upright piano.

If there is no piano available as a gift, we would be glad to store an upright for the privilege of using it. It would be well kept and carefully tuned.

Soon the people will be back to their accustomed places. Business will then revive and the schools for the youth of the land will be in active operation. Familiar faces will once more be seen in church. Ministers and congregations will be again united. Then the work of the Church calls for those who with a will and heart can help to meet the demand. Money will be needed, as always, to defray expenses, but money always is offered when interest is aroused and the claim is just and worthy. But the work is calculated to do more than nourish, cheer, educate or uplift those for whom the effort is made. It helps the worker. He himself is nourished, cheered, educated and uplifted. There are those who come to our churches as strangers, and they find the church so cold and forbidding. They know no one and nobody manifests a particle of interest in them. There is a tremendous truth in the saying that he who would have friends must show himself friendly. So also is it true that when we try to help the Church in her various departments of work, the Church itself becomes more real and alive to us. If one feels that in the Church he is left too severely alone, let him look quietly around to find where he can be of help, and he will find an interest not only aroused within himself, but others will begin to care for him. Be this, however, as it may, the Church calls for workers. The response to that call may require sacrifice of some sort, but if it is a right call our sacrifice will be amply rewarded.

July 21st, 75 children were taken to Sedgeley (Fairmount Park). It was a lovely day and the children enjoyed every moment of their outing. Games of all sorts were played and the guests, Mr. Streaker and Mr. Kirkpatrick, joined in all the fun and were ready to tell the children stories or to get a bean bag off the trees. The King's Daughters also assisted in entertaining the children and helped the ladies serve the ice cream and cake to them.

An entertainment or party of some kind will be given later to make up for the loss of one excursion.

The King's Daughters of the Whatsoever Circle will have their first meeting of the season October 17th in the guild room, Parish House, at 7.45 o'clock. A good attendance is requested, so that officers may be elected for the year and work planned. New members are cordially welcomed.

An Interesting Letter.

St. John's Church, No. 28 Kurofunecho,
Asakusa, Tokyo, Aug. 20, 1906.

Rev. C. E. Grammer, D. D., S. T. D.

My Dear Sir.—Please allow me to introduce myself. This was once a student at Philadelphia Divinity School, who returned to Japan to engage in the mission work. This letter is to give my thanks to you for your generous gift for my expenses, by Drs. Stanger and Heffern's appeal. My health was warned by an eminent doctor in West Philadelphia, but after all, by His merciful will and the advantages that were afforded by kind friends in America, I have been very well and could stand quite hard work. This is good reason I am so thankful.

My Dear Sir.—I am a stranger to you in flesh. This is why I am specially grateful for your interest and sympathy. Please excuse the delay of my acknowledgment. The work has always been too pressing. The first duty called me in constant running. My church is small, with a membership of about ninety communicants. The call for evangelistic work is very pressing. The opportunity at present in Japan is great. We can find anywhere any number of lost souls. They are much ready to accept the glad tiding. The work is not hard in Japan at present, but it is only busy.

The enemy of Christianity is arising among ourselves. The socialism is taking strong root among intellectual people, who are partly Christian. They are Tolstoy-worshipers. They insist on radical socialism. I am afraid some day Japan, who won in war, will be conquered by Russian socialism. Last year's anti-peace demonstration, which resulted in fatal destruction of many buildings, including churches, was backed up by such radical socialists. Unless we are steady to establish the peaceful kingdom of God Japan is in danger, not only in this phase, but also of moral corruption.

I recall my pleasant attendance at your church to hear Dr. Worcester and other eminent speakers. I hope your work will ever be blessed. Very truly yours.

P. C. Daito.

The Mothers' Meetings.

The first meeting for the Mothers will be held in the Guild Room of the Parish House, on Thursday evening, November 1, at 7.30 o'clock. We hope that there will be a full attendance, and that all will keep up their interest in the work. We are glad to know that the Mothers' Bible Class will be in charge of Miss Bessie Graham, who has proven so acceptable to the members of the class. Let this be the banner year for all our work. We hope to have with us at the opening Rev. Dr. Grammer and Mr. Ewell.

The Girls' Friendly Society.

This society had its first meeting of the year on Monday, October 1. As few of the Associates were present and also the Rector and Assistant, the evening was mostly social, and later an address was made by the Rector.

The second meeting was much enlivened by Mr. Hall, who for many years has been a great friend of the girls. At the third meeting the secretary of the Branch, Miss Maria Wilkins, was accorded a most glowing welcome. In her honor the parish room was beautifully decorated with flowers and fall leaves. The enthusiasm manifested showed with what deep affection Miss Wilkins is esteemed by all the girls.

Another of the faithful workers in this society, Mrs. Johnson, was presented with a beautiful bouquet of roses, in honor of her wedding anniversary.

The Rev. Mr. Johnson was present to share with her the congratulations of the occasion.

The Woman's Auxiliary.

The first meeting of St. Stephen's Branch will be held at 11 o'clock on Thursday, the 8th, at the Parish House, when the committees will make their reports, and the plans for the year be determined upon. This society was organized last winter, and numbers 35 enrolled and contributing members. Every woman of the church ought to be on the list. It ought to be the largest society of women in the church, where all those who work and those who sympathize with the work, although they cannot take an active part in it, meet together.

Don't say that "I would attend if I could do any good." Your attendance will be a great good. Your interest will be a great help. Your friendship will be a boon to those who worship with you. There are only four stated meetings a year after this first one. They fall in Advent, Epiphany, Lent and Eastertide. No woman need be a stranger in St. Stephen's. Let her join this society. No well-known member of St. Stephen's is doing her utmost to help up the cause unless she gives us, if possible, the support of her name and presence. C. E. G.

The Sunday-School.

On Sunday, October 18, the winter session of the Sunday-school opened. A most hearty and enthusiastic welcome was given to the superintendent, Mr. McMichael. The Assembly room was tastefully decorated with flowers and autumn leaves. In his address Mr. McMichael, as it were, put forth the platform upon which the school was to be conducted this winter. First of all it was that God's Word was to be diligently studied, and then the truths there found were to be assimilated into the fibre of character.

There was a full attendance of the scholars in the main school, and an overcrowding in the primary department. That part of St. Stephen's Sunday-school has never been properly equipped and plans are being discussed to have adequate room for its increased growth and conveniences which will make it easier for the teachers to handle and control the children. The Sunday-school held during the summer took no interest from the Fall session, but seems to have lent an added zeal to the whole work.

Miss Clara Farrar Smith will be greatly missed in the Young Men's Bible Class this winter, as she will reside in Washington. It is hoped this will not be permanent, and in the meantime Mr. Ewell will take the class.

The Young Ladies' Bible Class this year will be conducted by Miss Julia McAlister. Its former teacher, Miss Neidhard, has accepted church work in New York.

If any members of the congregation having partly worn garments, especially black skirts, coats, etc., to dispose of, will kindly send them to the Parish House, directed to the Mothers' Meeting, they will be gratefully received.

The Men's Thank Offering.

This is a season of great meetings. In politics enthusiasm has been raised to a high pitch by great gatherings, addressed by fervent speakers. At some of them hymns have been sung. It was a novel and refreshing sensation to hear the band playing the familiar tune of "Onward, Christian Soldiers."

It is foolish to be afraid of enthusiasm. The original meaning of the word is, "To be in God"—to be filled with divine spirit. No one is really pure who is not afire with some great purpose. Earnestness is the refiner's fire and the fuller's soap.

The men of our church need enthusiasm, especially on the subject of missions. To this end a monster meeting has been arranged for men only. The Academy of Music has been engaged, and Bishop Greer, of New York; Bishop Anderson, of Chicago, and Mr. George Wharton Pepper, of this city, will speak of the claims of missions and the duty of the men of our church to bear a hand. The committee rely upon the Episcopalians of Philadelphia to stand by them and make this meeting a great success. The special theme will be the "Men's Thank Offering." The plan is that, in recognition of all the benefits of which the Church and Bible have been the channels to us in the last three hundred years, the men of this church shall present a special thank offering at the General Convention in Richmond in 1907, when the landing at Jamestown will be especially celebrated. These gifts are to be over and above all our other contributions. This plan is now calling for the zealous co-operation of the men of our church. The men of St. Stephen's must bear their part. The rector has procured a number of tickets for reserved seats, and urgently invites the men who worship in this congregation, whether communicants or not, to attend this great rally. Let us not be idlers, on the outskirts of the vineyard, or critics, or faultfinders, or hangers-back, but let us co-operate and know the blessedness of union, brotherhood, and co-operation in large undertakings for the extension of God's kingdom among men.

November 8 is the day; and let every man who goes to St. Stephen's help to make the meeting a visible proof that the Church is in earnest, believes that she has in the Gospel of God's love a good message, and is seeking to pass it on.

C. E. G.

Parish Notes.

We note in the Parish News of the Church of the Holy Apostles, New York, that Miss Pauline Neihard, who is one of its deaconesses, will be formally set apart for that office in this city on All Saints' Day. It is regretted that the service could not be at St. Stephen's, where Miss Neihard has been such a faithful and valued church worker, and where she has so many friends. No congregration could join in the prayers for her and her work more earnestly. May she be richly blessed.

The Three Arts Club.

The Three Arts Club had its opening meeting on Saturday afternoon, November 3. During the coming season the club will be open every day for the use of members, and tea will be served every Saturday afternoon from 4 until 6. On the first Saturday of every month an informal entertainment will be given of interest to students of the Three Arts.

The committee in charge is:
Miss Emily Bell, president.
Mrs. W. K. Lineaweaver, vice president.
Mrs. Edward R. Fell, treasurer.
Miss Bessie Graham, secretary.

An Auxiliary Board was formed to assist in the management of the club, and it is earnestly hoped that the services of other members of the congregation may be enlisted upon this Board.

Mrs. Charles E. Noblit, chairman.
Miss Josephine Lockhart.
Mrs. Miles Hillary.
Mrs. William Campbell.
Miss Florence Lineaweaver.
Miss Amy Ewing.
Miss Emily Austin.

The Garment Society.

Last winter was one of the most successful seasons in the history of the society, over 300 garments being sold at a nominal price to the poor. The closets are almost empty now, and it is hoped that members of the congregation will respond promptly to this appeal which we now make for second-hand clothing of all descriptions, for worn linen, and any cast-off house furnishings, that we may meet the immediate demands upon us, and that we may make this winter's work even more successful than the last.

The committee acknowledges with many thanks the receipt of garments from Mrs. T. P. Chandler.
Miss Clara Farrar-Smith.
Miss Lammot.
Miss Goss.

The New Organ.

Building of an organ of any kind is a large undertaking, but especially an organ of the size that is being built by Mr. Haskell for St. Stephen's. It will have four manuals and 64 speaking-stops. These are the actual sound-producing stops, which Dr. Wood will have to handle, besides there will be a great number of mechanical stops, 11 pedal stops, and four swells.

Those of the congregation who have worshipped in the church this Fall have undoubtedly noticed over the chancel an opening in the ceiling which looks like a large, divided window frame. This is to allow the tones from the echo organ which is being built in the loft to be heard in the church. It will be connected with the main organ by means of electricity, and may be played separately or in conjunction with any or all of the manuals of the principal organ. In this echo organ will be found the Vox Humana, Vox Celeste and several other very effective stops, besides foundation stops will not be wanting.

An interesting feature of the present work is the voicing of the pipes in the church. The voicing is very rarely done outside of the factory rooms, owing to the difficulty of securing the church for this purpose. The advantage of voicing in the church is that the stops are made to conform to the acoustic properties of the building, and the relative strength and quality can be determined with greater accuracy.

On the south side of the organ the voicing machine has been installed with a motor in the tower to supply the wind pressure.

The voicing is going on under the direct supervision of Dr. Wood, and when the organ is completed from the artistic standpoint it will be largely his own creation, while the builder will be responsible for its mechanical effectiveness.

Any necessary modification of the stops can be easily made after they are placed in the organ. No one can tell exactly about this, but factory-voiced organs are often wide of the mark, and it is sometimes next to impossible to make it exactly right when built in the church.

Dr. Wood's aim is not to have built a concert organ but a church organ—not an instrument to produce noise, but one that will satisfy the hearer from a musical standpoint.

The contract calls for the completion of the organ before Ash Wednesday, which falls on February 13. We trust that nothing will happen to interfere with its fulfilment.

The Alpha Kappa Fraternity.

A meeting of the young men of the parish was called for Friday evening, October 12. There was an encouraging response on that evening, and the Rector outlined the plans of an organization. St. Stephen's has always seemed to do everything for its women and girls, and now the men and boys must have a chance.

On the second Friday evening a Greek Letter Fraternity was instituted, and this will be the underlying basis of the work. About forty young men are charter members, and since the proceedings were secret little naturally can be reported.

However, it can be said that outside of the Fraternity's teaching and work there will be classes of different kinds, for physical culture, dramatics, debating, etc.

There will be a sociable evening every month, the first one being Friday, November 9.

The Junior Order of the Alpha Kappa Fraternity meets in the Guild room every Friday, at 7.45 o'clock, under the charge of Miss Graham. Twenty members have been enrolled at the first two meetings. The officers elected are:

Herbert Leitsch, president.
James Mearns, vice president.
George Simpson, treasurer.
Clarence Mearns, secretary.

The initiation of the members has so far filled all the time of the meetings, but the club purposes hereafter to have besides its parliamentary routine work a short address by some invited speaker, followed by some athletic exercises, and the playing of games.

Children's Friend Society.

Donations received in October:

From Mrs. H. F. Martin	$2.00
From Mr. Samuel Moore	10.00
Total	$12.00

The children will have their Thanksgiving treat some time in November.

King's Daughters.

Donation received through Dr. Grammer from church fund to assist in their charitable work, $10.

The first meeting of the King's Daughters for the season of 1906-07 was held on Wednesday evening, October 17, 1906. There were seventeen members present.

The meeting was opened by the reading of the forty-fifth Psalm and prayers. The president then read some old letters, etc., which had been sent to former officers of the circle.

An election of officers for the ensuing year followed, and on taking an account of the votes, it was found that the following parties were elected to hold offices:

Mrs. E. S. Vanderslice, president.
Mrs. Mutchler, vice president.
Miss Minnie Wilder, treasurer.
Miss Bertha T. Walshe, secretary.

Two new members were installed—namely, Miss Anna Hartman and Miss Elsie Rotherhauser.

The remainder of the evening was given to discussing some way by which a little money could be raised to buy materials, etc., to work with, and it was suggested that a package party be given. As there were several dissenting members to this plan, another idea was suggested—that of giving each member a penny, with which to make a dollar by the next meeting. As this idea met with the approval of all the members, the treasurer gave each girl one cent, on which she was to report at the next meeting.

The meeting closed about 9.30.

BERTHA T. WALSHE,
Secretary.

The next meetings of this Circle will be November 7 and November 21, in the Guild room of the Parish House, quarter of 8 o'clock.

A Morning Thought.

"Every day is a fresh beginning,
Every morn is a day made new,
You who are weary of sorrow and sinning
Here is a beautiful hope for you,
A hope for me, and hope for you."

The clergy of St. Stephen's Church are not Mind Readers. Hence notices of sicknesses are necessary that they may know of them.

Again, they are not exactly expert clairvoyants. When you change your address, kindly inform them of your new whereabouts.

Shoe Fund.

From Mrs. A. F. Martin.....50c.

The Rector is very much interested in the Shoe Fund and considers it a very good work. We therefore hope to open about the middle of November.

Donations of any kind either new or cast off shoes if wearable or money will be very acceptable for this purpose.

If sent to the Parish House mark Shoe Fund, care of Mrs. Vanderslice.

The Memorial to Bishop Whitaker.

The letter printed below from the Bishop-Coadjutor makes its appeal in such clear, strong terms that it is unnecessary for the Rector to add anything to it. We are enjoying the benefit of the Deaconess House in the services of our Parish Visitor, Miss Graham, who was equipped for her work by a course at that school. Miss Pauline Neidhart, a member of this parish, who was set apart as a deaconess last All Saints Day, and is now connected with a church in New York, is a graduate of the same institution. We believe in the training of women for special service in the ministration of the Church. No one doubts the wisdom of endowing educational institutions. There could not be a more worthy object. The immediate occasion is most appropriate. Bishop Whitaker's interest in the school and his faithful services of twenty-five years are recognized in one gift. The Rector hopes that this generous parish will see the propriety of some grateful gift in thankfulness for the Bishop's care, and recognize the duty of providing for this excellent school. He especially commends the letter to those confirmed by Bishop Whitaker.

C. E. G.

Oct. 31, 1906.

To the Church People of the Diocese of Pennsylvania.

My Dear Friends:—

This autumn completes a period of twenty years since our beloved Bishop Whitaker began his memorable work in this diocese. A very strong and general desire is everywhere expressed that this date should be marked by some gift to the Bishop expressive of the universal love and gratitude felt by his people. The Bishop, however, on being approached, modestly, yet positively, forbade any such personal gift, but on being urged, has said at last that he had always been particularly anxious that the Church Training and Deaconess House, which he had founded, should be endowed, and should his people be willing to do this, it would afford him the most profound satisfaction. This method of marking their Bishop's work in the diocese has commended general approval, and a strong committee has been appointed to carry it out. It is desired to raise a sum of $50,000 to do this, and the committee hope that towards this sum every member of each parish will contribute as liberally as possible. In pursuance of this object this circular note may be considered by every rector or other clergyman as addressed to himself personally, and additional copies are sent to each one to be distributed among the laity of the various parishes. Speaking to every rector individually, we urge each one of you to appeal to your people in advance and to take up a collection for this purpose before the close of the year. We ask each one of you to go out into your parish and to address personally those who have been especially blessed with means. We request you also to appeal to every communicant who has been confirmed by the Bishop in your parish during the past twenty years. Appeals from the chancel, or even personal letters alone, will not be sufficient. We consider that this appeal of ours takes precedence over every other in the diocese during the year now before us, not only on account of the vital importance which the work of training women shows with increasing power everywhere in the Church, but also because, should this effort fail, a most unfortunate effect will be produced. No diocese in the land is more devoted to its Bishop or holds him in greater love than that of Pennsylvania, and nowhere is there a more important work than that which centers in the Deaconess House. There is, however, a real danger, lest this present effort fail through over-confidence, and the feeling on the part of some rectors, that whatever funds they fail to raise will be easily provided by others. We therefore most affectionately, but still most emphatically, ask each rector to at once take such steps as will place his parish in this Roll of Honor. We ask you to accept the date of December 31st as that before which the account of every parish must be handed in to the Treasurer of this Fund, Mr. George C. Thomas, 206 West Washington Square, Philadelphia. In view of the immense amount of unselfish work already accomplished in the Training School (in which no instructor is paid for his services) and of the Bishop's expressed wish that whatever is done should be for the benefit of the diocese, rather than for himself, we make this appeal to you with the greater confidence. We need hardly add that the Bishop knows nothing whatever of our letter. Will you not kindly go to work at once and see what you can accomplish in your parish and neighborhood as the result of your loving heart and willing hand?

On behalf of the committee.

Faithfully yours,
ALEX. MACKAY-SMITH,
Bishop-Coadjutor, Diocese of Pennsylvania.

Woman's Auxiliary.

On Thursday morning, November 8th, at 11 o'clock, in the Parish House, there was a preliminary meeting for the purpose of electing officers and planning for the year's work. Forty-five ladies of the congregation were present. Mrs. Howard Butcher presided in the absence of Miss Magee.

Miss Julia McAlister's resignation as secretary was accepted. Mrs. David Wood was elected to the office. The other officers of last year were re-elected. Next followed the reports of committees.

For the Foreign Committee Mrs. Grammer read a letter from Miss Emery, the General Secretary. It outlined the Auxiliary plan for the coming year, telling of the needs of the field and laying special emphasis on the necessity for workers, forty in all being needed. The co-operation was asked of all members to bring their influence and prayers to bear upon any one who may be available for the field.

A letter was read by Dr. Grammer from Mr. Ishii, of Tokio. His appeal was for a new building, having been compelled to sell the old buildings of his orphanage on account of the erection of a powder mill in the neighborhood. The Rector highly commended this devoted and self-denying Japanese, whom he knows so well personally.

Mrs. Arrison made a splendid report as chairman of the Colored Committee.

The general committee of this branch meets the first Monday of each month at the Church House, with an attendance of about seventy. It maintains by pledges scholarships at the church schools in Lawrenceville, Va., and Raleigh, N. C. Many boxes are also sent to appeals. In cash and box valuations over $6500 was spent last year by the Pennsylvania committee.
